beginning to move with more spirit. The average quality is all that can be desired. The yellow varieties move best, although pink and white have a fair sale. Liberal supplies of pompons find an outlet. There is only a limited cut of good carnations, but the demand is not urgent, so no great shortage is felt. The rose situation continues to improve, quality and quantity both filling requirements better than for some time. Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and Russell roses do well and baby roses are popular. Good American Beauties are offered more freely and no difficulty is experienced in their disposal. The supply of valley still is short of requirements and the price has advanced somewhat, though it does not demand the high price here that is reported in some of the eastern cities. Some good flowering plants are arriving and are moving readily.

stay at Los Angeles. While there he visited various stores and says they all seemed to be doing a normal business.

Jack Olson, proprietor of the New Rosarie, has moved into a new store at Devisadero and California streets, two doors above his old location. The new store is twice as large as the old one and is more desirable in every respect. A color scheme of cream and green is carried out effectively in the furnishings and decorations. There is a balcony in the rear for office purposes and display space for baskets, etc. The windows provide excellent display facilities. Mr. Olson says the improved quarters have already had a wonderful effect upon business, it being easier to get good prices for good stock in the new surroundings. He reports the season for dinner baskets opening up nicely.

PORTLAND, ORE.

Club Meeting.

The Portland Floral Society held a well attended and interesting meeting September 19. Two proposals for membership were read. A. I. Gale reported that thirteen beds were filled by growers at the county fair and that thirteen prizes were awarded—six firsts and seven seconds. It was suggested that it would be fairer to the growers if the beds were paid for at so much per square foot, without any competition.

The question of the best date for the club's annual ladies' night was referred to the entertainment committee, for a report at the October meeting. The question box, operated by J. G. Bacher, brought up the first question: "Why do so many growers have trouble in germinating pansy seed, and what is the best method of making up a bed for them?" Answer was made by E. J. Steele, who gave a detailed description of the methods used at the Mastodon Pansy Gardens, where the seed beds are all outdoors. He advocated plenty of air; also plenty of moisture, properly applied. If too wet the seeds are likely to spoil, or if germination has taken place the plants will be attacked by a fungus that causes them to damp off. If too dry the seed will not sprout, or the sprout will dry up. He sows the seeds thickly enough to yield an average of 125 seedlings per square foot and covers the seeds lightly with fine soil. Mr. Steele stretches a layer of thin canvas over the bed and waters through the canvas, sometimes as often as five times a day, but always sparingly. "If the growers would bear in mind," said Mr. Steele, "that the seed is actually the plant in embryo and its germination requires treatment similar to that of further advanced stages, there would be fewer failures."

"To what extent has the increased cost of material and labor affected the grower?" was answered by F. A. Van Kirk, who stated that his records showed an increase of seventeen per cent since 1910. Mr. Van Kirk stated that hired labor cost did not figure heavily, as the owner in his carnation range did almost all his own work and the wage rate charged to operating expense had not changed in the last five years.

"Is it practicable to raise the retail price of flowers to keep pace with the increased cost of production?"—an important question—was answered by A. J. Clarke, James Forbes and several others. The feeling seemed to prevail that the only way to increase the price was to reduce the output. The cheaper grades of stock handled by the cut-rate stores are nearly always in oversupply. The better grades are seldom wasted and a moderate diminution of their output would surely raise the price.

Several tables of "500" players were filled after the refreshments. W.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

After an exceedingly dull summer in the flower business, things are commencing to pick up a little and there now is a larger demand for flowers than has been the case for some time. The supply of outdoor flowers has been

Now is the best time to start to sow the

to follow the Chrysanthemum crop. No other flower will pay better. You will have fine flowers from January until late in spring. All progressive florists have abandoned growing the late Spencer and are making now four times as much money with this early-flowering type, not only for inside but for outside planting. If sown in October and November they will bloom two to three months earlier; if sown outdoors they will bloom three to four weeks earlier than the late Spencers, producing more and better flowers and keeping the buds during the most rainy weather. We have a limited quantity of the following varieties to offer at reduced prices:

PINK AND WHITE ORCHID, WHITE ORCHID, MRS. A. A. SKACH, ORCHID BEAUTY, rose; LAVENDER ORCHID, lavender pink; MISS FL. FABING, Yarrowa color. This lot will contain about two to five per cent of the late hybrids of the same color and for late planting they are of more value than the re-selected varieties of the same names.

Price: 1 oz., 50c; 4 ozs., $1.50; 1 lb., $5.00; 10 lbs., $45.00

FLORISTS' WINTER ORCHID-FLOWERING MIXTURE.

This mixture consists of all the leading commercial varieties of pink, rose, white and lavender, with a very few red and blue.

Price, $4.00 per pound.

GOLD MEDAL MIXTURE.

This is made up of about fifty distinct varieties, evenly balanced to each color. It contains almost every variety in commerce, including this year's and next year's novelties, all of the Winter Orchid type only. Last year we sold over 90,000 packets to private gardeners and retail florists. In semi-tropical countries they have been blooming all winter. In cooler climate, if sown early in spring they bloom in May, three to four weeks earlier. Florists who keep a seed counter should have this steadily on hand, ready for their customers. Sold only in one size packets. Each packet contains sufficient seed to plant 30 to 40 feet of row.

Prices: 1 pkt., 25c; 100 pkts., $12.00; 1000 pkts., $100.00.

Order now all you need for your winter or outdoor planting, as this limited quantity may not last long.

For all other Sweet Pea Seed see our list, which is free for the asking.

demand and some fine blooms are offered. Carnations are commencing to resume their position after their usual absence; not many good flowers are coming to the stores. The thrips seem to have been especially virulent this year. Roses, outdoor and indoor, are plentiful, and always in demand. A few early mums are offered, but the public does not seem to realize that autumn is here, and consequently the sale of mums is not large. In pot plants there is not much variety. One store is showing some herbaceous calceolarias in fine condition for this time of year. Cyclamens are already in the windows. Some good ferns are selling well and of these there appears to be no excessive quantity.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd O. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and General Manager, Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

THE annual meeting of the Texas Nurserymen's Association is being held this week at Waco, Tex.

WILLIAM A. PETERSON, the Chicago nurseryman, whose wife is greatly interested in the organization of working women known as the Bethany Girls, has provided eight acres of land at Winona Lake, Ind., for a summer camp, with a plan for its development through a series of years.

THE French nurseries are located in the western part of France and are unaffected by the war. McHutchison & Co., who represent growers at Angers, say they expect all shipments to be made again on schedule time and at nominal freight rates. Prices on ornamentals continue quite reasonable.

PAUL CLARENCE STARK, of the Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., of Louisiana, Mo., was married unexpectedly at Alton, Mo., September 9, to Miss Theodosia Barnett, a last year's debutante and well known society girl of St. Louis. There was no parental opposition to the match. The engagement had been announced and the wedding set for November. Mr. Stark explained his hurry by saying that business matters would keep him in St. Louis at the time of the original date and that he would not think of giving up a honeymoon. Relatives of both the young people abetted the elopement. Mr. Stark is the son of the late C. N. Stark, who was president of the nursery company. He was a graduate from Cornell in 1914.

BLUEBERRIES.

In the southern United States and in the middle west blueberries are not ordinarily distinguished from huckleberries, but in New England the distinction is clearly drawn. The name huckleberry is there restricted to plants of the genus Gaylussacia, the berries of which contain ten large seeds with bony coverings like minute peach pits, which crackle between the teeth. The name blueberry is applied in New England to the various species of the genus Vaccinium, in which the seeds, though numerous, are so small that they are not noticeable when the berries are eaten. It is probable that the comparatively low estimation in which this fruit is held in the south is largely due to the lack of a distinctive popular name and the consequent confusion of the delicious, small-seeded southern Vacciniums with the coarse, large-seeded Gaylussacias. It is the culture of the small-seeded blueberries only, as distinguished from the large-seeded huckleberries, that is advocated.

From the market standpoint, the features of superiority in a blueberry are sweetness and excellence of flavor; large size; light-blue color, due to the presence of a dense bloom over the dark-purple or almost black skin; selected wild bushes or by the growing of chance seedlings, neither of these courses is advocated, because neither would result in the production of fruit of an especially superior quality. Seedling plants, even from the largest berried wild parents, produce small berries as often as large ones. Until nurserymen are prepared to furnish plants asexually propagated from superior stocks, the cultivator should begin by the transplanting of the best wild bushes, selected when in fruit for the size, color, flavor, and earliness of the berry and the vigor and productiveness of the bush. These he should propagate by layering and by cuttings until his plantation is completed. Through a combination of these methods, a valuable old plant can be multiplied by

Mr. Vincent in a few happy remarks welcomed the visitors, and Albert M. Herr, in behalf of the Lancaster florists, responded. After the feast Mr. Vincent escorted the party over the grounds, where more than a million dahlias are planted—a wonderful sight. A section set apart for trying out the new dahlias was most interesting, and some of our dahlia enthusiasts, of whom Lancaster county boasts a few, spent much time there. In planting the tubers machines are used, which plant 25,000 per day. Tractors operated by kerosene and drawing 32-disk harrows are used in preparing the soil.

Some of the varieties that showed exceptional vigor and freedom of bloom are Delice, Golden West, Jack Rose, Indian Chieftain, Royal Purple, Golden Gate and Sebastopol. The Mrs. Chas. L. Seybold, originated at the Vincent establishment, showed an exceptional freedom of bloom. A white sport from Delice, named W. F. Gude, will bear watching, as it is a wonder. Another new one named Jack's Discovery is an exquisite flower. Many acres are planted to cannas.

In the greenhouses there were geraniums almost without number, all in fine condition. Houses of Boston ferns, lantanas, English ivy and other plants were in prime order.

At 2 p. m. the party started homeward, well pleased with the day's outing, and the hospitality of the Vincents always will remain a pleasant memory to us.

The party included Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Herr, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Barr, Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Strickler, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Hostetter, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Hostetter, Mr. and Mrs. A. K. SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

Shibuya & Ishida still are bringing in a fine cut of zinnias, for which, they say, the demand is excellent. They are also cutting many chrysanthemums, including quantities of good Crocus, Monrovia and Unaka.

J. Chas. McCullough, president of the McCullough Seed Co., of Cincinnati, arrived in San Francisco a few days ago, accompanied by his son, H. F. McCullough, who is growing seed beans on 600 acres near Santa Barbara, Cal. It is understood Mr. McCullough is buying quantities of products in the Santa Clara valley. He states that the contract prices for these products have remained practically normal and little affected by the war.

Plans are being made for the third annual chrysanthemum fair, to be held at Exeter, Cal., in November. It will be given this year under the joint management of the Exeter Women's Club, the Merchants' Association and the Board of Trade. Committees are already being formed to take charge of the event, with a view to making it more elaborate than in former years.

The opening day of the annual district fair, to be given at Fresno, Cal., next week, will be called "Floral Festival" day, marking the opening of the flower show and other exhibits.

Avansino Bros. have been delayed to a certain extent in getting started in business in their new location on Geary street, owing to the fact that it has taken the contractors longer to fit up the premises than was expected. However, they hope to be ready for business before the end of the month. The store is being nicely fitted up throughout and the location looks promising, so the new firm, the members of which have had wide experience and are well known in the trade, should meet with success from the beginning.

C. W. Ward, president of the Cottage Gardens Nurseries, of Eureka, Cal., was in San Francisco a few days ago. In accordance with a resolution adopted by the directors of the Eureka corporation in July, a special meeting of the stockholders has been called to vote on the proposition of increasing the NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Last week there were indications of better business, though things still are somewhat slow. Roses are fairly plentiful and medium-priced. Easter lilies are abundant for this season and reasonable in price. Early chrysanthemums are coming into the market in slightly larger quantities than last week, but they are not at all plentiful as yet. Judging by the plants in the greenhouses, there will be a considerable increase in the quantity of mums coming into the market after two or three weeks. There now are a few of the early carnations, but not enough of them to affect the market. They are small and not of good quality. Tritomas and a few other flowers, though not plentiful, help to make variety. There was little increase in the quantity of funeral work last week.

Florists' Club Meeting.

The first fall meeting of the Essex County Florists' Club was held September 21 at the Krueger Auditorium, Newark. There was an enthusiastic meeting, at which plans for the fall and winter work were discussed. Following the business session refreshments were served. A report was given concerning the annual outing of the club, held in midsummer, and it was stated that the outing was a success financially, as well as socially. The question of holding a chrysanthemum show this fall was discussed and a committee was appointed to take the matter in hand and report at the next meeting. John A. Rassbach, of Bloomfield, heads the committee.

Various Notes.

McLaughlin & Murphy report that business has begun to show more life. There has been an increase in funeral work during the last ten days.

John W. Blakeley, of Elizabeth, reports that business is fair for this time of the year, but that there is room for much improvement.

Fred P. Wolfinger reports business improving. Outdoor flowers are reported scarce, but greenhouse-grown flowers are fairly abundant. R. B. M.

NEW NEPHROLEPIS FERN

JOHN WANAMAKER

A "sport" from Nephrolepis Scholzei, with longer, narrower, gracefully drooping fronds. It is not so compact in growth as Scholzei, and therefore does not decay in the center, and is a durable house fern. It is a rapid grower, making an abundance of fronds, and is quite distinct from any other Nephrolepis.

The following ready for delivery October 1st: 4-inch pots, $25.00 per 100; 6-inch pots, 50c and 75c each; 8-inch pots, $1.00 each; specimens in tubs, $2.50 and $3.50 each.

CROTONS

NEW SEEDLING VARIETIES

Our new Seedling Crotons, some of which we disseminated in June, 1911, are varieties that should be in every grower's and private person's collection. They are far superior to many of the older varieties of Crotons and the types range from narrow to very large leaf.

We particularly call your attention to our set of thirteen, named after the "Thirteen Original States," which have won highest honors wherever shown.

4-inch pots, strong plants, $3.00 each; $30.00 doz.; $200.00 100.

6 and 7-inch pots, larger plants, $3.50, $4.00 and $5.00 each.

CROTON

LEAVES AND SPRAYS

Cut Croton Leaves and Sprays have been supplied by us in the past few years to some of the leading retail florists, who have featured them in mantel, table and funeral work. They are also specially attractive to use with Chrysanthemums.

Cut Crotons will last in a cool place from three to four weeks. We can supply them every day in the year. Very highly colored sprays at 25c, 35c and 50c; cut leaves, $3.00 and $5.00 per 100.

CUT CHRYSANTHEMUMS

We are growing over 50,000 cut blooms of Chrysanthemums in all the best commercial varieties. Ready October 1st and until December 1st. Make arrangements with us to have your "cut Mums" supplied by us. Either daily or weekly shipments. Lowest market prices.

Branch: ROBERT CRAIG COMPANY

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Business is good, but the market is rather short on stock. The extra demand of last week's "fall openings," in addition to the shortage caused by the cooler weather, and the end of the asters and gladioli, served to keep the market cleaned up at all times.

The cut of roses has shortened considerably. Some excellent American Beauties may be had and carnations are in a fair supply. Easter lilies are in abundance and meet with an excellent market. Cosmos is plentiful. Dahlia offerings are not so large as usual at this time of the year; dahlias have been selling readily. The first sweet peas of the season came in last week. There are limited quantities of chrysanthemums, rubrum lilies and snapdragons.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell was the first to offer sweet peas this fall.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gillett and Mr. and Mrs. William Mayhall motored to Springfield, O., September 24.

Recent visitors were C. L. Kincaid, of Vevay, Ind.; Frank Ball, of Indianapolis; William Rodgers, of the Miami Floral Co., Dayton, O.; W. G. Matthews, of the Dayton Floral Co., Dayton; Fred Rupp, of Lawrenceburg, Ind.

The R. G. Kootz Floral Co. has opened a retail flower store on the south side of Opera place, near Race street.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson are motoring in the east. C. H. H.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Business was better last week than for some time. Better roses are coming in and carnations are of better quality. Late gladioli are good.

Various Notes.

Fred C. Covill opened the "Up-to-Date Flower Shop" at 610 Pleasant street September 23. His new store undoubtedly is the most attractive and modern one in the city. Mr. Covill was unable to get his refrigerator into place for the opening, but no doubt he will have it in use within a day or two.

Julius, the Florist, reports a busy week and an exceptionally busy Saturday, September 23. Wedding and funeral work has been plentiful.

George Reed wishes to deny the report circulated last week that he was to leave the Peckham Floral Co. Mr. Reed has been appointed manager of that concern in place of Samuel S. Peckham. Mr. Reed is a graduate of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, and has had several years' experience in practical growing. He has been in the employ of the Peckham Floral Co. for about two years.

The annual dahlia show of the New Bedford Horticultural Society was held September 21 and 22. The judges were C. W. Young and James Garthley.

FINE FERNS

FOR FALL AND WINTER TRADE

The fancy varieties of NEPHROLEPIS especially are very much in demand, and find a ready sale during the fall and winter months.

NOW IS THE TIME TO LAY IN A STOCK.

Owing to the great demand for ferns in the late spring, we became sold out and were not able to fill all of our orders, but now we have an unusually fine stock of plants of exceedingly good value. You will find them the most salable and profitable plants that can be handled.

SEATTLE NEWS NOTES.

ises at Brighton by an addition 25x80 feet. Not many projects of this kind are heard of lately, the present price of material making it almost exclusive.

The growers seem to be strong on cyclamens this season. Nearly everyone in the greenhouse business has a number, but much as this popular flower is appreciated, it does not tend to good prices when everyone grows it. There is such a thing as coöperation—when one or two are making a little money out of something all the growers coöperate to prevent them all from making anything.

Rosaia Bros. have a good looking lot of roses at their range at Thomas and will be cutting heavily from now on. They have been conducting an exhibition of cactus, pompon and collarette dahlias at their store on Third and Madison streets.

J. W. Lewis, who until recently occupied the Koch place at Brighton, had the misfortune to lose his wife recently. Mrs. Lewis had been a sufferer for some time, so that the end was not unexpected. Mr. Lewis has commenced business at Sedro Woolley as a nurseryman.

A monthly periodical, entitled "Puget Sound Homes and Gardens," has been launched in Seattle, and as its tendency is to increase the interest in flowers it should receive the support of all in the trade.

September weather so far has been absolutely ideal and ought to please the kickers, who complained of the absence of sun and heat earlier in the season.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

LARGER FLOWS DESIRABLE.

I am herewith sending a sketch of a greenhouse which I am building. The house runs north and south and is 16x50. It is eight feet high to the eaves. Adjoining it at the south end are the potting shed and boiler pit. I have ordered a boiler with a rating of 900 feet of radiation, though I was told that a rating of 700 would be sufficient. I have also ordered 700 feet of 2-inch pipe. I am planning to place two 2-inch overhead flow pipes in the center and five return pipes under each bench. I wish to maintain a temperature of 55 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero. Should there be a globe valve at the end of each of the pipes, as they start back under the benches, for the purpose of shutting off the heat, or will three 2-inch valves on each side be sufficient? There will be ten ventilators, each 24x24, in the roof, three on the west side and seven on the east side, spaced evenly and hinged at the top. The glass is 12x20.

E. E. S.—O.

From the sketch it would appear that there are five feet of concrete in each wall, but we are not informed whether the remainder is glass or wood. If of glass, one more return will be required on each side than if the wall above the concrete is of wood. The sketch also shows a solid bed in the middle of the house and a raised bench on each side. From this we infer that there are two 2-inch overhead flow pipes and ten 2-inch returns in the house.

The radiation furnished would be

KROESCHELL TUBELESS BOILER

For Steam, Hot Water, Vapor or Vacuum Heating Systems

Probably you have wondered why the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler is not sold by any of the greenhouse construction companies. In justice to all concerned, we feel it is our duty to state that the Kroeschell Boiler is never sold by anyone but THE KROESCHELL BROS. CO. We have no agents, and, as our prices are based on sales direct from factory to user, we do not quote anyone dealing in boilers special resale prices. Our stand in this matter has brought out a lot of competition: nevertheless, the great efficiency of the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler cannot be disputed, and in spite of the keen competition the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler is heating more glass than any other make.

Morehead Back-to-Boiler SYSTEM

He knows that with this inexpensive equipment installed in his plant he can always be sure of a uniform growing temperature—that he will never again be bothered with a messy steam pump.

Easily attached to your present boiler room apparatus, the "Morehead" System

Eliminates Sluggish Circulation in Your Steam Lines

at once—and thereby gives you absolute control of temperature in your greenhouses the whole year 'round.

The condensation itself is immediately returned to the boilers as feed water while it is pure and hot—thus saving a large per cent of your fuel.

ample for the conditions to be met, but we prefer to use 2½-inch flow pipes where more than four 2-inch returns are to be supplied. In that case it would be possible to use one less return pipe. We would not care to place valves upon more than two of the returns on each side of the house, but would place a valve on the pipes supplying the coils, which can be used to check the circulation as needed.

MUST THE TANK BE MOVED?

I have moved my boiler to the east end of one of my greenhouses, about fifty feet from where it was. The expansion tank at present is near my office and above the place where the boiler formerly stood. The tank was, and still is, about four feet higher than the highest hot water point. Will it be necessary to move the expansion tank out over the boiler, or can I use it where it is, as it is higher than the highest point of the hot water piping? I want to run the ¾-inch pipe from the tank to the boiler just under the ridgepole of the greenhouse. I have city water pressure. I should like to get the needed information as soon as possible, before I build my boiler shed. E. T. O.—Ill.

The description of the plant is not as definite as it might be, and we cannot determine just where the expansion tank is connected with the heating system, or whether the flow pipes run uphill or downhill. We would suggest connecting the expansion tank with the highest point of the system and it is preferable to have the flow pipe run downhill. In that case the attachment is generally not far from the boiler.

While a pipe may be run from the boiler in its present location to the expansion tank, we would prefer to carry it some distance below the ridge, so that there would be no danger of its freezing in extremely cold weather. But it is desirable to have the tank as directly over the boiler as possible.

Special Pipe Hooks and Spools for Concrete Beds or Benches

HERE is a set of hooks and spools that fully answers every need that we have so far run up against in installing heating where there are concrete beds and benches. They hook right over the edge and are made in two fixed lengths, and also one that is adjustable to any length, for use between the two fixed ones. This makes grading the pipes a very simple, sure matter.

It satisfactorily solves one of the most perplexing of the concrete bed or bench problems in connection with your heating.

Every one of the castings is made of high-grade iron and of ample thickness to give the necessary strength, but not so heavy as to run up their cost needlessly.

If at all in doubt just what ones, and how many hooks or spool hook-overs you need, tell us full particulars and we will gladly and promptly help you out.

None of these shown here are in our Handy Hand Book, so tear this page out and keep it.

army and has started from the Mexican border for New York and this city, to attend to his florists' business.

Although Paradise Rocks, at Middletown, already is one of the most beautiful estates in this vicinity, due to the efforts of Alexander MacLellan, for many years its gardener, extensive improvements are being planned by the owner, Jordan L. Mott, with Mr. MacLellan's assistance.

The death of A. J. Leary, which occurred September 14, is recorded in the obituary column of this issue.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Business is showing a gradual improvement, but the variety of flowers is not increasing. Roses and gladioli are the principal stock, with Beauties and a few lilies. There are just enough carnations to attract attention and cause trouble. Some Jersey dahlias are also on the market. Lilies have not been nearly sufficient to go around. The quality of the few asters coming in is so poor that the wholesalers do not care to take orders for them, preferring to have the customer see the stock before buying. Orchids are getting more plentiful. There is no valley on the market. Beauties clean up every day. Greens are plentiful.

The retail stores were busy the latter part of the week taking care of several good funeral orders. They report the general counter trade as improving now, since we seem to be having real fall weather. The growers in this vicinity have sold all their surplus carnation plants and they report the stock planted is doing better than for several seasons.

Various Notes.

Wm. H. Lux, the new Penn hotel florist, was off duty September 26 just long enough to take unto himself a wife.

Miss Hazel Learzaf, daughter of George Learzaf, the Mount Washington florist, was married September 26 to Fred D. Michaels, of this city. After a sojourn in the eastern cities, they will be at home in Greensburg, Pa.

Pittsburgh a week ago had a heavy frost that injured all the soft stock and vegetables. Thursday night, September 21, there was a hail storm, but no damage was reported.

Stores are greatly handicapped this season in making deliveries, as there is a great shortage in the crop of errand boys. Clarke.

The Market.

The supply of greenhouse flowers has increased during the last week, but several frosts did much damage to outdoor stock in this section, particularly to dahlias and asters. There is a big increase in the supply of roses, especially in the medium and long-stemmed grades, and the demand is excellent. The new crop of carnations is up to the standard for this time of the year, but the demand is rather light. Antirrhinums from greenhouses are in the market and sell well. Asters are almost gone. The drought is still unbroken and rain is badly needed, as vegetation of all kinds is almost completely dried up. Dahlias also are much in need of rain.

Easter lilies are in good supply and the call is good for them for funeral work. Valley is meeting with a big call for weddings, which are becoming numerous, September and October being almost as popular as June for weddings. In fact, all the local florists report extremely busy days with funerals, weddings and decorations. The shipping business is reported good.

Various Notes.

Recent visitors to the trade were J. F. Dayton, representing the Madison Basketcraft Co., Madison, O., and Harold S. Lion, of Lion & Co., New York.

The Flick Floral Co. had a number of large wedding orders last week, the most prominent being the Braun-Miller nuptials. There were seven attendants, who carried Ophelia and Russell roses, while the bride carried a shower of valley and Kaiserin roses.

Frank J. Knecht & Co. are cutting some good Russell and Shawyer roses and are having a good shipping trade.

A. J. Lanternier & Co. are experiencing a good demand for their Golden Glow chrysanthemums, which are popular for wedding bouquets.

Miss Rhoda Doswell, of the Doswell Floral Co., is having her share of wedding work this fall. She has a number of orders booked for next month.

Markey Bros. have their Harrison street shop attractively decorated with bittersweet and other wild autumn flowers.

Edgar Wenninghoff is having a goodly quantity of funeral orders and reports counter trade good. R. F.

The Market.

Last week's business was fair, the cooler weather having a tendency to stimulate the market. Slight frosts have left their traces on outdoor plants and caused a turning to the greenhouses for blooms. Asters are plentiful and clean up well in the light shades and best qualities. The darker shades and short-stemmed grades are largely used in funeral work. The advance guard of the mums have put in their appearance, but move slowly at $4 per dozen. Roses are showing a marked improvement and carnations are better, both as to quantity and quality.

Various Notes.

According to the tax assessment just announced in the town of East Providence, Lawrence Hay is assessed on $6,155; Joseph E. Koppelman and Mrs. L. Max on $20,850, and Andrew J. and Hannah A. Olsen on $5,200.

Cards have been issued for the marriage, October 2, of Timothy J. McCarthy to Miss Mary E. O'Connell, of Dorchester, Mass.

Wilbur A. Fiske and family have returned to their apartments in the Minden, after spending the summer at their country home on Prudence island.

The Market.

The weather was quite cool last week and business conditions show a healthy improvement. Roses still are in large supply and their quality is extra fine. The demand is large and the entire cut is handled easily, to good advantage. Mrs. Russell and Ophelia are in largest demand, although some fine red roses are to be had.

Carnations are slowly improving, although the quantity still is negligible. This stock has been backward this year and the quality has not been at all good. Last week, however, saw some improvement, both in length of stem and size of flower. The demand is as heavy as usual at this time and orders are turned down daily.

Gladioli are just about through, but the demand remains strong. The season has been good for this stock and it has filled a large gap in the market this year. Asters are on the wane; in fact, the daily cut has dropped off to a great extent. The quality also is becoming poorer and, on the whole, the season for this stock has not been so good as it might have been. Valley still is scarce and lilies also are quite a bit short of the demand. Mums are coming in slowly, but they are in good shape and are selling well. Southern smilax has begun to move in the local market, showing that the fall season really has started. H. J. S.

Toledo, O.—Florists and seedsmen, many of whom have had pleasant business relations with James H. Taylor, president and general manager of the American Woodenware Mfg. Co., manufacturer of plant tubs, will learn with regret of his recent death. His son, also named James H., will be at the head of the company in future, having previously been secretary.

The moisture will not get under the paint.

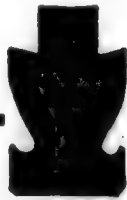

If we should build a greenhouse for ourselves we would put the best material we could into it, but it would not be any better than we put into the houses that we build for our customers.

Yes, it would be an easy matter to skimp here and substitute there, and gloss over in another place to save a little and meet the lowest bidder. We do not do business that way. Why should we cheat ourselves in order to cheat a customer?

Figure it out for yourself and then write us your needs.

The Market.

Business has been quite lively. The cool weather is helping things along and all outdoor flowers are showing the effects of the cool nights. Another week will probably see the finish of all outdoor stock. Roses and carnations are improving and are cleaned up from day to day. Some excellent Easter lilies are arriving and the demand for them is good. Lily of the valley is not to be had at present.

Various Notes.

L. A. Kintzele is in line for a big cut of sweet peas this winter. The stock from this place is much sought after by the retailers.

Fred Schumann is cutting a splendid lot of Easter lilies. His cosmos was caught by the frost last week.

Charles McCord has returned from Salt Lake City, where he spent his vacation.

Both the Woolworth and Kress 5 and 10-cent stores were selling 3-inch umbrella plants at 10 cents each last week. Nearly everyone who came out of the stores was carrying one or more plants.

R. S.

CROMWELL, CONN.

At the A. N. Pierson range the houses now are in running order for another winter. The outdoor stock, such as stevias and geraniums, is being brought in. W. R. Pierson left last week for New Brunswick, where he will take a well earned rest in hunting big game. He expects to be gone about four weeks. Olaf Martins has resigned his position as head bookkeeper to accept an active partnership with Olson & Co., of Webster, Mass. Frank Harrison will succeed Mr. Martins. The concern exhibited cut flowers, pot plants and evergreens at the Hartford and Berlin fairs.

Among recent visitors were Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, O., who are touring the east in an automobile. They stopped at Cromwell to see their son, Jens C. Peterson, who is studying rose growing at Cromwell Gardens.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

"There Is No Argument."

The present situation is by far the worst ever known since cut flower growing became an industry in Canada. Bad for the flower buyers because they cannot get what they want, although they have more money than usual to pay for it; worse for the retail florists because their expenses are heavier than last year's and their turnover is limited because of lack of stock; worst for the growers, who suffer because of scarcity of labor, absence of rain, incompetent help and other factors too numerous to mention. Even the Albanians and Russians will not stay with the job, because they "can't spik Inglish." The bulbous stock still remains unpacked; drawing sod from the field has not yet begun; reliable manure for mixing cannot be bought for love or money. Under glass the chrysanthemums are barely budding as yet; there is not even color among the carnations; the hot summer has retarded the orchid growth, and all the roses that have been cut during the last week would not supply a retail florist during a good week's business.

Everybody seems to be in the same boat, however, and complaining is not likely to do anyone any good. Some of the Montreal retailers demur at the high prices ruling, forgetful or willfully blind to the abnormal conditions prevailing.

The wholesale price list of September 26, 1906—10 years ago—was:

Roses, No. 1, per hundred.....$8.00
Roses, No. 2, per hundred..... 4.00
Orchids, Harrisoniae, each..... .15

In the price list of September 18, 1916, we find Killarney and Queen roses priced as follows, with the newer varieties slightly advanced:

No. 1, per hundred.....$8.00
No. 2, per hundred..... 6.00
Orchids, Harrisoniae, each..... .15

And this in spite of the advance in the cost of coal, labor, lumber, paper and everything! There is no argument, surely.

Visitors.

Among last week's visitors were Camille Legare, of Montreal; L. M. Jackson, of St. Thomas, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Hannell, of Watervliet, N. Y. W. G. P.

Very Successful
For Dish Ferns

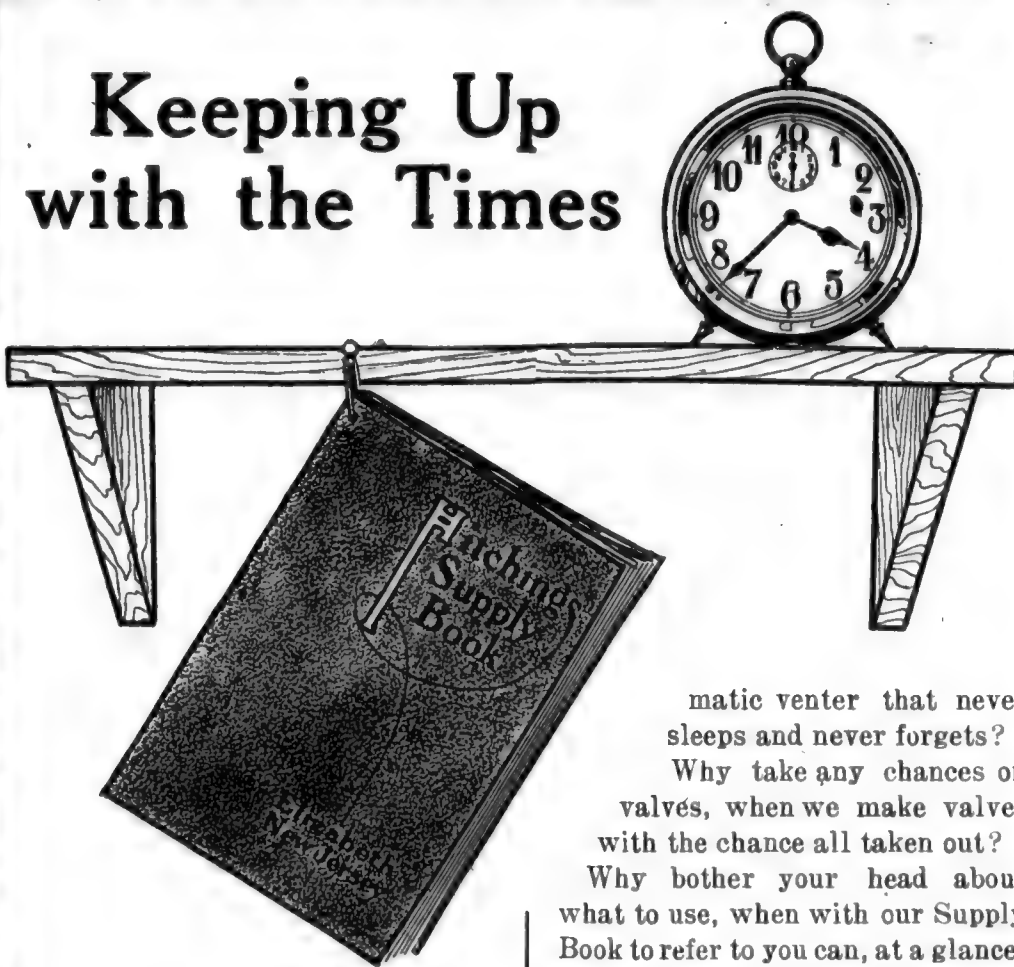

Here is an extract from a letter of J. Volz & Son, of Cincinnati, Ohio:

Keeping Up with the Times

WHAT'S THE USE of using a half-way thing when you can get an all-way one, for the same price, that will do your work so much better?

For example, why bother with some makeshift kind of a pipe hook, when we have exactly the right hook for exactly that purpose?

Why fuss with hand-air-venting your coils, when we have an automatic venter that never sleeps and never forgets?

Why take any chances on valves, when we make valves with the chance all taken out?

Why bother your head about what to use, when with our Supply Book to refer to you can, at a glance, at once know what is best and why it's best?

If you will only let it, that Supply Book will at once become your friend, counselor and guide.

Like everything else of Hitchings', you can depend on depending on it.

You are welcome to as many copies as you need.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

J. H. Cunningham, of Delaware, O., is making preparations for an increase of business. Special decorations are being made for the corn show to be held here.

The Mount Gilead Floral Co., of Mount Gilead, O., has completed a most profitable year. Preparations are being made for a greater increase in business the coming season. Good stock, especially in chrysanthemums, was seen here.

A. A. O'Brien, of Union City, Ind., was busy with funeral work on my visit there. I noted several handsome sprays and designs ready to go out.

James Frost, of Greenville, O., is spending considerable time at Dayton, where his wife underwent a serious operation.

C. O'Brien, of Greenville, says that business continues above the average. His greenhouses are in the "pink" of condition.

Gustav Schneider, of Springfield, soon will turn his store over to the decorators. He expects to rearrange his entire salesrooms.

J. H. Vonderhorst & Son, of St. Marys, O., have some good quality stock coming in. The sweet peas are given considerable attention and a good crop is looked for.

The retarded delivery of French and Dutch bulbs is keeping W. W. Horlacher, of Dayton, O., in a quandary as to whether his importations will arrive in time.

Hardesty & Co., of Columbus, O., captured three first, two second and one third prizes at the Ohio state fair at Columbus. Six entries were made.

The store of T. J. Ludwig, at Columbus, always is an attraction with its beautiful window displays and furnishings. The scarcity of stock this summer was severe, but the iceboxes now are taking on their usual appearance—"chuck full."

Flower bowls and other accessories form an attractive window display at the Livingston Seed Co. store, Columbus. Manager Brownell always is on the lookout for new and novel things for display windows.

Sam Graff, of Columbus, reports an excellent business at his three stores.

Carl Block has opened the Block Floral Co. store again, as school days at the Ohio State University commence. The store has been rearranged and redecorated during the summer.

The Greenlawn Gardens, at Urbana, O., have some fine chrysanthemums coming along. The stock looks promising and an excellent season is looked for.

C. L. Osborne, of Sidney, O., had quite a display of plants at the county fair held there last week.

J. A. Ernsberger, of Celina, O., has his houses filled with splendid stock for the coming season. Ophelia roses are to be the favorites this year, besides other new varieties.

MAKING IT LOOK LIKE THE MONEY

The florist called on for a funeral piece at from $50 to $100 must make it look worth the money. An occasional buyer will approve the use of expensive flowers, like orchids, but the majority demand size and quantity, so the choice of designs is limited. Here are two suggestions.

HE family buys the casket cover, so the pall is eliminated from the list of things a florist can suggest when the customer has from $50 to $100 to spend for a funeral piece. Consequently the average retailer will recommend the use of one of the standard designs and, if he gets the order, will puzzle mightily in his effort to please the people and make the piece look like it was worth the money.

It would be easier if everyone understood the value of flowers. Then all one would have to do would be to use cattleyas and valley and there would be no trouble in putting in value up to the point that the florist's profits would disappear. But the fact is few people appreciate the relative values of flowers and the small piece made of costly stock will not often give the satisfaction that will be given by a big, showy design of less expensive material.

Big Baskets.

The accompanying illustration shows a big basket of Richmond roses we made recently for a large funeral. The money had been raised by subscription among the employees of the institution in which the deceased was an official and the call was for something large and showy; the money was there for the florist, but he must make the flowers look to be worth it if the purchasers were to be pleased. We used over twenty dozens of long-stemmed Richmonds, the basket standing six feet high, and I can assure you it was a beautiful arrangement.

We have made up several of these large baskets this year and in every case they have stood out prominently at the funeral and have created the impression that we gave excellent value for the money, even though the sum expended was considerably above the average.

The Satisfied Customer.

And I do not need to tell any retail florist that the best feature of any work is that it gives satisfaction. When customers are satisfied, they not only come again but they tell their friends, or even bring them. The best feature, therefore, of these big funeral baskets has been that they invariably have given excellent satisfaction.

From the florist's point of view these big baskets have the advantage that they are more easily and more quickly arranged than a design of anything like equal value, size or showiness. While they call for the use of a good quality of stock, for one cannot make a large basket arrangement with short-stemmed roses, yet the retailer can get his usual reasonable margin of profit on them, for he gets a good sum for the piece.

I am aware that there has been some criticism of the use of baskets of flowers for funerals, but in our experience we have not been able to see that there is any real objection to such use. We do not find that the use of baskets for the arrangement of funeral flowers has any effect whatever on the popularity of baskets for flowers for other purposes. But we do find that many people who are willing to spend considerable sums for funeral flowers want something other than the common, old designs that have been in use for years.

Variety Needed.

Unless they are members of the family one cannot make a casket cover, so the big basket usually is accepted promptly when recommended by the florist. When the customer wishes to spend from $75 to $100 the big basket arrangement never has failed to give satisfaction.

There is another thing that the florist should consider. It is the monotony, the sameness, in funeral flowers. For years and years we have been making practically the same designs. Many people are tired of them, especially for use where there are sure to be a great many flowers at the funeral. When one has a great many orders for the same funeral the customers will not be specially pleased to find that the florist has made a dozen wreaths all alike except for some variation in size and material, or half a dozen pillows, or a dozen sprays all alike except that a different flower has been used in each as far as the limits of stock would permit. Then is the time that the customer wants something different and the florist needs to use all his ingenuity to keep the variety up and the customers satisfied. There are, and always will be, people who will stick to the old, standard designs for funerals, but the greater variety a florist can provide the better his trade will be. Baskets add considerably to the variety and we have used in some instances a wicker stand with a large bouquet arranged in it, with ribbon bows and streamers. These have been as successful, almost, as the baskets.

The Big Shower Wreath.

Another design, more of the usual character, that we have found quite successful where the customer wants something nice and is willing to pay from $50 to $100, is the shower wreath shown in the illustration on page 15. This standing wreath with shower effect is over six feet high. The one shown in the illustration was made of pink and white asters for a foundation, with auratum lilies, Ophelia roses and gladiolus tips, Ophelia being used in the shower part. The wreath is not only large but full, giving a massive appearance that makes it look worth the money. We have found it invariably successful where the customer wanted something from $50 up, the size of the wreath varying, of course, with the price.

Working to Win.

The retail florist who wishes to make a reputation that will bring him a greater number of the large orders will do well to study the subject. He must not only actually put in the value, but he must make the designs look to be worth the money; he must make the costly design different from the inexpensive one in more ways than simply in size, and he must obtain the distinctive qualities without the use of the freak arrangements that sometimes are described as "occupational" designs, the beer keg for the brewer, etc., which seldom enhance the florist's reputation.

LILY OF THE VALLEY.

I expect to use side benches for lily of the valley. Will these do well for cut flowers in the same house with lilies? Please advise as to the culture of valley. A. L.—Mo.

You should build cases along the side of your house for valley and arrange for a good, steady bottom heat of 80 degrees or thereabouts. The overhead temperature can be 25 degrees lower.

Plant the valley pips in clean sand, keep them close and dark until they are well drawn up, then give a little more light to give the flowers substance. Start the batches at frequent intervals. Avoid wetting the plants after the flowers start to open.

C. W.

CALLAS FOR CUTTING.

Kindly tell me the best way to grow callas for cut flowers for winter sale. What variety is best for this purpose? M. D.—Mass.

I have found the Godfrey calla much more productive than the old Nile lily, Richardia Aethiopica. The flowers are fully as large as three of the old variety, much purer in color and the bulbs carry at least twice as many flowers in a season. If you plant three bulbs each in 7-inch or 8-inch pots they will give you excellent results. Stand the pots on a light, sunny bench where they will receive a minimum temperature of 55 degrees in winter. Use a rich soil for them and when the pots are well filled with roots feed them liberally with both liquid manure and top-dressings of fine bone. Callas are fond of bone and you can add some to your soil at potting time and give top-dressings once a fortnight as soon as the pots are full of roots. C. W.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

SPECIAL CARDS WITH FLOWERS.

Many of The Review's progressive readers may find it to their advantage to use something other than a plain card to enclose with flowers. We have found it highly profitable. Our first venture in a special card was one we had made to enclose with flowers sent to hospital patients and to those sick at home. For this card we selected the little poem of good cheer, "The Four-leaf Clover." In addition to always having this card on the desk, we often suggest its use, and find many customers who appreciate the suggestion.

Flowers sent to hospitals are generally opened by the nurse, who places them in a vase and carries them with the card to the patient. The latter seldom ever knows from what florist they came. With the use of the special card it is different. They bear our name and, where the card is preserved, which it generally is, we have a pleasing standing advertisement.

In filling out-of-town orders we also use a special card where it is appropriate to do so, and we have received a number of complimentary letters from other florists whose customers have told them about this feature of our service. This is good, both for ourselves and for the out-of-town florists who send us their orders.

The most gratifying feature, however, is the number of persons who come to our store to purchase flowers and say in effect: "When I was sick So-and-so sent me flowers from your place with a little poem on a card, and I want to send one of the same cards with this order of flowers." Many new customers have come to us in this way.

Our second card is one appropriate to send with flowers purchased for birthday and wedding anniversaries and to new mothers. This card is printed in four colors and, in addition to the printed bit of sentiment, it shows a tastefully arranged basket of flowers. So pleasing is the sentiment on this card that we are getting as good results from it as we do from the first one.

A few days ago we received a telephone order from a man who never before had purchased from us. After placing his order for two dozen good roses he asked us to send one of our special birthday cards to his office in order that he might write a personal message and have it sent with the flowers. We learned later that he had seen one of these cards at a friend's home and, when he had occasion to order flowers again, he remembered the florist who furnished the pleasing card.

Florists adopting special cards should be careful about every detail. Better a plain card than a special one that is not right. Be sure that the message it carries is appropriate for the occasion. Talk to a commercial artist rather than a printer about this work. Don't try to cheapen the job in any way. Our first cards cost us but little more than plain ones. Both cards referred to, however, are printed from hand-lettered plates on high quality stock and are special sizes.

F. T. D. TO MEET.

An Important Session.

What is expected to be the most important session of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery members since the organization was formed will be held at Hotel La Salle, Chicago, October 11 and 12. Incidentally, it is expected to call together the largest number of retail florists who ever have met in this country.

Experience has taught the officers and members that the rules of the association require revision to provide for further growth; there even is a proposition to change the name of the organization in the hope of making it more intelligible to the public. Dues may be raised to provide for publicity.

The Objects.

Secretary Pochelon, whose heart is wrapped up in the work, has prepared an outline of the rules he thinks desirable. He sketches the objects of the organization as follows and suggests rules to attain the objects:

1. Shall be of an educational purpose and for the benefit of the retail florists' trade in the United States and Canada, so that orders relayed to other retailers will get the best and most efficient service.
2. Every F. T. D. member shall give enough publicity to his patrons so the public will get better acquainted with out-of-town service.

3. To make its members pay their bills promptly to other retail florists and demand prompt payment of bills owed to them.

4. To help increase the membership not alone in the various cities and towns but all through the country. Remember every new town added to our list will save us a job worrying about an order for such a town and it will broaden our field constantly.

5. To help expose retail florists who take orders for a certain amount, then relay the order for about one-half or one-third.

6. To make retail florists fill orders for the full amount the order calls for; in other words, fill any order for another florist in a town maybe a thousand miles away just as conscientiously as he would if the order were for his best customer.

7. To educate retail florists not to relay too small an order. Remember especially in larger towns an order for $1 is a pretty hard proposition to deliver. Leave a little leeway for the man filling the order in a far-away town where perhaps an altogether different variety of flowers are grown than in your locality.

8. To make retail florists see a twenty per cent discount is a good clean business proposition and that it pays well; yes, just as well to send orders and solicit orders from your patrons as it does to receive orders from out of town. The more orders you send out of town the more you increase your business and there is no better advertisement than this service to the public.

9. To make its members send any bills not paid within forty-five days to the secretary, who has established a sort of clearing house for all such bills. He will collect them or try to collect them whether they are owed to you from members of the F. T. D. or non-members.

10. Anyone not satisfied with a net profit of twenty per cent on an order he sends to another florist is not worthy of being an F. T. D. member.

11. Anyone allowing you more than twenty per cent on an order you have sent him has not and cannot give your patron the service that you wish to give him.

12. Remember the Florists' Telegraph Delivery is not run by its officers and directors for any personal gain; every member shall take the same interest and further the good cause as much as possible. Every member must learn to consider the F. T. D. work as a branch of his own business; the more interest each member takes the more it spells dollars and cents to his business.

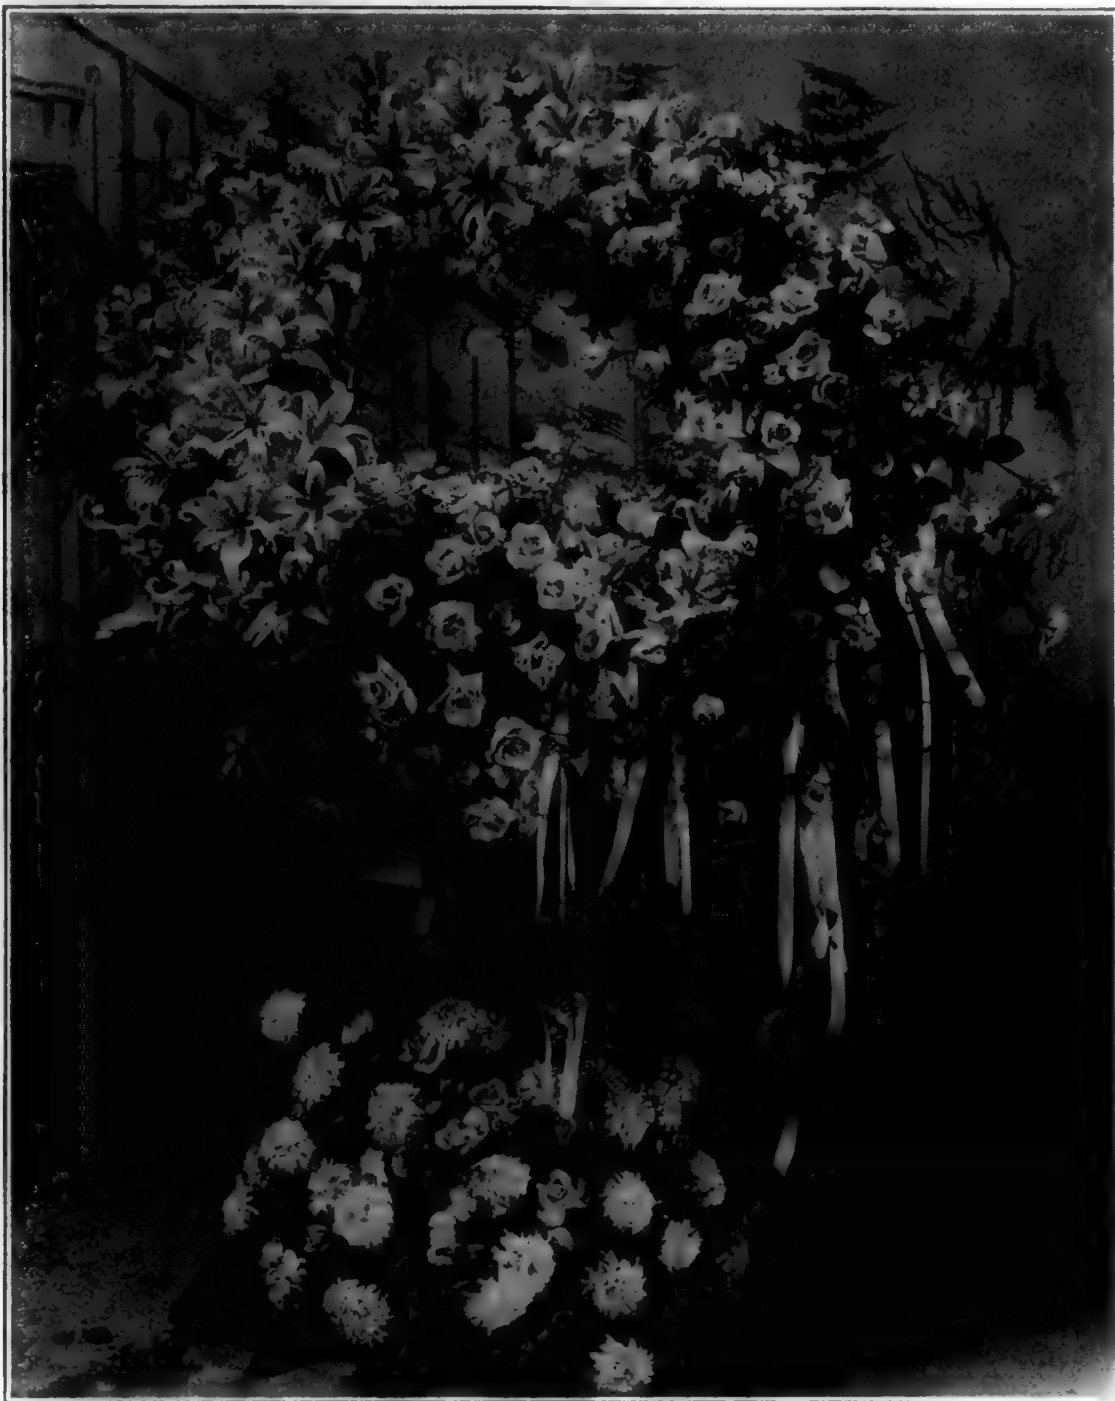

13. If our association would limit membership to one concern in each town there would be one-tenth of the business carried on, just because if you were the member it is not said that your five or ten competitors do not send out or cannot send out orders; we want to lead all these orders into the F. T. D. channel and if your brother florist sends me an order from your town you and I shall believe in reciprocity.

PERENNIALS FOR DESIGNS.

Can you tell me what perennials to plant for use in spray and design work in late August and September, and when to plant them? A. A. S.—Mass.

The following would prove useful to you: Pyrethrum uliginosum, white; Artemisia lactiflora, creamy white; Anemone Japonica alba, pure white; Anemone Japonica rosea, pink; phloxes, such as Mrs. Jenkins, Le Cygne and other pure white varieties, as well as other colors; Aconitum Wilsoni and A. autumnale, dark blue; Veronica longifolia subsessilis, dark blue; Aster um- bellatus, white; A. Fardel, rose; A. White Queen, white; A. Perry's Pink, pink. The delphiniums, or larkspurs, also give a good second crop of flowers during the last part of August and last until October. They come in various shades of blue. Buddleia magnifica, a shrub, but cut back to the ground annually, would prove valuable; also, Boltonia asteroides, white, and B. latisquama, pink. C. W.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

THE DEPARTMENT STORE.

In The Review for September 14 there appeared a paper, "Department Stores vs. Retail Flower Shops," read by A. Zech before the Chicago Florists' Club. At the end of this article Mr. Zech asked for some retailer or grower to speak or write on the same subject. I believe this subject should have a country-wide consideration. The department stores are taking advantage of our business and are the worst of our competitors.

Mr. Zech blames mostly the retailers for this, saying that the retailers are not buying enough to consume the stock of the growers and wholesalers; he states that the retailers are not able to dispose of the stock which loads the wholesale markets.

If the grower of plants would look around in the florists' trade he would find a retailer to whom he could dispose of his stock and he would not need to dispose of same at a sacrifice price to the department stores. The growers sell their plants at reduced prices to department stores, but will not cut their prices to a retail florist who is looking for stock.

If the wholesalers would offer the cut flowers to the retailers at a price which would protect them in case of loss, then they would not need to look to the department stores for a buyer.

Mr. Zech suggests two different plans for the retailers to dispose of an oversupply. One of his plans is as follows: The retailer should have handbills printed to be distributed from house to house, announcing a special low price sale of cut flowers. My reply is that the retail florists of today try to maintain themselves and their trade on a plane above all other retail business and especially above all jobbing. The florists' business of today is, on the part of the grower, a science and, on the part of the retailer, an art. Handbills are good for cheap and ordinary trade, but are not proper for a high standard business of a florist.

The second plan of Mr. Zech's is: Let the retailer buy the oversupply of cut flowers and use it as an advertisement, sending to each of his customers a box of flowers. Naturally, then, he has to stand, besides the price of the stock, the high price of boxes and delivery expenses. This plan is good, but to consider it we need the cooperation of the growers and the wholesalers. If the grower was willing to donate some of his overproduction, and the wholesaler the delivery service, then this plan of Mr. Zech's would be a great benefit to trade in general and all three, the grower, the wholesaler and the retailer would enjoy a mutually profitable advertisement. But this advertisement, under the conditions which exist now, is impossible.

Some wholesalers and growers frankly are looking for business in department stores. One concern dealing in florists' supplies and wholesale cut flowers employs a lady who is getting in touch with all buyers outside the florists' trade who come to that market and this house is doing an immense business with department stores, furniture stores, etc. Not long ago, the retailers had a chance to sell to those places, but today they have an open market where they can buy goods and, in some cases, at a lower price than the retail florist can.

Mr. Zech advises cooperation between the grower, wholesaler and retailer. I believe, and many of the retail trade will think the same, that the grower and retailer are willing, but the man between is looking towards department stores business. Some wholesalers even are mailing weekly price lists to all department stores in their territory, many of which never buy cut flowers to sell, but only for the personal use of the management.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

CYCLAMENS IN THE SOUTH.

In the south cyclamens should be ready for their final shift. Where the soil is stiff, red clay it is well to still use a good proportion of leaf-mold with it. Where the soil is naturally of a light, sandy nature no leaf-mold is needed, but one-fourth of sifted cow manure may be added. A coldframe is good for the plants until danger of frost, and an ordinary lath sash is an excellent protection from the sun's rays. The sash may be removed at night to let the plants have the benefit of the night dews. Give the plants a good, light, airy house when they are brought indoors, and from the middle of October they will require no shade, except, perhaps, in the extreme southern sections, where a little shade will be all right for a month. It is just as well not to put the plants on inverted pots until well along in November. Before that time they dry out too quickly when on pedestals and require more attention. A night temperature of 50 to 58 degrees will suit them, the latter temperature for the ones wanted early. Plants wanted for bloom at Thanksgiving can be let run to flower, but keep the flowers picked off the Christmas stock for a few weeks yet.

ROSES IN THE SOUTH.

October is the month when a house of roses may be made or spoiled. The plants seem more than anxious to bloom profusely, and indiscriminate cutting of blooms is apt to give the plants a setback from which they will never recover. A few of the stronger shoots only should be cut, the others being pinched out as soon as the buds show color or else cut with just enough stem to make the flowers suitable for design work. To make a crop for the holidays, pinch the buds from October 25 to November 1, according to latitude. This applies to all roses except American Beauty, which should have one week's more time. A mulching of good cow manure is all the fertilizer needed until after the holidays.

Thrips are liable to show up at any time. I have always used one of the tobacco extracts for this pest on roses and find it effective. Strangely enough, I have never had good results with Paris green. It is well to be careful also to see that the foliage is thoroughly dry before sundown. Mildew with many growers is troublesome during October. It is merely the result of careless or insufficient ventilation. Do not be afraid to leave plenty of ventilation on at night, especially before firing begins. A drop of a few degrees below regular night temperature will not hurt the plants if you have enough air on at top and sides to keep the house thoroughly dry.

CARNATIONS IN THE SOUTH.

The early planted carnations will probably be ready to tie up now. Before running the wires remove all plants that have died from stem-rot, as well as the soil in which each plant grew. Fill the holes in with fresh soil and replant. Surface cultivation may be kept up every week for a good while yet. The nights are cooling off considerably, although the days are warm, and a little more care should be used in watering. Less water will be required at the roots, but by all means keep up the syringing daily, or at least every other day. Our old friends, red spider and thrips, are liable to pay us a visit without any warning. Two or three applications of Hammond's Thrip Juice No. 2, at intervals of one week or ten days, have always been effective with us. In early spring the treatment should be renewed.

Stem-rot, in those sections where the July rains were heavy, seems to have taken rather a heavy toll this year. Plants housed before the heavy rains began have done well in the houses, showing a loss of not more than ten per cent, but those housed after the rains have suffered badly, in some cases as high as thirty per cent. It seems that this disease is largely a constitutional one, and if more care were exercised to keep up the vigor of the plants we would have a great deal less trouble with it. New varieties sent out the first year generally show hardly any loss from this cause, but they gradually grow worse each succeeding year. Overpropagation and bad methods in the propagating bench are two factors that have much to do with the rapid spread of this disease.

FRENCH ROMAN HYACINTHS.

I would like to know if it is advisable to plant French Roman whites in flats and then pan them. Can this be done with any of the Dutch bulbs, and which ones?

J. M.—Ind.

These bulbs may be started in flats and transplanted into pans, but I would not advise you to do this unless the pans are wanted for sale. They will be more certain to give good spikes of flowers if undisturbed. Tulips and narcissi, such as Golden Spur and Trumpet major, may be planted in this way, but the work of repanning should be done before the flowers have opened, for best results.

C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Spanish Iris.

The Spanish iris fills quite a large place in the flower markets in spring and early summer. It can be grown in flats, benches or solid beds. If in flats, these should not be less than five inches deep. The strongest spikes are to be had from bench-grown plants. These irises are quite cheap and of such easy culture that no one need hesitate to try them. They will not, however, stand hard forcing. A temperature of 45 to 50 degrees at night suits them best. Good varieties to grow are: Chrysolora, golden yellow; Louise, pale blue; Thunderbolt, bronze, and British Queen, pure white.

Spanish iris can be grown in pots or pans, but cannot be recommended for that purpose, as they grow too tall. Keep Spanish iris in the light all the time; they do not need to be covered with coal ashes, sand or loam, like tulips or narcissi.

Gladiolus Nanus.

The small-flowered gladioli can be grown in the same way as the Spanish iris and are useful spring flowers. For Memorial day they meet with a fine sale. Good varieties to grow are Blushing Bride, white, carmine blotches; The Bride, or Colvillei albus, of the purest white; Peach Blossom, delicate pink; Ackermann, salmon. The culture of these is much the same as that of Spanish iris. They can be grown in pans, flats or benches, but flats are the most economical to use, as they can be moved around at will. As these bulbs will not flower before April and must be planted not later than November, they would occupy benches at a period when they could be more profitably employed.

There is a new type of Dutch iris, botanically called Iris Hollandica, which flowers two weeks earlier than I. Hispanica and with equally large flowers of great substance, but the bulbs are as yet too costly for the type to be of commercial value.

Anemones and Ranunculi.

Anemones and ranunculi may be grown in pans or flats or can be conveniently dotted among pansies or violets in a cool greenhouse where the temperature runs from 40 to 45 degrees at night. The St. Brigid anemones, with handsome large single and semi-double flowers, are excellent sellers; so is the pure white, A. coronaria. The Bride, and the brilliant and attractive colors, especially turban and Persian varieties. Some growers who make a specialty of these beautiful flowers devote special benches to them, but they must not be grown warm; forcing will speedily ruin them.

Ixias and Sparaxis.

The flowers of ixias and sparaxis, the Cape of Good Hope bulbs, come in a variety of rich and varied hues. They are dainty and are eagerly bought by critical customers. They succeed best in pans six or seven inches in diameter, filled with sandy loam, and should have a light bench or shelf in a cool greenhouse. Grown in flats or benches, they are liable to damp off. Good varieties of ixias are I. crateroides major, scarlet; I. rosea plena, pink, and I. viridiflora, soft green with a black center. The sparaxis succeed well if eight to twelve bulbs are grown in a 6-inch pan, covering the bulbs about one inch. These Cape bulbs can be grown for some time in coldframes after planting, but should not be exposed to rain; neither should they be covered with coal ashes or loam, like many of the Dutch bulbs.

Babianas and Tritonias.

Babianas and tritonias are useful spring-flowering bulbs, requiring similar treatment to ixias and sparaxis. The babianas come in blue, white and other shades, while Tritonia crocata, with its spikes of rich, orange flowers, is an object of admiration whenever it is displayed in a store window. Plant eight or ten bulbs in a 6-inch pot or pan and be sure they are well drained.

Miscellaneous Bulbs.

The small early-flowering bulbs, such as snowdrops, Scilla Sibirica, chionodoxas and Muscari racemosum, or grape hyacinths, are better for naturalizing or planting in borders than for forcing, but they have their uses in midwinter if grown in small pots and pans. Some stores do quite a business in these small bulbous flowers. Made-up centerpieces of tulips and narcissi, with some of the smaller bulbs growing below them, are charming and becoming increasingly popular. If you have calls for such centerpieces, or even dishes or made-up pans of mixed bulbs, by all means grow some of these small bulbs; they can be easily replanted when in bloom and there is something particularly satisfying about bulbous flowers made up in this way when frost and snow reign supreme outdoors.

FREY'S FREESIA FACTORY.

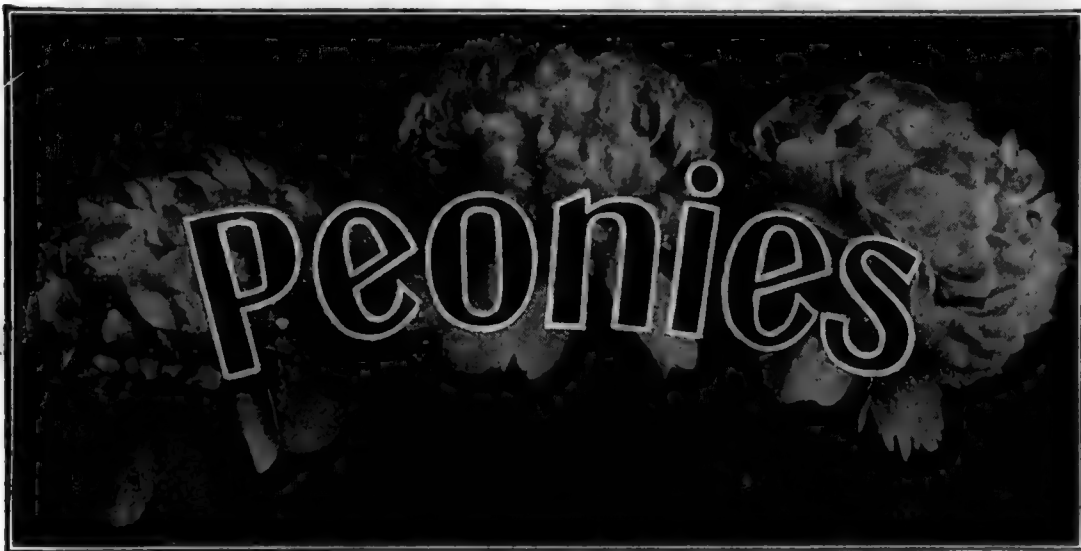

The accompanying illustrations show the establishment of Alois Frey, of Crown Point, Ind. Mr. Frey is known all over the United States as the originator of the Rainbow freesia, but freesias are by no means all that he grows. The establishment originally consisted of two houses, two lean-tos and a service building. The first houses were of wood construction. One is 27x200, the other 30x200. The first addition to the range, however, was a Lord & Burnham steel-frame house 40x200. This season the big house at the left, 60x200, was added, also of Lord & Burnham steel-frame construction. The smaller illustration shows the interior of this wide house as it stood completed, ready for planting. The benches will be of special interest. These are monolithic concrete benches, each fifty-two inches wide. There are ten of them in the house. They were erected on the Wilson-Hoyt patent, the molds being obtained from Mead & Suydam, Newark, N. J.

This big new house has been planted entirely to Mrs. C. W. Ward carnation, "and," says Mr. Frey, "you never in all your life saw plants that looked happier." In the other houses there are approximately 80,000 of the Rainbow freesias. Of these 60,000 are the mixture of colors many other growers have planted or are planting this season, but about 20,000 of the bulbs are seedlings, through the development of which Mr. Frey hopes to make a still further advance in his stock. He believes that he now has so improved his bright-colored freesias that it will no longer be necessary or desirable for him to continue the raising of seedlings in large numbers and his effort hereafter will be along the lines of selection, to separate colors and establish named varieties.

New Lord & Burnham House Just Completed by Alois Frey.

PEONIES FOR CUTTING.

In planting peonies for cut flowers, do not plant out a long list of varieties, says Gilbert H. Wild, of Sarcoxie, Mo. Take the advice of a grower who has been supplying a good share of the Memorial day stock for years. Following are a few reasons: First, in cutting, about all varieties must be at different stages before they are ready to cut, or at least look different. For good results, they must be cut just right, which is a little hard to do if you have a good many different varieties and are employing several cutters who are not acquainted with each and all varieties. Again, each color and variety should be tied and wrapped in separate bunches, so the parties you are shipping to will know, without unwrapping, the color of flower in each bunch. This, you will find, is a lot of trouble if you have several varieties to keep separate and it seems that a mixed lot, if wrapped separately, don't bring the price straight lots do, and it is the returns that count. I could give several other reasons about on same line, but believe above is enough to convince you that a few good varieties are better to plant for cut flowers than an equal number in several varieties.

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL PEONIES.

In an article for amateurs, published in the Gardeners' Magazine, A. P. Saunders, secretary of the American Peony Society, makes the following selection of varieties, "regardless of anything except the sheer beauty of the flower." The cream of what we now have would include these sorts:

Thérèse—Perhaps the grandest peony in existence. No flower lover who has seen well developed blooms of Thérèse could ever forget them. The flower is flat, seven or eight inches across, looking like a loosely formed rose, and of a delicate and lovely pale rose color.

Le Cygne—Probably the finest white yet produced; a magnificent bloom that is rapidly becoming a great favorite.

Mme. Emile Gallé—Most delicate shade of flesh pink. One of the finest for color.

Albatre or Avalanche—Two varieties almost if not quite identical; white with flesh center.

Marie Crousse—An unusual shade of pale pink, almost a salmon color.

Grandiflora (Richardson)—Finest of the late pinks, flat flower, pale rose color, delightfully fragrant.

James Kelway—Palest flesh white, loosely formed flower of exquisite beauty.

Venus—Light pink, high built bloom on extra tall stems.

Jeanne d'Arc—A fine big bloom of mixed petals in pale pink and yellow, with large pale pink guard petals.

Philomèle—A charming plant for the garden; the flowers consist of a row of broad pink guard petals, and then a mass of deep honey yellow narrow petals in the center, with sometimes a tuft of broader pale pink ones in the very heart of the bloom.

Marie Lemoine—Late white with much yellow interspersed; a grand sort.

Eugène Verdier—Rather dwarf growing; a magnificent bloom; the body of the color pale pink but yellow lights come through from the base of the petals, adding a peculiar richness to the color.

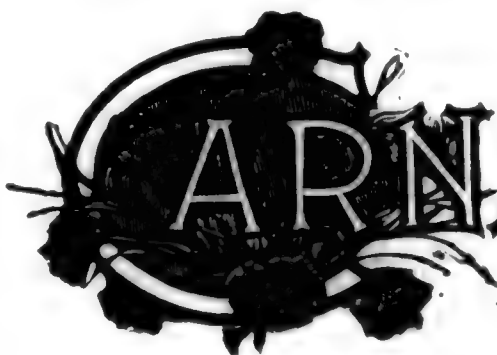

Mme. Boulanger—The best peony known to me that could be called mauve. The color is a delightful shade of pale mauve rose.

Baroness Schroeder—A grand white and one of the best standard sorts.

Mlle. Leonie Calot—Pale flesh pink of the finest quality.

Milton Hill—Like the variety P. grandiflora, Milton Hill was raised by John Richardson in Dorchester, Mass.; it is only now beginning to be recognized at its true worth; the color is shell pink, deepening toward the center, but there is in this flower a quality of color that is beyond the power of words to describe.

Carnea elegans (Calot)—The full beauty of this sort will be known only to those who mature blooms indoors; it is sensitive to sunlight, and the flowers fade quickly in the open, to a toneless white; indoors they preserve an enchanting combination of flesh color and pale yellow.

FAIRY RING ON CARNATIONS.

Under separate cover I am sending you a sample of my carnation plants, which, as the specimen shows, are badly diseased. I am of the opinion that the disease is a bacterial one, and I wish you would tell me if I am correct. My employer maintains that this condition of the plants was caused by red spider in the field.

The plants were set in the field in April. Directly after the planting wet weather set in and lasted about two months. At that time I think the damage was done. The wet weather was followed by ten weeks of excessive heat and the plants suffered some from red spider.

About three weeks ago the plants were benched. The White Enchantress plant sent you was stripped of all diseased leaves at that time, but now it is in worse condition than when it was dug in the field.

I use the right compost and water the plants properly. The soil is three parts light loam and one part leaf-mold. The leaf-mold was taken from an old ditch and is almost a good, black soil. I

STORAGE OF FORCING STOCK.

Can you give me any information as to the proper treatment of forcing stock in winter storage? I am handling a large quantity of lilacs, spiræas, azaleas, skimmias, rhododendrons, etc., for the winter and spring trade. Any information as to the light, air, water and heat requirements for the successful handling of such stock would be appreciated.

D. H. N. C.—Ill.

It is better to leave all the plants named outdoors until they have had one or two moderate freezings. In the case of deciduous stock, it can stay out until all the foliage has fallen. Lift the plants with good balls of earth and pack them in a storage shed or cellar where they can be freely ventilated during all favorable weather; a few degrees below freezing will not harm them. If the balls are at all dry when lifted, soak well with the hose when heeling them in. If the soil in which they are heeled is damp this watering should carry them through the winter. No fire heat should be necessary in a well constructed storage shed or cellar. A moderate light only is necessary.

C. W.

CELLAR FOR LILIES.

Will a good, cool cellar do to start lilies and hyacinths? J. M.—Ind.

A cool cellar is a good place to start tulips, narcissi and hyacinths. While lilies may also be started in such a cellar, it is well to remark that L. longiflorum giganteum succeeds best if given a good heat from the time it is potted. L. Harrisii, speciosum and auratum may be started cool.

used a liberal quantity of cow manure, well rotted.

You will notice that the spots are even on the buds and flowers. Do you think the plants will survive the disease? What is the best remedy? I have sprayed the plants with Bordeaux mixture, three pounds of bluestone to four of lime, in fifty gallons of water.

J. W.—Ind.

The specimens submitted were literally covered with fairy ring spots. If they are a fair sample, I would lose no time in throwing out the plants, taking out the soil, fumigating the house with sulphur and then replanting with clean stock. To clean them you would be obliged to strip the plants of all the foliage and only a weak growth could be expected to follow this, if the plants did not actually die. It would be impossible to control fairy ring with spraying after reaching the stage it has with you. Bordeaux mixture is the standard remedy for these spot diseases, but I hardly think it would prove adequate to control your case.

You and your employer are both right in your contentions, as to the cause of the trouble, but you have both failed to recognize the greatest factor of all in bringing on the trouble. The cold, wet spring made the plants soft; that was followed by extreme heat and red spider, which seriously impaired the vitality of the plants. When they were housed and subjected to the close, humid atmosphere produced by the frequent syringing necessary to keep them fresh while getting a new roothold, they fell an easy prey to the fairy ring. While the red spider may be considered the real beginning of your trouble, because it made it necessary to house the plants during the extreme heat, the immediate cause of your present troubles is the fairy ring. Could you have kept clear of this, you could have cleaned out the spider in due time and induced the plants to make a fair growth. Perhaps the fairy ring was started even before you lifted the plants from the field, in which case the close atmosphere of the houses merely hastened its development and it could not have been avoided. A. F. J. B.

The Florists' Supplies.

TIMING CROPS FOR CHRISTMAS.

When should the last pinching of carnations be done to get a full crop for Christmas? I do not care if I cut no flowers till December 15. The carnations are in fine shape and well branched. The varieties are Enchantress, White Enchantress, Rose-pink Enchantress, Philadelphia and Beacon. What would be a good cut from 2,000 plants, from December 20 to 25? The latitude is southern Kansas.

H. P. M.—Kan.

Allow from six to eight weeks from the time your buds show at the tip of the flower stem until the bloom is ready to cut. Varieties vary somewhat in the length of time required, but seven weeks is about an average. Whether you should top any more will depend largely on the stage at which you remove the tips. You will be able to gauge yourself, however, by the foregoing suggestions.

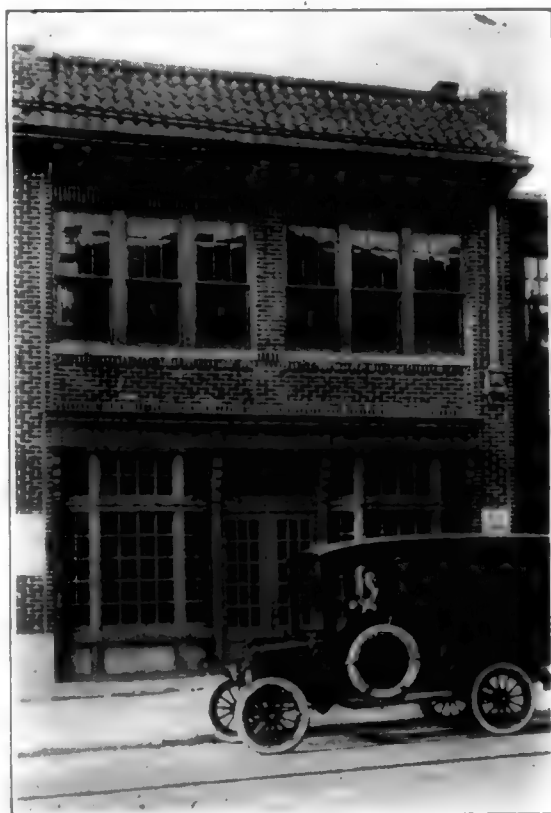

If you cut an average of two blooms from each of your carnation plants during December, you will have no cause for complaint. You will be likely to cut less rather than more than that number, unless your plants are in extraordinarily good condition. You can perhaps manage to cut half of your December crop between the dates you name, by letting the blooms hang for several days previous to December 20 and giving a little extra heat after the first cut is made. Be careful, however, in applying extra heat, as any carelessness in this respect will invariably be paid for later in inferior quality.

A. F. J. B.

FAIRY RING.

We are sending, under separate cover, a few leaves from some of our carnation plants. These plants were benched August 18. They were good, healthy field plants, and, judging from the new growth they are making, they have taken hold well. This leaf-spot, however, is causing a good deal of the foliage to turn brown and die. The disease has appeared on the new growth since the plants were housed. We have applied Bordeaux mixture both in the field and in the house.

St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co.

E. G. R. & S. C.—Ky.

You seem to have a well developed case of fairy ring on your plants and you should lose no time in adopting heroic measures. This disease spreads rapidly and, unless checked, will soon render valueless your entire house of carnations. It is brought on by excessive moisture in the atmosphere, especially if the atmosphere is foul.

This summer has been extremely hard on carnations brought in from the field. The extreme heat right at benching time made it necessary to syringe more freely than usual to hold the plants up. Consequently leaf-spot diseases have been more prevalent than usual. Especially is this true where a heavy shade was put on the glass and allowed to remain long enough to cause the plants to become soft.

Continue spraying with Bordeaux mixture, as there is no better remedy. Also pick off all the spotted leaves and burn them. The latter operation will take considerable time, but will pay you well.

A BUILDING FOR WHOLESALING.

The new building of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., 1410 Pine street, was opened for business September 25. It is a 2-story structure, 25x109, built specially for the wholesale cut flower and supplies business. The first floor is devoted to the sale of cut flowers and has two big Brecht refrigerators, each 14x8x10. In the rear is a garage. The finish of all the woodwork is forest green, which includes the furniture in the office, which is seen at the right as one enters. The second floor is used as a display room for supplies. The basement is used for bulky supplies. Every detail of equipment was carefully worked out.

The company was incorporated June 22, with a capital stock of $20,000. The officers of the company are: David Scott Geddis, president; J. J. Beneke, vice-president, and Frank P. Maid, secretary and treasurer.

EASTER LILIES.

Would you advise setting Easter lily bulbs halfway down in a 5-inch or 6-inch pot and filling the pot with soil as the plant grows? J. C.—N. Y.

It is an excellent plan to place the lily bulbs halfway down in the pots and fill in with loam as they grow. All the best roots produced by the Easter lilies come from above and not below the bulbs. High potting, therefore, is not to be recommended. C. W.

Langhorne, Pa.—A florists' business will be launched here next spring by William J. Hamilton, who now is residing at West Philadelphia.

ALONG THE HUDSON.

There has been a great deal heard of late with regard to the decadence of the violet-growing industry along the Hudson. Bad news travels fast and, like the snowball rolling downhill, it grows as it goes. The conditions among the growers in the Rhinebeck and Red Hook district are not nearly so bad as has been reported.

It is quite true that the profits in the last few years have not been so great as they were in the earlier days of the violet industry; it also is true that some of the growers have dropped violets and are growing sweet peas or carnations. But the number who have changed crops really is not important; it is doubtful if it represents so much as ten per cent of the glass area in that district. There has been some renting to new growers on the part of those who have tired of the business, but the changes in the violet district probably are not so numerous as the changes in the trade at large through the country; most of those who started have succeeded and are still at it.

It has been a not uncommon experience for a man to have his greatest success in his first years of violet growing, but there are many whose crops are better today than when they started in the business. The principal cause of trouble has been the spot disease, commonly called leaf spot or black spot, though the circular spots are whitish with concentric rings of a darker shade. The root rot has been a much less serious menace. Some years there also has been much trouble with a blue-black grub that eats the roots of the plants, in some cases destroying forty per cent of the plants in a house, but its ravages have not been severe this season. The district as a whole may fairly be said to have healthier plants than in any of the last few years. There is less of the spot and there is every indication that the yield this season will be larger than in any of the last two or three years.

This much may be admitted, however: The picking will be light for several weeks of the early season. The spring was wet and it was impossible to handle the soil and plants. Consequently the houses were not planted as early as usual and the picking season will be a little late. When it once is in full swing there should be violets enough for everyone, and good violets.

Rhinebeck violets now are sold in quantity all over that part of the United States east of the Mississippi, and in many cases Chicago wholesalers ship them long distances into the north, west and south.

ers of the Rhinebeck section, Melvin Bishop, standing in one of his two houses of violets. The photograph was made September 10. Mr. Bishop's crop is sold in Chicago, by the E. C. Amling Co. Last season he shipped 350,000. He has been in the business many years, first as an employee, then as a partner with J. C. Hamlin and later in business for his individual account. He does not believe the violet-growing industry is in other than a most prosperous condition and those who visit his establishment will agree that all the indications of contentment are there.

VIOLETS IN COLD FRAMES.

Kindly let me know the best way of growing violets in a coldframe. I planted some in a coldframe this year and they are doing well. Is it necessary to take cuttings for next season, or will the old plants do for another year?
M. N.—Ind.

You can either take runners and root them in sandy loam, or, as many prefer, divide the old clumps, trimming back the leaves and roots and planting in flats. Later, the plants can be set out in nursery rows and planted in the frames in August if doubles are grown, or in October if singles. The singles do better if left exposed until they have had one or two moderate freezings to check their leaf growth. The old clumps would not do if left unmoved another year. A thorough preparation of the soil in the frames, with plenty of well rotted cow or horse manure added, is necessary to grow good violets.

TO START ARAUCARIA SEEDS.

Please inform us how to germinate Araucaria excelsa seeds.

F. M.—Minn.

Araucaria seeds should be planted in shallow pans or boxes which have good drainage, and the compost should be a rather light, sandy soil. The seeds should be covered to a depth of one-half inch, the soil made level and pressed down moderately firm. Then place the pans or boxes on a bench in a greenhouse with a temperature of about 55 degrees, and keep the soil moist, but not sodden.

VEGETABLES AND FRUITS DEPARTMENT

VEGETABLE GROWERS' MEETING.

Officers Elected.

At the concluding session of the ninth annual convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, held in Chicago, September 26 to 29, officers for 1917 were nominated without opposition and elected unanimously. They were:

President—Howard W. Selby, Philadelphia.

Vice-president—H. M. Thompson, Arlington, Mass.

Secretary—S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky.

Treasurer—Eugene Davis, Grand Rapids, Mich.

A Highly Successful Meeting.

It is possible other organizations have held as successful conventions as this one, but it certainly set a new mark for the vegetable growers. There was not one thing wrong with it from beginning to end except the weather of the day chosen for the automobile tour of visits with luncheon at Morton Grove; this upset the plans more or less, but it did not dampen anyone's ardor, for there were exactly 598 on the expedition.

The vegetable growers are not talkative, like the numerous college professors and other specialists who addressed them, but the informal round-table discussions brought out a quite general report of experiences and expression of opinion on subjects related to growing and marketing vegetables. A portion of the discussion concerned work under glass, but as the chairman remarked at one session, "that is important to the few, but most of those here are not engaged on that scale; they grow their crops in the open and have entirely different problems."

Closing Sessions.

It would be doubtful if a creditable number of people of any trade other than the vegetable growers' could be mustered at such an early hour as 6 a. m. But that was what the program of September 28 called for and a goodly number visited the South Water street produce market and the West Randolph street farmers' market. In the course of the visit there were many interesting discussions between vegetable growers and commission men. The remainder of the morning was devoted to round-table discussions. The first, "Greenhouse Problems," was led by R. L. Watts, director of the Pennsylvania State Experiment Station, College Station, Pa. The second, "Marketing Vegetables," was led by H. W. Selby, of Philadelphia. The marketing discussion was scheduled to continue in the afternoon, but before the meeting settled down to the afternoon's business an illustrated address on advertising vegetables, by L. W. C. Tuthill, of the Tuthill Ad Agency, New York, was interpolated. Mr. Tuthill knows how to be highly interesting as well as instructive.

The final session was given over primarily to a round-table discussion on "Extension Work for Vegetable Growers," led by C. W. Waid, of the Michigan Agricultural College, East Lansing, Mich., and a round-table discussion of "Seed Selection and Plant Improvement for the Vegetable Growers," led by A. T. Erwin, of the Iowa Agricultural College, Ames, Ia. In discussing the matter of securing satisfactory seed, Mr. Erwin suggested that one way out of the difficulty was for the vegetable growers to grow and select their own seeds, at least in part. "While the seedsmen will always play an important part," he said, "it is well to remember that 'if you want a thing done well, do it yourself.'" In his opinion the home-growing of seeds would do much to build up local strains that would more nearly meet the requirements of their own localities than seed purchased from seedsmen. This opened the door to a lively discussion which resulted in the conclusion that cheap seed is dear at any price.

Entertainment of Ladies.

The local reception and entertainment committee acted as luncheon host to the visiting ladies in the Marshall Field tea room.

In closing Secretary S. W. Severance read a resolution of thanks to the citizens of Chicago, the local management committee headed by Fred Lautenschlager, the Cook County Vegetable Growers' Association, the trade exhibitors, the officials and teachers of the Cook county schools, for their work in promoting vegetable growing among the school children. The resolution also recommended that a certificate of merit be given to each of the eight school divisions represented in the exhibits.

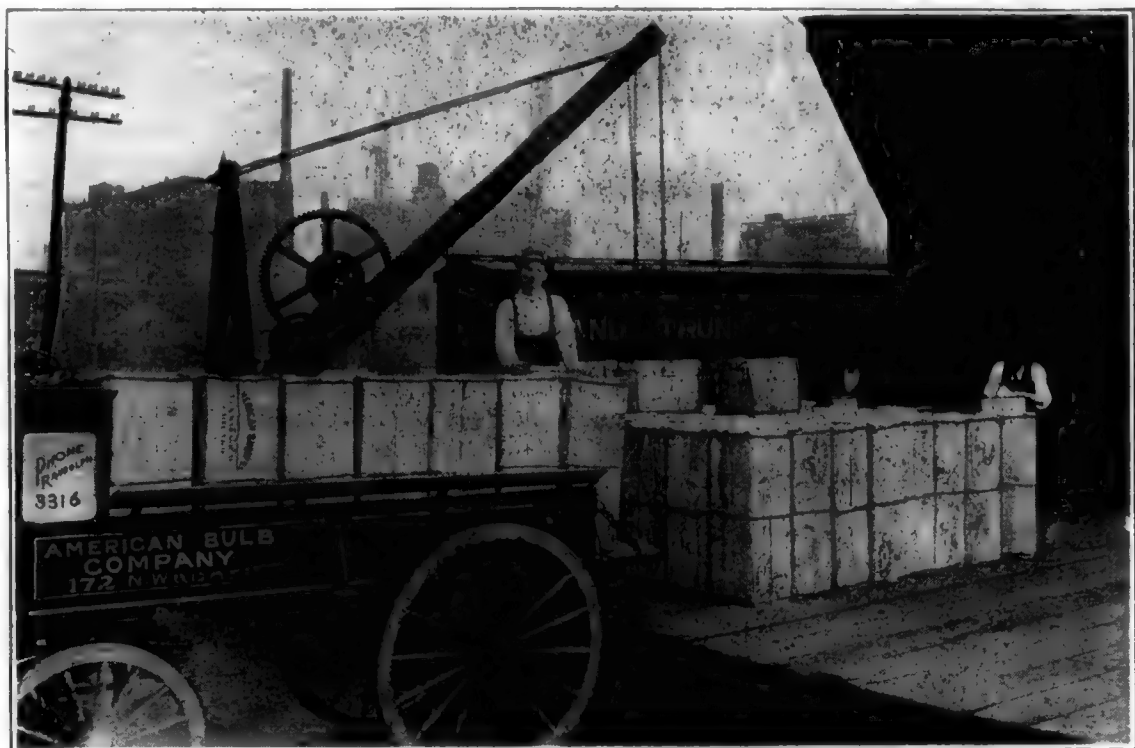

The Next Meeting Place.

The next place of meeting of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America will be Springfield, Mass.

ASTER YELLOWS.

We are enclosing one of our aster plants and would like to know what caused it to be in that diseased condition. We have large beds of asters doing well, but throughout the beds there are flowers affected like the one enclosed. C. G.—Ia.

The cause of this disease is as yet

A New Concern's First Carload of Bulbs Reaches Chicago.

but imperfectly understood. It is commonly spoken of as aster yellows. The trouble has been rife this season, probably due to the peculiar climatic conditions, and is especially bad on land which had been used for asters in consecutive years. Such affected plants should be pulled up and burned, to prevent infection of the ground. If possible, give your plants a fresh stand each year, and it is a good plan to plow the land in the fall and leave it rough over winter. Aster flowers never brought better prices than this season, as many growers have lost a great proportion of their plants, in some cases many thousands in number. There have been one or two college bulletins issued on this disease; they do not tell us a great deal about it. New ground and cleanliness will help to stamp it out and plants started in coldframes and the open air always seem more immune to this and other ailments than seedlings started in greenhouses where artificial heat is used. C. W.

PROUD AS PAPA.

You know how proud papa proverbially is of the first baby; well, that's the way the American Bulb Co., Chicago, felt about its first carload of French bulbs, particularly as the bulbs from France reached the shipping platform at the Erie depot in Chicago September 25, only seven weeks after the company opened its office and began doing business.

Incidentally, the illustration, showing this first car of bulbs, will give an idea how the bulb business is handled. The shipping clerk of the consignee is seen inspecting, readdressing and reshipping to customers as the cases come out of the car. Advance orders are reshipped from the unloading platform, saving time, labor and cartage.

PERENNIAL PLANTS FOR FLORISTS' PROFITS

SUGGESTIONS BY AN EXPERT.

Some Care Needed.

To those of you who grow and retail your own plants and flowers and have little ground around your houses to spare, I would suggest that you will find it profitable to pay more attention to perennial plants, but do not treat perennials as leftovers from spring sales and expect to make a profit, because if you do you will be disappointed and apt to say, "Oh, I don't see anything in growing perennials!" Give them the same attention that you do your field-grown carnations, asters, vincas, ivies or other plants from which you expect to make a profit. You know if you do not give the necessary attention to carnation plants in the field you will have few Beacon to retail at $2.50 a dozen December 24.

I believe perennials will pay you as well as asters have paid you—this year, at any rate—but you took a chance on the asters, prepared the ground for them, kept them cultivated and clean. Why not plant a piece of that ground to peonies or delphiniums now? And when the asters are going off at the neck and the beetles are busy next summer, you can go out and cut Belladonna or other delphiniums on 3-foot stems. You will find that your customers will take them and also, in many cases, leave orders for plants.

Good Prices Easy.

Do you know that August 20 this year some spikes of delphinium were sold in the New York market at $2 a dozen?

From the address of William Saville, nursery superintendent of the Henry F. Michell Co., before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, October 3, 1916.

They were fine spikes, I admit, but did you get the same price for speciosum lilies at the same time? I have had telephone calls from the wholesalers in this town and also from Atlantic City, offering me $25 for 250 spikes of Belladonna delphinium, which convinced me that the demand was there, waiting to be supplied. I replied that we were not in the cut flower business, and diligently set to work to harvest all the seeds possible, so that you could have a chance.

I have read with interest the items discussing whether a 4-inch geranium can be sold profitably at 10 cents straight or $1 a dozen. Sow digitalis and campanula about a month earlier than you put your geranium cuttings in, get them into 3½-inch pots by fall, keep them in a frame all winter, with a few dry leaves over them as a protection for the foliage, give them air early in the spring, keep them nice and stocky and hand them out to your customers at $1.50 a dozen—they will get a lot of satisfaction and you will get a better profit.

Get acquainted with some of the best hardy plants and make your customers feel you are giving them intelligent advice when they ask for suggestions. Your customers are taking a greater interest in outdoor gardening than they ever did before. They are not going to Europe in such large numbers every year and many of them are using the time to beautify their own grounds.

A Large Demand.

Look up some of the magazines devoted to outdoor life and country pursuits and note the number of garden clubs that have been formed. See the number of demonstrating lessons that are being given actually in the gardens of the members. Result? I will venture to say that many of the stocks of hardy plants in the larger nurseries are lower at the present time than they have been for many years.

If you grow a few more hardy plants than you dispose of in the spring, plant them out; they will give you flowers that will be acceptable before the newly-planted carnations have begun to bloom and when the first crop of roses opens up too quickly on you. They will also give you a greater variety—and one sale leads to another.

In the autumn you will have noted the flowers that have been in demand. Increase your plantings by division in October or early spring. Tonight I am to speak only for fall flowers, but a good plant catalogue and your own good judgment will suggest plants that you can profitably use all through the summer months.

Some Specially Good Things.

The new Anemone Hupehensis, a recent introduction of merit from China, grows one foot high and produces flowers of a pleasing pale mauve rose, one and one-half inches in diameter, from August until late autumn.

The buddleia, or butterfly bush, as it is called, is deservedly popular with the florist. This shrub, from a young plant set out in May, will mature to full size the first season. It produces long, graceful stems which terminate in tapering panicles of beautiful, lilac-colored flowers that are of miniature size and borne on a flower head which is frequently ten inches long. The second year it generally commences to flower in June and continues until nipped by severe frosts. I venture to predict that buddleias will become one of the most popular plants ever introduced.

Coreopsis lanceolata, with its rich, golden-yellow flowers, is valuable for cutting and succeeds everywhere.

Eupatorium ageratoides, a strong, free-growing plant, with minute white flowers in dense heads, is splendid for cutting and the pretty Eupatorium celestinum, with light blue flowers, similar to ageratum, is in flower from August until frost.

The gorgeous Gaillardia grandiflora succeeds in any soil, in a sunny position, and is in flower all the time from June on.

The new Salvia uliginosa, growing five to six feet high and producing freely flowers of a cornflower blue with a white throat, is a splendid acquisition in the autumn border. The carmine-colored flowers of Salvia Greggii, a native of the mountains of Texas, are particularly bright from August on.

To those of you who have grown the large round-leaved senecios of heavy stem and have, after a trial, consigned them to the bog, or the border of a lake, I would recommend S. pulcher.

There are few flowers that are more suitable than the tritomas, call them red-hot poker, flame flowers, torch lilies or what you will. The ever-blooming Tritoma Pfitzeri, in bloom from August to October, produces a grand effect in rich orange-scarlet, planted either singly or in masses. Probably most of you will think the best effect is produced in the retailer's store, when My Lady exclaims, "What wonderfully gorgeous flame flowers!" and immediately places an order.

Outdoor Chrysanthemums.

If the characteristics of a popular garden plant are hardiness, dwarfness of habit, freedom of flowering, usefulness as a cut flower, and a range of coloring embracing every shade except blue and intense scarlet, then the early-flowering outdoor chrysanthemum may lay claim to the distinction of being an almost perfect plant, because it possesses these qualities in a remarkable degree.

Such enthusiastic cultivators as Nonin, Cannell, Davis, Godfrey, Goacher, Holmes, Wells and Totty will be ever associated with the early-flowering mum. The introduction of Mme. Marie Masse about 1891 brought about a revolution in the growing of this plant. A new era had dawned upon it, because we had in this an introduction of wonderful constitution, a perfect habit, and most profuse in its blooming qualities, and today it is one of the most popular varieties in general cultivation; and with its sports, Ralph Curtis, Horace Martin and Crimson Masse, covers quite a range of coloring.

A mistaken impression has been given with regard to outdoor mums, which is, that all one has to do is simply to plant them in a bed and they will continue to improve from year to year without any further care. That they are entirely hardy and will come up in the spring in most sections is perfectly true, but the best way to produce the greatest quantity of flowers is to take cuttings from the young plants every spring and, as soon as they are rooted, plant them out in good soil in rows about two feet apart. These can be pinched back several times to make them bushy and then in the fall they will produce large quantities of long-stemmed, beautiful flowers, much superior to old stalks that have been growing for several years, and which are consequently to a greater or less extent exhausted.

Rotterdam, Holland.—The indications are that conditions are shaping themselves so that bulb dealers will do well to figure on considerably higher prices for tulips and hyacinths of the 1917 crop.

Marseilles, France.—One of the reasons why French bulbs will cost more in 1917 may be found in the statement of U. S. Consul General Gaulin that in the Marseilles-Ollioules district, whence come the bulbs, "the average prices of nearly all the necessities have increased since the outbreak of the war between forty-five and fifty per cent."

Paris, France.—L'Horticulture Française, the official organ of la Federation Nationale des Syndicats Horticoles de France, the nurserymen's association, continues to be published as a quarterly instead of a monthly. The greater part of its contents is lists of members of the trade who have been killed, injured, captured or honorably mentioned in the war, but there also is much discussion regarding labor, embargoes and other questions growing out of the great conflict.

Erfurt, Germany.—As a means of offsetting the labor shortage, prisoners of war have been set to work at the civilian tasks for which they are best fitted. As a result many French, English and Belgian gardeners, seed growers and nurserymen now are employed at similar work here, at Quedlinburg and at other places where trade interests need assistance.

London, England.—The Horticultural Trades Association recently proposed a schedule of minimum prices for rose plants and fruit trees. At the recent meeting the secretary reported that out of 470 members 210 had signed the slips; seventy-six others approved of the action taken but for one cause and another were unable or unwilling to bind themselves to any definite schedule; twelve were not interested, being exclusively occupied in other branches, and nine disapproved of the action taken. Of these last, only one or two were directly interested in the subjects in question. The members present considered that the result of the movement had so far been highly satisfactory.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The end of last week was encouraging and it is apparent that good Saturdays are here again. Everyone seems optimistic. The outlook for a busy season was never brighter, as all lines of trade are booming. Everybody has money to spend—and they are spending it.

Good American Beauties are in wide demand. The prices are firmer and the quality is rapidly improving. So it may be said of all roses, although great quantities of those with small heads and short stems still are arriving. Hadley is fast advancing in size and beauty, and so is Prima Donna, Ward, Mock, Russell and Stanley. Gorgeous and Tipperary roses are quite popular and Cleveland is fancied by the novelty lovers.

Mums soon will hold the center of the stage. Some grand ones are here already, especially Smith's Advance, and the new pink, Alexander Guttman. Prices range from 50 cents each down to that of the smaller Golden Glow mums, which sell at $1 and lower per dozen. Some violets are here and sell at 50 cents per hundred and less. Carnations are changing slowly for the better, both in quality and numbers. Few of them command over $2 per hundred and there are quantities of the short-stemmed blooms that go begging at 50 cents.

Valley is steady at $1 to $5 per hundred. Lilies make 5 to 10 cents each, with no surplus, even rubrums being at last appreciated at about half the quotation for longiflorums. There are few asters now worthy of the name. There are some gladioli remaining and these bring good prices, because of their scarcity.

Dahlia was king last week in New York. The retailers featured them in window displays, using them in good basket and vase effects. Last, but not least, the orchids are slowly dropping in price and increasing in quantity. There are plenty of bouvardias, tritomas and marigolds.

Various Notes.

October 9 is the date of the next meeting of the New York Florists' Club. There will be mum exhibits and novelties, a good fall collation and a lecture on irises, illustrated, by Arthur Herrington.

The auctions grow. Big sales of bulbs are made at low prices, considering quality. Sales of large decorative palms, bays and ferns are made at most reasonable figures. While many retailers are stocking up for the winter, the auctions do not seem to interfere with the usual sales by the plantmen of this section.

Jos. S. Fenrich, like many of the New York wholesalers, has been out on Long Island visiting his growers and John Donaldson, of Patchogue, on the side.

There are twenty retail florists between Forty-second and Eighty-sixth streets on Madison avenue. The latest addition is Siebrecht Bros., who will occupy a large corner store on the avenue early in October.

Much sympathy is felt for Wm. Gommersall, of Nyack, in the loss of his son in the prevailing epidemic of infantile paralysis.

Roman J. Irwin is on his annual hunting trip in New Brunswick.

Senator Heacock, of Philadelphia, was a recent visitor.

Joseph Trepel will open his seventh store in Brooklyn about November 1. He says it will surpass his place of 1,000 mirrors on Lewis avenue.

Herman Anderson, of Bayside, whose specialties are carnations and ferns for the New York market, has opened a neat retail store in his own town.

Woodrow & Marketos filled a large order last week for palms, boxwoods and assorted ornamentals. Mr. Woodrow is devoting much of his time to landscape work, his brother being in charge of the retail department of the business.

J. Austin Shaw.

Shipments received this week by McHutchison & Co. include 500 bales of raffia and 22,000 pieces of raffia cloth, which was introduced by them for the manufacture of men's hats.

GARDENERS' ESSAY CONTEST.

The closing date of the essay contest of the National Association of Gardeners, for assistant gardeners, is drawing near. The prizes offered by President William N. Craig—$25 gold for first prize; $15 gold as second prize; $10 gold for third prize—are for any subject pertaining to any branch of horticulture. The essays are limited to 2,500 words and must be signed with a nom de plume, must bear no evidence of the author's identification and be mailed in a plain envelope before November 1, on which date the contest closes, carefully addressed to the chairman of the essay committee, William H. Waite, Box 290, Madison, N. J.

The contestant also will place his name and full address, stating the position he holds, in an envelope, writing the nom de plume he signed to his essay on the outside of this envelope, and mail same enclosed in an envelope to the secretary, M. C. Ebel, of Madison, N. J. This will not be opened until the judges have rendered their decision on the contest.

The successful contestants will be announced at the annual convention of the association, which will be held in Washington, D. C., the first week of December.

The rules must be strictly followed to avoid disqualification. The essay must be written distinctly and on one side of the paper only.

Auburn, Neb.—C. G. Milan is adding 1,000 square feet of glass to his range and attending to numerous improvements at his home.

Minden, Neb.—Greenhouses are to be erected here by O. D. Atwater, who for four years has been associated with C. B. Tanner & Co., of Hastings, Neb.

Greensburg, Ind.—A dissolution of partnership has made two concerns out of the Clark-Bertsch Floral Co., namely, Ira Clark & Co. and the Bertsch Floral Co.

Hammond, Ind.—The Ove Gnatt Co. has been incorporated at $30,000 by Ove Gnatt, Gerda Gnatt, James K. Stinson, Harry G. MacLellan and Ethel S. MacLellan.

Des Moines, Ia.—The business of William Dew, at 202 Hillside avenue, has been acquired by Herman Roller, who will specialize in plants. At present Mr. Roller is growing lettuce.

De Kalb, Ill.—Mrs. J. L. Johnson, store manager for the De Kalb greenhouses, has resumed her work, after a complete recovery from injuries received when the street car in which she was a passenger was struck by a freight train.

Freeport, Ill.—The Bauscher car decorated with Russell roses took first prize in the floral parade September 25. Accompanying the car were the five Bauscher brothers who are conducting the business of their father, John Bauscher. The brothers and their departments are: George, foreman of the rose section; Lester, foreman of the carnation section; Clarence, foreman of the pot plant section; John, Jr., in charge of delivery; Arthur, manager.

Forest City, Ia.—Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Larson, who formerly conducted a florists' business at Galva, Ill., have purchased the Hill City Greenhouses. Friends will recall that Mr. and Mrs. Larson retired from the business about three years ago, to take up farming in Minnesota, but, like most florists who leave the trade, they have "come back."

Elgin, Ill.—A new greenhouse establishment has been started at Elgin, under the direction of Harold A. Olson and Theodore Olson, who have purchased property and greenhouses from William Grote. Four greenhouses and twenty-three lots also have been transferred to the new owners, by a lease from H. E. Sandy, a vegetable grower of South Elgin. Harold Olson for several years was associated with Dumser, the Florist, and Theodore Olson comes from Chicago Heights. Olson Bros. is the firm name.

Anderson, Ind.—The firm of Stuart & Haugh, composed of J. Stuart and J. A. E. Haugh, has, by mutual consent, dissolved partnership, J. A. E. Haugh retiring. The new firm will be composed of J. S. Stuart and J. Edgar Stuart, under the name of J. S. Stuart & Son. The old firm has existed for twenty-one years, expanding from a small place to one commensurate with the thriving city, and now has the reputation of being one of the largest and most up-to-date retail places of any Indiana city of its class. The new firm begins business under the most promising conditions. J. S. Stuart is one of the pioneer florists of the middle west. His son, J. Edgar Stuart, has been connected with the firm since 1902 and has all the energy and ability required in a modern establishment.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

The feature of the market this week is the early chrysanthemums, which have made their appearance in goodly numbers and of fine quality. With the dahlias, they are supplanting roses and carnations to a considerable extent. It is not expected that the supply of chrysanthemums this year will be so heavy as in the previous season, as several growers have cut down their plantings to get away from the waste which arose from overproduction.

Stock in all other lines is plentiful. Roses are almost without price. This does not apply to American Beauties, which are in good demand at fair figures. There are quite a few carnations coming in, but there is no real call for these because of the supply of chrysanthemums and dahlias. Gardenias still are to be had, but the demand exceeds the supply. Valley has jumped to $8 per hundred. Orchids are more plentiful than they have been and the price has dropped. A fine lot of snapdragon is to be seen.

From the standpoint of the retailers, business last week was good, as there were a number of wedding, dinner and dance decorations as well as an unusual quantity of funeral work. The sale of cut flowers for personal adornment is reported as increasing.

Various Notes.

Adolph Gude, of Gude Bros. Co., has completed a new house 40x300 feet, to be used for sweet peas. Another house of the same size is rapidly nearing completion. This is being erected to take care of the overstocked condition of the fern and palm department. These two new houses, modern in every particular, replace four small houses discarded last fall after a service of twenty-four years.

Among the visitors of the week is H. B. Cowgill, of Porto Rico, who, while mainly engaged in the production of tropical fruits, is interested in greenhouse work.

George C. Shaffer is a member of the newly formed Optimists' Club. This is a second Rotary Club, taking one member from each line of business. Miss Daugherty, of the Shaffer store, has returned from a trip to Louisville.

Z. D. Blackistone has returned from his farm near Fort Washington, Md., after having spent the summer there with his family.

Robert Pyle and Antoine Wintzer, of West Grove, Pa., visited Washington last week to look over the rose test grounds at Arlington farms. The trip to the farms was made by automobile with Prof. Mulford and Dr. Van Fleet, of the Department of Agriculture. It was virtually decided that each year's contributions to the garden should be placed in a designated section by themselves. Favorable comment was made on the garden, even though the foliage of the plants showed the effects of black spot.

David Bisset and family had a narrow escape from serious injury last week when the automobile owned and operated by Mr. Bisset was overturned. They were taken to the Emergency hospital in a passing automobile and were treated for shock and slight injuries. None of them was seriously hurt.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

There were several severe frosts last week, and these, with continuous cool weather, have decreased the quantity of stock. The demand has been only fair, not exceeding the supply. The wholesale houses report trade good, with a clean-up every day. A few chrysanthemums are coming in, but not enough of them to affect the market. The retailers are fairly busy and they report having booked some excellent orders for this month and the next. All are optimistic and a great winter's business is expected.

Various Notes.

Several new retail stores have been opened. Among the new proprietors is Frank Stafford, who has been in the trade here for the last twenty years, working in one of the best stores in the city. He has opened a store at 105 Smithfield street.

The proprietors of the Fox Pet Shop have divided the store at 208 Smithfield street and have added a cut flower department, under the name of Fox's Flower Shop, with Mr. Griffith as manager.

Mainly About People

West Philadelphia, Pa.—Burton & Rone is the title of the florists' business recently started at Sixtieth street and Gibson avenue.

Oakfield, N. Y.—J. J. Bates, of Bates' Flower Shop, acted as judge of the flower exhibits at the Genesee county fair, at Batavia, N. Y., September 20.

Harrisburg, Pa.—H. G. Moore, who for some time has been connected with one of Harrisburg's leading flower stores, has accepted the management of the Davenport Flower Shop, the new store recently opened at 325 Market street.

Columbus, O.—Mrs. Theresa Flynn, who operates the flower business she inherited from her former husband, William Graff, has been granted a divorce from her husband, Bernard H. Flynn. Mr. Flynn was manager of the store at a salary of $175 per month, but he drew funds in excess of his salary and spent them in "riotous living," according to Mrs. Flynn.

Louisville, Ky.—W. L. Korb was awarded a silver cup for the best design in the flower exhibit at the state fair. The design represented an easel, such as used by artists. The frame was made of beech branches and the picture was represented by flowers placed on a green background. Attached to the easel was a pallet. Flowers of different colors scattered over the pallet represented daubs of paint. It was one of the most original designs ever shown at the fair. Other winners in the flower department were Nanz & Neuner and the C. H. Kunzman estate. G. E. Schulz, of Louisville, was the judge, and William Rabe, of Versailles, the superintendent.

Al Briggs, another well known employee of one of the old houses, has opened a store on Federal street, north side.

The Florists' Club met October 3 at the Fort Pitt hotel. The subject for discussion was "Trees and Seasonable Flowers." There was a display of dahlias.

Owing to the shortage of labor, John Jones, foreman at Schenley park, was unable to get away during the summer. He is now taking a much needed rest and visiting his many friends in the business, but he cannot keep away from greenhouses even when he is resting. The trees in Schenley park have become crowded and are now being marked for thinning out. The ones to come out are marked with a cross.

The schools were opened October 2, causing the stores a good deal of inconvenience, as nearly every errand boy is quitting to go to school—one of the best signs of good times.

Fred Riegelmeier took a run up to Brookville in his car a week ago and is still there, trying to get his car in shape to come home, after a breakdown.

Howard Hook, auditor of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., is seriously ill with pneumonia. Clarke.

Manistee, Mich.—When a local man of prominence made a flight in a hydro-aeroplane over Manistee and Portage lake September 18, his fellow townsmen took the opportunity of presenting the largest basket of roses ever arranged in this city. The order was well executed by Mrs. Chas. Nungesser.

Morristown, N. J.—Frederick J. Fraser, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Fraser, was married September 18 to Miss Jessie Hampson, of London. The couple were attended by Miss Florence Fraser and John Fraser, sister and brother of the bridegroom. Following the ceremony, which was attended by friends from Boston, New York, Brooklyn, Madison, N. J., Albany, N. Y., and Orange, N. J., there was a reception at Monroe, in the new house which the bridegroom had just completed.

Cleveland, O.—Jack Keck, styling himself "Florist to the Elite," who recently figured in the "Business Embarrassments" column because of the efforts of his attorney to obtain an extension of time from his creditors, has moved from 8309 Cedar avenue to 9002 Cedar avenue. He says to The Review: "I would like to inform your good paper that I have taken new and larger quarters and am doing seventy-five per cent more business since my removal; also, I am pushing landscape work and this week landed a nice contract at $200 for immediate placing. You may also know that I am to carry a full line of seeds, bulbs and baskets as well as everything that goes to make up a first-class store—you can't keep a good man down. I would be glad to have you inform anybody and everybody whom it would concern, because I am here to stay."

OBITUARY

Albert Neal.

Albert Neal, proprietor of the "Floral Display," at 11 Queen street, east, Toronto, Canada, was found dead in his bathroom September 23, presumably through an attack of heart failure. Mr. Neal was born in Birmingham, England, sixty-five years ago, and conducted a successful flower business for nearly thirty years. His funeral took place September 28 and was largely attended by members of the trade. W. G. P.

David Phillips.

David Phillips, of Toronto, Canada, died last week while on a visit to his sister, Mrs. Emily G. De Foe, of Roseland, near Newark, N. J. The deceased came from Canada July 6 and suffered from cancer of the throat. He was born fifty-two years ago in Quebec, where much of his life was spent. Besides his sister in Roseland, he is survived by two brothers, William J. Phillips, of Newark, and Charles F. Phillips, of Montreal. R. B. M.

DETROIT, MICH.

The Market.

Last week business improved somewhat. The principal item was roses. Of these the long-stemmed ones, such as Russell, Mott, Ophelia, Sunburst and Killarney, clear each day. American Beauties continue to be quite scarce and of good quality. Valley is good and clears readily, but orchids are few and high in price.

A few violets made their appearance last week, and a few mums were to be had. Asters and gladioli are offered, but they are not of much account. Lilies find a quick sale and arrive from New York state in fine condition.

Short cut roses, Ophelia, Ward and Killarney, are inclined to drag.

Various Notes.

The Flower Growers' Corporation has been receiving a fine cut of Ophelia and Sunburst roses.

Joseph Streit finds business improving and is erecting a store at his greenhouses.

Edward Pape, of the Central Flower Shop, is enlarging his floor space to take care of the increase in business.

The decorations at the J. L. Hudson department store had the J. Breitmeyer's Sons force working all night. The decorations were the most elaborate of their kind in Detroit.

A new flower store—Grand River Flower Shop—has made its appearance on Grand River avenue, east.

Raymond House, formerly with W. J. Palmer & Son, of Buffalo, has joined the force at Breitmeyer's park store.

C. Walsh, of Montreal, has entered the employ of J. Breitmeyer's Sons.

From Another Correspondent.

The weather has been seasonable and business has been picking up nicely. Stock is confined almost entirely to roses, but these are of excellent quality and the supply is adequate. There are also some choice gladioli, bringing 6 cents. This is the season of fall openings in the stores and some firms have had about all they could handle in this line of work, using large quantities of gladioli, tritomas, Beauties, etc.

Samuel Seligman, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, is visiting this city. He is well pleased with the orders so far in his first trip in the interest of his new firm. He has started something by disposing of his line of sample baskets in each large city and having a new line waiting at the next stop. Unfortunately, his Detroit line was delayed in transit and his patience was stretched to the limit.

In the decorations for the fall opening of the J. L. Hudson department store last week, Breitmeyer's used many hundred pampas plumes, in addition to flowers. Some of the plumes were made up into pyramid-shaped trees and placed in effective square tubs in white and red.

Fred Breitmeyer, of Mount Clemens, is well pleased with the way in which his stock of Rose-pink Ophelia, as he calls his sport of Ophelia, is coming along. If his present plans materialize, this new rose will be on the market one year hence. Some blooms will be shown at the Cleveland show this fall.

POT MAKERS' CO-OPERATION.

The Pot Makers' Credit Association recently held its second quarterly meeting in Columbus, O., with ninety-five per cent of the pottery trade on hand. The credit system established at the former meeting has in a few months shown a considerable saving in losses, proving the beneficial results of a credit system and that the large losses of the past will be no more. To illustrate, a customer of one potter neglects to pay him and, buying from a new firm each year, he soon owes all and is able to undersell his brother florist. The vital question of long credit was also brought up and after much discussion was held over for the next meeting, when more data would be obtained. However, it was brought out that the long-time credits were undesirable and unfair to the customer as well as to the business man.

FORMOSA LILIES.

Please inform me how to handle Formosa lily bulbs, as I have never grown this variety of lily. L. N. B.—O.

Pot the bulbs as soon as they are received. Usually 6-inch pots are the best. Put the bulbs low down in the pots, so as to allow a liberal margin for covering after they have started to grow. Remember that all the best feeding roots come from the base of the flower stalks and not below the bulbs. Place the pots in a frame or below the bench in any greenhouse free from drip. Keep them on the dry side until growth has started well and the plants have made good roots. Place them in a temperature of 60 degrees at night as soon as growths are three to four inches long. L. Formosum is a much taller grower than giganteum and is much superior for cutting. Some plants may carry only one or two flowers per bulb, while others will produce a dozen or more. It is an earlier bloomer than giganteum, but as all the bulbs do not flower at one time it can easily be held back as late as Easter, if so desired.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

Ascending in the elevator to the vegetable growers' convention on the nineteenth floor of Hotel La Salle, Chicago, the remark was made that the price of vegetables, like the car, was soaring. The only live piece of machinery was the Kroeschell ice machine. One of the attractive features was the uniformity of the signs attached to the exhibits. Only one exhibitor broke the rule with an enormous banner. On leaving, it occurred to me that, in the course of my perambulating career, I had attended many conventions, with their attendant entertainments, but must place this in the foreground as being perfect in detail, the whole working with rhythmical movement so well illustrated by the aforementioned Kroeschell engine.

J. Breitmeyer's Sons, of Detroit, Mich., will inaugurate the fall season by the opening of a third up-to-the-minute store on Jefferson avenue, with the renowned Breitmeyer service. Summer business has been remarkably brisk and with several large weddings and orders for decorations for fall openings on file, a continuation of this satisfactory condition is looked for. "We are affected with a plethora of money," observed Philip Breitmeyer. "I do not recollect a similar condition in my long experience. If we have the goods, we certainly can dispose of them.

I foresaw such conditions," continued Mr. Breitmeyer, "during the period of my mayoralty, especially regarding the expansion of the city's territory, and advocated methods to be applied, gained by my knowledge while living in the shadow of the statue of William Penn; but the advice was not heeded, as I had hoped, and now our city fathers have a problem to face which will tax their best efforts, but which no doubt will come out all right. We are paying close attention to the landscape features and intend to keep up our reputations as floriculturists."

I admired a block of cyclamens at the Friedley Co. range, at Cleveland. The plants now are spaced four across a 5-foot bench and almost touch each other. Frank Friedley remarked that the cyclamens grown in America have not the substance possessed by plants grown in Europe. At this time and period of growth they could be placed topsy-turvy, the leaves bearing the weight of the plant. It occurred to me that a lighter fertilizer may be used, and, possibly, paper pots. I noted a fine batch of Rose Aaron Ward and understand that the crop will be thrown out at Christmas to make way for lilies. Chrysanthemums are promising, but not for exhibition, although Mr. Friedley tells me the silver Corrigan cup will stimulate much competition. W. M.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

SOME florists kick because they are unable to discover where the shoe pinches.

ALMOST 9,000 pounds of paper were required to print this edition of The Review.

IN this trade the price-cutter is not looked upon as a leader; the idea is that if a man's goods are worth as much as the other fellow's he will ask as much for them. The asking of lower prices is regarded as a confession of inferiority.

PALMS are almost sure to be even better property next season, and the season after, than they are now. The quantity of seeds gathered in the Lord Howe islands and shipped to Europe has been less than usual, stocks of plants are light and production is much below normal, to say nothing of the difficulties of shipment from European growing centers. The production of palms in America never has anywhere near met the demand.

NO DOUBT Roman hyacinths will be the first resource as a substitute for valley after the present supply of pips is used up, but after the season for Romans freesias will have a big demand, a demand already reflected in the demand for bulbs, which are said to be scarce the world around, although there is no bulb that is grown in so many places. The trade in this country draws its principal supply from California, but large quantities come from Bermuda, from France and from Italy, besides many grown in greenhouses. The Italian freesia is said to bloom earlier than the French.

INDIANA-KENTUCKY MEETING.

The combined meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana and the Kentucky Society of Florists will be held at New Albany, Ind., and Louisville, Ky., October 17 and 18, instead of October 10 and 11, as previously announced.

TAKING ADVANTAGE.

Human nature is much alike the world over and there is much to be gained by taking advantage of what knowledge one possesses of it. For instance, when The Review publishes an item dealing with a certain subject, the mail of two or three days later always brings a letter to this effect:

I read with pleasure the kind little note in The Review about _____. Such things are always gratifying, as it is a great satisfaction to know that people think well of one's work and are friendly enough to tell the public about it.

Do you doubt that the "kind little notes" are more numerous for such expression of appreciation? If the florist's local newspaper doesn't seem to notice him often enough, it might pay to try next time something of the kind on its editor.

A "MISBRANDING" BILL.

There was introduced in Congress January 31, 1916, a bill that was reported and was on the calendar when Congress adjourned the other day, but which had not passed the House. It was entitled, "A bill to prohibit the manufacture, sale, or transportation in interstate commerce of misbranded articles, to regulate the traffic therein, and for other purposes." No doubt this bill will be heard from at the next session. Although not drawn with the idea of regulating the sale of plants or nursery stock, the indications are that the bill, should it become a law, probably could be applied to dealings in this trade. Not the most important of its provisions is that which makes a violation of the law punishable by fine of not to exceed $500, or imprisonment for a period not to exceed two years, or both; a still more important paragraph is that which provides that "where such articles, when so purchased by the dealer, are so branded or labeled as to indicate or purport that same are not misbranded within the meaning of this act, and the dealer in good faith relies upon such branding, or labeling, same shall be construed in law as a guaranty to him." In other words, the man who ships stock inaccurately labeled would be considered in law as guaranteeing its trueness and would be liable in a suit for damages in case of error.

For the purpose of this Act an article shall be deemed to be misbranded (among other things) "if it be * * * offered for sale under the name of another article." One could easily stretch that to cover the case of the sale of a high-priced variety that turned out to be something cheap and common.

When the bill comes up again a concerted attempt on the part of all trade societies should be made to have inserted a clause which will specifically exempt plants, seeds and bulbs, for it is impractical to impose a guaranty by law on products of nature which cannot be distinguished, one from the other, either by seller or purchaser, except at certain stages of growth.

"COMING SOON."

Without any question the best selling book ever printed for florists is "The Album of Designs," the fourth edition of which now is on the press of The Review. The first edition of this book of handsome pictures was published in 1912. Three thousand copies were printed and the publishers expected that it would be as many as could be sold in several years. But the first edition was sold out within the first few months. Since then two other large editions have been printed and sold. Orders now are accumulating for the fourth edition, which probably will be ready for mailing within the next fortnight.

In spite of the largely increased cost of this edition, caused by the great rise in the price of paper, the price remains 75 cents per copy postpaid, the idea being to keep the price within the means of every florist, especially so that old, soiled and unsightly copies will be discarded and replaced with fresh, new, neat books that will be a much better aid in taking the orders of discriminating customers.

The fourth edition does not differ greatly from the three preceding editions, though it is printed on new art paper that gives the cuts a much handsomer appearance. Many of the old illustrations are replaced with new and better ones.

The Album of Designs has proved a splendid help in taking orders where it is impossible for the florist to show his finished work; the Album shows it, in finely printed pictures.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

In spite of the increase in supply, the market for the last week has been short. Receipts of practically every standard item, with the exception of carnations, have been increasingly large, but so, too, has been the demand. There has been nothing exciting about it, but quietly and unostentatiously demand has managed to keep about two jumps ahead of supply. Shipping business is unusually good and local business is improving.

Beauties, which are in much larger supply than they were a week ago, are moving promptly. Quality is markedly better. Other roses in general are the only items that approach the long side of the market, and they, too, clear regularly. True enough, short stock is not in the demand one would expect, but it can be cleared, and that should leave no room for complaint. Of course, Russell is far short of requirements.

At last valley is approaching the long side and supply is balancing demand. This condition, however, is only transitory. Lilies are in big demand, but the supply is unusually small. The supply of cattleyas is slowly increasing. Gladioli and asters still come to the market and clear at good prices. The supply, though, is quite erratic. Chrysanthemums are gradually nearing the center of the stage. Pacific and Robinson have been added to the list of varieties offered.

Carnations are, perhaps, the scarcest item on the market. So short is the supply that only the earliest orders are satisfied. Indoor snapdragon is putting in an appearance. Violets, both double and single, are seen on the market, but in quite small quantities.

You can get Orchids and Valley here

OUR SUPPLY of Cattleyas has increased rapidly the last few days, and the crop will be heavy from now on. It is fine stock, and the price is such you can please your customers and still make a good profit for yourself.

We never are without Valley. You can get it of us any time by sending a wire, but why not arrange for regular shipments, so you, too, will have it on hand at all times?

FIRST-CLASS ROSES

You cannot find, anywhere in America, a larger or better supply of Roses—all varieties are included. The present crops are specially strong on Killarney Brilliant, Sunburst, White Killarney, Killarney, Milady and Ward, but we also are well supplied on Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and Russell.

MEDIUM BEAUTIES

You know that every time you sell a dozen medium Beauties of first-class quality, your customer sooner or later comes back for some more just like them—they give satisfaction. Well, we have at present a large cut of medium Beauties of excellent quality. Can also furnish long or short.

WHITE—MUMS—YELLOW

Smith's Advance now can be supplied in moderate quantity, as well as Golden Glow. It is first-class stock in both colors, grown by specialists.

EASTER LILIES

While we never are without good Giganteum Lilies, our supply this week is larger than usual. The stock is fine, cut tight for shipping.

Greens are faring much the same as they did last week. The supply, however, is more satisfactory.

September Weather.

Although cut flower crops almost all are late this season, roses, carnations, mums, sweet peas and violets all being below their usual development at this date, the growers who blame the unfavorable weather during July and August cannot also blame September, for September weather was almost average. The mean temperature was normal to within two-tenths of a degree. The sunshine was normal to within two per cent, but the rainfall was only seventy-four per cent of the normal. Growing conditions were much more favorable than earlier in the season.

Various Notes.

Much interest is being taken in the meeting at the Hotel La Salle, October 11 and 12, of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association. This is expected to bring a large number of retail florists to the city just at the time the fall business is opening. In addition to the affairs of the association, the visitors are expected to manifest much interest in the resources of this market.

The Maywood sweet pea growers are two or three weeks later than last season with their crops, according to Henry Wehrman. Last year he began picking in the last days of September, but this year it will be well along in October before there is any quantity of stock ready for market. Mr. Wehrman explains that, whereas last season there was extremely favorable weather just after planting time, this year the young plants encountered six weeks of extremely unfavorable weather during their early life. Maywood now supplies sweet peas nine months in the year, ten months in a favorable season.

The University Floral Co., 6302 University avenue, opened its new store last week. There now are five retail flower stores within two and one-half blocks from University avenue east on Sixty-third street and two more within a half mile west, not to mention the Bombenger place two blocks south.

Speaking of versatile men, W. J. Patton, of Glenview, is able to keep several irons in the fire without mishap to any one of them. Besides operating as an electrical, heating and plumbing contractor, he runs a nursery, grows perennials, bulbs and an endless variety of shrubs. To occupy his spare time, he keeps a bunch of prize-winning Indian Runner ducks.

Charles Grabig, who does a prosperous business at 1843 Irving Park boulevard, recently returned from a vacation visit of two months in Michigan.

James G. Michal recently purchased the retail shop at 1168 East Sixty-third street from his brother, John Michal. This store is one of several located within two blocks of each other, but Mr. Michal reports business excellent since he took over the store. John A.

Michal, the original owner of this store, will confine his energies to the wholesale and retail establishment at 7045 Stony Island avenue. Another brother, Joseph Michal, conducts a store at 6416 South Halsted street.

Captain A. I. Simmons, the Sixty-third street retailer, returned home September 28, after having spent four months in the army. He is in the department of the quartermaster general of the state militia and for most of the time the Illinois troops have been in service Captain Simmons has been stationed at Springfield, but he has made three little trips to the border. He is to be mustered out of the United States service October 5.

September 30 closed the business year of the E. C. Amling Co. It was the best yet, President Amling stating that the increase in sales over the preceding year exceeded $150,000.

A Commercial Red Carnation

Thenanthos

THENANTHOS is a new red commercial carnation evolved by John Then, of Chicago. Read its excellent characteristics:

COLOR—Brilliant scarlet of uniform shade.

SIZE—Average over 3½ inches in diameter.

FRAGRANCE—Strong and pleasing.

STEM—Strong, graceful and long.

KEEPING QUALITIES—An excellent keeper and shipper.

SALES—Demand always in excess of supply.

GROWTH—Habit of Scott, but stronger stem.

PROLIFIC BLOOMER—Averaging 30 flowers per plant.

PRODUCTION—Strong producer of cuttings; easy to root, average 90%.

HEALTH—Free from rust or disease.

SEASONABLE—Blooms heavily in December.

FOLIAGE—Grows a bushy, large plant.

PARENTAGE

THENANTHOS has an ancestry to be proud of. Its parentage is:

Enchantress X Red Seedling

This Red Seedling was a cross of Nelson X Lawson

Every one of these carnations is of such well known excellence that no comment is necessary. The characteristics of SCOTT are very marked in THENANTHOS.

PRICES AND DELIVERY

THENANTHOS cold-grown cuttings will be ready for delivery January 1, 1917. The demand will prove a heavy strain on the supply. All shipments made in the order received, so let us book your requirements early.

Entertaining convention visitors is always a costly matter, but with some it is more costly than with others. P. J. Foley and his son, Philip, Jr., both had their overcoats stolen while eating dinner in the Wayside Inn, Morton Grove, in company with the vegetable growers on the occasion of the inspection trip. It is believed some one of the hired chauffeurs is guilty. The detective bureau was notified, but so far the coats have not been found.

According to August Poehlmann, of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., the volume of business done by the supply department during the last six months is far in excess of that of any previous half year, while the business of the plant department is double that of a year ago.

been in business for himself and is a successful grower of bedding plants, tomato seedlings, stocks, snapdragons and mignonette. In addition to his trade activities he is a special state officer of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty.

Visitors.

Eugene S. Boerner, who has been taking the course in floriculture at the University of Illinois, is preparing to open a store in Urbana. He was in town October 1 and 2 purchasing the things he needs for the venture.

One of this week's visitors is Harry E. Taylor, who is employed in Breitmeyer's store, in Detroit.

Among those who attended the convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America was A. J. Dreisbach, of the Jefferson County Greenhouse Co., of Anchorage, Ky. Mr. Dreisbach was born in Kentucky and says if you can't make a good living where you are well known, you can't make it anywhere. His concern has 60,000 square feet of glass and grows chrysanthemums for the Louisville market.

Frank Danzer, of Breitmeyer's Sons, of Detroit, Mich., and his family were visitors last week.

L. G. Lindsay, of the Hiawatha Gardens Co., Minneapolis, Minn., passed through Chicago on his wedding trip last week.

E. W. Metz, of Metz & Bateman, Toledo, O., was a visitor in the market last week. He said he was preparing for the grand rush he can see coming.

A well known visitor on the market this week was Marion W. Uhl Schmidt, of Grimm & Gorly, East St. Louis, Mo. His was not a pleasure trip, but one of buying for the fall rush.

Among those who spent last week in Chicago was Walter Mott, representing Benj. Hammond, of Beacon, N. Y.

J. E. Jones and his son, R. E. Jones, of the Advance Co., Richmond, Ind., spent last week in Chicago, showing their ventilating apparatus at the vegetable growers' meeting.

John Evans, of Richmond, Ind., was in town for a couple of days last week, shaking hands with those who use his ventilating apparatus.

Harry A. Barnard, the popular representative of the English firm of Stuart Low Co., is in Chicago this week.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

The Market.

Fall business is picking up rapidly and florists report a busy week. With the return of vacationists to their homes, the opening of colleges, and the reoccurrence of social affairs, there has been a big demand for flowers of all kinds and varieties. There also was much funeral work, which helped to make a good business week. Good stock is scarce just now, though conditions in this respect are better now than they have been for a few weeks, this being especially true as to roses and lilies. Roses are coming in nicely, including some fine Russells and Ophelias, as well as splendid Beauties. Lilies, both Easter and the rubrum, do not meet the demand. Lily of the valley is short and prices are high. While there still are some gladioli in the market, they are the last and have small blooms. We now also see the last of the asters, though at the first of the week some fine stock was shown by some of the florists. The outdoor stock is about over and, until fall stock comes in more plentifully, flowers will be more or less hard to get. There are some fine greens in the market. Local growers are well stocked with fine chrysanthemums not quite ready to cut. Cyclamens, Boston ferns and blooming plants are coming along satisfactorily.

Various Notes.

Max Kaiser is finishing two new houses. He has remodeled his other houses and made improvements to his steam plant. Mr. Kaiser has some fine cyclamens and carries good stock of other plants.

The Chicago Avenue Floral Co. has disposed of a large number of Boston ferns. The company has a large stock of chrysanthemums and expects large cuttings daily.

The H. B. Whitted Co. was exceedingly busy last week with funeral work and wedding decorations.

The force at the Chicago Avenue Greenhouses has been rather busy, but finds it difficult to get stock of good quality to meet demands.

Charming window displays were seen at the Swanson flower store and at the Mazey Floral Co. store last week. The displays were mostly of chrysanthemums, autumn foliage, palms and ferns. Amundsen, the Florist, had a good display of baskets and aspidistras, and William F. Holmes had a good looking window of fancy pottery and Boston ferns.

Dahlias are at their best now. We have a large selection of varieties in white, pink, yellow and many autumn shades.

PHILADELPHIA.The Market.

October has come, bringing with it the raising of the quarantine, the opening of the schools and an increased amount of business in the cut flower stores.

The dahlias have had rather a funny time of it. A refreshing rain September 29 did them a lot of good; a frost on the morning of October 1 did them no good, but, on the other hand, it did them only little harm. The receipts of dahlias are probably as heavy now as any time during the season; but, on the other hand, they bear no comparison with receipts of last season. Good judges assert that this is a much better condition of things, as it makes the dahlia seem more desirable and brings better prices.

Valley is coming in more heavily in anticipation of weddings and coming-out teas. So far the anticipation is decidedly ahead of the demand, for there is as yet no especial activity. Generally speaking, really fine flowers are quite scarce, but it would not take a great many of them to satisfy the demand, which is largely for the medium and low-priced stock—and this stock must be free from blemish.

Chrysanthemums have arrived in sufficient quantities to be felt. Golden Glow, October Frost and a few Smith's Advance are the varieties so far. Several others are promised daily. Cosmos is quite an important flower just now, in a modest way.

Something Worth Knowing.

There was a dahlia and vegetable and outdoor flower show at the Henry F. Michell Co. store September 26 to 28. Instead of giving you a list of the classes and prize-winners, as is the custom nowadays, I am, through the courtesy of W. F. Eadon, going to tell you an important fact about the prize-winning dahlias at the show. They were grown by W. Robertson, gardener for John W. Pepper, of Jenkintown, Pa. The flowers were just as fine as you could wish to see—wonderfully fine, considering the severe drought. Mr. Robertson said that the prize-winning dahlias had never been watered by hand—they had just been cultivated with a hand cultivator, three or four times a week. Other dahlias that had been watered by hand, Mr. Robertson did not consider nearly so good. Among his winning varieties were Glory of Lyonnaise, Helvetia, W. W. Rawson, Henry F. Michell, orange-red, and Delice, the great commercial pink.

John Little, gardener for E. T. Stotesbury, Chestnut Hill, exhibited forty varieties of vegetables that excelled anything seen here in the past. The attendance was large.

A New Salvia.

This is the season of the year when true plant lovers rave over scarlet sage. For many years it was Salvia splendens. Then came Salvia Clara Bedman, sometimes styled Salvia Bonfire. Now we have a new claimant for popular favor in Salvia Fire Globe.

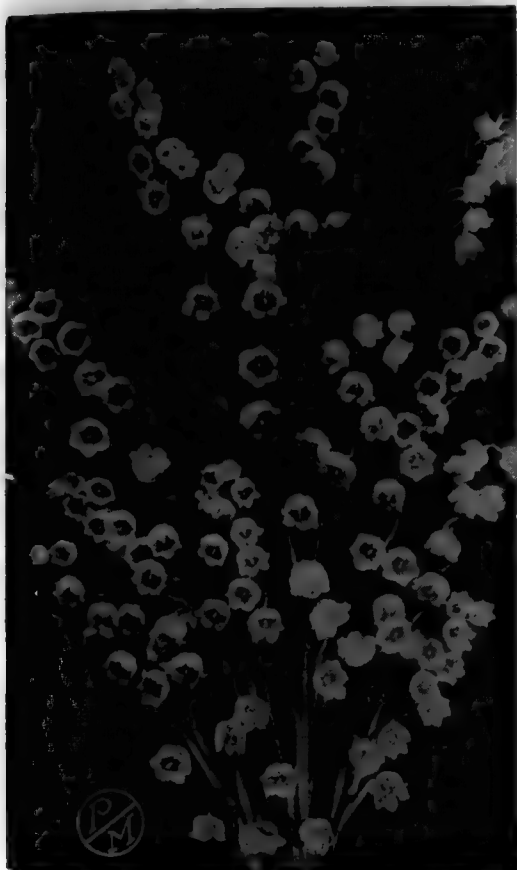

It so chanced over at Locust Farm the other day that J. D. Eisele, vice-president of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., spoke of the new dwarf salvia. He said, "There is a new salvia I want you to see;" that was all. When the salvia was reached it would have warranted a much longer trip. Despite the drought, it was a compact mass of green foliage, surmounted by a dazzlingly brilliant sea of scarlet spikes. It suggested landscape gardening possibilities. Fancy the great lawns at Newport, with their long, waving backgrounds of green, bordered by a double row of some one of our modern varieties of cannas, edged with a double row of this new dwarf salvia, while in front a vast expanse of velvety green turf stretches away to the cliffs, and the blue sea beyond. Over at River-view there was another bed of this dwarf salvia that heightened the impression made at Locust Farm and justified still further Mr. Eisele's pleasure in this promising plant acquisition.

Florists' Club Election.

A contest, when waged on friendly lines, is a benefit to a club. That was the feeling October 3, when about 150 club members turned out to vote for their officers and to hear William Saville's paper on "Some October Glories in Hardy Flowers."

The election resulted as follows:

President, A. Farenwald; vice-president, David E. Colflesh; treasurer, George Craig; secretary, David Rust.

Various Notes.

L. P. Rankin disappeared from the Riverside Greenhouses, Westerly, R. I., September 12 and has not been heard from since. Mr. Rankin is well known in this city. He was for many years foreman for William A. Leonard, at Lansdowne, Pa., where he was successful with his roses. Mr. Rankin leased the Riverside Greenhouses from the late W. W. Foster, about a year and a half ago. Two months ago he opened a store in Westerly. The Riverside Greenhouses now are for sale or rent.

H. Lodder and Mrs. Lodder, of Hamilton, O., were here recently.

Alexander B. Scott has a red rose, No. 315, that produces a fine crop of flowers in five weeks. Mr. Scott may decide to distribute this variety from his Sharon Hill place shortly.

The Pennsylvania Horticultural Society held its dahlia show in the Chestnut Hill library September 28 and 29. This is the third of the society's suburban shows this season. The absence of rain before distressed the flowers, and its presence during the show discouraged the visitors, but these were only slight drawbacks.

The Robert Craig Co. has commenced work on the great shed that is to connect its new range of houses with the present shed. All the houses are finished and filled save one.

Edgar W. Bayley, with S. J. Reuter & Son, Westerly, R. I., has been visiting friends in this city.

Martin Gannon, who has made such an excellent record as a cut flower salesman in this city, now is in charge at Alfred M. Campbell's wholesale commission house.

Benedict Gibbs, right-hand man to Eugene Bernheimer, has been down for two weeks with pleurisy. Mr. Gibbs had not been absent from his post for sixteen years; he is rapidly improving.

Mrs. A. H. Pike, formerly of the Bryn Mawr Flower Shop, will, it is understood, be with Charles Henry Fox.

One of our bright salesmen, after disposing of all his good gladioli, put the remainder—they were culls—in a jar, looked at them disapprovingly and remarked that he would have to label them sold.

The Market.

Business has varied during the last week. At times it was exceedingly quiet, and then a good, brisk, busy spell would liven things up considerably. The weather has been favorable and has given outdoor stock a good chance to develop. Outdoor stock, however, is rather well cleaned up and little of it goes to waste. Asters are considerably smaller, but are used to good advantage in funeral work. White ones are particularly scarce. Gladioli, which up to a week ago were quite small, are improving wonderfully and good long spikes reach us daily. The demand continues good. Cosmos is slowing up somewhat, but it sells well. The supply of dahlias is uncertain, but good blooms reach us occasionally and move easily. Buddleia is becoming more popular than ever and the demand is good. Late gaillardias are selling fairly well.

The supply of roses is good and appears to meet all demands. Some fine Ophelia, Russell, Ward, Maryland, Francis Scott Key and Killarney roses reach us daily. Sweetheart roses are used largely in corsages and bowls. Easter lilies are becoming more plentiful, but they do not move extra fast. The demand for valley was somewhat more active last week. Orchids are good, but they do not sell any too well.

The scarcity of fine flowers at this season is noticeable. Some good Golden Glow and Smith's Advance chrysanthemums arrive and sell well. Ferns and palms have sold satisfactorily of late, but the scarcity of blooming plants is noticed by all. A few fairly good primulas in 4-inch crocks arrived in the market and were quickly sold.

William Pitkin and F. J. Rippin were recent visitors to Milwaukee.

Chase Bros. report that the ornamental trade is fairly good and report extra good sales by their traveling men. The nursery business in general is not so good as usual and they say that business in other lines is so good that it is hard to procure representatives at the present time. They are looking forward to a heavy fall trade.

Donald Brooks, employed by H. E. Wilson, was knocked down by an automobile while alighting from a street car September 27. He was thrown to the ground and received a severe cut over the eye. He was taken to the hospital immediately and was discharged in a couple of days.

We hear on good authority that plans are being made by the Rochester exposition and flower show officials for the erection of a building to be used exclusively for the exhibition of flowers and fruits. The public showed much Greenhouse Building.

The Lord & Burnham local office reports that greenhouse building was fairly active in September. Many growers are rearranging their ranges, repairing old houses, adding new houses, rearranging the heating, the benches, etc. One fact that stands out prominently is the general trend toward better upkeep, which is shown from orders received for repainting, etc.

The Markets.

Lack of variety in stock was noticeable last week. Roses are sufficient for requirements; also lilies. A few early mums are coming in, but as yet they are in short supply. Carnations are so few that they are hardly worth mentioning. The season for asters and gladioli is past. Garden flowers have been somewhat injured by frost and an increased demand is the result.

Various Notes.

William Knees, of Moline, reports an unusually large quantity of funeral work during the week.

Joseph Tuckis, of Rock Island, says that trade has been remarkably good and that the shortage of flowers, outside of roses, is severely felt.

W. G.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

The weather remained cool last week and this vicinity had a surfeit of rain. There were light frosts, but they did only slight damage. The business in general shows a healthy condition, which augurs well for the coming season.

Roses show no decrease in supply, which now seems to be a little heavier than usual. The demand, however, is large, and the entire cut is moved daily, at good prices. Russell and Ophelia seem to have the heaviest demand and it is hard to fill all orders on this stock. Baby roses, for corsage work, such as Cecile Brunner, Baby Doll and Bon Silene, are in good supply and moving fairly well. This stock is adapted for corsage work in every way and it is surprising that the demand is not heavier.

The supply of carnations seems no greater than heretofore and orders cannot be filled with any degree of satisfaction. This stock is improving slowly and the prices are good, despite short stems and small flowers. Lilies still are in short supply and sell exceedingly well. Valley is scarce and the supply from day to day is really problematic. There still are a few asters in the market and, though the quality is poor, they are moving well. Calendulas still are coming in and are picked up readily each day.

Greens are selling well and the quality is fine. Asparagus is none too plentiful, but the shortage is not acute. There are practically no chrysanthemums on the market and from present indications there will be no increase in the supply for two or three weeks at least.

Various Notes.

Gentlemen:-

I am sending under other covering a photograph of my store which shows very clearly the refrigerator you built and installed about one year ago.

It is with great pleasure I report that this refrigerator is giving absolute satisfaction in every way and its fine appearance is a source of much pride and profit to myself as well as my employees. During the extreme hot weather of July and August I noticed no great difference in the amount of ice consumed and my stock kept in much better shape than ever before in my experience under similar conditions.

A Buchbinder refrigerator for me at all times and I shall be glad to recommend Buchbinder Bros. and their products to all prospective purchasers.

Very truly yours,

James Michal

Adam Zender, of Rogers Park, Chicago, was the guest of F. H. Holton last week, while in the city. Mr. Zender has gone to Waukesha, where he will remain for several weeks.

The trade last week was treated to the announcement of the engagement of Miss Irma Jens, formerly with the Holton & Hunkel Co., to Roy Currie, of the Currie Bros. Co. No date has been set for the ceremony, according to the bride-to-be. H. J. S.

From Another Correspondent.

The new roses coming into this market at present have wonderful substance and color. Russell is extra good and clean. Just now roses are the most important flowers, as carnations have not started to come in heavily and a frost a week ago curtailed outdoor stock. Asters and gladioli are seldom seen now and are poor.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. is cutting good quality Russell, Ophelia, Killarney, Ward, Hoosier Beauty and a new seedling that promises well.

Gust Rusch & Co. are handling some fine Shawyer and Beauty roses from the Cudahy greenhouses. This concern did not enjoy the usual long dahlia season this year, as the hot weather and early frost worked a great hardship on the crop.

The Gimbel Bros. flower department has been enlarged. This is the fourth annexation of space in two years. Business continues good and is high-class.

Ogden, Utah.—With the completion of the new addition, which is 36x100, the Weber Floral Co. will have 10,000 feet of glass in operation. The company also conducts an establishment at Provo.

Dayton, O.—In order to gratify their desire to break glass in the greenhouses of the Miami Floral Co., five boys recently resorted to the expedient of collecting a number of stones in a flat freight car and throwing them as the train passed the range. The boys were finally captured by J. W. Rodgers, manager of the company, who had them taken to the juvenile court. Fifty-six panes of glass had been broken, but the miscreants were given opportunities to redeem themselves by paying for the damage wrought.

MEETING AT CHICAGO

A meeting of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery will be held at Hotel La Salle, Chicago, Oct. 11 and 12, the opening session being called at 9 a. m. Matters of importance will be brought up and all members are especially urged to be present. Your time cannot be more profitably spent.

The Most Modern and Artistic Home of Floral Blossoms in New England

A VERITABLE CRYSTAL PALACE of flowers is the Penn salesroom, the daily scene of the greatest activity in the Boston retail flower trade, the tiled floor in soft buff colored stone and walls of Ivory Caen stone. In the rear is the crowning scenic feature of all—"The Fountain Court." In the center spurts a wonderful Italian fountain, the work of a Boston sculptor. The Court is surrounded by eight marble pillars and each top with an ornamental frieze, while above is a steel and leaded glass ceiling which lights the Court day and night, for at night there are electric fixtures sculptured and modeled by a famous Italian artist in the purest of alabaster marble above the ground glass to take the place of the sun.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

October is here and the chrysanthemum season is beginning. The stores are displaying early varieties, at good prices. Roses in all colors are arriving in fair quantity and quality, short stock being especially popular. Good Russells have been running Beauties a hard race.

Carnations of better quality are becoming more plentiful, the prices ranging from $2 to $3 per hundred. Lilies still are rather scarce. Gladioli have about disappeared. Newcomers to the market are snapdragons and a fall crop of Buddleia Asiatica. Green stock is plentiful, with the exception of smilax, which has advanced to 25 cents per string.

Various Notes.

The Indianapolis Flower & Plant Co. is planning to raise the roofs of its greenhouses, to accommodate the chrysanthemum plants.

Although a liberal reward has been offered, no information has been received regarding Pahud's stolen machine.

The Benson-Oilar Co. is redecorating its store in white and gold. The management has purchased a new delivery car, which has the same colors.

Reynolds' Flower Shop has been purchased by B. F. Hensley, of Knightstown, Ind. The store will be known as the Hensley Flower Shop and will be under the management of Clarence R. Greene, who for the last ten years has been manager for the A. Wiegand's Sons Co.

The Grande family is suffering from a streak of misfortune. Mrs. A. Grande, in stepping from a vehicle, injured her foot; John, Jr., had his machine badly damaged by a runaway horse, and the daughter has been in the hospital undergoing an operation for appendicitis.

Fred Hukreide and Lee Rickenbock took a two days' fishing trip to the Brandywine, where, it is said, they managed to get their lines wet.

A gentleman known to the trade as "Sprinkleproof" Sam breezed into town last week. Mr. Seligman now is the enthusiastic salesman and member of the American Bulb Co., so a new nickname is in order.

B. F. Hensley, of Knightstown, was in the city last week making preparations for his new store. He speaks of a large crop of roses and about 60,000

The Bertermann Bros. Co. has been busy this week with several wedding decorations.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Rieman were agreeably surprised by their relatives on their twentieth wedding anniversary.
There was a party of about fifty guests.

The State Florists' Association of Inattend. Further particulars will appear later.

Edward Smith has been appointed caretaker of all the trees and shrubbery of the Indianapolis public schools. At present he is occupied in spraying shade trees.

Hartje & Elder have about 20,000 chrysanthemums planted, a number of which are their own seedlings in pom-pons and singles.

E. A. Nelson is on a two weeks' fishing trip on the Kankakee river.

John Grande has completed a small greenhouse, which he has planted to carnations.

Business has been so good here for
A. Henderson & Co. that Guy Reburn, the representative, made this city a return visit.

A department store has been running a series of advertisements reading:
"Ferns, beautiful Boston ferns; large, hardy plants, with long, drooping fronds; an ideal home decorative plant, at 10 cents each." We feel that this is a menace to the trade in several ways.

The plants could not be all this for the price; they are shipped here and are small, bruised, inferior plants, sold out of the pots. The average purchaser, not knowing how to care for such a plant, will let it die within a week or ten days, and thus he gets the impression that ferns are hard to care for and die easily. The paper read before the Chicago Florists' Club by Aloysius Zech, and printed in The Review of September 14, sets forth a good argument against cheap sales by department stores.

The florists are expecting big business during the Indiana Centennial. The jubilee was opened by a large parade of the fraternal and patriotic organizations, many of which were represented by floral floats. Monday, October 9, there will be a large industrial and labor parade, in which the florists will

The Market.

October, with its cooler and more bracing air, finds the market in an excellent condition. Outdoor flowers are rapidly waning and this causes a much improved demand for greenhouse stock. Markets are not heavily supplied with flowers and are cleaning up satisfactorily. Roses are doing somewhat better than a week ago, especially the short-stemmed stock. Double white Killarney is bringing better prices than for a long time, while Ophelia is quite popular. Hoosier Beauty is coming to the fore fast and promises to give other reds a tussle for supremacy. Russell is more plentiful and sells quickly. American Beauties are not abundant and there seems to be a considerable proportion of "bull-headed" flowers among them at present. Carnations are doing a little better than a week ago, white varieties selling the best. Single violets have appeared from quite a number of growers. These are, of course, from outdoors and as yet are somewhat small. Lilies are good property and sell well. Lily of the valley drags. Local retailers appear to be securing supplies of this flower from other markets to some extent. Asters are becoming smaller and shorter-stemmed, but still bring good prices. Magenta, rose and lavender shades are hard to sell; white and pink are the selling colors. Gladioli are smaller and less abundant, but they clean up nicely. Dahlias are seen on a few stands. These have never proved popular market flowers in Boston, however. Chrysanthemum Golden Glow is overabundant, but white varieties, such as Smith's Advance and October Frost, sell well. Cosmos, schizanthus and calendulas are in better demand. There is a more adequate supply of cattleyas. Among miscellaneous flowers are good shipments of Buddleia magnifica, aconitums, delphiniums and Salvia azurea. Asparagus and adiantum each sell slowly.

Various Notes.

The Rawson Conservatories, Inc., of Arlington, Mass., which some time ago took over the range of the W. W. Rawson Co., formerly large growers of lettuce, cucumbers and other vegetables under glass, now devotes its entire plant to cut flowers. There are 100,000 carnations benched, principally Matchless, Mrs. Ward, Pink Delight, Alice, Benora, Beacon, Eureka, White Wonder, Fenn and White Enchantress. Of chrysanthemums there are 25,000, including the best commercial sorts. Three large houses are devoted to winter-flowering Spencer sweet peas and one to giant mignonettes. A specialty will be made here of iris for winter blooming. Some excellent celosias in bunches are being cut outdoors and sell readily. Harry Rose, formerly manager for F. P. Putnam, of North Tewksbury, is manager of the greenhouses. All flowers will be handled at the Boston Flower Exchange by A. G. Pembroke.

At Welch's daylight store, 280 Devonshire street, business continues good. Arrangements are being made to handle large shipments from many local growers. Only the best commercial varieties will be handled. Lilies and valley here are fine. Roses and carnations are each selling well, at improved prices. Fall prospects, David Welch says, are excellent.

The directors of the Boston Flower Exchange have declared a dividend of twenty per cent to its stockholders. The annual meeting comes October 28, at Young's hotel, and it is planned to have it eclipse all former occasions.

The Breck-Robinson Co., of Lexington, is sending in large shipments of such perennials as Salvia azurea, Aconitum autumnale, delphiniums, etc.; also fine Buddleia magnifica and thousands of gladioli.

Some of the earliest shippers of single violets are W. B. Goodenow, of Stoughton; William Spillsbury, of Woburn; A. S. Parker, of Stoneham, and Everett E. Cummings, of Woburn.

At Patrick Welch's the supply of Beauty roses is fair. Other roses are all stiffer in price and selling well. Golden Glow mums are overdone. Cosmos, calendulas and salpiglossis are being more eagerly bought as asters decline. Shipping trade is good.

Charles E. Evans, of Watertown; J. W. Simpson, of Woburn; the W. W. Edgar Co., of Waverley, and W. R. Nicholson, of Framingham, are shippers of many of the finest Golden Glow mums seen locally.

Neil E. Boyle, of Malden, one of our rose specialists, is growing Hoosier Beauty in lieu of Richmond and wishes he had planted it instead of Hadley. Ophelia is his leading seller and does remarkably well. Killarney, Double White Killarney and Sunburst are other varieties grown.

Recent callers included David Smith, of Stranraer, Scotland, representing Thomas Smith & Son; Harry A. Barnard, representing the Stuart Low Co., of Enfield, England; S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, and A. E. Earnshaw, of the Bon Arbor Chemical Co., Paterson, N. J.

The Welch Bros. Co. has finished vacating the premises at 226 Devonshire street and now is comfortably located below 260 Devonshire street. Its shippers are sending in fine flowers and business is reported as being good.

Wedding decorations largely fill one of the big show windows at Penn's this week and seem to be attractive to passers-by. Wedding business is reported as being brisk at present.

Among witnesses called to testify as to the character of Albert J. Roper, who is on trial for the alleged murder of his father, have been William Penn, H. Ciccola, M. J. Killian and Samuel Wax.

H. M. Robinson & Co. report business as active in all departments. They now are making large quantities of baskets for florists. Formerly all these were imported.

William T. Walke, of Salem, has his houses filled to overflowing with high-grade Christmas plants. Of these Cincinnati begonias, cyclamens and poinsettias are all in grand condition.

Local pot plant specialists who are in the habit of importing azaleas from Belgium annually have about given up hopes of receiving any this season. They say they will not miss them much, as they have proved quite unprofitable the last two seasons.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Fletcher, of Auburndale, left last week for Mr. Fletcher's Florida estate, where a large lath house is nearly completed. About one and one-half millions of Fletcher's improved freesias will be planted there

H. J. Borowski & Sons, of Roslindale, have a magnificent lot of Cincinnati begonias and cyclamens. There are no finer growers of these two popular Christmas plants in the vicinity of Boston. Their new King house is filled to repletion. Everything is well done here; no second-rate stock is to be found at all.

September proved to be a pleasant month, clear skies prevailing most of the time. We had no excessively warm days as in 1915, and no frost. Precipitation was much below normal, the last three weeks being the driest of the entire year. Light frosts were recorded October 2.

a splendid field of dahlias at Natick, which has attracted hundreds of visitors of late. Gladioli also are heavily grown here.

The Market.

The wholesale market was in a fairly good condition last week. The pleasant, cool weather had a good effect on the young stock. Improved business conditions and better prices were the reports by the retailers. All stock, with the exception of roses, was scarce.
Roses were plentiful and of improved quality, but even these were somewhat scarce at the end of the week. Some extra fine Russell, Ward, Ophelia and Killarney were seen daily. Beauties are few and bring top prices. Asters are over for this season, also gladioli.

Cosmos, usually plentiful at this time, has been on the short side this season.
The growers say the dry weather killed it. Dahlias, too, have been scarce, and the few that arrive bring good prices.

Carnations are in big demand, but as yet few are received. Those that come in are short-stemmed and have poor blooms. Mums are late in arriving this year. Only a few Golden Glow and Smith's Advance are seen, but another week should bring on a heavy crop from the local growers. Easter lilies sell well. Valley and orchids are scarce and in big demand. There is a good supply of asparagus, ferns and leucothoe sprays. Smilax and adiantum are scarce. Wild smilax is arriving from the south in good condition.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its regular meeting October 12, in the new building of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., 1410 Pine street.
Secretary Joseph Windler is sending out good notices and no doubt the capacity of the new wholesale house will be taxed. The County Growers' Association and the Retail Florists' Association have accepted invitations to be present at this meeting and to be guests of the new company.

Ben Ablels, a young man well known in the south end, reports that he will open a store in the neighborhood of Jefferson and Gravois avenues, sometime next month.

The executive committee of the spring flower show met September 26 at Bourdet's and ordered the printing of the preliminary list for the show.
This committee will meet at Bourdet's every Tuesday night from now until the opening of the show.

Mrs. A. Dietschy and her sister, of Alton, Ill., were callers here last week, buying supplies. Mrs. Dietschy reports splendid business last month and is looking forward to a busy fall and win-house range near the cemeteries in the north end, has completed several new houses. Mr. Nyflot expects to grow much cut stock this winter.

Secretary W. S. Wells, of the Missouri State Florists' Association, says the new association is making good progress and that he would like to hear from all florists who have not yet sent in their membership cards. A special meeting of the officers will be called soon after the first of the year.

Miss Bess McGowan now is in charge of the retail department of the Bourdet Floral Co. Andre Bourdet, formerly in charge of this department, now is foreman of the greenhouses.

The St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. received a carload of wrapping paper, both tissue and craft, last week. The scarcity of wrapping paper has been severely felt by the trade here.

Herman Johann, of Henry Johann & Sons, Collinsville, Ill., was here last week purchasing supplies for the retail store of which he has charge. Charles Johann has charge of the greenhouses.

Arthur F. Waldmann, formerly in the retail business, has leased the old Denny homestead in the country and will grow hardy perennials for cutting next spring. Mr. Waldmann reports that the stork paid him a visit September 17 and left a baby boy, which will be named Arthur F., Jr.

David Geddis celebrated the fourteenth anniversary of his marriage October 1 with a big dinner at his home. Mr. Geddis is the father of two fine boys, David, Jr., and John.

The festivities which take place this week should be of great benefit to the local florists, as decorations and floral work of all kinds will be demanded.

Horace C. Lloyd, of the Shackelford Nursery Co., says that the company had a fine season with outdoor hardy perennials and bulbous stock. They expect to double the planting for next spring's cutting.

Fred Foster has moved his store from Eighth and Olive streets to 703 Olive street, in the Central National Bank building. Mr. Foster says the location is a better one and that he will have more room in which to display plants and cut flowers.

Visitors last week were Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer

The Market.

The cold and rainy weather last week made it a poor week for business, though a good, hard frost took off most of the garden flowers. Carnations show a great improvement, especially in length of stems. The first violets of the season were picked last week and chrysanthemums, both cut and pot plants, are expected in another week.
Lilies still are exceedingly scarce.

Various Notes.

twenty at the convention from Grand

Seed Trade NewsAMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE Danish Export Review for August, 1916, was largely devoted to a write-up of the operations of the seed-growing firm of Hjalmar Hartman & Co., Copenhagen, for whom Loechner & Co., New York, are American agents.

THE exports of seeds to the United States from Erfurt, Germany, in the last two years in lots large enough to require the filing of a consular invoice, shrunk from $39,111 in 1914 to $27,837 in 1915 and are now almost completely shut off.

AXEL KNUDSEN, of Minneapolis, American representative of L. Daehnfeldt, Ltd., of Odense, Denmark, has received cable advices that the Danish Government has prohibited all export of mangel seed. The embargo will prevent all deliveries of mangels on 1916 contracts.

ARNOLD RINGIER, secretary of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago, has returned from a fortnight's vacation spent at Excelsior Springs, Mo., in company with Samuel Murray, of Kansas City. W. W. Barnard, president of the company, pays an occasional visit to the store, but, although much improved in health, is not yet strong enough to stand his former close application to business. Mr. Goodwin, however, after twenty-nine years in the pea and bean business, says he never felt better and will stay at his desk all winter. Mrs. Goodwin is in Europe.

DUTCH BULBS PILE UP.

Any doubts which may have existed about an adequate supply of Dutch bulbs coming to hand this year now have been completely dissipated. The arrivals, while somewhat delayed at first, have been so large of late that the total number of cases received at this early date—through New York—is almost equal to the grand total of last year's shipments, at the end of November. Following are the consignees of the bulbs that arrived by steamer Amsteldyk, September 23, as given in the manifest on file at the New York customhouse:

BIG ONION MARSH BURNING.

The world's largest onion marsh, in Harding county, Ohio, is on fire and the crop is expected to be practically a total loss. September 26 a portion of the Ohio National Guard was called out to fight the fire, which then covered 1,500 acres and threatened the town of McGuffey, which is in the center of the onion district. It is predicted by growers that the onion bed

Sluis & Groot, Enkhuizen, Holland, supply this summary of conditions there:

"Last winter has not done much harm to the crops, so that but little planting material was damaged by frost.
In some districts, however, considerable plantations got lost by the terrible inundation in January, 1916, owing to the rupture of the sea-dikes. Moreover, extensive fields of biennials got lost by the extraordinary circumstances in the agriculture at present. Owing to the mobilization there was a scarcity of hands everywhere, so that many fields had to be ploughed up on account of overgrowing weeds. A less favorable development of the plants during the spring, besides many weeds, have been the principal argument to ploughing up by the growers, to which the high prices for different victuals and further articles for economical and technical purposes also contributed their part. Growers do not wish to cultivate our articles at the present moment, the more so as people are trying to spare work as much as possible. The weather during

THE NUISANCE

(The story will soon take a turn.)

A coward of the meanest type! I decided to take a trip to Dayton, Ohio, for the express purpose of giving the Nuisance a chance to prove some of his stories. I was certainly ready to back up my part of the affair. The deputy went into the office and led the manager out to me. I knew it was not safe for me to go to that office without police protection, for he would say I was "running after him" or something about as foolish.

Of all the nervous, white and frightened human beings, he was the worst looking I ever saw. He knew he was cornered. He pleaded and begged for mercy like a child. He was no longer the big bluffer, full of hot-air talk. He was a flat tire, and a mighty flat one at that. It was really funny in a way, and the court officers had a good laugh at his expense. He shivered and shook like a wet dog on a cold day. He began telling the deputy what a fine girl I was; he knew me, he said, since I was a child (and that's a lie; he did not). He said I was an honest, self-made, successful girl, as pure as a lily, as honest as the sun. Oh, shucks! Such a lot of josh! I said, "Stop that line of talk." He rattled off like an auctioneer. "All I want from you, Mr. R., is a clean, truthful statement of my acquaintance and nothing but the truth." Just imagine me being in love with a man with a wife and seven children!

the spring was also very unfavorable, so that many fields were ploughed up again at this period. With the exception of the last two weeks of August we have had exceptionally little sunshine; on the contrary, however, cool, in many cases even cold weather, so that the results will not fail to appear later on: 'No sunshine, no seeds.' Moreover, the development of nearly all varieties was retarded, so that it would probably be sufficient to say that there will come a considerable deficiency of all varieties.

"Regarding flower seeds, the conditions to plant the annual flowers this year were very favorable at the beginning of the spring. The plants, however, did not develop in consequence of the persistent cold weather in June and July. If the present mild weather will continue during the after-summer and autumn a middling crop can be expected. Several sorts, however, were totally lost, while the area sown was not large. As regards Nasturtium Tom Thumb, a small area was sown, while the development of the plants in many districts still remains much to be desired, so that it is generally to be feared that we shall have a small crop. The situation of tall nasturtium is looking more favorable, so that a middling crop may be expected.

"The late cold weather during the flowering season very much obstructed the setting to seed as regards myosotis, several biennials and perennials, so that the produce will be very small."

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Ritzville, Wash.—Kittel & Langlois are adding 360 feet of double glass hot-beds, to be devoted to lettuce.

Pasadena, Cal.—At a recent meeting of the Pasadena Horticultural Society J. Whitehead, of Los Angeles, read a paper on baby roses.

THE GOMPHRENA.

It was the writer's pleasure recently to visit the cut flower growing districts along the peninsula, namely San Mateo, Redwood City and Mountain View, all of which lie some ten to twenty miles south of San Francisco, Cal.

These districts are exceptionally well adapted to growing various cut flowers in the open field without the aid of a greenhouse, the hot spell of the dry summer being modified by the landward breeze which arises from the ocean all the time.

I was much impressed with the magnificent showing of chrysanthemums; some of them are ready to be cut and shipped. Asters are slowing up and will soon come to an end.

The novelty of the season is found in gomphrena. It has been winning the favor of the local florists ever since its introduction to this country from Japan. Gomphrena is not very attractive, however; it is a lovely, simple flower. Its stem is about seven to twelve inches long and the flower is oval in shape, with stiff petals. One of the varieties is in orange color, and the others are in pink, lavender and white. All these varieties and chrysanthemums are handled mostly by Enomoto & Co., Inc., and the United Flower Supply Co., of San Francisco. It keeps its original freshness more than ten days and if the case may require, it can be made a straw flower simply by drying it. When this flower becomes known, I feel sure it will win the favor of every florist throughout the country. M. Matsumoto.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

There is a distinct improvement noticeable in business, and stock cleaned up well almost every day last week. The biggest demand still is for funeral work and last week the Jewish New Year made some difference. Some splendid indoor-grown carnations are coming in now and the field stock also is first-rate. Roses are improving in quality, but the demand is greater than the supply of good stock. Chrysanthemums now are at their best, Crocus, Queen and Chrysolora being especially good. Dahlias are keeping up finely and there still are some gladioli on the market. Asters are about over. Greens of all kinds are plentiful, though the recent fashion show made serious inroads upon the stock.

Various Notes.

Fred Dostal, of the J. W. Wolters staff, has returned from a week's deer hunting trip. He says business is picking up at the store.

We are much pleased with the results of our plant advertisements in The Review; orders have come in freely and from a wide range of territory.

Germain Plant & Seed Co.
Los Angeles, California. By M. L. Germain, Pres.

Frank Lichtenberg has returned from a mountain trip in the country north of here, around Big Pine. The travelers reached an altitude of about 14,000 feet. Carl Brose is getting his name up as a Nimrod, having sent down a fine buck for the boys at the store. All report an elegant time during their vacations.

Fred Hills reports a splendid business in ferns, his sales so far for September being more than double those of a year ago; yet his houses still are full. It is surprising how he manages to always have such fine stock on hand. His new fern is a beauty, especially suitable for growing into large specimens. He has another, a sport from Amerpohlii, which he is trying to fix, and if he succeeds it will be a winner.

At the Broadway store of Murata & Co. I noticed the first Bonnaffon mums of the season—fine, long-stemmed flowers, with blooms that look as though they could be used for baseball practice without injury. Other varieties equally well done were noticed at this up-to-date house.

Albert Knopf, of the Redondo Floral Co., put in three days last week at the Methodist conference at Santa Ana and reports the best kind of a time, visiting ranches in that flourishing section, where he also goes in for ranching on his own account. A. F. Borden, of this company, was noted as being in a restless mood, and it has now transpired that Mrs. B. has gone to Chicago to meet her mother and sisters, whom she has not seen for nine years. A slight falling off in business was noted this week, but this is only temporary.

At Wolfskills' & Morris Goldenson's Albert Goldenson has been installed as manager by his brother, Morris. Although quite a young man, Albert has a pleasing personality, tact and resourcefulness that no doubt will carry him over many of the rough places. All will join in wishing him well in his new capacity.

The large store of the Broadway Florist always is an attractive place and a busy one. Fine stock in large quantities is handled and the public evidently has found this out.

Hats off again to H. Reeve Darling! He has, in an incredibly short space of time, fixed over his new store, and it is a credit to all concerned. He now has a frontage of thirty feet on Sixth street, right in the heart of the busiest shopping district. The inside of the store is decorated in perfect taste, exquisitely arranged and lighted according to Darling's own ideas. He has a basement for workroom and stock, 16x50 feet. He at least deserves success and it is apparently coming his way.

During the week large numbers of fine pampas plumes were noticed at the L. A. Floral Co. store, on Los Angeles street, and F. Sperry says they are shipping quite a number. Business keeps up remarkably well here.

J. Armstrong, of the Armstrong Nurseries, Ontario, was in town this week and says that inquiries for fruit trees so far are especially good this season. The season for ornamentals is not yet with us, but when it does come Mr. Armstrong, as usual, will be well prepared.

H. R. Richards.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

The market generally has shown a decided improvement during the last week, although there still is much to be desired. Weather conditions are favorable for outdoor flowers, and while that continues the florist must practice that godly quality of patience. Funeral work, however, has helped to reduce the supply of stock.

Bright weather during the last three or four weeks has brought into crop a fine lot of roses, Killarney, Ophelia and Russell leading in quality. Carnations are improving rapidly, now that cooler weather prevails, and, though there is not a full crop on, there are always more than enough blooms to fill all demands. Outdoor-grown sweet peas are a rather undependable item, being rather susceptible to the weather changes of this season. The supply is about equal to demand.

Various Notes.

H. L. Olsson is a busy man these days with his dahlias. Practically his whole force is busy, Sundays especially, in handling the visitors who come to see his displays and place orders for spring delivery. About two and one-half acres are planted to this flower, his collection including some new English importations as well as most of the older varieties. A visit to his place is a wonderful treat. In the greenhouses the 6 and 7-inch cyclamens command admiration.

Imus & Klaffenbach, who last spring bought the Inland Greenhouses, on Washington street, are bringing in some good Russell roses. They declare that they wish their whole place was planted to Russells, and that they no doubt will go in stronger for it next year.

The engagement of Miss Irene Ruddock to Emmett L. Kearney has been announced, the wedding to take place sometime in October, at Salt Lake City, Utah. Miss Ruddock has for several years been in the employ of the Spokane Florist Co. She is the third florist of Spokane to be married this fall.

The twentieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Younkin was celebrated in due form Saturday night, September 23, when the store employees of the Hoyt Bros. Co., of which Mr. Younkin is manager, surprised Mr. and Mrs. Younkin in their home.

Philip Scott was a recent visitor, coming from Portland and stopping off at Spokane on his way to Denver and Buffalo, N. Y. Mr. Scott is a brother of the members of the William Scott Co., of Buffalo, and a son of the late William Scott, of that city. Mr. Scott at one time was in business in Denver, removing from there to San Francisco. He now expects to join his brothers in conducting the business founded by their father. L. B. H.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Notwithstanding the unusually hot weather during the last week of September, which made it hard for the florists to keep their stocks in good condition, the downtown stores did a record business September 27, in view of the Jewish holiday. There was a rush all day and it necessitated extra care in packing and delivering to have the orders presentable when they reached their destinations. A big demand was reported for plants.

There is little change in offerings since the last report. Some of the Japanese growers still are bringing in a fine cut of zinnias. A limited quantity of cosmos, gypsophilas, stocks and other summer stock continues to arrive, but the supply is decreasing rapidly and the quality is inferior. Asters are no longer a feature; gladioli are about gone and the supply of dahlias is beginning to decrease.

Chrysanthemums are about at their height. Every morning the Japanese market is flooded with them, but the demand is heavy and few find their way to the trash pile at the end of the day. All kinds show excellent quality. The Chinese growers are bringing in many small mums, which do well. A few chrysanthemum plants made their appearance at the downtown stores last week, attracting considerable attention. There now are enough good roses to fill all requirements, which is a source of great satisfaction to all dealers. September Morn roses show good quality and find a ready demand, and the new rose, Baby Doll, does well here. Carnations are improving a little, but the average quality is hardly up to expectations as yet. A few lilies are offered and they make high prices. Gardenias, orchids and valley are scarce, the latter selling at 60 cents per dozen sprays. In William Rennie, formerly of San Rafael, Cal., now is in charge of the I. W. Hellman, Jr., estate, at San Leandro.

D. MacBorie and D. McLaren, of MacBorie & McLaren, left a few days ago on a short business trip to the southern part of the state, expecting to visit Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, San Diego and other southern cities.

E. Serveau, the Fillmore street florist, has secured a small place at Redwood City, with the intention of growing considerable outdoor stock.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is cutting a few gardenias, but for the most part is letting the plants make growth for later in the season.

H. Cheeseman, of Ralph M. Ward & Co., New York, called on the trade last week.

M. H. Ebel, prominent florist of Sacramento, Cal., has been spending a few days in San Francisco. He says the outlook is fine in that city, the surrounding country on which it depends largely being in a prosperous condition.

The next meeting will be held the last Tuesday in October, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Lohrman, at San Rafael.

Bert Dennis, formerly of the Brookdale Nursery, Los Gatos, and last year with Doolittle's dahlia exhibit at the P. P. I. E., has accepted a position at the store of the E. W. McLellan Co.

Experiments are being made in the civic center by Superintendent John McLaren of Golden Gate park, to see if he can make plants and shrubs take the place of the decaying plaster fences and other structures of a temporary character there.

G. W. Sanders, prominent nurseryman and banker of Davis, Cal., passed away at a San Francisco hospital a few days ago, after an illness since the first of the year.

Besides giving his personal attention to the business of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., Angelo J. Rossi takes a prominent part in civic affairs. He has been appointed chief of staff for the illuminated parade to take place during the "Path of Gold" celebration next week.

The "Path of Gold" committee has decided, instead of decorating Market street with dahlias, to build a big pyramid of them in the Civic Auditorium, using about 40,000 blooms, to be contributed by the California Dahlia Growers' Association.

C. C. Morse & Co., of this city, who maintain a large seed farm in the San Juan valley, San Benito county, have purchased 200 acres more land in the county, for seed cultivation. Negotiations between the parties have been satisfactorily concluded and the actual transfer of the title will take place in a few days. The price is $250 per acre, or $50,000 for the 200-acre tract.

J. A. Carbone, orchid grower of Berkeley, recently called upon the city council for protection, alleging that gases emanating from an old warehouse on the waterfront had partially destroyed several of his plants. Investigation revealed the fact that the fumes, which threatened to destroy Mr. Carbone's orchids, came from a factory just in-

The Market.

Indian summer weather prevailed last week. Growers of bedding stock never had a better opportunity to take outdoor cuttings. Business was good along all lines at the stores. A heavy cut of roses, Ophelia leading, was nearly all taken by local customers. All the roses were of prime quality except White Killarney, which showed the effect of the warm weather.

Orchids and valley were scarce and the supply of valley pips for future use is far below normal, with the outlook for a still shorter supply. Golden Glow, Early Frost and Smith's Advance mums were cut in quantities sufficient to meet all demands. Violets have appeared and are quite a feature in the market. There were no large social events that took flowers in quantity, but a steady run of moderate calls kept the market well cleaned up.

Now is the best time to start to sow the

to follow the Chrysanthemum crop. No other flower will pay better. You will have fine flowers from January until late in spring. All progressive florists have abandoned growing the late Spencer and are making now four times as much money with this early-flowering type, not only for inside but for outside planting. If sown in October and November they will bloom two to three months earlier; if sown outdoors they will bloom three to four weeks earlier than the late Spencers, producing more and better flowers and keeping the buds during the most rainy weather. We have a limited quantity of the following varieties to offer at reduced prices:

PINK AND WHITE ORCHID, WHITE ORCHID, MRS. A. A. SKACH, ORCHID BEAUTY, rose; LAVENDER ORCHID, lavender pink; MISS FL. FABING, Yarrowa color. This lot will contain about two to five per cent of the late hybrids of the same color and for late planting they are of more value than the re-selected varieties of the same names.

Price: 1 oz., 50c; 4 ozs., $1.50; 1 lb., $5.00; 10 lbs., $45.00

FLORISTS' WINTER ORCHID-FLOWERING MIXTURE.

This mixture consists of all the leading commercial varieties of pink, rose, white and lavender, with a very few red and blue.

Price, $4.00 per pound.

GOLD MEDAL MIXTURE.

This is made up of about fifty distinct varieties, evenly balanced to each color. It contains almost every variety in commerce, including this year's and next year's novelties, all of the Winter Orchid type only. Last year we sold over 90,000 packets to private gardeners and retail florists. In semi-tropical countries they have been blooming all winter. In cooler climate, if sown early in spring they bloom in May, three to four weeks earlier. Florists who keep a seed counter should have this steadily on hand, ready for their customers. Sold only in one size packets. Each packet contains sufficient seed to plant 30 to 40 feet of row.

Prices: 1 pkt., 25c; 100 pkts., $12.00; 1000 pkts., $100.00.

Order now all you need for your winter or outdoor planting, as this limited quantity may not last long.

For all other Sweet Pea Seed see our list, which is free for the asking.

John Gower, of Newberg, came down last week to enter his son on a course at the dental college.

William Martin, of the Martin & Forbes Co., is greatly pleased with the success he has had in growing Ophelia roses. He says it is the best all-round rose he has ever grown. He would like to see some cloudy weather, as he says this is the really critical period in rose growing. If too rank a growth is produced now, there is likely to be trouble when the dull weather sets in. This season he has shifted seven 200-foot benches from carnations to roses and now practically his entire range is set to roses. Mr. Martin personally attends to the operation of the company's range of houses at Haynes, and has produced most satisfactory results.

Julius Broetje is bringing in some splendid hardy asters of a bluish tint. He could not recall the name of the variety.

Several florists have expressed the opinion that it would be better for the trade if no extra early mums were grown. Beginning with midsummer and lasting till after midwinter makes

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd O. Stark, Louisiana, Me.; Secretary and General Manager, Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

THE D. P. Smith farm of 170 acres, near Newark, N. Y., has been purchased by the Jackson & Perkins Co. This is one of the finest farms in the vicinity and has been owned in the Smith family since pioneer days. It is located about three miles southwest of Newark, in the vicinity of another of the farms of the Jackson & Perkins Co. It will be used for the propagation of roses and nursery stock.

AFTER having been partly formed three years ago, the organization of the Texas Botanical Garden and Arboretum Association was perfected at the sixteenth annual meeting of the Texas Nurserymen's Association, held at Waco, Tex., September 26 and 27. The officers are: President, J. S. Kerr, of Sherman; vice-president, F. T. Ramsey, of Austin; secretary-treasurer, L. J. Tackett, of Fort Worth. Associate vice-presidents will be secured from all kindred organizations in the state.

TEXAS NURSERYMEN MEET.

The Officers Elected.

The Texas Nurserymen's Association at its sixteenth annual meeting, held at Waco, Tex., September 26 and 27, elected the following officers for the ensuing year:

President—William B. Munson, of Dennison, reelected.

Vice-president—J. M. Thompson, of Waco.

Secretary-treasurer—John S. Kerr, of Sherman, reelected.

With a fair attendance from all parts of the state, President Munson called the meeting to order at 10 a. m., in the rooms of the Young Men's Business League. The address of welcome was made by J. D. Willis, representing the league, Vice-president Ramsey responding. The president then delivered his annual address, which was followed by the report of Secretary-treasurer Kerr. The receipts for the year were $144 and expenditures $97.15.

Talks by J. S. Kerr, J. M. Ramsey, of Austin; J. George Bowyer, of San Benito; Edward L. Ayers, of Houston; L. J. Tackett, of Fort Worth, and the appointment of a committee from the association to cooperate with the American Association of Nurserymen and to represent the Texas organization at the next meeting of the state legislature, for the purpose of securing uniform nursery laws for the state, were the principal features of the afternoon session.

Mr. Ramsey chose "Proper Selling Price" as his subject and Mr. Bowyer spoke briefly on "Best Methods We Have Found of Handling Palms, Citrus Trees and Tropical Fruits Successfully in the Rio Grande Valley." Mr. Ayers, who is associated with the state department of agriculture, read an interesting paper entitled "Uniform Nursery Laws of Texas." Mr. Tackett's subject was "How to Arouse Greater Interest in Beautifying Home Grounds." He suggested various methods by which greater interest could be aroused in this question, maintaining that the people of the southwest do not give nearly as much attention to home beautification as the people of the north and east.

Mr. Kerr Wants Publicity.

Probably the most interesting paper of all the sessions was "The Value of Publicity," by Secretary-treasurer Kerr, which was read in the evening of the first day. Mr. Kerr recommended that a publicity committee prepare articles on nursery stock, its care and culture, and have these articles published in the newspapers. Mr. Kerr suggested that a little publicity also would go a long way toward making a bigger and more useful organization out of the association.

That the nurserymen should stop growing large quantities of nursery stock, and thereby raise the prices on trees, shrubbery, etc., was stated by J. R. Mayhew, of Waxahachie, in his talk on "The Uplift and Betterment of Our Profession."

On the second day of the meeting the principal speakers were J. H. Burkett, of Clyde; W. F. McDaniel, of San Augustine; R. S. Simpson, of Monticello, Fla., and J. M. Ramsey. C. C. Mayhew, of Sherman, spoke on "Coöperation with the American Association of Nurserymen."

That nursery firms paying inspection fees of $15 to the state should pay $5 dues to the association; firms paying a fee of $7.50 to the state should pay $3 dues and that firms paying $5 fees to the state should pay dues of $2 to the association for membership, was set forth in the report of the resolutions committee. It was urged that the offi-

WHAT THE A. A. N. IS DOING.

Work of the Committees.

Several weeks ago, John Watson, of Newark, N. Y., president of the American Association, gave out an unusually long list of committees appointed for 1916-17. September 23 he made the following comment on the work laid out for these committees:

SPIRAEAS ★

THE CONARD & JONES CO.
West Grove, Pa.

"Arbitration—While its title explains its work, yet it is interesting to note that it has become the policy of this association to have its members arbitrate their differences in the friendly manner provided by a committee of their trade associates and without enlisting the assistance of courts or lawyers. The plan is working very satisfactorily and the members are taking advantage of the services of the committee and accepting their findings in a cordial and encouraging spirit.

"Nomenclature—This committee, co-operating with other committees from allied trades and interests, is endeavoring to systematize, standardize and correct the confusion existing in our nomenclature and they have been given a liberal appropriation with which to carry on the work.

"Hail Insurance—This committee is investigating the matter of possibly organizing a mutual hail insurance company among the nurserymen, in order to give them opportunity to protect themselves in the same way that the florists are protected.

"Publicity—We have a committee now investigating the question of whether or not we can profitably undertake a campaign of general coöperative publicity in an effort to increase the sale of nursery products. The question has been under discussion for some time; we are now working upon a plan of campaign and a plan of financing it. It is obvious that in a national organization covering the whole country, with a membership whose interests are varied, whose stocks are peculiar to local soil and climatic conditions, the problem of reconciling these differences is a serious one; yet we all believe that anything that will increase the sale of nursery stock must help all who grow or handle nursery products, even though the returns may be indirect and not immediate. It is evident that the production of stock is outstripping the demand and equally evident that we are disposing of the surplus by means of a ruinous price-competition instead of working upon a larger plan of making a wider market for our goods by means of judicious publicity. The White Pine Association, the Red Gum Association, the cement people, the raisin growers, the orange interests—all these people are advertising the merits and the uses of these various things and securing returns apart from the returns obtained through the direct advertising of the individuals. Even the florists in the various cities are conducting coöperative advertising campaigns for special dates, and, I understand, with satisfactory results. I do not know how it can be worked out for the nursery trade; we shall wait for the report of our committee. Personally, I think it the really biggest and best movement ever undertaken by the nursery trade and that it will go through sometime I have not the slightest doubt.

"Distribution—This committee is studying the broad problem of distribution apart from publicity through newspaper and magazine advertising. As a trade, we devote practically our whole time and effort to production and little or none to distribution. Other trades have been quicker to realize that distribution is what demands the best thought and initiative and energy that an organization commands.

"Landscape—This is a special committee appointed at their request to discuss with the landscape architects the various matters we have in common interest.

"The other committees look after the matters indicated by their titles," which are: Arrangements, Exhibits, Program, Report of Proceedings, Tariff, Press, Revision of Telegraphic Code, Transportation and Legislation.

"We have changed our membership requirements and now membership is elective; that is the first step towards making membership so desirable and so valuable and of such meaning that for a nurseryman to be able to print on his letter-head 'Member of the American Association of Nurserymen,' will carry full assurance of unquestioned trade standing.

"We have revised our plan of raising revenue, adjusting dues according to the measure of benefits derived by the different members, who pay according to the size of their business, but leaving it entirely to them to contribute as they see fit. We are in position to know that dues are paid, except in rare instances, in accordance with the letter and the spirit of the requirements.

"We have a general counsel who looks after our legal and especially our legislative interests and who, in addition, furnishes every member with legal advice without fee.

"We have established a collection bureau to handle collections for our members, against those in the trade or out of it, the fees going to the association, or to the members.

"We have established a credit bureau to furnish members with prompt and reliable information as to those whose methods have been such in dealing with other members as not to entitle them to credit favors.

"We have added to our attorney's duties those of secretary also, and with a large and competent staff at his disposal, we find our routine business can be conducted promptly, properly and efficiently.

"These are ambitious undertakings, we realize. So far they have had the most generous support of our entire membership; in fact, these things have been brought about by the membership taking hold and undertaking the management of their affairs. I have not the slightest doubt that we have advanced much in the last year and a half, nor any doubt that we shall make great advances in the next few years as an active, effective and efficient expression of the best aims and purposes of the nursery trade."

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

We are having delightful fall weather, with cool nights and warm days. Roses and carnations are improving fast. Mums are making a surprising growth, but they still will be about one week later than last year's. Asters are gone and dahlias are not of good quality. There has been no killing frost as yet, but we probably will see one in a week or two.

Various Notes.

Otto Kuebler, of Newburg, has a nice lot of ferns for the wholesale trade.

Theodore Kuebler is bringing a good variety of plants and flowers into the market. He has been picking large quantities of mushrooms, which came up in the mum beds.

C. E. Gyseman is preparing to engage in the nursery business here.

C. A. Morgan, of the Morgan Floral Co., of Henderson, Ky., was a recent visitor. He says business is improving. The greater part of his range is planted to carnations, for both wholesale and retail. No roses are being grown this year. Mr. Morgan became a member of the Evansville Florists' Club at the last meeting. E. L. F.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

Warm, bright weather continues, and it is exactly three months since the ground has been more than sprinkled. Slack coal has advanced in price $1.10 per ton, so that those who have not made contracts will have a still heavier burden to carry during the coming winter. Car shortage is already making itself felt. The makers of cardboard boxes speak of a 100 per cent price increase on their line of goods January 1, but the country that can doubly subscribe its $100,000,000 war loan need not worry over small details like that. A large shipment of valley pips is on the way over from Denmark. This is about the best trade news at the present time, beyond the fact that the demand for all kinds of stock is unusually brisk.

The death of Albert Neal, of Toronto, is recorded in the obituary column of this issue. W. G. P.

Le Roy, Ill.—L. Fry is reported seriously ill at his home here.

The Market.

With colder weather business has improved. Outdoor flowers have about gone and the call for indoor-grown flowers has consequently increased. Carnations are of better quality and a little higher in price. There are a few early mums in the market. Roses are of good quality and cheap. Violets are making their appearance.

Various Notes.

Peter Murray is cutting early mums. Mr. Murray had several large wedding decorations recently.

The Peckham Floral Co. has about 15,000 mums, all of which are in fine condition and give promise of excellent flowers.

William E. Mosher is marketing some excellent ferns of the Boston and Whitmani types. Mr. Mosher also has some fine mums.

William P. Pierce reports business satisfactory at his store on Elm street.

Some first-class early mums will be cut by Edward M. Pierce this week. He now is cutting some excellent Cecile Brunner roses, for which he finds a ready market.

Fred C. Covill reports business better than his expectations for his first week in the "Up-To-Date Flower Shop."

Julius, proprietor of the Flower Mart, has had a busy week.

R. H. Woodhouse has finished housing his carnations. He has about completed the extensive repairing he has been busy with for the last several weeks.

LANCASTER, PA.

October 1 the first white frost occurred and the more tender plants were frozen. Many of the dahlias escaped and good blooms still will be procurable. Plantings of cosmos give promise of a good supply of blooms.

At the Lancaster county fair last week dahlias formed the principal part of the flower exhibit. Adam Felsing's display was of the highest order and it is doubtful if better dahlias ever were shown. In the amateur classes David F. Rose took most of the prizes. Leonard & Weber, dahlia specialists of Trenton, N. J., made a fine exhibit.

The September meeting of the Lancaster County Florists' Club was called to order by the vice-president, Elmer J. Weaver, September 28. Maurice J. Brinton, of Christiana, read an interesting and optimistic paper regarding the immediate future of our business and quoted Elbert Hubbard as to belief in one's self and one's work. To the growers he emphasized the word quality, which is the key word to successful business today. H. K. Rohrer reported for the flower show committee. Everything points to a successful show, which is to be held November 9 to 11. Exhibits are welcome from any firm having something new or meritorious to show. At the next meeting, October 19, J. O. Thilow, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia, will give his illustrated lecture entitled "Flowers from Snow to Snow." The club invites everyone to attend. An automobile committee was appointed, consisting of L. S. Landis, A. K. Rohrer and Frank L. Kohr, to arrange for machines to convey the members of the club on the visiting trip on the afternoon of the next meeting day. The establishments in and near the city will be inspected.

J. M. Zook, in charge of the greenhouses at Pennsylvania State College, formerly of Lancaster county, called on the trade last week. H. K. R.

A Year's Copies of The Review Makes a Stack a Foot High.

Every florist knows through his own purchases what has happened in the paper market the last few months—prices have doubled all along the line.

And it takes more than four tons of paper each week to print The Review!

Many readers have been so kind as to write that The Review is worth considerably more to them than its subscription price. Well, the tremendous rise in the price of paper makes it no longer expedient to sell The Review at $1.00 a year.

The subscription price, therefore, will be advanced January 1, 1917, to $1.50 a year.

Until December 31, 1916, any member of the Trade may subscribe for one or more years at the old rate of $1.00 a year.

Readers whose present subscriptions do not expire until after January 1, 1917, may renew for as many years as they like at $1.00 per year, providing that such renewals are sent during 1916.

Send $1.00 and your subscription will be extended one year from the present date of expiration, whenever that may be.

Send $2.00 and the subscription will be extended two years from the present date of expiration.

Send $3.00 for three years, $5.00 for five years.

No renewals for a full year will be accepted at less than $1.50 unless they are mailed by December 31, 1916.

The Canadian subscription price will be $2.50 a year beginning January 1, 1917. Canadian renewals mailed on or before December 31, 1916, will be accepted at $2.00 a year.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

PIPING A HOUSE 30x50.

I am building an addition to my present place, 30x50 feet. The side walls are five feet in height—three feet of cement and two feet of glass. The house runs east and west. The west end is glass and the east end is connected to the office. The house is an even-span one and is thirteen and one-half feet to the ridge. The boiler is under the office and set two feet below the level of the greenhouse floor. How many 3-inch flows shall I need and where shall I place them? I have a supply of 2 and 1½-inch pipe on hand. Which is the better size for returns and how many returns shall I need to maintain a temperature of 50 degrees in zero weather? I want to place the returns on the side walls and in the center walk. We are located in the center of a city and are well surrounded by buildings. The form of heat to be used is hot water. Where shall I place my tank to get the best results, and about how much grade do I need in the piping?
W. F. B.—Mass.

In order to heat a greenhouse 30x50 feet, which has two feet of glass in the side walls, to 50 degrees in zero weather, we would use three 2½-inch flow pipes, placing one upon each plate and the other three feet below the ridge. There is no special objection to using 3-inch pipe for the flows upon the plates, but we prefer a smaller size for the middle flow.

For the returns in a house not more than fifty feet in length, it makes little difference whether 2-inch or 1½-inch pipe is used. For the house in question, twelve 2-inch or fifteen 1½-inch pipes would be required. These should be arranged in three coils of four or five pipes each.

The highest part of the flow pipes should be near the heater, and they should be given a gradual fall. One inch in ten or fifteen feet will be ample. The expansion tank should be connected with the highest point of the flow pipes.

KROESCHELL TUBELESS BOILER

For Steam, Hot Water, Vapor or Vacuum Heating Systems

Kroeschell Bros. Co.,
Chicago, Illinois.

Kirkwood, Mo., May 22, 1915.

Gentlemen:—

Now that the firing season is over, and after a long cold winter, the coldest night being 6° below zero, I want to say I am well pleased with the No. 46 Water Tube Steam Boiler and the No. 14 Hot Water Boiler. They are doing all you claim for them and more. The No. 14 Hot Water Boiler is heating that large house to 80° with the greatest ease in zero weather without the help of the steam boiler.

This steam boiler I think is a wonder, a quick steamer, and holds the steam, the easiest boiler in the world to clean and to keep clean. The double steam trap system is working fine, keeping all the steam lines well drained.

The boiler tube hot water system is the winner, the rapid circulation and even temperature obtained from this system is wonderful.

After being told repeatedly by other growers that roses could not be grown with hot water heat, we are getting the best kind of results, not only from the heating systems and boilers, but also from the roses.

Yours very truly,

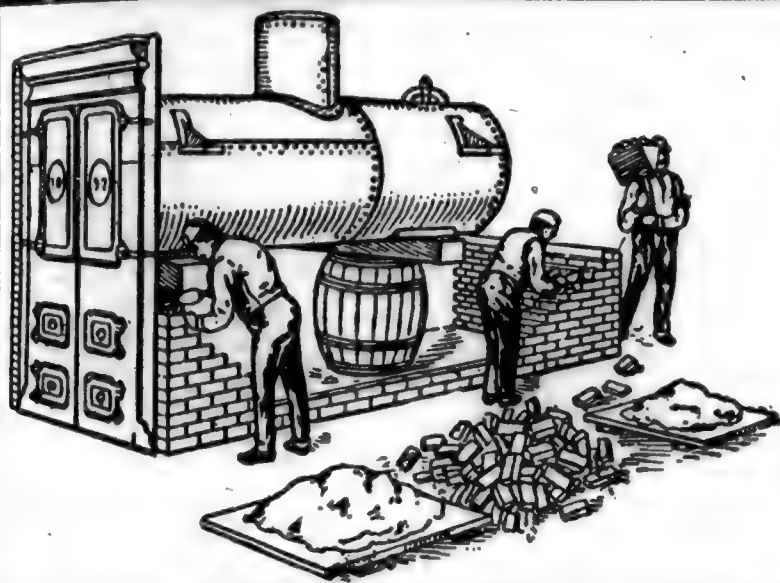

(Signed) W. J. PILCHER.

GREENHOUSES IN L-SHAPE.

How would you pipe my two houses, 10x28 and 10x40, so as to heat them to a temperature of 70 degrees with hot water, when the outside temperature is 20 degrees below zero? How large a boiler will be needed? The shorter house runs east and west. It is built on the surface of the ground and contains solid beds, with the path between them sunk below the ground level. The sides are boarded and are two feet high. The height from the bottom of the alley or path to the ridge is six and one-half feet. At the east end of this house is the boiler pit, 10x10, which is excavated to a depth of three feet.

Extending south from the boiler shed is the longer house, 10x40. Thus the two houses are at right angles, or in the form of an L. The floor of the longer house is three feet below the level of the ground. The side walls are of concrete to the top of the ground, with twenty-one inches of boards above the concrete. The height from floor to ridge is six feet five inches. There is respectively, 10x40 and 10x28, to 70 degrees when the outside temperature is 20 degrees below zero, we would place a 2½-inch flow pipe upon each plate, and would use upon each side either three 2-inch or four 1½-inch returns. With the top of the boiler above the level of the ground, it will be necessary to keep the return pipes as high as possible upon the wall; hence we would not give the flows or returns a fall greater than one inch in twenty feet. We would use the downhill system for the flow pipes and connect the expansion tank to the highest part of the system. A boiler with a rating for 500 square feet will be needed.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Cooler weather last week improved the market here to an appreciable extent and the downtown florists showed renewed activity. Light frosts have practically ruined the outdoor flowers and the greenhouse men now are coming into their own. Funeral work is unusually heavy, but well distributed.

Asters and gladioli, which have proved good sellers this summer, are gone, but they are being replaced by the new-crop roses, carnations, snapdragons and chrysanthemums, which are putting in an appearance in good quantity and quality.

Every Metropolitan greenhouse is planned with an eye to results—successful crops.

Our cares do not cease with the mere mechanical part of the work. And, while we no doubt owe a great deal of our success to the high grade character of our labors, still we base our claims for your consideration upon our ability to erect the right kind of a greenhouse, in the right manner, at the right price.

stalled, supposedly to manufacture textile dyes from coal tar. Mr. Carbone was assured of payment for the damage done his plants.

Preparations are complete for the dahlia show to be given under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society and the California State Floral Society. Prominent space has been secured in the Exposition Auditorium and all indications point to an elaborate display. There are still plenty of blooms in prime condition for exhibition purposes and Manager H. Plath says space reservations are above expectations.

Miss Rothschild, who, in partnership with Miss Bertha Cohn, operates the Bellevue Florist Shop, on Geary street, reports business picking up nicely. She considers the outlook for the remainder of the year encouraging.

A few chrysanthemum plants made their appearance at the downtown stores last week, coming principally from E. James' place at Oakland.

H. R. Darling, of Los Angeles, Cal., was a recent visitor to the local trade.

Pelicanó, Rossi & Co. now are shipping quantities of chrysanthemums east; also a good many violets.

N. F. Baldocchi, of Podesta & Baldocchi, has returned from a two weeks' hunting and fishing trip in Trinity, Siskiyou and Shasta counties, which he enjoyed thoroughly. His party made the trip by automobile as far as they could, and then went farther into the mountains with pack mules, camping a few nights at Fox Creek lake, which is between 6,000 and 7,000 feet above sea level. Mr. Baldocchi says they had venison three times a day and plenty of trout.

A new front is being installed in T. Mosco's store on Geary street. It will give him much better display facilities. The interior of the store is being renovated.

MacRorie & McLaren have the contract for furnishing palms and flowers for the formal opening of the new St. Francis theater, on Post street, next week. F. H. Forrest, of this company's retail establishment, says small plants were in big demand for the Jewish holiday. S. H. G.

Galesburg, Ill.—I. L. Pillsbury has completed the erection of a large greenhouse.

Big Rapids, Mich.—Walter Foster was married to Miss Grace Messinger, of Colfax, September 13. Mr. and Mrs. Foster attach no special meaning to the figure 13.

The Market.

There have been several mild frosts, but no serious damage has been done to outdoor stock. Roses are increasing in variety, but not in quantity. Beauties were in heavy demand last week, on account of the opening of several large department stores. Some extra fine Sunburst, Mrs. Russell and Ophelia are arriving. The Killarneys are improving and both short and long-stemmed ones clear rapidly. Valley and orchids are in limited supply. Carnations have not increased in quantity.

Dahlias, like other outdoor flowers this season, will be scarce and not any too good in quality. They sell quickly. Asters are practically over with for this season. The few that reach the market are not salable and are only good for funeral work. Gladioli are also getting poor. Most of the standard varieties are done for. A few of the odd-colored ones are to be had, but these do not sell well until there is nothing else to be had. Easter lilies have been in heavy demand, with the supply just the contrary. Snapdragons usually realize immediate sales. The supply of chrysanthemums is not increasing heavily. Evidently many of the growers do not consider early mums good sellers. However, they certainly sell this season with no trouble. Last week there was a heavy demand for yellow mums. Green goods continue about the same.

Various Notes.

The golden wedding of General and Mrs. Auman was responsible for the sale of a huge number of Golden Glow chrysanthemums and American Beauties.

Among recent visitors were William B. Leipzig, of A. Leipzig, Inc., New York; S. Menke, with the Decorative Plant Co., New York; H. B. Ruppert, representing Philip L. Carbone, Boston; Edward Frankfort, with the Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, and Mr. Ford, who is with A. Herrmann, New York.

W. J. Palmer & Son had several large weddings last week, including house and church decorations. This firm supplied a large number of Beauty roses and decorative baskets for the opening of the Kleinhans Co. and the Citizens' Commercial Bank.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Betts, of Meadville, Pa., stopped off at Buffalo and Niagara Falls on their honeymoon.

A. J. Reichert has had many orders for the opening of large stores.

J. B. Wiese was at New York last week.

The Market.

Business the first part of last week was below normal. A heavy frost killed all outdoor flowers. The demand for roses and carnations, the only greenhouse flowers now on the market, has increased rapidly, so that it is almost impossible to fill all orders. Everybody is impatiently awaiting the mums. A few Easter lilies are coming in and they are quickly taken. Valley is not to be had. Greens are plentiful. Potted mums are beginning to arrive and are quickly taken. Ferns are scarce; the demand far exceeds the supply. It is hard to find a reason why some of our growers do not grow more ferns. The writer has been in Denver for about eight years and there never has been a day in this time that the supply of potted ferns has been equal to the demand. The same thing is true of Ficus elastica, crotons, pandanus, Asplenium Nidus-avis and even Asparagus plumosus and Sprengerii.

Various Notes.

The Park Floral Co. has had a heavy shipping business in field-grown carnation plants.

The demand for prepared oak foliage has been remarkable this fall, and most of the stores report a good call for autumn leaves. W. D. Black sold his entire supply, about 500 pounds, in a week.

The force at the range of Emil Glauber, of Montclair, has been busy reglazing the houses. Mr. Glauber is sending in some extra fine Hoosier Beauties, with 30-inch stems.

Some splendid long-stemmed Beauties are being cut at the Elitch Gardens.

Thomas Chapman, one of the pioneer florists of Denver, has opened a store at 600 Santa Fe drive, under the name of Chapman Floral Co.

Miss Bessie Hortop, who formerly was engaged in the flower business, now is selling Ford automobiles.

The Mauff Floral Co. has been shipping in a number of 3 and 4-inch cyclamens.

The Market.

It still is a little early for much better business, but last week saw a little gain over that of the week previous. Late vacationists now are returning and business in general is becoming brisk, which of course will react favorably on the florists' trade. At the present time there would be nothing that would give business such an impetus as a couple of sharp frosts that would kill garden flowers. Many people would patronize the florists if they had no flowers of their own.

There were a few more chrysanthemums on the market, but they still are far from plentiful. Asters and gladioli continue scarce and high. Gladioli are beginning to become less plentiful and soon will be off the market. Dahlias are somewhat more plentiful and the flowers are of better quality. Early carnations are coming into the market, but these are rather short-stemmed. A number of florists are using wild fall daisies to fill in for window and store displays. Growers are hurrying to get spiraeas and other plants grown in the field into the greenhouses before the frosts arrive.

Various Notes.

Charles Luthy had a good business during the early part of September, but there was a little lull last week.

August C. Begerow has had considerable funeral work during the last two weeks. H. B. McKnight, grower for Mr. Begerow, has returned from Asbury Park, where he spent his vacation. He now is busy getting stevias and other plants in from the field.

An account of the death of David Phillips, of Toronto, Canada, brother of William J. Phillips, will be found in this week's obituary column.

William Weismantel had a good trade in baskets and combination fern dishes during the Jewish holidays last week. Small baskets filled with asparagus, ferns, asters and feverfew were quite attractive. Short-stemmed asters that otherwise would be hard to dispose of were used. R. B. M.

COLUMBUS, O.

Instruction in floriculture has been offered for the first time this collegiate year at the Ohio State University, College of Agriculture. Opportunities are afforded for study of the main florists' crops, diseases and insect enemies. Garden flowers, greenhouse management and construction, as well as flower store work and landscaping, will also receive attention.

The subjects are being offered in the 4-year college course, which has already begun, and in the 3-year course, which begins October 17.

Instruction is in charge of Prof. A. C. Hottes. Prof. Hottes came to Ohio from Cornell University, New York, where he was an instructor in charge of the work in garden flowers and of the winter courses.

Make the Garden More Beautiful

They have a special style of construction which, while very strong, does away with heavy shadow-easting supports. This makes every King especially sunny and productive and enables you to give your garden an earlier start.

Then this special construction, noted for its graceful sweeping lines, can be adapted to suit any style architecture or landscape plan. The King is in itself the beauty spot of the garden.

Write for Bulletin No. 47—Send us a picture of your home. Tell us your own ideas, and let our experts prepare a sketch and plan showing just how a King can add grace to your garden. No obligation on your part of course.

If we should build a greenhouse for ourselves we would put the best material we could into it, but it would not be any better than we put into the houses that we build for our customers.

Yes, it would be an easy matter to skimp here and substitute there, and gloss over in another place to save a little and meet the lowest bidder. We do not do business that way. Why should we cheat ourselves in order to cheat a customer?

The Market.

Business was booming last week on account of the numerous weddings, dances and a goodly quantity of funeral work. Stock is improving in all lines. Orchids are coming into the market in many varieties, including Cattleya labiata, C. Bowringiana, and vandas. Roses are of fine quality and the best varieties are Hoosier Beauty, Richmond, Ophelia, Sunburst, Ward, Russell and Shawyer.

Some good antirrhinums are in the market. Carnations are larger, with longer stems, and prices are increasing. Chrysanthemums October Frost, Golden Glow and Smith's Advance are here. There are a few greenhouse-grown gladioli to be had. A heavy frost the latter part of the week put an end to the remaining outdoor flowers. Asters, zinnias, cosmos and dahlias are over for this year.

Two heavy rain storms were welcomed last week as a grateful relief after a drought of several weeks.

The local florists report September business this year as being highly satisfactory. The outdoor stock was exceptionally scarce on account of the dry weather, and the demand for greenhouse stock for weddings, parties and funerals was large. The outlook for business this winter is bright.

Various Notes.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey are having a good crop of orchids this month. The other day this firm made a shipment of 135 labiata and Bowringiana cattleyas and vandas to St. Louis, Mo. This firm is cutting some fine Hoosier Beauty, Shawyer and Ophelia roses.

Miss Rhoda Doswell, of the Doswell Floral Co., is visiting in St. Louis, Mo., bent on business and pleasure.

Miss Catherine Vesey, daughter of Judge W. J. Vesey, has been chosen to act as "Miss Fort Wayne" in the Indianapolis pageant celebrating the Indiana centennial.

The Elaborate decoration and handsome bouquets of the Kennedy-Riker wedding last week were the work of the Flick Floral Co. R. F.

SOMETHING for the WINTER SEASON

The days are getting shorter. Darkness comes early. Before your work is finished you are compelled to stop because you can no longer see.

The ordinary barn lantern gives out about thirty candle power; not much good to work by.

The American Regent Lantern gives out 400 candle power, burns gasoline or kerosene and costs about 1/4c per hour to run. Can be used very roughly without damage and will not blow out in a wind.

It is a great thing to hang in your boiler or packing room, for it lights up the whole place, enabling all to do some extra work, and it spreads cheerfulness all around.

Capacity 1 quart (burns 15 hours), price $6.50.

CINCINNATI.The Market.

Business is good. The supply of stock is fair and it cleans up readily. A substantial part of the demand for stock last week was occasioned by fall openings.

Roses are in better supply than they were, but more good ones could be used were they available. Carnations, while in fair supply, are running short of actual needs. Easter lilies are fairly plentiful, and they sell well. Excellent valley may be had. A few gladioli and asters still are coming into the market; both sell readily. Other items are orchids, sweet peas, snapdragons and dahlias.

Various Notes.

The next meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society will be held Monday, October 9.

The E. G. Hill Floral Co. had the fall opening decorations of the Pogue stores.

John C. Rutenschroer has been sending some excellent dahlias to C. E. Critchell.

Edward Cavanaugh, of C. E. Critchell's force, now is on his vacation.

Among recent visitors were William Gardiner, of Newcastle, Ind.; H. E. Brandt, of Wertheimer Bros., New York; H. C. Calish, of A. Leipzig, Inc., New York. C. H. H.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

The Heiss Co. is taking an active interest in the fall openings held in Dayton. Many large orders for palms and decorative stock were received and the whole force is kept on the job.

Fred H. Lemon & Co., of Richmond, Ind., had a delightful window display of plants and ferns in a watermill scene.

William Gerlach, Jr., of Piqua, O., is making plans for additional houses. The increased business warrants additional space.

J. M. Peterson & Sons, of Covington, O., are finishing a new boiler house. This completes the work started this summer.

Eggert N. Zetlitz, of Lima, O., always has attractive window displays. A new fountain recently was installed in one of the windows and attracted a great deal of attention.

C. P. Bethards, of Springfield, O., has decided to give up his retail store and conduct all business at the greenhouse. Harriet Van Meter, of Springfield, reports a favorable summer season, despite the scarcity of stock, which was keenly felt.

The Don Floral Co., of Mansfield, has a heavy run of funeral work. With that and the greenhouse work, there is plenty for everybody to do.

There is another new and attractive flower store in Mansfield. Stuhldreher Bros., large wholesale growers, have opened a retail store. Mr. Gardiner, of Superior, Wis., will be the manager and he intends to give his patrons many new and novel schemes in flower arrangement. The store is located on West Fourth street. The woodwork is walnut, with plate mirrors on both sides. A window is so constructed that any color scheme may be used when desired. Attractive hangings are used, while there is a reproduction of some French tapestry on one of the walls. It is the intention to have a modern and handsome store, which itself will be an inducement to enter. The floral fraternity welcomes this new store, wishing it the utmost success.

William E. Pennick, of Wooster, O., reports favorable business conditions, with an attractive outlook for the winter.

Kester Bros., of Massillon, O., are about finishing repairs on their houses. Space is needed for the constant arrival of plants.

H. F. Heitger, of Massillon, recently redecorated his store. Some changes were made which greatly enhance its beauty. W. T. U.

WESTERLY, R. I.

Louis J. Reuter was a business visitor to New York and Philadelphia last week.

There still is no clue as to the whereabouts of Lewis P. Rankin, who disappeared while on a business trip to New York three weeks ago. In the meanwhile his affairs are becoming financially entangled. One attachment has been levied against the property by Pasquale Deplacito and wife, the former having been employed as fireman by Mr. Rankin and the latter having loaned $300 to the missing man. The refrigerator has been claimed by a Mystic man and the decorative trees in front of the store by another creditor. The liabilities are said to be largely in excess of all assets.

Thomas Murray, an employee of Conrad Schultz, was seriously injured when kicked by a horse September 25. W. H. M.

SEDALIA, MO.

The sixteenth annual Missouri state fair, held last week, was one of the most successful in the existence of this institution. The Horticulture building, in which the floral exhibits were shown, was beautifully decorated by the Archias Floral Co., which also was awarded the contract for decorating and stocking the new aquarium and fountain.

There were many amateur displays in floriculture, but only two florists showed, the Archias Floral Co. and State Fair Floral Co., the premiums being divided between them. Other features of this department were a miniature Japanese garden shown by the Archias Floral Co. and a bridal outfit by the State Fair Floral Co., which made this the most attractive building on the grounds.

Other florists of the state have shown little interest in the Missouri state fair and are missing an excellent opportunity to advertise and boost the business, as many thousands of visitors from all over the state visit the fair each year.

Cambridge, O.—Says Fred W. Arnold, in speaking of conditions at Cambridge: "Chrysanthemums, roses and carnations are doing finely; sweet peas look well and violet stock is the best we ever had. We are optimistic and will try to balance the increased cost of paper, boxes, chiffons and other supplies by increased production of higher grade stock."

CHARLES WILLIS WARD'S WESTERN WORK

Charles Willis Ward has less need for money than most of us, but salability is Ward's measure of value; consequently the unique establishment he is creating on the shore of the Pacific is planned on modern commercial lines and its ability to make its own way will be the demonstration of its success.

HERE is reason to question if any man who imported forcing stock last season did better than change his old dollar for a new one. Perhaps it is this that has created such marked interest in the western work of Charles Willis Ward, frequently the subject of fragmentary notes in The Review, although it may be that the man's virile character would create comment concerning a less unusual undertaking.

But Ward is starting to supply from the Pacific coast the stock for which we heretofore have relied on Belgium, Holland and Japan.

What a Sick Man Does.

Here is a man starting a large, exacting and, to a certain extent, untried business at the age most workers are ready to retire. Next year Mr. Ward will be 60, for he was born in a Michigan lumber camp in 1857. As a matter of fact he has retired twice, but he is a difficult person to keep on the shelf. The first time he stopped work his play developed the Cottage Gardens at Queens, N. Y., and made the place widely famous for the carnation seedlings he raised there.

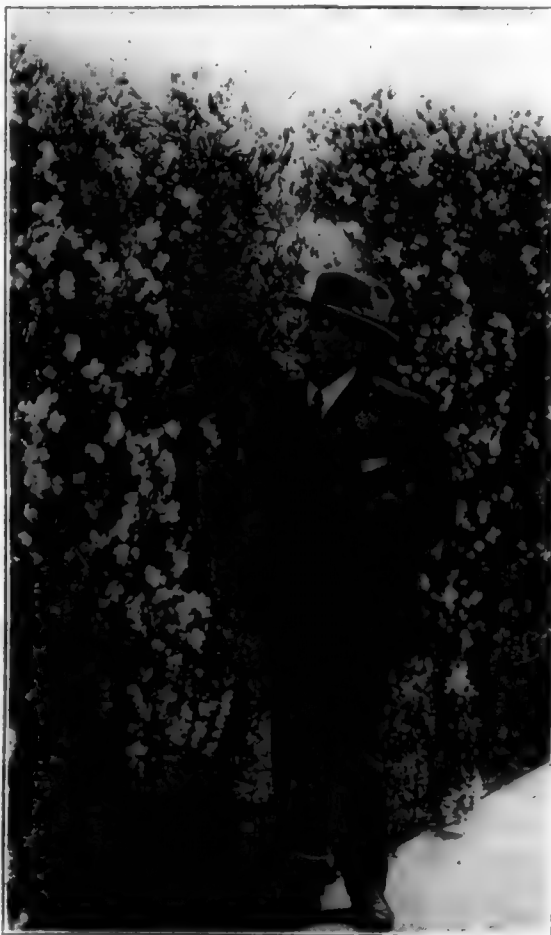

The second time the doctors put him on the invalid list he was summoned to Eureka, Cal., to defend his rights to timber lands that were a part of his father's estate.

The New Start.

Today he is as well as at any time in his life and the Cottage Gardens Nurseries have evolved from his renewed energy. Adopting the characteristic Californian view, he says the wonderful climate cured him, but a scientist might aver he became so engrossed in winning his lawsuit and in developing the wonderful institution his prophetic vision saw that he forgot his aches and pains. At any rate, he never was busier.

Resolved to make Eureka his home and possessed of a never satiated desire to see things grow, Mr. Ward's first step was a series of experiments in plant culture to determine the possibilities of Humboldt county soil and climate.

Charles Willis Ward.

The Cottage Gardens Nurseries.

From this came a corporation of which Mr. Ward is president and general manager, S. E. Bergstrom secretary-treasurer and K. Nyeland superintendent, owner of a 220-acre farm at Carlotta, a splendidly equipped nursery at Eden, just outside of Eureka, and a range of retail greenhouses on C street. All the stump land at the nursery has been blasted and is being rapidly cleared; tens of thousands of ornamental plants in scores of varieties have been shipped in and planted for growing on into specimens. Great quantities of Dutch, French and Japanese bulbs have been secured for propagation and Humboldt county has gained a live business which bids fair to become a great establishment, shipping a large output to all parts of the American continent.

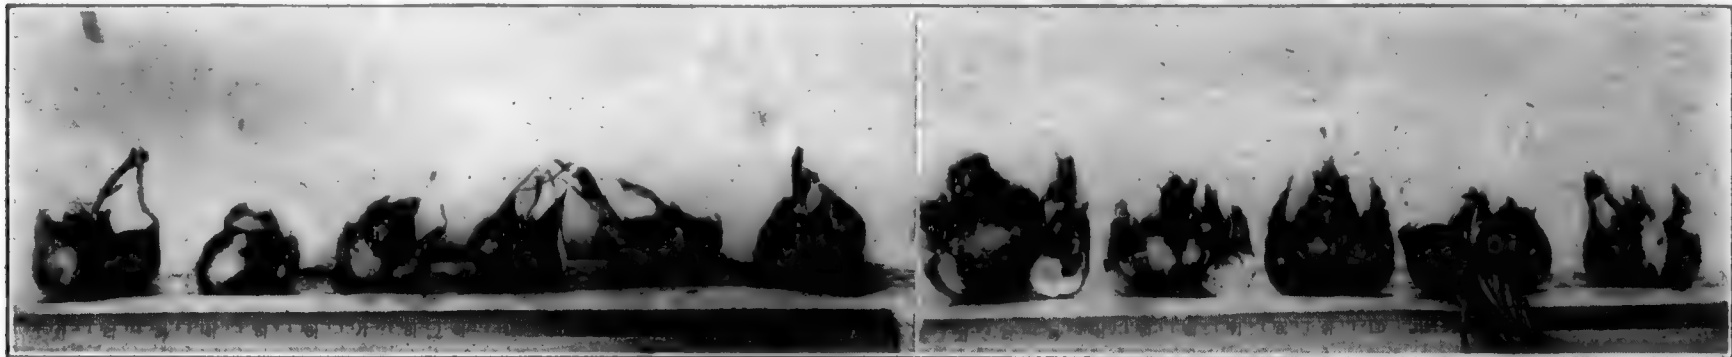

An Expert's Opinion.

When David Fairchild, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, inspected the government enterprises on the coast in August, especially the bulb-growing work at Bellingham, he paid Mr. Ward a visit. After going into the matter thoroughly, he said he believed it quite possible this will prove the best soil and climate in America for the cultivation of Dutch bulbs and that it may quite conceivably become the bulb center of the world.

So well have bulbs done at the Eden nursery that Mr. Ward went up to Victoria, B. C., a few weeks ago and bought the entire stock of the Holland Bulb Farm, on which W. J. Van Aalst had made more than a local reputation. The stock consists of 1,500,000 bulbs, which are now being moved down and replanted at Eden. In addition, quanties of mother bulbs are being imported from Holland to add to the stock already at Eden.

Tulips and Narcissi.

The growing of tulip and narcissus bulbs has proved a simple matter in the vicinity of Eureka. Hyacinth growing is more difficult, but climatic conditions favor the eradication of the disease that is prevalent in Holland and which is imported with the bulbs; Mr. Ward believes that eventually the hyacinth should be grown successfully in Humboldt county on a commercial basis.

The Darwin tulip, which just now is enjoying a remarkable rise in popularity, does splendidly at Eden. It averages a fivefold increase; the harvest, including blooming size, second size and small bulbs, is five times the number of round blooming bulbs planted. The early tulips do equally well. The increase is usually three to six bulbs added to the mother bulb, in some instances seven. Some of the second size bulbs on these clusters are as large as the original blooming bulbs planted late the preceding season. Narcissi are as easy to grow as onions in an Indiana marsh.

Good Bulbs.

At Eden bulbs ripen six weeks earlier than in Holland and they have the advantage of a uniformly rainless season for ripening, lifting and curing. And everyone knows what difficulties the Hollanders have had in that respect this season and how it has delayed deliveries.

While the Eden soil is light and friable in texture and is thoroughly drained during the winter rainy season, it retains its moisture for a long period after the dry season sets in; in consequence the bulbs ripen slowly, evenly and thoroughly, attaining large size, with great solidity and with smooth, brown skins that give the stock an unusually fine appearance. They can be forced in less time than imported bulbs and Mr. Ward asserts that the colors are more brilliant, while the blooms are larger and the stems longer and stronger.

The Commercial Aspect.

In a general way the above facts are well known as having been claimed for other American bulb growing enterprises that never have reached an important commercial stage, but next season Mr. Ward's undertaking will receive the acid test of competition with the Dutch stock in the open market. A few small lots have been sold this season for trial and next season millions will be offered. Mr. Ward believes he can meet the prices of Dutch bulbs laid down in this country, but he says he is confident that if he cannot do so the trade will buy his stock at better prices as soon as it has had a thorough trial. At any rate, the way the market in Holland is turning is distinctly in favor of the commercial success of his undertaking.

But let that suffice for the bulbs—they really should not occupy first place in this story of Mr. Ward's work, for they do not occupy first place in his plan of operation. His original purpose and still the subject of his most intense interest is the development of an American supply of those plants for which the trade heretofore has depended exclusively on Belgium and Holland, especially Azalea Indica.

Rhododendrons for Forcing.

At Mr. Ward's Long Island establishment forcing azaleas played no part, but the rhododendron for landscape use was an important item and this may have turned his thoughts in that direction. At any rate at Eden there is a field of 20,000 3-year-old rhododendrons. "Heretofore Holland and Japan have been the sole sources of supply for forcing rhododendrons," writes Mr. Ward, "but the Cottage Gardens Nurseries is blazing the way for the production of such stock in California. When the transcontinental railroads cease discriminating against the home producer by granting special low freight rates to the Japanese and other foreign growers which are denied the home nursery, California will come into her own and millions of dollars will be kept at home which now are sent abroad for imported stock which can be better grown here."

Boxwood and Conifers.

Boxwood is another item that already plays a conspicuous part at Eden. One of the illustrations gives a glimpse of the standard and ball-shaped plants in the field there. The Eden boxwood has hardy, well ripened and well colored foliage. This year's production consists of 10,000 plants in various shapes and sizes, but there are 50,000 young plants for growing on.

The Humboldt county climate seems to be specially favorable for grafting broad-leaved and coniferous evergreens and because there is little frost the stock of the latter includes a much larger variety than can be grown in any of the eastern nurseries that specialize on evergreens. There are rows and rows of plants in all stages of growth.

Azaleas at Eden.

But to go back to Azalea Indica: The success that attended the first efforts to grow these plants at the Eden nursery was so great that last season several carloads of young stock were imported from Belgium for growing on and shaping up. One of the accompanying illustrations shows how these plants are grown in blocks under high slat houses. The time consumed in producing a marketable plant will not be greater in California than in Belgium and the season at Eureka is some two months in advance of the season in Belgium. This insures fully developed, perfectly ripened buds and early shipment.

A Mother Tulip and its Family of Seven.

Mr. Ward Believes Humboldt County, California, can Supply all America with Tulip Bulbs.

Lath Frames and Slat Houses for Azaleas.

Ten Thousand Azaleas in a Big Slat House.

Azalea Indica is Practically Hardy in the Climate of Eureka, but for Best Results is Grown Under Lattice.

While Mr. Ward believes that he can compete with the delivered prices of the Belgian stock, he feels certain that here, too, if necessary, the plants will command a premium, first because they are native and can be delivered in better shape than those that suffer the vicissitudes of a fortnight in a steamer's hold, but also because they can be delivered earlier and can easily be brought in for Christmas.

A Million Imported.

The importance of the matter to the trade at large may be illustrated by the statement that Poehlmann Bros. Co., Chicago, this year is importing 18,000 Belgian azaleas and that Frank Oechlin, another Chicago grower, is importing 10,000 plants. If these can be obtained in America without the risks of such losses as occurred to nearly everyone who imported azaleas last season, the man who shows the way will be regarded as a benefactor of the trade rather than as a man seeking profits.

A considerable number of azaleas in small lots have been placed with forciers this season. Every man to whom the proposition has been presented has been interested and anxious to try the American stock. Its behavior will be closely watched. It is estimated that the average annual importations have amounted to 1,200,000 plants.

A General View.

Perhaps nothing will give a better idea of the magnitude of Mr. Ward's undertaking than an examination of the general view of the nursery, shown on the first page of this article. This is three photographs taken from the same point and patched together. It shows about two-thirds of the nursery and there are more than two million plants in the view. At the left is the rhododendron field, with a reservoir in the background with a capacity of seven million gallons of rain water. Mr. Ward built this reservoir to insure an unlimited supply of pure water for all propagating and growing departments. One year before this photograph was made the rhododendron field was covered with huge redwood stumps. When it is considered that the trees were from 2,000 to 3,000 years old the task of rooting them out and clearing the land may be imagined.

In the center there are blocks that contain approximately 300,000 ornamental nursery and forcing plants. Two million more are growing in the propagating department at the right.

Slat Houses for Azaleas.

The giant slat houses are used for azaleas. The lath frames are for the small azalea plants and eventually these latticed frames will cover the area of two city blocks. Nine acres of azalea houses are under construction. They can be seen in the upper part of the view.

While Mr. Ward has been developing his plant factory he has by no means forgotten his old love for cut flower production. One of his special delights is the way that sweet peas grow in this climate. The portrait on the first page of this article shows him beside a row of King White planted in the shelter of a high board fence. The seed was planted November 29, 1915, and the photograph was made September 1, 1916. The vines were twelve feet high and a perfect mass of bloom.

Back of the office building that can be seen in the right end of the general view there is a big Lord & Burnham iron-frame greenhouse like the ones Mr. Ward used to build in the east, and this is being used for the same purpose. He has filled it with carnations, merely because the carnation still is his hobby; he cannot resist the desire to grow and cross-fertilize the flower.

Location, Soil, Climate.

The Eden nursery comprises sixty-six acres on the outskirts of Eureka, which is about 200 miles north of San Francisco. It may be reached by the Northwestern Pacific railroad or by the passenger steamers that sail twice weekly from San Francisco. But the finest way to reach the spot is by automobile, for the road takes one through the world-renowned giant redwoods district of the Eel river basin. From the moment the automobile tourist leaves Sausalito, his way leads through continuous and ever-recurring vistas of the most enchanting scenery.

The climatic conditions at Eureka are the most equable of any known section on this continent. Frosts seldom occur and are so light that they do practically no damage. The summer temperature seldom exceeds 72 degrees, and the night temperature usually falls to 50 degrees. The rainfall is about forty-two inches and is mainly precipitated from the middle of November to the first part of June. The growing season is from the middle of February to the middle of September, while the ripening season includes October and November. The soil is river silt from three to forty feet in depth, having originally been covered with a dense growth of giant redwoods averaging twenty-two trees to the acre and from six to eighteen feet in diameter, 350 to 450 feet in height. The nursery is on a plateau sloping to the east and northeast.

NEW YORK CLUB MEETS.

The New York Florists' Club opened the new season October 9, when a large attendance greeted President Weston. Winfried Rolker, Henry Schmidt and Clifford Lowther were elected to membership and each made an interesting address of loyalty and good intent. Mr. Baumann also pledged his coöperation. Resolutions on the deaths of Wm. Tricker and W. F. Kasting were read by Messrs. Knight and Young. A letter of sympathy was sent to Arthur Herrington, because of the death of his mother.

Charles B. Weathered announced the signing of a three years' contract with the Grand Central Palace Co. for the International Flower Shows.

E. Allan Peirce, of Waltham, Mass., and Julius Winkler, of Hackensack, N. J., were nominated for membership.

A. L. Miller, vice-president of the S. A. F., said that after Christmas things will begin to hum in behalf of the 1917 convention and J. G. Esler gave a brief address on the last convention, especially commending the hospitality of the New Orleans florists.

The exhibits were exceptionally good. C. H. Totty showed a vase of the enormous new mum, October King, which received eighty-five points for commercial merit and eighty-eight for exhibition. Mr. Totty also showed a vase of fifteen of the French varieties from Nonin, of Paris, whom Mr. Totty represents in America. Marigold and Cranfordia also were exhibited and a seedling cactus dahlia, which received honorable mention, was shown by Fred Utter, of Harrison, N. J. Chas. Weber, of Lynbrook, showed a beautiful red dahlia seedling which was highly commended. A. J. Guttman staged for Frank Dinda his large pink mum, Alex. Guttman, and received the thanks of the club. P. W. Popp made a fine exhibit of dahlias of immense size and beauty. It received the club's cultural certificate.

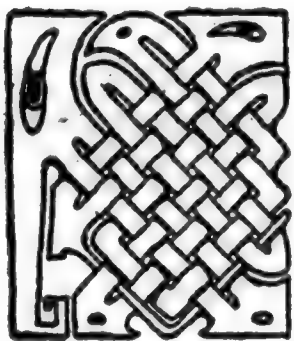

The next meeting, in November, will be ladies' night and a committee has been appointed, with instructions to spare no expense, so the ladies may expect something worth while. The committee is Jos. Manda, chairman; Emil Schloss, A. L. Miller, Jasper R. Lewis and R. J. Irwin. J. A. S.

LILIES FOR EASTER.

I would like a little advice on the culture of lilies for Easter. Are giganteums best for that purpose? How deep shall I pot them and what kind of compost is best for potting? Is a 6-inch pot large enough? If they are potted by October 1 and kept in a temperature of about 55 degrees until I have room in my greenhouse, which will be about October 15 or November 1, will 60 degrees do for them? Will they be in time for Easter? A. L.—Mo.

Giganteums are the best lilies for Easter where pot plants are wanted. If cut lilies with long stems are desired, grow the Formosa variety. Six-inch pots are the correct size. Set the bulbs well down in the pot, but do not fill with loam until the growths are started. All the best feeding roots of these lilies come from above and not below the bulbs. For that reason high potting gives poor results. The temperatures you suggest will be suitable. Keep giganteums in a night temperature of 60 degrees right along and they will be in on ample time. C. W.

THE F. T. D. IN SPECIAL SESSION AT CHICAGO

PLANS PUBLICITY AND PROGRESS.

Largest Meeting of Retailers.

The first convention of exclusively retail florists was celebrated in the opening of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery meeting in the Hotel La Salle, Chicago, October 11. President Gude, in his address, touched upon the work of the organization and upon its rapid growth. Referring to this, its first special meeting, he urged the necessity of annual meetings to maintain the proper degree of interest. He likened the constitution and by-laws of the organization to a chart and compass. If a navigator is to steer a safe and sane course, he may not alter and adjust these to suit every wind that blows. But, if they are actually in error, the defects should be cured by wise constructive legislation. In the course of his address he took occasion to felicitate the members on their good fortune in securing as servants of the organization such indefatigable workers as the secretary and the treasurer, Albert Pochelon and W. L. Rock. Nor did he fail, in this connection, to give the past presidents, J. A. Valentine and Irwin Bertermann, their meed of praise.

History and Prophecy.

On being introduced to the meeting by President Gude, J. A. Valentine talked briefly on the difficulties that confronted the framers of the present constitution. They had neither precedent nor experience to guide them. But they did have one thing—a great idea, and with this in mind they wrote into fact a constitution and by-laws which in most essentials will stand unaltered.

The same general subject was continued by Secretary Pochelon. He remarked that he was frequently referred to as the father of the F. T. D., but that he wished to go on record as disclaiming any such honor. He would most willingly admit, however, that he had acted as chief nurse since the day of its birth. He nursed the infant organization when its fate was more or less a question. But now, Mr. Pochelon said, it has quite outgrown its swaddling clothes. It is a boy, and it must go to school. It must study that thing which will make it grow into a man—it must study publicity and the best means of acquiring it. "Some day," he assured the members, "this organization will be as old as Sam Hill. I almost said as old as Gurney Hill, and I earnestly hope it will be as much respected as our good friend from Richmond."

This opened the door for a series of brief talks of a laudatory nature. At President Gude's suggestion a standing vote of thanks was accorded to J. A. Valentine and Irwin Bertermann, past presidents. In rapid succession it was suggested to confer the same token of appreciation on Secretary Pochelon, Treasurer Rock and President Gude. The suggestions were complied with most enthusiastically.

By-Laws Amended.

With the amenities disposed of the meeting got down to business. Treasurer Rock read a paper embodying his ideas relative to certain changes in the by-laws and to the possible advisability of changing the name of the organization with a view to making it more intelligible to the general public. Following this Max Schling, of New York, talked on the guarantee fund and payment of claims therefrom. He was of the opinion that it was not necessary to deal with this matter as though the organization were made up of crooks. He was immediately followed by Secretary Pochelon, who was of much the same opinion. The existing by-laws, he believed, were sufficient to take care of this matter, as any member who failed to pay the claim of another member within the required time is automatically dropped from the membership roll. And just by way of tribute to the persons composing the organization, the secretary volunteered the information that the organization had lost only two members. One sold his business and left the trade, and the other died. The amount so far paid out of the guarantee fund is $6.

Following the reading, by the treasurer, of the constitution and by-laws as rewritten, and a discussion of the various points of divergence from the original document, the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved: Be it resolved that whereas the constitution and by-laws and amendments thereof of this association are inadequate for the proper government of the affairs of the association, and whereas it is desired to adopt a constitution and by-laws of the association adequate and complete enough to cover the proper government of the affairs of the association, now, therefore, be it resolved that the constitution and by-laws and all amendments thereof of the association now in effect shall be replaced and the attached constitution and by-laws enacted as the constitution and by-laws of the association. Signed, W. F. Gude, president; William Rock, treasurer.

The new by-laws create an arbitration committee of three, but the principal changes are in the matter of annual dues and payments into the guarantee fund. Under the new order the annual dues of members are:

In cities having a population of
100,000 and less than 150,000.....	$20.00
50,000 and less than 100,000.....	15.00
25,000 and less than 50,000.....	10.00
10,000 and less than 25,000.....	8.00
10,000 and less.....	5.00

The sum to be paid by each member into the guarantee fund is increased to the following:

Members whose store or stores are located in cities having a population of 500,000 and over.....	$50.00
250,000 and less than 500,000.....	30.00
100,000 and less than 250,000.....	20.00
50,000 and less than 100,000.....	15.00
25,000 and less than 50,000.....	10.00
25,000 and less.....	5.00

Publicity.

A new subject for discussion was introduced by George Schulz, of Louisville, Ky. He talked on the attitude of the F. T. D. member to the National Florist. Max Schling, Albert Pochelon and others participated in the exchange of opinions. The general belief was that the methods of the National Floral Corporation were unimpeachable, but still, it labored under the grave disadvantage of being a private institution and not a mutual organization.

This was followed by a round-table discussion of the best means of securing publicity in newspapers and magazines, and of what nature this publicity should be.

Luncheon was served in the meeting room and a trip to the wholesale district occupied the time of members until 3 p. m., the hour for convening the afternoon session.

Trade Exhibits.

In a room adjoining the place of meeting, the Knight & Struck Co., of New York, staged a display of heather, chorizema and genista, in charge of W. J. Smart.

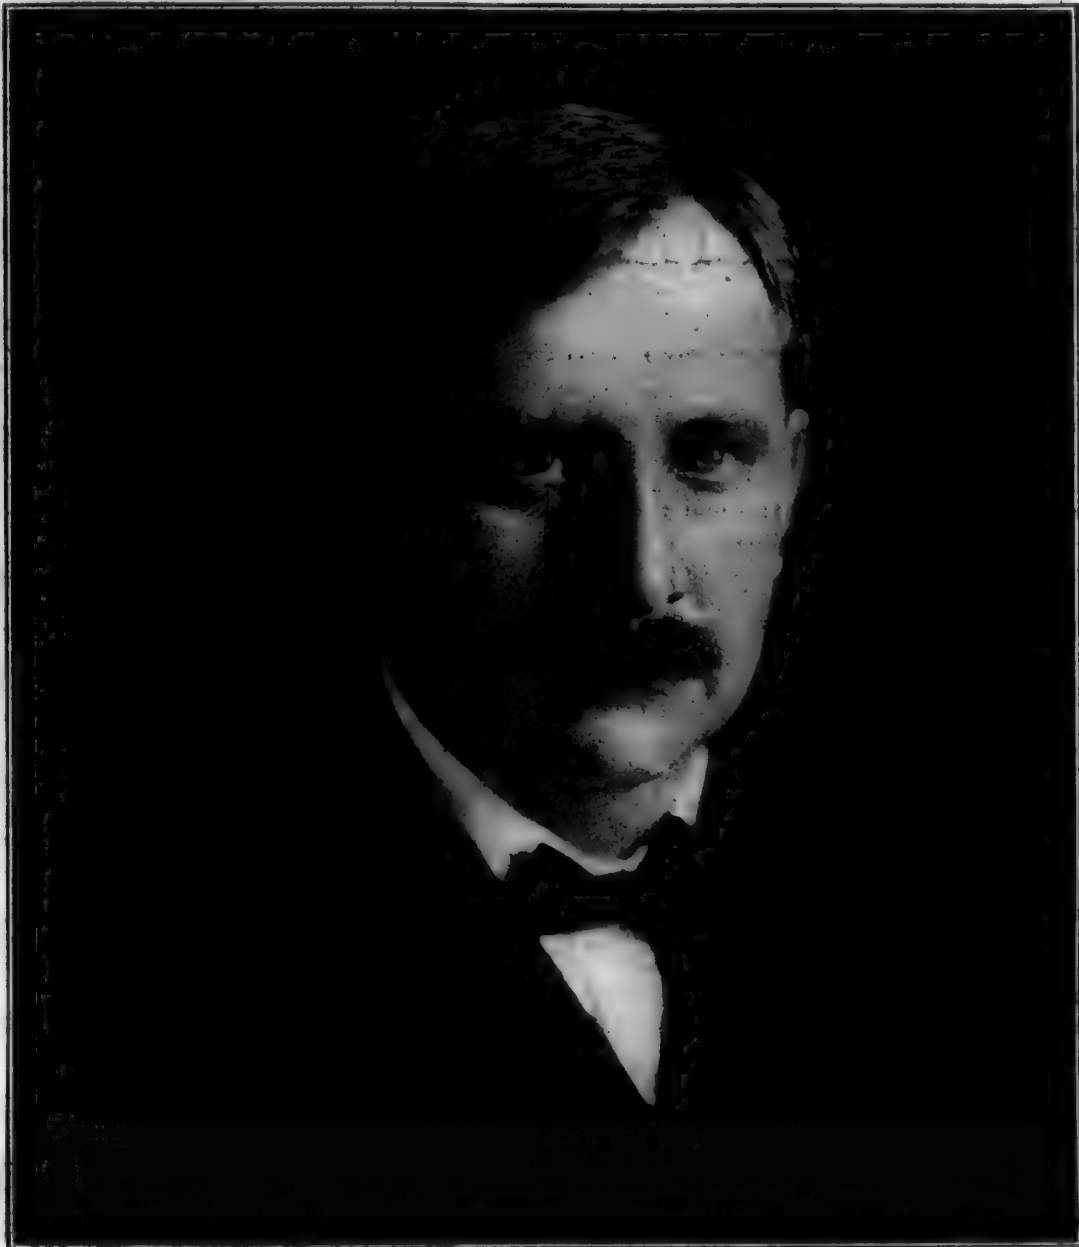

In the same room was a display of books published by the A. T. De La Mare Publishing Co., in charge of James Morton.

To the right of the entrance to the meeting room was a most attractive display of the novelty advertising service of the Hilmer V. Swenson Co.

Directly in front of the entrance, and right where it could not be overlooked, was a sign reading "Stenographic service free of charge to members of the F. T. D., furnished by the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago." And back of the sign was the machine and a prepossessing operator.

A large vase of American Beauties that graced the front of the meeting room was presented by the Pochelmann Bros. Co.

Robert Newcomb, of the American Bulb Co., just home from a trip to Albert Pochelon.

(Tireless Secretary of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association.)

Lincoln, Neb., staged a handsome vase of Carnation Nebraska with the compliments of the C. H. Frey Co.

Several vases of cut flowers were supplied by the Chicago Flower Growers' Association.

Visitors.

Considering the membership and age of the organization, there was a good attendance the first day, about sixty persons being present during the opening session. Among the out-of-town visitors noted were:

Anderson, W. H., Lebanon, Tenn.
Bancroft, Joseph, Cedar Falls, Ia.
Baum, Karl P., Knoxville, Tenn.
Bertermann, Irwin, Indianapolis, Ind.
Borden, A. F., Los Angeles, Cal.
Brown, F. C. W., Cleveland, O.

Thursday afternoon the visitors are to be entertained by an automobile tour of the parks and boulevards, with dinner at the Bismarck Garden.

Following the meeting the members of the National Flower Show committee and a number of others interested will go to St. Louis for a session of that body.

STORING ISMENE CALATHINA.

Please tell me how to care for the bulbs of Ismene calathina. Are they hardy? If not, how shall I keep them over winter? H. L. G.—Kan.

Ismene calathina, also called pancratium and Hymenocallis calathina, is a native of Peru and Bolivia and would certainly not prove hardy in your latitude. The bulbs are summer bloomers and rest in winter. Lift them before frost and store them in flats under a greenhouse bench that is free from drip, or in a shed or storehouse with a dry atmosphere and a temperature a few degrees above freezing. The same bulbs will flower for years if well cared for.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

LET'S HAVE IT.

Our only motive in submitting the article on special cards, which appeared in The Review for October 5, was to spread the news to other florists of how the cards had benefited us. As set forth in the story, we found the use of special cards profitable and simply desired to pass the news around for the good of the flower business in general and the benefit of any in the trade who might care to use them. We have no cards to sell.

A great many florists, no doubt, have discovered little ways and means of getting business that other florists could use and who would be glad to know about. What a fine idea to pass the good news around!

We have in mind now a little thing we do that recently brought a new customer to us whose buying will amount to several hundred dollars a year. If The Review cares to publish this story we shall be glad to prepare it—to pass the news around.

Reynolds Flower Store.

DEALING WITH THE GLUT.

I desire to give my views with regard to the handling of cut flowers through the department stores and its bearing on the legitimate florist.

As the department store attracts the wealthy class as well as the medium and poorer classes, it appears to me that it tends to increase the troubles of a legitimate retail florist.

Say a department store buyer visits a grower during the winter and makes him an offer of so much per bloom for lilies for Easter. What is there to prevent this store from disposing of these lilies at a small profit and charging the time and work to the cost of advertising? This may be agreeable to the grower, who probably has sold for cash at several cents less than he would have obtained had he sent them to the commission houses, but how about the legitimate retailer who has paid market price and cannot exist on profits that satisfy the department store?

I think that when a glut comes the grower should dump or give away inferior stock. Sending in good stock only would not crowd the market, but would keep it firm. Such fluctuations as we have at times in the market hurt considerably, for the general public cannot, or will not, understand the ups and downs of the price of flowers. I believe that the general public does not know a good flower from a poor one. I remember a customer who saw some Beauties in a vase and inquired the price. I told him $3 per dozen and he said, "Pick out a dozen." To treat him right, I went about picking the closest buds, but he called me and said he "wanted roses, not those skimpy things," so I gave him the wide-open flowers. I gave him what he wanted, but it shows that the general public knows little about the quality of flowers.

The times we live in now appear to me to have changed considerably the standing of the flower business. The florist of these days must make his money off the rich, as poor people, after paying for the necessities of life, have little left for luxuries. A fair price for flowers should always be maintained. The only thing we should not do is to ask good prices for inferior stock. This is frequently the case when stock is scarce in the wholesale market.

The glut in flowers should be regulated. The glut lasts only for a short time and a legitimate price for the grower and also for the retailer should be maintained by not selling cheaper outside the trade. Many of our retailers advertise with cheap prices, but I believe there is little money for handling poor stock, as, by the time one figures the unsalable blooms, the others cost as much or more than buying first quality stock.

Let the grower, retailer and wholesaler get together and work for the benefit of each other. Let the grower get a fair profit on the cost of production, the wholesaler be rewarded for his time and care, and the retailer for his knowledge of arrangement, and the best one would be given a little over for his push and energy.

GATHERING WINTERBERRIES.

You will find enclosed a twig of what I think is winterberry and I shall be pleased to have a little information as to when it should be gathered and how it should be treated after it has been harvested here in Indiana. I want to keep it for the holidays.

E. G. B.—Ind.

The berries enclosed are those of one of the deciduous hollies, Ilex verticillata, and are known as winterberries, as intimated in the inquiry. It would be much too early to gather these yet. The collecting should be deferred until a week or two before Christmas; otherwise many of the berries will shrivel or drop. If you get a quantity some time in advance of the holidays, it would pay to stand the bottoms of the shoots in water. If collected from December 1 onward, and laid on shelves in a cool cellar, or even on the floor if it is not too damp, they will keep satisfactorily.

C. W.

CARNATION SOIL.

What treatment should be given the soil in a carnation bench, which was not prepared last fall? The soil is a rich corn compost, but not sod. It was planted to corn last season.

J. M.—Ind.

If you have not yet planted your carnations, you should give the soil a liberal top-dressing of well rotted stable manure, and fork or dig this in well. Give also a top-dressing of fine bone, and let this be incorporated at the same time. Failing rotted manure, use dried sheep or cattle manure.

C. W.

GROUND SQUIRRELS RUIN BUDS.

We have a pest in our greenhouses that we cannot get rid of. It seems to be rats, at least that is our opinion. The rodents do most damage to our carnations, cutting the buds just as they begin to show color and always working at night. They also nibble our bulbs. We have tried traps and poisons without results; the rodents just won't take hold of the poison. That has made us wonder if they really are rats. We wonder if there is anything you can suggest that will free us from the trouble.

C. G.—Tex.

A number of years ago we had an experience similar to yours. After considerable loss we found that the trouble was not rats, but ground squirrels.

They would not touch a trap or poison and the only thing that rid us of them was a little .22 rifle.

A. F. J. B.

CARRYING THEM OVER.

We have a bench of carnations which we want to carry over for another season. Kindly give us a few hints on how to treat them from now on, about cutting back, mulching, etc.

W. E. W.—Mich.

I never have seen a bench of carnations profitably carried over the second season unless it had been handled with that purpose in view from early in the spring. I have seen benches that were cut back hard after the blooming season was practically over and warm weather had set in. I also have seen benches carried over without any cutting back whatever. Neither method ever has produced satisfactory results to my knowledge. The only satisfactory carried over plants I ever have seen were worked for cuttings at least the latter half of the season and then allowed to come along for the following season's blooming.

However, if the plants in your bench are clean and vigorous and you are determined to carry them over, I would suggest that you do not cut them back too hard at this time. You will find these plants coming into crop slowly. Merely trim them up a bit to enable you to keep them in the supports. Clean off what dead foliage you can at the bottom, without pulling the plants around too much, else you might do them more damage than good. A light mulch of half rotted manure would start them into a new growth and this should be followed up with frequent applications of sheep manure and dried blood while the growing weather is good. You might apply a fairly liberal dressing of bone meal before putting on the mulch. Naturally, these plants will need more feeding than would young plants set in new soil. If you can master this and manage to keep them properly supported, you might have fair success, but you will find them more inclined to crop and slower moving than the young plants. A. F. J. B.

Cannas

MR. MICHEL DISCUSSES CANNAS.

Selects a Lucky Thirteen.

Eugene H. Michel, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., has made a life study of the canna. During the last few years Mr. Michel has devoted time and thought to hybridizing cannas, with the object of securing better varieties of existing types. His effort has been rewarded with marked success. Four of his seedlings today rank high among the leading varieties of cannas. The talk that follows was given for the benefit of Review readers by Mr. Michel on the trial grounds of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., at Riverview, N. J., October 5:

"My idea of the canna is that its usefulness in landscape gardening depends on its effectiveness when planted in masses. A variety to be of value must have strong, glowing color, in flowers that are of large size and good substance, and it must be sufficiently free-blooming to show this color clearly above the foliage; not a straggling bloom here and there, but a fine, unbroken mass of color. Public interest in the canna depends, as it does in roses or carnations, on new varieties that keep pace with the times. To many people a canna is simply a canna, but to many others a really fine variety is irresistible; they must have it.

New Sorts That Stand the Test.

"Our most discriminating canna lovers are found in two classes—the amateurs who want the best, and the florists who keep pace with the times. They add the new varieties that are sent out with the stamp of approval of some first-class introducer; they grow them and help to make them popular.

"America has done even more than Europe to advance the canna during the last decade. To American hybridizers we owe many of the finest varieties today. To their efforts credit must be given for improvement in color, in size and in vigor that has brought the canna to a foremost place among outdoor decorative plants.

"I will give you my selection of the leading varieties of cannas now in general use.

"Here is Gladiator, one of the finest varieties. Notice the size of the spikes as well as of the individual florets, how well and freely the trusses are borne on each plant and how uniformly they flower.

"Next comes Uhlberg, a German variety of great merit. It is not a tall grower, but wonderfully free; a variety that presents a mass of color. It is charming.

A Reliable White.

"This is Eureka, my white seedling of 1912." It was not necessary to ask Mr. Michel why the name. Every schoolboy knows that when Archimedes solved the great problem of how much water a body displaces, he chanced to be in his bathtub and straightway he tore down the street crying "Eureka! Eureka!" to signify that he had found the solution of his problem so hurriedly that even clothes were forgotten. So it evidently was that Mr. Michel had found the long-sought white. The difficulty about the whites, and also about the yellows, is that really pure cannas of these delicate colors usually lack stamina. Some are so weak that it is impossible to work up stock. Others are dwarf. Others, still, are shy bloomers. Eureka is a strong grower of medium height, that flowers profusely. Looking down the rows of Eureka, they appeared a sheet of white as far as the eye could reach. Some idea of the growth of Eureka can be gathered from the fact that a seedling of four years ago has furnished 5,000 cannas for distribution, while there are 2,160 clumps now growing at Riverview.

Still the Best Crimson.

"Next comes Meteor. I first saw this crimson at the home of its introducer, Antoine Wintzer, at West Grove. It was eight feet high. Ordinarily Meteor grows to a height of five feet, but there it had extra culture. It is still the best crimson canna.

"Orange Bedder is my own seedling. Its color may be described as an orange scarlet. The artists do not agree about the color, but I think it is just what we want and I am encouraged in this belief by the cordial reception given the variety.

"Rosea gigantea is a splendid deep pink variety that has stood well the test of time.

"Olympic I consider to be an improvement on the variety just mentioned, in color as in other qualities.

The Most Popular Canna.

"King Humbert is probably the best known and most popular canna today. Its orange scarlet flowers are magnificent for massing.

"The Gem is another of my own seedlings. Mark its lovely cream-colored flowers, their great size and, most of all, their refinement.

"Colossal is a dazzling scarlet variety which I consider superior to Firebird.

"Favorite is another of my own seedlings. I like to call it the yellowest of the yellows, so that people will be impressed before seeing it with the idea that it is a true yellow. When they see it they will know for themselves.

"Mrs. Alfred F. Conard, a delicate pink of Mr. Wintzer's, is worthy of a leading place in any collection of cannas.

"Firebird is a European variety that has made a great hit in this country. While not of the type of some of our finest varieties, it is a leader in its class.

Seedlings and Foreign Sorts.

"That makes thirteen sorts. You know I consider thirteen as my lucky number. Now come over and see the European varieties that we have on trial, and our seedlings, the varieties that may come out in 1918, if they make good. Here are 100 seedlings selected from 5,000. Not one of them will be grown on or sent out unless it is found to be superior to existing sorts in its class and color. Some of them are extremely promising." Here Mr. Michel pointed out a number of varieties of great beauty.

Then came the European varieties. One, in particular, gained interest from the fact that its German introducer, cut off by the war two years, has not been heard from, so that nothing could be learned of the progress made by the variety with him. Speaking broadly, few of the foreign varieties are as promising here as the seedlings, although there are one or two exceptions to this rule. Phil.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Canterbury Bells.

Pot up any Canterbury bells needed for spring flowering under glass. The size of the pots will depend on how large your plants are and may have to vary from six to eight inches in diameter. Do not give them too large pots; it is much better to give them a shift in the spring as the flower spikes start to run up, if this is found necessary. Canterbury bells make glorious pot plants and should be more grown in this way. They will not tolerate hard forcing, succeeding best in a cool greenhouse. Plants in the field, which are intended for wintering outdoors or in coldframes, should be kept frequently stirred, so as to get as much growth as possible on them while the growing season lasts.

Poinsettias.

The nights are getting quite cool and care must be taken not to allow the temperature to run too low where poinsettias are growing. There is little trouble in keeping good foliage on the plants while the weather is warm, but a sharp check now, especially if accompanied by careless watering, will speedily cause a yellowing of the lower leaves. It is best not to subject poinsettias to a lower night temperature than 55 degrees. When the bracts show, 60 degrees should be maintained. Small plants in pots should be made up into pans without delay. Do not allow them to become potbound before shifting them. Water with care at all times, and in using stimulants be sure they are moderately weak; heavy feeding will cause a heavy loss of foliage.

Mignonette.

When the earliest sowing of mignonette has made growths six inches long, these should be pinched back. It is of no advantage to let these flower spikes run up yet, as they would be of poor quality and practically unsalable. In order to secure strong spikes, a number of the side growths should be rubbed off each plant or clump of plants. When the benches are well filled with roots, applications of liquid manure once in ten days will be beneficial. Mignonette succeeds best in a low temperature, 40 to 45 degrees at night being sufficient in winter, and fire heat should not be turned on until it is absolutely necessary. Perhaps you may want a spring crop of mignonette to succeed part of the mums. If so, seeds can be sown now in 2½-inch or 3-inch pots and the seedlings transplanted later.

Single Violets.

Double violets do better if housed late in August or in September, as the heavy night dews followed by hot sunshine start leaf-spot, but single varieties, like Princess of Wales, should not be housed before they have had one or two moderate freezings, sufficient to check the leaf growth. As a rule these violets are in about the right condition to house from October 10 to November 1, according to latitude. Before lifting them, go over the plants and trim off runners and any decaying foliage. With cool nights, the plants in the fields are now giving a considerable crop of flowers, which will realize fair prices in the markets. If carefully lifted with a nice little ball of earth, well firmed and watered, the violets speedily become established. Ventilate the houses fully night and day, leaving doors as well as top and side ventilators open as long as the weather permits.

Marguerites.

Before frost arrives, take good batches of cuttings from any of the marguerites planted outdoors. Fine cuttings in abundance are now obtainable and these can either be grown along as pot plants or planted in beds or benches to follow some of the main crop, or to follow late chrysanthemums as a spring crop. It is better to use shallow benches for winter or early spring flowering, but for a late spring crop solid beds answer fully as well.

Christmas Peppers.

Christmas peppers are quite tender and will not endure frost like the solanums, or Jerusalem cherries. Therefore they should go under glass before the temperature falls to the freezing point. Coldframes will answer well for them while greenhouse bench space is occupied by mums and other crops. If you have any well berried Jerusalem cherries or peppers in the field, they can still be potted. Shade them for a few days, until the roots become active in the pots.

Primula Malacoides.

Primula malacoides is the most valuable of all pot-grown primulas. It is a rapid grower and many florists still err in sowing it too early. If the plants now are in 4-inch pots they are sufficiently large and they can have a shift to 6-inch or 7-inch pots before they become too much potbound. Late sowings which are just of sufficient size to pot off will make excellent 4-inch plants for winter blooming. Grow this primula in a cool, light and well ventilated house. Its foliage is quite dense and careful watering is necessary in dark weather to prevent rotting of the central leaves. Also, be specially careful never to spray the plants overhead, for the same reason.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

ARMY WORM ON MUMS.

I am having trouble with my Smith's Advance chrysanthemums and I am sending you one of the lot to help you in diagnosing the case. The plants were benched the latter part of June, in raised benches, the soil being four parts loam and one part cow manure. In July I mulched the plants with a ½-inch spread of well rotted horse manure. At this time, September 20, each day I find five or six of the plants wilted. I have given them a dose of air-slaked lime, but they still continue to die. Their symptoms are somewhat similar to carnations affected with stem-rot. Other varieties in the same house are not troubled. Can you tell me what the disease or insect is and what is a remedy for it? D. R.—Ky.

If you examine the affected plants closely you will find that they are girdled near the ground; that is to say, the bark has been eaten away. This is caused by the army worm, unless I am greatly mistaken. This worm you will find by searching in the soil near the roots of the plant. It is almost the same color as the soil. It was carried into the house in the soil or manure and is now causing the trouble. All I can suggest is that you look carefully around each plant and by working the mulch or soil find and remove quite a number of the grubs. G. H. T.

THE JOHNSON MUMS.

What kind of chrysanthemums are the C. W. Johnsons? I have some that were sent to me without any other designation and I cannot find the name in any catalogue and do not know how to treat them. A. L. S.—Mass.

The subscriber probably has reference to what is known as the Mount Greenwood Novelty Set disseminated this season by A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn. This is a set of six singles raised by C. W. Johnson, president of the Illinois State Florists' Association, and secretary of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, at the greenhouses of the Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association, Morgan Park, Ill. The names are: Cinderella, dark pink; Firefly, copper bronze; Gipsy, yellow; Priscilla, light pink; Ramona, reddish bronze; Wenonah, silvery bronze. Each of these varieties is described in full in the Pierson catalogue. In previous years the Pierson concern also has distributed several new pompons raised by Mr. Johnson.

Sweet Peas

SWEET PEAS TO FOLLOW MUMS.

Kindly give me some directions on the cultivation of sweet peas under glass. Please name some of the best varieties and state how much space there should be between the benches and the glass. Any information on the subject will be thankfully accepted. At present I am growing chrysanthemums in my houses. M. B. S.—Pa.

If M. B. S. keeps a file of the back numbers of The Review, and if he will consult the issues for July 16, 23 and 30, 1914, he will find there a rather comprehensive treatise, by Ant. C. Zvolanek, the sweet pea specialist, on the different phases of sweet pea culture, including the fighting of pests and diseases, the placing of plant supports, the picking, grading and shipping of the blooms.

A considerable part of Mr. Zvolanek's article, however, has reference to the sowing of the seed in beds, while florists who grow sweet peas to follow other crops must, of course, start the seed in pots and have the little seedlings ready for transplanting to the beds as soon as the chrysanthemums or other crops have been removed. Such parts of Mr. Zvolanek's instructions as are most directly applicable to M. B. S.'s case may be summarized as follows:

If you have a house with such early varieties of chrysanthemums as Golden Glow and Pacific, these will probably all be cut by October 20. If sweet pea seed is sown in 4-inch pots September 10 or soon afterward, there will be fine plants by the time the chrysanthemums are over. The soil should be prepared and the sweet peas planted in the vacated mum beds at once, so that they will begin to bloom by the latter part of January. Solid beds of one and a half to two feet of good soil are the best. All that is needed is eight feet of head room.

When firing is started in the late fall, the temperature at first should not exceed 40 to 44 degrees at night. When the plants are two and one-half to four feet high and are in bud, gradually raise the temperature, increasing it every night by 1 or 2 degrees. If the temperature has been averaging 44 degrees, make it 45 degrees the next day, and so on until 52 degrees is reached. This is the highest temperature for the older winter grandifloras at night. When in bloom, 60 degrees during cloudy days and 68 degrees during bright days is best.

All the new winter orchid-flowering sweet peas, in the first stage, need the same treatment as that just prescribed. But after these are in bud and flower, raise the temperature to 55 degrees at night, 60 to 65 degrees for cloudy days and 70 to 72 degrees during bright, sunny days. This higher temperature is necessary for the new strain, as the flowers are twice as large and the number of flowers to the stem twice as many; and the additional warmth prevents the falling of the buds and causes the flowers to have brighter colors.

After the sweet peas have been in bloom for some time, and have begun to shorten in stem, they should be fertilized. The best thing is liquid cow or sheep manure, or pulverized manure. Nitrate of soda should never be used, for it will do more harm than good.

As to a selection of varieties, says Mr. Zvolanek, so far the bicolor has always sold best. Of this sort we now have the Pink and White Orchid, which have no equal for midwinter flowering. In white there are the White Orchid, Bridal Veil, Venus and Mrs. M. Spanolin. In lavender the best are Lavender Orchid, lavender pink, and Lavender Nora, which is a clear lavender and of the winter Unwin type. In light pink we have Mrs. A. A. Skach, Mrs. J. Manda and Dolansky Orchid. In dark rose there are the Orchid Beauty and President Wilson. The best in orange pink is the Orange Orchid, but to this the Orange Nora and Orange Bird are close seconds; the latter two are of the winter Unwin type.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The annual dahlia show of the Nassau County Horticultural Society, held October 5, was a most decided success from both a financial and a horticultural standpoint. The exhibits were of the highest quality and in almost all classes competition was keen. The Henry Dreer silver cup, which was offered for the best collection of twenty-five varieties, brought forth a splendid display, there being four exhibitors, each one with a topnotch collection. The judges finally awarded the prize to Joseph Robinson, gardener for W. R. Coe, with James Kirby, gardener for W. J. Mathieson, second. The Townsend silver cup for the best collection of outdoor roses was won by F. O. Johnson, gardener for Harold Pratt, with John W. Everitt, gardener for John Pratt, second. The North Shore Garden Club's silver basket for the best collection of outdoor flowers was awarded to John F. Johnstone, gardener for George Pratt, with William Noonan, gardener for C. F. Cartledge, second. The Smithey silver cup for the best ten varieties of gladioli was captured by P. W. Popp, gardener for Mrs. H. D. Darlington.

The class for the best collection of twelve kinds of vegetables was one of the most attractive features of the show. There were three exhibitors and so evenly matched were their exhibits that in the final scoring only eight points separated the winner from the second man, while the third entry was only twenty points behind. Robert Jones, gardener for Percy Chubb, was the winner, with Joseph Robinson second. Mr. Robinson also won in the class for nine kinds of vegetables.

The Hitchings silver cup, offered for the best collection of outdoor fruit, was won by Henry Gaut, gardener for Herbert Pratt, with a superb collection. The competition for the best decorated dinner table was another feature which proved to be unusually attractive. There were seven entries and the honors were carried off by Joseph Adler, Henry Gaut and Herman Miller in the order named.

Mills & Co., of Mamaroneck, staged a large collection of dahlias for exhibition, for which they were awarded a certificate.

The judges were Thomas Aitcheson, William Robertson and James Stuart and many flattering comments were made on the thorough and capable manner in which they performed their duties. J. M.

New Orleans, La.—F. J. Reyes & Co., 300 Bourbon street, formally opened a branch store at 527 Canal street, September 28.

San Antonio, Tex.—Paul Lass, formerly owner and manager of the San Antonio Floral & Nursery Co., which he sold in 1915 to W. Hess, of Dallas, now is engaged in the wholesale cut flower business here.

Clifton Forge, Va.—O. C. Ports has struck out for himself. He has erected greenhouses and will produce stock for Mrs. Ports' store in the city. Mr. Ports formerly was superintendent and grower for the Clifton Forge Floral Co., which went "on the rocks," according to Mr. Ports.

Rogers, Ark.—The Davidson greenhouses have been purchased by Mrs. Ida Hudspeth, formerly of Madison S. D.

Auburn, Ala.—George L. Peltier has resigned his position as plant pathologist at the University of Illinois and accepted a similar position at the Alabama experiment station, Alabama Polytechnic Institute, at this place. He already has assumed his duties.

Memphis, Tenn.—The curvilinear combination aviary and conservatory, 50x200, built by the John C. Meninger Co., Chicago, for Overton park, is fast nearing completion. The structural work is already set up and practically all that remains to be done is the glazing.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

The weather last week was fine and we had several days that were quite warm. Stock is in even better shape than previously and business has begun to look up quite a bit.

The supply of roses still is large and orders are well taken care of, despite the fact that the demand is exceptionally large. Some good Russell roses are seen in the market daily and are really superseding American Beauties in quality as well as price. Other roses also are fine and are well worth all they bring. Carnations are coming in somewhat more plentifully than last week, but the supply still is far short of the demand. The stock compares unfavorably with that of this time last year, but from present indications there will be a marked improvement during the next few weeks. Prices are good and no complaints are heard on this stock.

Chrysanthemums are no more plentiful than last week and the stock is only medium in quality. However, it looks as though the supply will increase materially next week, and as the demand is steady and strong no trouble is anticipated in cleaning up daily. The first violets of the season were consigned to the Milwaukee market last week by a Watertown, Wis., grower. The stock looks well and is readily taken up each day. Lilies remain somewhat scarce and valley is almost unobtainable.

Various Notes.

F. Rentschler, of Madison, Wis., was in town a short while October 6, accompanied by Mr. Kalt, of the same city.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Zender and John Muno, of Rogers Park, Chicago, who were staying at Waukesha, Wis., where Mr. Zender was taking treatments, passed through Milwaukee October 7 on their way home.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Phillips, relatives of J. Rindfleisch, of Beloit, Wis., where Mr. Phillips is employed, were in town October 7. They were returning home after a vacation in the north.

F. H. Holton, accompanied by N. Zweifel, G. Pohl, William R. Schroeder, E. Oestreicher and A. H. McDonald, made a short trip to Watertown, Wis., Friday, October 8.

W. C. Zimmermann, who does business at Fifth street and Grand avenue, met with a bad accident October 8. Mr. Zimmermann, while spending the day in Watertown, Wis., where he visited Benke Bros., violet growers, was petting a dog, chained in the yard. Suddenly the animal sprang at him, biting him just above the eye, as well as on the lip and cheeks. Mr. Zimmermann was given immediate medical attention and it is probable that there will not even be a scar when the wounds have healed.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The last two weeks have been exceptionally good as to weather. There were light frosts a week ago, but no damage was done and flowers outdoors are looking as well as they have at any time this year. Dahlias at last are coming in freely and the quality is improving daily. A good, soaking rain would be welcomed, if it were not followed by a freeze. Cosmos is making a great show in some places this fall, but in others it does not seem to have done well.

The fall crop of outdoor roses is not up to what it should be. Indoors the cut of roses is steadily on the increase. It is not up to normal for the season as yet, however. Carnations are plentiful. Gladioli are coming in again, after an absence of some weeks. The fall cut is perhaps the best of the season. Lilies are plentiful and clean up well. I have seen no chrysanthemums as yet; the growers have given up the early varieties as unprofitable.

Business has been exceptionally good of late, partly because of the heavy demand for funeral work. The first Dutch bulbs reached the city the latter part of the week and are on sale. Paper Whites and Grand Soleil d'Or are retailing better than usual, and they have always sold well in this city. The forecast is that this is going to be a record-breaking season for bulb sales, even though their delivery was retarded.

Various Notes.

The canna nymph, which did so much damage in the state four years ago and then seemed to have been killed by the hard winter following, has made its appearance again this fall. There has been little damage reported, but should we have an open winter all should be on the lookout next spring.

Miss Bessie Harrison, of the Joy Floral Co., has returned from her trip through the east. She reports a jolly time.

Geny Bros. are cutting some good Red Radiance roses, the first of this variety to be seen in the city, and they appear to be roses of merit, although too much like Russell to be distinctive.

McIntyre Bros. received a large consignment of Japanese lily bulbs last week.

The Joy Floral Co. is doing a larger wholesale business this fall than ever before at this season.

The greenhouses at Mount Olivet cemetery are well stocked this fall. The managers have made several improvements since last season, giving them more room, but still they find themselves crowded by the increase of business.

BUSINESS EMBARRASMENTS.

Lawrence, Kan.—The petition in voluntary bankruptcy of Theodore E. Griesa, a pioneer wholesale and retail nurseryman of this city, was filed last week in a federal court at Topeka. The liabilities in the case amount to $24,564.87, including notes on Lawrence banks, secured by mortgages. The amount of unsecured credits is $9,064.87. The assets total $21,425.47, with $1,650 claimed as exempt. The assets are for the most part made up of land and the large nursery stock.

Newark, O.—The creditors of George L. Miller, bankrupt, have been notified that the trustee in bankruptcy, being unable to sell the real estate of the bankrupt for the appraised value, or for two-thirds the appraised value, then offered the same for sale to the highest bidder. At such sale an offer was received of $6,025 for the greenhouse property, real and personal, and an offer of $3,400 for the West Main street house. The bankrupt has filed objections to such sale and has produced an offer of $3,600 for the West Main street property.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

William Fitzwilliam, superintendent of Humboldt park, Buffalo, called my attention to a group of Wier's cut-leaved maples flourishing here. He considers it the finest of the varieties; it is hardy and makes a handsome tree. Geranium Mrs. Landry has proved superior to Beaute Poitevine as a bedder, especially this trying season. Alphonse Ricard still is a leader in its class. Verbena venosa has done well. The orchid-flowering cannas, Wyoming, Indiana and others, with the old favorites, Madame Crozy and Florence Vaughan, still stand the test and are hard to beat in their class. King Humbert still is a leader in varieties with bronze foliage. The newer introductions will be tried out next season. I noted a fine lot of mums, trained in various shapes by Charles H. Keitsch, assistant superintendent, for the fall show the park commission has in view.

At the Jefferson county fair, held at Watertown, N. Y., last week, F. A. Bennett & Son were successful exhibitors, winning several first premiums.

J. V. Laver believes he voices the opinions of his confreres at Erie, Pa., when he states this has been the best summer business season of several years.

Painesville, O., is considered the western gateway to Cleveland, the various nurseries forming an ornamental approach. Owing to the unfavorable season outdoor stock is not so resplendent as usual, but E. George, of the Storrs & Harrison Co., considers it a record season for planting and business.

E. A. Fettes, of Detroit, September 16 inaugurated his removal to his new store at 17 East Adams avenue by giving away red roses, his requirements practically cleaning up the market. "Ma" Sunday expressed her pleasure over the gift of a bunch of American Beauties, her favorites, and Billy Sunday, who is drawing tremendous crowds to hear him during his campaign here, desires the craft to meet him as a body at a time convenient to both. Possibly the club will be officially represented.

Alfred Hannah & Sons, of Grand Rapids, Mich., are losing a large number of carnations, after the benching, and believe the loss due to overwatering after the dry growing season. The plants rot at the roots. Speaking of drainage, the solid-bed plan adopted here is considered on a par with benches. While plants on benches have the benefit of bottom heat during the winter, those in solid beds have the advantage of being cool during summer. Concrete has superseded wood and is quite satisfactory.

OBITUARY

Andrew Bather.

In the death of Andrew Bather, of Clinton, Ia., which occurred October 5, the trade lost not only one of its veterans but one who was recognized as a pioneer florist of the middle western country; for Andrew Bather was a full-fledged florist years before the Civil war.

Mr. Bather was born in Manchester, England, July 22, 1840. When 9 years of age his parents migrated to this country and settled at Albany, N. Y. In 1857, when 17 years of age, young Bather moved to Clinton, Ia., where he founded the florists' business in which he remained actively engaged. As the business grew Mr. Bather became a seedsman and nurseryman, as well as florist.

Arriving at Clinton in the early years of its growth, Mr. Bather was directly connected with the work of the city. He assisted in platting parts of it and helped to lay out many of its streets. More than half of the shade and ornamental trees in the city were planted by Mr. Bather, personally, in the early years, it being his object to beautify the city.

Actively interested in every phase of progress in the life of his city, state and country, he took a position on the slave question. He was an abolitionist, and prior to the Civil war his home was a station on the famous underground railroad. By this means he assisted many a colored slave on his way to Canada and freedom.

For many years Mr. Bather was a member of the First Baptist church, and was closely identified with its early history. He was a charter member of Robin Hood camp, 31, M. W. of A., a past grand of America lodge, 567, I. O. O. F., a member of the Star of Hope Rebekah lodge and the local secretary of the Knights and Ladies of Honor.

All who were associated with Mr. Bather in his business and community life knew him to be a man of keen intellect and noble character. His upright and honorable life gave him the respect of all with whom he came in contact.

Mr. Bather is survived by his wife, three daughters and two sons, Leo and Ralph, who succeed him in the business.

Funeral services were held at the Bather residence, 729 Sunnyside avenue, Sunday, October 8. The burial services, at Springdale cemetery, were in charge of the local Odd Fellows.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

The Market.

The fall trade has commenced and cut flowers are selling well. There is the usual amount of fall entertaining, with a big demand for decorative work. There has also been a great deal of funeral work during the last week. The complaint of most of the florists is that the demand is far greater than the supply. Some fine roses are arriving, including Beauties. Rubrum and Easter lilies both are scarce and their prices are high. Violets were on the market last week for the first time this fall and were selling at a high price. Both valley and orchids are extremely scarce. Chrysanthemums are coming in more plentifully and are fine blooms, with good, long, firm stems. Local growers are not yet cutting these in great numbers, but many of the greenhouses contain a splendid stock of them and a big cut is expected soon.

A few fall plants are on the market. The cyclamens are splendid plants and the begonias shown in some of the stores are also of good quality and sell well.

Various Notes.

A new store has been opened, under the name of the Hennepin Floral Co. The site is a fine one, on one of the main avenues, and the large stock is artistically arranged, much of it in willow receptacles of new and attractive design.

Johnson & Co. report a good week. Their business is growing rapidly. Unusually fine chrysanthemums have been obtainable here all the week and have aroused much admiration among those who are watching the progress of the new establishment. When the store is completed, it will contain every facility for handling a large trade.

The H. B. Whitted Co. has been exceedingly busy, handling a large number of orders for various kinds of work. A fine stock is always on hand here and a shipment of baskets and various other receptacles, all of the latest design, has just been received.

O. C. Swanson reports that business is first-class, especially in the line of funeral work. He has had notably attractive window displays.

The New York Florists report a lot of funeral work.

Mr. Mitchell, of the Lake Street Florist Shop, is doing splendidly. As his trade increases he is enlarging his facilities. He has established a fine trade in funeral work.

Chapman's flower department is rapidly growing, under the efficient management of Miss E. Larson.

The Merriam Park Floral Co. is cutting a splendid lot of Russell, Ophelia and Killarney roses.

Hans Rosacker is cutting some splendid lilies and has commenced to cut violets.

R. Latham has just moved into his new store. It is a first-class place, with all the latest and best equipments, and is handsomely and effectively decorated with palms, ferns and flowers. Mr. Latham does a lot of work in the way of funeral designs and decorations for society affairs.

E. M. P.

Rock Island, Ill.—An announcement has been made by L. Stapp that his brother, E. H. Stapp, has joined him in the florists' business and that the business has been incorporated as the L. Stapp Co.

Fond du Lac, Wis.—A 2-story building 36x100 feet is being erected by the Haentze Co., at its range on Linden street. Offices, garage and workroom will be on the first floor. The second floor will be used for storing stock. The company, which now operates twenty-two large greenhouses, will erect four houses next year.

NOTICE!

To Subscribers whose address labels carry an expiration number higher than 995 (Dec. 21, 1916).

EVERY florist knows through his own purchases what has happened in the paper market the last few months—prices have doubled all along the line.

And it takes more than four tons of paper each week to print The Review!

Many readers have been so kind as to write that The Review is worth considerably more to them than its subscription price. Well, the tremendous rise in the price of paper makes it no longer expedient to sell The Review at $1.00 a year.

The subscription price, therefore, will be advanced January 1, 1917, to $1.50 a year.

Until December 31, 1916, any member of the Trade may subscribe for one or more years at the old rate of $1.00 a year.

Readers whose present subscriptions do not expire until after January 1, 1917, may renew for as many years as they like at $1.00 per year, providing that such renewals are sent during 1916.

Send $1.00 and your subscription will be extended one year from the present date of expiration, whenever that may be.

Send $2.00 and the subscription will be extended two years from the present date of expiration.

Send $3.00 for three years, $5.00 for five years.

No renewals for a full year will be accepted at less than $1.50 unless they are mailed by December 31, 1916.

The Canadian subscription price will be $2.50 a year beginning January 1, 1917. Canadian renewals mailed on or before December 31, 1916, will be accepted at $2.00 a year.

Thirty-third annual convention, New York, N. Y., August 21 to 24, 1917.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

THE losses on last season's plant importations were so numerous that this season the stock must move without coverage that it will open up in first-class shape.

It looks as though this will be an extremely good year for the introducers of novelties; everyone in the trade, except the man who tries to undersell his competitors, will have money to spend.

As predicted in The Review some weeks ago, at least a few of the Belgian shippers have overcome all difficulties and quantities of azaleas and other plants are on their way to this country. There is no probability, however, that there will be an oversupply of anything.

A CONSIDERABLE percentage of the valley pips coming out of cold storage are in such a condition that it is useless to plant them. Perhaps this accounts for the haste with which some forciers are using up their stock without any assurance as to where another supply is to come from.

It is true that there was a surplus of geraniums in certain sections last season, but let that deter no one from working up a big stock for 1917. The fact is, the surplus last season was almost all in the hands of those who either failed to have their plants ready in time or who failed to advertise their surplus in time, or who failed in both respects. Early in the season there was an enormous demand.

EVERY now and then a subscriber writes to The Review for an opinion as to the expediency of building now or waiting for a fall in the market price of the materials. It is generally believed that the present situation is the direct result of the war in Europe and there seems no reason to believe that commodity prices in this country will decline as long as the war lasts, or for some little time after peace. How long one would have to wait for a decline, then, is a matter in which no man can have an opinion that would be of much value. The chances are a greenhouse built now will pay for itself, or more, before there is any appreciable fall in the price of materials.

THE REAL THING.

To print last week's edition of The Review called for the use of almost 9,000 pounds of paper—it exceeds four tons each issue, for the publication has grown as the trade has grown. The Review still is growing because—

Please discontinue our ad. as we were sold out the second day. When we have something more to sell we shall be pleased to send you copy, as The Review has proven it is the real thing in advertising.—H. S. Gardiner, Manager, Hill City Greenhouses, Forest City, Ia., September 29, 1916.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

DATE OF THANKSGIVING.

Taking the stand that, Thanksgiving comes, as usual, November 30, too short a holiday buying season will intervene between then and Christmas, a number of merchants in various sections of the country have written to the President requesting that his Thanksgiving proclamation designate November 23.

Organizations in Pittsburgh, Chicago and other cities have written to President Wilson upon this subject, stating that the desire for the earlier Thanksgiving is general in a number of trades. "The principal reason for this request," writes the president of one organization, "is that if November 30 should be fixed for this holiday date it would leave the so-called holiday buying period short as compared with other years."

Another letter, from the head of a Pittsburgh organization, states that the country is now enjoying a wave of prosperity which will undoubtedly result in an exceptionally heavy holiday business, and points out that, with but twenty-two days between Thanksgiving, if November 30, and Christmas, neither the dealers nor the public would be able satisfactorily to consummate the business.

JOINT MEETING NEXT WEEK.

October 17 there will be a joint meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana and the Kentucky Society of Florists at the establishment of Anders Rasmussen, New Albany, Ind. October 18 will be spent in sight seeing and pleasure, and the afternoon at the establishment of the William Walker Co., at Ormsby Station, Ky.

The business session will be most important, many interesting questions will come up and A. F. J. Baur has consented to read a paper and lead the discussion on "False Economy."

As Kentuckians never consider any gathering complete unless the ladies are present, a special and cordial invitation is extended them. The Hotel Henry Watterson, Louisville, has been designated as headquarters.

A. R. Baumer, secretary of the Kentucky organization, has sent out the following program:

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 17.

All morning—Assembling at the Anders Rasmussen place, New Albany, Ind.

1 o'clock P. M.—Buffet Luncheon.

2 o'clock P. M.—Business Session.

4 o'clock P. M.—Automobile ride over New Albany and Louisville.

7 o'clock P. M.—Banquet at the Henry Watterson Hotel.

Address of Welcome, President

Kleinstarink, Kentucky.

Response, President Vesey, of Indiana.

Toast, "Our Honored Guests,"

William Mann, Kentucky.

Toast, "Goodfellowship," W.

W. Coles, Indiana.

Toast, "The Ladies," August

R. Baumer, Kentucky.

Toast, "The S. A. F.," Irwin

Bertermann, Indiana.

Toastmaster, Anders Rasmussen, Indiana and Kentucky.

From the close of the banquet until 12 o'clock, dance at the Henry Watterson Hotel.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 18.

All morning—The visitors can visit such of the local establishments as they wish.

8:30 A. M.—Bowling contests between Indiana and Kentucky teams. Individual contests for ladies and gentlemen.

12 o'clock—Luncheon served at the bowling alleys.

1:30 P. M.—Interurban cars will leave the station on Jefferson street between Third and Fourth for the William Walker Co. establishment at Ormsby Station, Ky., where the afternoon will be spent in looking over the Walker plant and in games of different kinds.

MUST BE WORTH IT.

A test of the validity of the recently-enacted fraudulent advertising law has been made at Washington, D. C., and the law was upheld. While the case concerned haberdashery, it forms a precedent covering all exaggerations of values and $1.50 palms and ferns at 29 cents may be deemed in violation of the law if it cannot be proven by the seller that they are indeed of the value claimed for them.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Present market conditions are anomalous, to say the least. General demand is increasingly large. Of course there are days like October 6 and 7 when a bit of warm weather causes a temporary recession; but, taking it by and large, demand is growing constantly stronger. And here is where the difficulty comes in.

Carnations are far from plentiful on the market, though they may be obtained if the buyer is wise and knows where to look for them. Chrysanthemums are far short of the demand, many growers reporting their crops at least two weeks later than in former years. To be sure, there is a greater variety to choose from, white, yellow and pink arriving on the market; but one is not inclined to pick and choose when the supply is limited. The situation, however, should be relieved within another week, as many large crops will be on in a few days.

This condition is rather aggravated by the fact that Easter lilies are unusually scarce. Valley, however, is meeting demand. Cattleyas, while in no greater supply, are in less demand. A few gladioli and asters hang on most tenaciously, but they are in almost neg-

HERE is a famous saying by Emerson that explains the continued and increasingly rapid growth of our business—

"If a man can write a better book, preach a better sermon or make a better mousetrap, though he builds his home in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—Emerson.

We have not "built our home in the woods" exactly, having the most central and accessible location in Chicago, and the most complete equipment, but we believe that year in and year out Amling's flowers are the most satisfactory and profitable flowers to use; Amling's service is the nearest perfect to be found—that is why our business grows.

HOOSIER BEAUTY

And Other First-class Roses

We call attention to our special crop of Hoosier Beauty. These are the finest roses now in this market and will appeal particularly to the retailer who wants something not common and of extra quality. We have them in quantity up to 30 to 36-inch stems.

Also we have large supplies of Russell, extra fine Milady, excellent Ophelia, etc.

For corsage work we offer Mrs. Ward in quantity.

WHITE—MUMS—YELLOW

Chrysanthemums now are in large supply with us. We can keep you selling. Can furnish the medium grade at from $2.00 to $3.00 per dozen, in almost any quantity.

MEDIUM BEAUTIES

We have at present a large supply of medium Beauties of excellent quality and can furnish long or short in considerable quantity.

CARNATIONS ARE READY

It is nice, clean stock, although some of the stems are not yet long.

ORCHIDS

We offer fine Cattleyas in quantity.

VALLEY

You always can get fine Valley here.

EASTER LILIES

While we never are without good Giganteum Lilies, our supply this week is larger than usual. The stock is fine, cut tight for shipping.

ligible quantities. Rubrums, too, are almost out. A few short-stemmed sweet peas are arriving on the market, and a scattering of violets, snapdragons and cosmos, but they afford no relief.

Roses alone, of all the various items on the market, are in almost unlimited supply. Were it not for the scarcity of other items there would be something approaching a glut of roses. All varieties, however, have not been equally plentiful. White roses have been much more plentiful than pink. Russell is never in excess of demand. Beauties, too, in spite of increased supply, are clearing. Quality is better in all kinds of stock.

Smilax is so far on the short side of the market that great difficulty is experienced in securing even a small amount. Other greens are moving in a most satisfactory manner.

Club Meeting.

There was little time spent on preliminaries at the meeting of the Florists' Club, October 5. Routine work was rapidly dispatched and the business of the evening tackled with a will. Passing the punch bowl on to the next meeting has become a part of the regular program, and was reenacted this time owing to the fact that Andrew Benson, its winner, was not present.

C. W. Johnson, president of the Illinois State Florists' Association, talked interestingly on the subject of the fall flower festival to be held by the association in Bloomington, November 9 and 10. He invited as many as could to send exhibits, and urged on all the duty of attending. Handbills of the festival were distributed to those present.

George Asmus spoke on the work of the F. T. D. and its session at the La Salle hotel, October 11 and 12, and invited everyone to make it his business to attend.

Martin Amling and Emile Schnake, both of Maywood, were elected to membership. The following filed applications: Peter Knowe, of Peter Knowe & Son, Chamber of Commerce building; Robert Windler, 6638 Ridge avenue; A. L. Vaughan, 161 North Wabash avenue.

In deference to the Illinois State Florists' Association the club voted to postpone the next meeting till November 16, to avoid conflicting with the association's festival. This postponed meeting will be devoted to a chrysanthemum and novelty show. In view of his past successes as an organization worker, Fred Lautenschlager, of the Kroeschell Bros. Co., was elected publicity manager. This is assurance enough that every florist in Cook county will know all there is to be known about the show in ample time to lend a hand. This much can be stated definitely: Chrysanthemum seedlings will be judged by the Chicago judges of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, N. J. Wiator, George Asmus and Thomas W. Head.

The meeting, though not large, about forty being present when President Henderson called to order, was one in which things moved with a snap. Moreover, it had the great advantage of being representative.

Various Notes.

Perhaps no part of his duties as president of the county commissioners has interested Peter Reinberg more than the work in connection with the forest reserve. He plans to give Chicago an outer belt of natural parks and his friends predict it will be so successful as to become his most enduring monument.

The desk of the president of the E. C. Amling Co. always has a special vase of flowers on it when Mr. Amling arrives on the morning of October 10, because it is his birthday. This was his forty-eighth anniversary.

Owing to the excessively dry season in northern Wisconsin and Michigan, it will be necessary for the pickers of bouquet greens to go deeper into the woods to get the best quality of stocks, says Arnold Ringier, of the W. W. Barnard Co.; and this will entail a greater expense in getting the goods onto the market. As a result of this condition, indications point to firm prices.

October 5 a party of well known local florists made the round trip, in two big, bright, new Packard Twin Sixes, to visit French & Salm, at Union Grove, Wis. The cars were those of H. N. Bruns and E. C. Amling. Their guests were H. C. Wendland, Henry Wehrman, Ernst C. Amling, Paul Weiss, Eugene Dramm and John Michelsen. The drivers were Harold Amling and Herman Bruns. After an inspection of the French & Salm establishment, which is devoted exclusively to the Mrs. Russell rose and in which the stock is in extremely promising condition, the party was taken to Brown lake for dinner by Messrs. French and Salm. The round trip of 173 miles, including stops, occupied only eleven hours.

Everyone in any way concerned with bulbs has been busy during the last few days, heavy shipments of Dutch stock having arrived. Retail sales do not begin until there have been heavy frosts, but J. P. Degnan, of Winterson's Seed Store, says the wholesale demand is the best yet known. Those who force bulbs are buying in larger quantities than ever before.

It may be that the excellence of the present crop of Milady has nothing to do with it, but W. J. Keimel is disposing of his old Hudson Six and in a few days expects delivery of a new H. A. Lozier 12-cylinder touring car and a Scripps-Booth runabout.

P. L. McKee, of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., and Adolph Nielsen, with W. H. Gullett & Sons, gave the St. Louis market the once over last week.

After having spent three weeks on an eastern trip, as far as New York city, A. Miller, president of the American Bulb Co., has returned to his office confident that the season now opening will be the best the trade ever has known.

What was reported as a rumor in The Review of last week is confirmed. Walter A. Amling, son of William Amling, of Maywood, will be married to Miss Mattie Groll, in Holgate, O., October 26. Mr. Amling met his future wife while vacationing in the east. The young couple will make their home in Maywood.

Now that W. J. Smyth has completed the alterations in his store front he has one of the showiest places in Chicago. He has faced it to the left. Whereas it formerly was narrow and deep, facing on Thirty-first street, it now is wide and shallow, facing on Michigan boulevard, with the principal entrance still in the corner. The plate glass frontage is three times what it was. With the great windows full of palms, ferns and blooming plants and the interior brilliantly illuminated by ceiling lamps, the store is one of the avenue's brightest spots, by day or by night.

The eldest daughter of Charles W. Johnson is to be married this week. The groom is not a florist.

This is nativity week at Winterson's Seed Store, Edgar F. Winterson, Jr., having been 25 years of age October 11 and J. P. Degnan celebrating his forty-third birthday October 16. When L. H. Winterson was connected with the concern he inaugurated the festivities, his day being October 10.

Nothing succeeds like success, says Herman Wallace, of the W. L. Palinsky greenhouses and store, 2865 Palmer avenue. The cause of the remark is a fine 1/2-ton Studebaker car that is now helping in the delivery department. A new car is an expense, but it is also a business getter.

that weird and famous instrument of Hawaii, and she intends to take lessons on it and these will be passed along. Here is a chance for the club.

The first giant cosmos of the season was received by the Kennicott Bros. Co. from Carbondale, Ill.

Chicago members of the trade, more particularly the old-timers, will learn with regret of the death of Ed Kissell, who dropped dead in the house of Hibbard, Spencer, Bartlett & Co., October 6. Though not a member of the trade, he was for years a member of the famous "Clinker Quartette" that entertained the florists' club and enlivened many other trade gatherings. Other members of the quartette were: Ed Winterson, George Asmus, Charles McKellar and Charles Balluff. It was always a rule of these singers to have one extra man.

A splendid quality of Beauties and Ophelia roses is being cut in the Wiator Bros. range. Chrysanthemums will be in full crop next week.

ers' Club was held October 3, at the greenhouses of Butler & Ullman, at Northampton. There was an excellent attendance of members and the meeting was interesting throughout. Prospects are bright for the fourth annual show, which is to be held in the Northampton city hall, November 1 and 2. The Henry F. Michell Co., of Philadelphia, offered one of its bronze medals for competition, and it was voted to award this for the best plant group.

Instead of reading and discussing a paper, each member brought a question. These queries naturally covered a wide field, but as a sign of the times it was interesting to note that several had to do with the increasing cost of doing business.

Butler & Ullman exhibited vases of Ophelia and Russell roses of excellent quality, and H. E. Downer showed flowering plants of the water hyacinth, Eichhornia crassipes. H. E. D.

PHILADELPHIA.The Market.

There are those who say that we have had Indian summer during this second week of October; there are those who say that we have had no such thing. They all agree that when the mercury rises above 80 degrees it is extremely bad for the cut flower market.

The effect of the heat has been to completely change conditions. Flowers that were scarce a week ago now are extremely plentiful. With so many varieties in strong supply at the same time, the market has become overloaded, despite increased demand. The striking features of the market are that chrysanthemums are now pushing dahlias aside and that the fancy varieties of orchids have appeared in moderate quantities. The chrysanthemums now available are Smith's Advance, October Frost, White Frost and Polly Rose, white; Golden Glow and Chrysolara, yellow; Tint of Gold, orange; Unaka and Pacific Supreme, pink. They are mostly of excellent quality and sell well, the whites especially so.

Single violets are now excellent.

The orchids embrace Cattleya labiata, Dendrobium formosum, Vanda cærulea and a few oncidiums and fancy cypripediums. The dahlias have increased in number with the warm weather to an extent that has overloaded the market. Fine gladioli may still be had and a few rather poor asters. Oak foliage is fine. The shipping demand is strong.

Election Night.

There was bustle and activity on the floor of the Florists' Club at the annual meeting held in Horticultural hall on the evening of October 3. Every chair was taken and there was a fringe of members who found places on the billiard tables or shuffleboard, or stood. John Westcott was heard telling a friend that there ought to be an election every meeting night—it arouses so much interest. President George Burton called the meeting to order, after allowing grace for the tardy. Routine business was rapidly pushed through; then the election of officers to serve during the coming year was called. Tellers were appointed, printed tickets distributed and a line quickly formed. The election was so serious an affair that a judge was in charge of the polls to see that no member exercised his privilege without right or too frequently. This caused some delay.

While the line is waiting there is time to see why so much interest has been awakened. The contest for president is not an extremely serious one. Most of the members feel that one of themselves, who has been identified with the club's life for so long, has earned this highest honor. The case with the secretaryship is quite different. The members are pretty evenly divided between those who want to continue the present order of things and those who do not. There is always a certain amount of business in the club's politics. It is understood that in the case of the presidency, two of the great houses of the city that take a deep interest in the club's welfare are united; whereas in the case of the secretary they are opposed.

The line has melted away; the call for more voters brings no response; the polls are closed. William Saville reads his paper; it is applauded and discussed. The secretary rises to read the results of the election. The old guard have triumphed over the youngsters by the narrowest of margins! Speeches are made; congratulations are offered; the utmost good feeling prevails. Election night is over and the members have dispersed in groups of two and three and more.

Around the Circuit.

Thursday, October 5, a select party of ten covered a distance of seventy-nine miles in two motor cars, at the invitations of Alfred Burton and his brother, George Burton. The party consisted of Alfred Burton, George Burton, David E. Colflesh, J. William Colflesh, William Engler, A. Harvey, Edmond A. Harvey, Robert Kift, Arthur A. Niessen and last, but by no means least, Samuel S. Pennock. Starting from the Burton places, they traversed Montgomery and Bucks counties, visiting Stephen Mortensen at Southampton; John Andre at Doylestown; the Chalfont Cut Flower Co. at Chalfont; the Florex Gardens at North Wales, and the Joseph Heacock Co. at Roelofs. Returning to Wyndmoor, they took supper with George Burton.

Various Notes.

William P. Craig left this city October 10 for Chicago and St. Louis, to attend the meeting of the National Flower Show committee.

Robert Kift was a judge at the Maryland state flower show at Hagerstown, Md., this week.

Carl Boyer spoke on "Plants as Soil Builders" at the October meeting of the Germantown Horticultural Society.

Fred Cowperthwaite was one of the judges of the Lansdowne flower show October 7, and also judge of the Norwood dahlia and chrysanthemum show on the same day.

The Keller Pottery Co. has announced an increase in the price of flower pots to forty-five per cent off list, to take effect at once.

The London Flower Shop is attracting attention by the taste shown in its window display.

George Aeugle says that the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co. will put a second car on the street next week.

J. Stephenson's Son has installed cold storage on the place at Oak Lane. A feature of this cold storage room is a window formed of three sashes, which open as one. This admits light and, as need be, air. William Geiger has the place looking well. The flowers go to the Philadelphia Wholesale Florists' Exchange.

Recent visitors included H. E. Gibson, with the Zieger Co., of Pittsburgh, and Miss G. Newlands, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Pennock Bros. herald the arrival of the debutante season with exquisite window displays of dainty baskets, beautifully filled. The effect is heightened by a soft pink and deep green background.

Large shipments of chrysanthemums are ahead of the usual time. Some grand flowers are already here, commanding $6 per dozen. Prices range from this figure down to 5 cents each for the smaller flowers. A fair average would be a quotation of 50 cents to $3 per dozen for the bulk of the arrivals. There are already over a dozen varieties here and these will increase to a score before another week passes.

The American Beauty is again at the front, touching 35 cents and with an upward tendency. The demand is growing steadily. All roses are doing better. Hadley and Prima Donna are popular and all good roses are selling at better figures than since the month of June. Mrs. Russell, Ophelia, Mock and Stanley are the favorites, perhaps, at present, but all are selling well.

Violets felt the heat last week and fell to 35 cents per hundred for the best and as low as 10 cents per hundred. Far better if never a violet saw New York before November.

Cattleyas are down again, some of the wholesalers declaring 25 cents as top for the best of them; 30 cents would seem to be the high figure now, as there is a great abundance arriving. Lilies are firm at present levels, some extra stock bringing $8 per hundred. Valley is strong and not overabundant, the best realizing $5 per hundred. There still are some fine gladioli here and few good asters. Dahlias also escaped the early frost, but the days of this trio are about numbered.

Carnations are beginning to look natural again, both in stem and flower, and are arriving in daily increasing volume. Prices are from $1 to $3 per hundred, the latter for a limited quantity of perfect flowers.

There are more white and yellow mums than last week and they have improved in quality. There is a demand for these. Pacific Supreme is meeting with considerable favor. American Beauty roses have been scarce and those obtainable brought up to $4. Valley is more plentiful than last week and one now may buy it in fair quantities at $6 per hundred. Orchids formed a glut on the market early in the week. They were offered as low as $4 per dozen and could be had in quantities for less money. The varieties offered were Cattleya Schroederæ, C. Trianae and C. labiata. Dahlias now are good. They brought more money last week, because the early frost killed quite a few in some locations, thus decreasing Always Put in Front-- WHY?

When a certain line of goods is always put in front, and shows an unbroken record of increasing sales for the past five years, there must be more than one "reason" for it. The finest sales organization, the cleverest advertising ever devised, will not keep a line in the front unless it has other merit back of it than just being a good line. As a matter of fact, there are "reasons" why this line of baskets is always in the front. Here they are:

Costly Appearance Low Prices Practicability Easy-filling Quality Originality and many other reasons too numerous to mention. But these are the main causes for the unchallenged leadership of the Neidinger Baskets.

the supply and making a better market for the remainder. At the end of the week the weather again turned warm, bringing out additional stock and steadying prices.

The few carnations that came in during the week brought as high as $3 per hundred. These are fair-sized flowers and are good for this season of the year. There are plenty of roses of all varieties. A marked improvement is noticed in Hadley, Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty and Radiance, and Prima Donna is unusually good. White roses continue scarce and those that are available have short stems. There is a good demand for these, on account of the large quantity of funeral work. There still are some gladioli to be had at from $6 to $8 per hundred, but they are not good, although selling fairly well.

Various Notes.

cult to secure men. This season he has had to shoulder a great deal of additional work himself. He will be absent for a month.

Miss Julia Ballenger, manager of the Z. D. Blackstone store, was absent from the city last week on a short vacation.

Mrs. S. P. Martin has taken over the Freeman greenhouses and will conduct them, with Samuel Simmons as her manager. Mrs. Martin comes from New York city and has had no previous experience in the business. Mr. Simmons is a thorough florist and gardener, having learned the business in England. He came to this country a number of years ago to serve as gardener for the Leiter estate. The Freeman range represents between 50,000 and 60,000 feet of glass. While the principal crops now produced are roses, carnations and sweet peas, miscellaneous flowers also will be grown during the first year. It is said that Mrs. Martin has a seven years' lease on the place, with an option of buying.

The new rose, Mrs. Charles J. Bell, was a feature of the meeting of the Florists' Club of Washington, D. C., held at 1214 F' street, northwest, last week. This rose is a sport from Radiance, produced by John Anderson, gardener for the Bell estate. He has had it for three years and has found it flowers more freely than the parent plant. It is a beautiful flesh pink in color and is more fragrant than Radiance. Several of the florists present reported having lost much outdoor stock by the frost, the earliest in years, BUFFALO.

The Market.

The frost last week put a crimp in all outdoor stock, which had been put to most advantageous use in funeral pieces. The demand for Beauties is increasing; their quality is good Ophelia at present is leading the list of popular roses; Sunburst and Francis Scott Key also are great sellers. It is generally understood that Mrs. Russell sells without any difficulty in any of the markets. It has been rumored that valley will be more plentiful, but as yet there has been no decided change. Orchids have not increased in quantity. Lilies are in rather small supply and have a heavy demand. As previously stated, asters and gladioli are almost out of the question.

Carnations perhaps may be classified with valley, the supply being somewhat erratic, although the quality is becoming better rapidly. The stems, too, are longer. Marigolds have been a great factor in the market, greater than ever before. Violets are improving much in quality, both double and single, but the quantity is somewhat short. Nice snapdragons are to be had and there is no difficulty in disposing of them. Chrysanthemums are slowly increasing in supply. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

Various Notes.

P. M. Phillips, manager for S. A. Weller, was in town last week. C. M. Acher, of the Roseville Pottery, also stopped at Buffalo. Both of these visitors managed to take several orders with them. Another visitor was R. Shoch, with the M. Rice Co., Philadelphia.

stock nevertheless is practically at an end. Business continues good and the supply short.

Roses are in great demand, bringing from $2 to $6 per hundred for shorts and $6 to $7 for the better ones. Nearly all varieties are procurable, but the market is cleaned up daily. Carnations are improving in quality, but remain about the same in price. Chrysanthemums have not come into their own as yet, but if the weather remains favorable the crop soon will be on. Snapdragons and Buddleia Asiatica still are available, but not in quantity. Lilies are extremely scarce and in robust demand on account of the heavy funeral and wedding work.

Various Notes.

A. Jacobs, of the Florists' Decorating & Importing Co., of New York, was on deck early October 9 to call on the trade. He reports business exceptionally good all along the way and a shortage of flowers at every stop he made.

HINSDALE, MASS.

called on a few of the downtown stores last week.

Clarence Thomas, of the E. G. Hill Floral Co., has been racking his brains for novel ideas, as he has had five floats to make for the centennial parades. He has had so many weddings lately that he goes around whistling the wedding march!

John Rieman has been displaying some of the finest chrysanthemums in the city.

Walter Berkhoff is with the E. A. Nelson Floral Co. again.

David Kelley, of Franklin, visited the city last week and reported stock so scarce at Franklin that hardly any business could be carried on.

The stock of Merry Christmas carnations, put out by Baur & Steinkamp, is looking well and orders now are being booked for December and January.

The combined meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana and the Kentucky Society of Florists will be held October 17 and 18. The Indianapolis party will leave on the Pennsylvania, 7:20 a. m., October 17. E. T. T.

The Market.

The market was in a splendid condition last week and business was good. Prices, too, were good for cut stock. It was festival week and this always brings some extra work for the retailers. As yet we have had no killing frosts and outdoor stock is holding up well. Mums are scarce in this market; Golden Glow and Smith's Advance are the only varieties seen. Roses seem to be plentiful, and really good stock of Ophelia, Russell, Ward, Sunburst and Killarney were seen. Carnations are in big demand, but extra good quality stock is scarce. There are a number of short-stemmed carnations that make $3 per hundred. Among the outdoor stock still arriving are dahlias, cornflowers, calendulas, gladioli and cosmos. These have a good call. Fine orchids were seen last week, which brought $7.50 per dozen. Longiflorum and rubrum lilies are scarce; also valley. A fine supply of excellent asparagus is arriving; also smilax and adiantum. Good ferns are plentiful.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association held a splendid meeting October 4 at the Eleven Mile House. The meeting was well attended and much important business transacted. A lengthy discussion brought out the fact that all members are in tiptop shape for the coming season and will furnish the St. Louis market with extra quality stock.

Sunday, October 8, fifteen park superintendents, headed by Theodore Wirth, arrived in St. Louis on their way to New Orleans, where they will attend the meeting of the American Association of Park Superintendents. Superintendent Ernest Strehle, L. P. Jensen and John Moritz met the party and took them to breakfast, after which an automobile tour of the city was made. Most of the travelers were accompanied by their wives.

A telegram was received October 7 from John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., stating that Chairman George Asmus had called a meeting of the National Flower Show committee to be held in St. Louis, at the Jefferson hotel, and that ten of the officials of the society would be present. Club, called a special meeting to prepare a program for the visiting committee.

Adolph Nielsen, manager for Gullett & Sons, of Lincoln, Ill., and P. L. McKee, of the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co., Chicago, were here last week visiting the big county growers. They were much pleased with the progress being made here in greenhouse building.

Ted Wedderburn, for many years with Edwin Denker, of St. Charles, Mo., has resigned his position and left for Farmington, Utah, where he has accepted a position with a florist.

C. Luthause and E. L. Baumhardt, of Gullett & Sons, Lincoln, Ill., spent two days here last week visiting friends and relatives.

Ernest Marshall, of Webster Groves, Mo., who is known as the cockscomb king, brought in a cockscomb last week that measured thirty-six inches in circumference. The bloom was exhibited at the office of the Post Dispatch, an afternoon daily paper, and attracted much attention.

Paul Ahner is building a greenhouse, 25x125, which is being rushed to completion before the cold weather sets in. Mr. Ahner grows splendid carnations, sweet peas and chrysanthemums.

Martin Lechner, of Lechner Bros., has been confined to a hospital during the last ten days with pneumonia, caused by a cold contracted while with the soldiers on the Mexican border. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

William Seeger, head of the Mullanphy Florists, was a visitor in the wholesale district October 6 and introduced his 3-months-old daughter, Gloria.

O'Leary, the Florist, at 3606 Washington avenue, reports a splendid business last week. Miss O'Leary, head of this place, says the outlook for a good season's business is excellent.

The St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower good orchids last week, which were cleaned up quickly. October 2, 400 orchids were disposed of.

The Market.

We continue to have clear weather and temperatures have been quite high for October. While this has materially increased the supplies of chrysanthemums and roses, there as yet is little surplus of anything and business remains satisfactory. Outdoor flowers are of good quality for the late season and frosts have spared even dahlias thus far. Of roses there are increased supplies and, while these have moved more sluggishly, there has been little or no recession in prices. Select American Beauties remain at $25 per hundred. Hybrid teas sell from $1.50 to $12 per hundred. Russell, Hadley, Stanley, Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty are leaders. The call for White Killarney has been good for weddings, which have been quite numerous of late. Carnations sell quickly at good prices, almost as soon as they are unpacked. Alice, Matchless, Pink Delight and Benora are in special favor.

Chrysanthemums are becoming more plentiful. Such varieties as Unaka, Smith's Advance, Chrysolora, Polly Rose, Glory of the Pacific and October Frost are mostly seen. Prices remain good. Pompons are also coming from one or two growers. Single violets are in fair supply; so is cosmos. Dahlias are seen on one or two stands and are featured by some of the retailers. Lily of the valley still sells at high prices. Cattleya labiata is becoming quite abundant and more gardenias are being offered. Asters linger, but they are passing rapidly, as well as gladioli. It has been a profitable season for growers with good supplies of these. Lilies continue to be good property. A fair supply of both annuals still comes in. There is an oversupply of candytuft. Asparagus continues to sell somewhat poorly.

With a killing frost the market will take on more vigor, but the business of the late summer and fall to date has been encouraging and everything now indicates a winter of splendid business.

considering the rather unfavorable season. The Mount Desert Nurseries, of Bar Harbor, Me., had a good display of hardy asters, aconitums and other perennials in bamboo stands. Raymond W. Swett had some excellent seedling gladioli. The annual fall exhibition of chrysanthemums, etc., opens November 1. Some attractive classes for vegetables are offered. One for fifteen varieties has premiums of $75 and $50.

Frank Edgar, of Waverley, has a fine, new Vim delivery truck. He has a splendid house of mums and has been cutting Advance and Golden Glow for some time. He has gone into pot plants quite heavily and his Lorraine and Cincinnati begonias, poinsettias and cyclamens are fine.

At the Brockton fair, October 3 to 6, H. M. Robinson & Co. captured first and second in the class for fifty roses with Hoosier Beauty and Sunburst. B. A. Snyder & Co. were third with Russell. Dahlia specialists, such as W. D. Hathaway, W. P. Lothrop, J. K. Alexander, F. L. Tinkham and others made splendid displays. The classes calling for twenty-five each of the various types of dahlias on long stems were all well contested and made a pleasant change from the stereotyped array of bottles containing single blooms. W. W. Hathaway, L. W. Bates and Fred French judged the flowers; D. Finlayson, the vegetables and W. N. Craig, the fruits.

R. E. Wadsworth & Co., of Northboro, who are among our largest and most successful carnation specialists, are growing Pink Delight, Matchless and Benora most heavily this season. They are still growing Gorgeous and have planted a good batch each of Good Cheer, Nebraska and Belle Washburn. They have a grand lot of mums in all the leading sorts. They will cut Chrysolora in quantity this week. One house is devoted to giant mignonettes and they have 5,000 Purity freesias charged with the murder of his father, which occurred February 29. The murdered man was one of the most noted carnation hybridizers and some of his seedlings, notably Albert Roper, a beautiful rose-pink, will be much heard from in the future.

R. A. Hatch, of Cliftondale, is first in the market with Chrysolora mums.
His roses now are in excellent crop.

Officers of the Boston Retail Florists'
Club were elected October 4 as follows:
President, H. R. Comley; vice-president, Samuel Wax; treasurer, Julius A.
Zinn; secretary, Harry Quint; directors, chairman, Henry Penn; Nathan Silverman, H. R. Comley, Julius A.
Zinn, Martin Tuohy and Martin Wax.
The club has been in a state of suspended animation for some time and will, I hope, now do some active work which will justify its existence.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market

Most of the growers found the greater part of their outdoor flowers severely bitten by frosts October 7 and 8. Consequently the dahlias, which had been coming in fairly well, were destroyed.
Only in sheltered places was any of the stock saved. We therefore have been considerably handicapped in procuring cheap flowers. Gladioli are nearly over and asters, which are extremely poor and scarce, are slackening in supply.
There is a decidedly short supply of early chrysanthemums this season, owing chiefly to the fact that the late varieties are more profitable to grow.
However, a few yellow and white ones are seen, and they bring a fair figure.
There is an abundance of roses, which arrive in splendid condition and sell nicely. Ophelia is becoming more and more popular here and is pleasing to both buyer and seller owing to its good lasting qualities. Sweetheart roses also are selling well.

Carnations are not arriving in large quantities as yet and at present there are not enough of them to supply the demand. Violets have made their first appearance of the season, but there is little call for them. The supply of Easter lilies is fairly good. Lily of the valley meets all demands and orchids are plentiful and sell well. Some extra fine tuberose reach us, but in limited quantities. Snapdragon sells easily.
Arctotis is useful for basket work, as is larkspur, which arrives occasionally.
There was quite a business done last week in palms and ferns, especially the latter. There are no blooming plants in sight as yet.

Various Notes.

Cretonne draped from the corner of the window, with a number of artware dishes filled with Sweetheart roses and fall foliage, attracted many people. Mr. Kaelber reports that business is satisfactory, and that it exceeds his expectations.

The bulb season has opened and most of the stores have them on display in their windows. The prices appear to be much the same as those of previous years, and the stock is good.

Visitors to the trade were William B. Leipzig, of A. Leipzig, Inc., New York; L. J. Sieger, of the Robert Craig Co., Philadelphia; John Ward, of Mumford, N. Y.

The employees of George B. Hart were entertained to a sausage roast October 5 at the farm of Walter Salmon, of Brighton, N. Y. George Cramer and John Martin were the guests of honor.

The return of the militia from the border took place October 5. Thousands of people thronged the line of march and the streets were gayly decorated with flags and bunting. Most of the store windows were trimmed for the occasion.

James Vick's Sons report better business at their seed store during the last week or two. They have a mammoth display of bulbs on hand and report good sales. Work is progressing satisfactorily at the seed farm. The clear, dry weather has been far more helpful to them than was the wet weather at planting time, and they are figuring on a splendid harvest this year.

Harry Merritt, of Irondequoit, N. Y., now is cutting a fair quantity of carnations. His cuts are far ahead of last year's at this time. The greenhouse stock is in splendid condition and clearly shows the amount of care and work he gives it.

BATAVIA, N. Y.

A heavy frost, the severest ever recorded hereabouts at this time of the year, October 1, has put an end to outdoor stock. Kirchhoff, the gladiolus specialist, lost heavily. He was making fine cuts for shipment to the eastern cities. Harry A. Erckert, who had 20,- 000 aster plants in flower, of which he was making shipments to Buffalo and New York, found the remainder of his plants frozen to the ground by the cold.
Mr. Erckert has been remarkably successful with asters this year, having had a steady cut from early in the season. The quality of the flowers, while not up to that of other years, was above the average for the season.

Stroh & Sons' exhibit at the Genesee county fair was an elaborate affair, the baskets and designs winning all the first premiums. This concern has had good business and will continue to add glass to the range. Mum and carnation plants never looked better.

Seed Trade NewsAMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.; Secretary-Treasurer, O. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE northwestern pea crops are undeniably short this year.

THE British authorities announce that no further authorizations will be issued for the exportation of grass seeds to Norway.

F. W. BRUGGERHOF, president of J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York, will be 86 years of age October 13. He was born in Prussia in 1830.

FREDERICK W. WAGENFOHR has become proprietor of the seed store heretofore conducted by the William Quade estate, at Mount Vernon, N. Y.

THE Holland bulb houses not only are supplying a considerable percentage of the French bulbs used in the United States and in England, but they even have begun to handle Japanese bulbs.

THE various committees of the National Canners' Association will hold meetings at Hotel La Salle, Chicago, October 17 to 20 and a number of seedsmen's representatives will be within hail.

THE Winfield Nursery Co., of Winfield, Kan., is preparing to enter the mail order seed business. The new department will be under the direct supervision of J. Moncrief, president of the company. H. S. Baker is secretary and treasurer.

THE Wing & Bros. Seed Co., of Mechanicsburg, O., is complainant in a rate discrimination case against the Baltimore & Ohio and other railroads, which is being heard by an interstate commissioner at Springfield. The complainant declares that he was charged a higher rate for transportation of phosphate rock than the law allows.

THE onion sets at Chicago have nearly all been warehoused. While the crop is short, the quality as a rule is excellent. Not much business is being done at present, because of the unwillingness of holders to accept orders for future delivery at prevailing prices. There is a belief that this year's short crop will bring more money in the spring than many a full yield has done.

THE Holland crop of cabbage, too, is short.

SOME of the real estate holdings of the Griswold Seed Co., Lincoln, Neb., are to be sold at auction October 17 by the referee in bankruptcy.

IN a general way seed crops in England are below the average. The heavy rains that seem most inopportune, have done much damage early and late.

JOHN VOSBERG, manager of the vegetable seed department of J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York, died in City Hospital October 11, as the result of a fall on the subway steps at Newark, October 9. He was 33 years of age.

INSPECTORS returning from Michigan say the beans are decidedly irregular, some localities having good crops while almost total failure has occurred only a few miles away. Under these conditions one must await actual delivery; no general average will hold good.

DANISH SEED CROPS.

Hjalmar Hartmann & Co., Copenhagen, say that owing to a short crop last year, large cultivations are the rule this season. The crop outlook is satisfactory. The planting of cabbage was limited and rain storms in August damaged the crop, so that they do not expect more than about fifty per cent of an average crop. The crop of Brussels sprouts was good. The carrot crop will be late. The flowers set nicely, but the continued rainy and cold weather has hindered the ripening. The crop of garden beet will be small. Last fall it was difficult to induce farmers to grow swedes and turnips, as the prices for wheat, barley and oats ranged high and it was less risk to grow grain instead of roots. This has generally resulted in small acreages; besides this, the crop was damaged by the heavy rains and about fifty per cent of the seeds were left on the ground. The

TULIPS=TOP SIZE BULBS

We have them in the leading varieties. You should try some, whether you have bought your bulbs or not, for there is a difference. They are "MONEY-WORTH" quality. Strong Tulip Bulbs will give much stronger and larger flowers.

SINGLE EARLY

Couleur Cardinal, finest scarlet for Easter, because it never has that loose, filmy look. Top bulbs, $1.60 per 100; $15.00 per 1000.

La Reine. Try some top bulbs. Results will show in the flower. $1.00 per 100; $8.00 per 1000.

Flamingo, the most gorgeous of the early tulips. Forced from a top size bulb, the stem is stiff and the flowers very large. $2.50 per 100; $22.00 per 1000.

Rose Luisante, a pink tulip par excellence for pot culture. Top bulbs, $1.50 per 100; $14.50 per 1000.

Keizerskroon, red and yellow. Top bulbs, $1.60 per 100; $14.50 per 1000.

Couronne d'Or, fine double yellow. Top bulbs, $1.65 per 100; $16.50 per 1000.

Murillo, double, bluish white, shaded rose. Top bulbs, $1.30 per 100; $12.00 per 1000.

parsley crop was insignificant. Several acreages of radish were infected by insects on account of dry weather during sowing time. There are some good plots, but it depends on the fall weather if the crop will turn out about normal.

ELDRIDGE'S TRAVELOGUE.

A. M. Eldridge, of the Henry Field Seed Co., Shenandoah, Ia., is secretary of the Iowa Seed Dealers' Association and a part of his official duty is to send out a letter every week or two to the members, keeping them posted on such matters as specially concern the trade in Iowa. "But our fellows don't furnish any copy," says Mr. Eldridge, "so how can I?" Consequently he has devoted his latest communication to some of his personal observations. Mr. Eldridge is what is commonly called a live wire and he not only sees things but he knows how to make others see them too. What he says is worthy a wider circulation than his membership list, so here is where it gets it:

"On my vacation trip I visited the Younkerman Seed Co. and the Ouren Seed Co., of Council Bluffs. Mr. Grote, our association president, took special care of me and I noticed incidentally that the Younkerman Seed Co. has a good business. They do a good retail business, have a good counter trade, and I was much impressed with the genuineness of things. I would not hesitate to send a child there to buy. The hospitable attitude of that establishment will be appreciated more and more as time goes on by those who deal with them.

"The Ouren folks are located farther out in the city and, while they do some local business, I infer that their stronghold is the wholesale end. They have one of the best equipped buildings I ever saw and their fire protection system is something we would all do well to imitate. It is the best I have ever seen.

"The Sioux City Seed Co. is a wonderful institution. That may be placing it rather broadly, but it's a fact. I just happened to be there on the day of their annual meeting. Treated courteously? Why, I was in on everything except the dividend and you folks who think Henry Ford is the originator of man's humanity to man have another guess coming. This company has always been close to its employees; not a labor dividend proposition, but a personal interest affair. This company assumes that a man will be a better man if he owns his home. They don't give him a home, but they fix it so he can get it at a reasonable price, and protect him, and a finer bunch of help you never saw, every one of them vitally interested in the business. Then they have an annual picnic. Anybody interested in any way with the company goes and the company pays all expenses. There may be some differences of opinion and some trouble there, but they do not show to a visitor.

"I wish I could visit every seed house in Iowa, but Sioux Falls, S. D., was a town I wanted to see, and Jones was the first man I met. He is evidently some kin to the Jones who 'pays the freight,' and he has the best building for a seed house I ever saw. It must have cost a pile of money, but it will last forever and is conveniently arranged for a seed business. Jones took me out to show me the country, and here was the great surprise of my entire trip. Why, the crops there would almost put our dear old Iowa to shame. Jones is getting notions about publishing a magazine called Alfalfa and it looks like a winner to me. In fact, he has been publishing it for more than a year and from what I can judge it is the real dope.

"Mitchell, S. D., is a fine town, too, one of the most beautiful towns I saw. Fine country around there, too. Lots of good wheat, oats and alfalfa, but the corn is not quite so good this year, although they usually raise splendid corn and the Corn Palace is an annual feature of more than state-wide interest. Mr. Hill, of the Dakota Improved Seed Co., is a fine gentleman and treated me just the same as though I amounted to something. He let me have $10. He's all right.

"The Gurney folks, of Yankton, were not at home when I got there. I never found out whether Hill wired them I was coming or not, but I saw their place of business and everything looked as though it was well managed.

"I talked to all these folks about the Iowa Seed Dealers' Association and found they had no association organized in South Dakota, and they are interested. Some of them are coming to our next meeting to see how it is done. Minnesota has already copied our constitution and by-laws, and some of them will visit us next year.

"Everywhere I see evidence of successful work, intelligent work, special work, and if it does not spell greater success in the future and much larger profits, I shall be much disappointed. There is still good timothy in the hands of the growers. If you want it and do not get it, it's your own fault. Present timothy prices are like corn at 25 cents a bushel. Potatoes are scarce and high, but people must have them.

"Heavy sales of wheat are reported by some, but don't carry it over. Russia has two crops on hand, bottled. When they get an opportunity to cut loose, prices on wheat will decline. The south is hit hard on corn. Most of Iowa is all right. Alfalfa is easier and the quality is better than usual. New crop is available now. I could tell you where you could buy below 14 cents if you want to know. It may be cheaper, but we never can tell.

"Clover is unsettled. There are some mighty good fields between here and Des Moines, but not enough to cut much figure on the market. Looks like we could not figure far ahead on that.

"My address is the same as it was when you last wrote me. I have missed you. How's everything? Write, even if you don't say anything important. Be neighborly. I'll appreciate it."

ARE YOU IMPORTING POTATOES?

Seedsmen who contemplate importing potatoes from foreign countries are notified by the United States Department of Agriculture that they should give consideration to the regulations regarding entry of potatoes to prevent the introduction and establishment of injurious diseases and insect pests. The importation of potatoes from Great Britain, including England, Scotland, Ireland and Wales; Germany; Austria-Hungary; Newfoundland, and the islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, is prohibited by quarantine, on account of the presence in those countries and islands of a serious plant disease known as potato wart or black scab. The following countries, in which this disease is not known to occur and which have complied with the regulations of the United States requiring examination and certification prior to shipment, have the privilege of exporting potatoes to this country, namely, Denmark, Belgium, Holland, Bermuda, Cuba and the Dominion of Canada.

Potatoes can be imported only under permit issued by the Federal Horticultural Board, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. Permits are issued to the importers in the United States, and not to the foreign shippers.

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

Jacob J. Sluis, of the Sluis Seed Store, of Chicago, recently returned from an extended visit to Holland and Denmark. He was much impressed with the great prosperity being enjoyed in these countries. A reduction in acreage will result in much less flower and vegetable seeds, it being found more profitable to grow cereals at this time. "The cheaper varieties of bulbs will be dearer and the higher-priced kinds scarcer," said Mr. Sluis, who is much pleased with the volume of business done during his absence.

James Currie, of the Currie Bros. Co., of Milwaukee, says that the banquet speech of the newly elected president of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America was a banner one, particularly the advocacy of a vegetarian dinner at the next annual gathering at Springfield, Mass., where, at this early stage, plans are being formed.

The G. H. Hunkel Co., of Milwaukee, has no fault to find with business. "Seed time and harvest will not fail," observed George Hunkel, stopping in the act of counting some plump seed of cyclamen, "and it will make us more self-dependent."

O. Machholz, of Milwaukee, says that if business continues to increase as it has been doing his building will not stand the strain and a new one will have to take its place.

W. E. Dallwig, of Milwaukee, has the business running smoothly, following the departure of its worthy founder, and looks for a continuance of prosperity.

Melzer's Seed Store, of Watertown, Wis., is receiving a choice grade of native-grown clover seed.

Manager Norman R. Buckley, of the L. L. Olds Seed Co., of Madison, Wis., expressed himself as being highly interested in The Review's exploitations of florists' store windows. "Do you know," exclaimed Mr. Buckley, "that one of the most attractive windows can be made in seeds or bulbs? Witness the result of our efforts for 'special week.'" It was an arrangement by which every popular kind of garden and field seed is displayed, each labeled, with the product flanking the sides and background. Business is reported as being tiptop.

The John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., expects soon to open a retail store in the center of town to keep in touch with the onward march of local trade. Mail order business is reported as being fully up to usual, with a fine harvest of seed and cereals through this region. W. M.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

SAN FRANCISCO DAHLIA SHOW.

Dahlias Splendid; Attendance Good.

Despite rather unfavorable weather conditions, the dahlia show held in the east annex of the Civic Auditorium October 3 and 4 was a great success from every point of view. It was given under the auspices of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society, the California State Floral Society and the California Dahlia Society. All the available space was taken and the exhibits of both professionals and amateurs were comprehensive and well arranged. The white walls of the auditorium, partly covered with greens furnished a splendid background for the wonderful array of dahlias, representing hundreds of different varieties and including various new specimens never before shown the public.

The rain the first day and threatening weather the second cut down the attendance somewhat, but even so there was no ground for complaint, as the hall was thronged with spectators most of the time during the entire two days. The "Path of Gold" celebration in commemoration of the installation of a new lighting system on Market street, which opened October 4, helped out considerably. The civic center was headquarters for many of the festivities connected with the carnival and a large percentage of the people participating in those events visited the dahlia show while in the neighborhood of the building, there being no charge for the exhibition.

Much credit for the success of the show is due H. Plath, under whose management it was conducted, Mrs. J. A. Scannavino, assistant manager, and Mrs. E. I. Chanelle, secretary.

The exhibition committee was composed as follows: J. Gill, F. Pelicano, W. Kenlewell, D. MacRorie, D. McLaren, J. G. Wintjen, Mrs. G. A. Spencer, Mrs. E. Lymbury, G. F. Taylor, A. J. Rossi, V. Podesta, H. Maier and F. C. Burns.

The Awards.

Following is a list of prize winners in the classes open to all:

Collection of dahlias, in seven classes—show, peony-flowered, decorative, cactus, pompon, single and collarette—ten varieties in each class, one bloom each—Mrs. Jessie Seal, first; Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, second.

Collection of dahlias, in seven classes, five varieties, one bloom each—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, first; Mrs. Jessie Seal, second.

Twenty-four cactus dahlias, twelve varieties—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, first; Mrs. Jessie Seal, second; Miss Ruth E. Gleadell, honorable mention.

Twenty-four decorative dahlias, twelve varieties—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, first; Miss Ruth E. Gleadell, second.

Twenty-four peony-flowering dahlias, twelve varieties—Mrs. Jessie Seal, first; Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, second.

Twenty-four show dahlias, twelve varieties—Mrs. Jessie Seal, first; Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, second.

Thirty-six pompon dahlias, twelve varieties, three blooms each—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, first; Mrs. Jessie Seal, second.

Thirty-six collarette dahlias, twelve varieties, three blooms each—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, first; Mrs. Jessie Seal, second.

Thirty-six single dahlias, twelve varieties, three blooms each—Mrs. Jessie Seal, first.

Seedling dahlias never before exhibited in competition, flower shown with stem—Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, certificate of merit; Richard Lohrmann, certificate of merit.

Fifty blooms, one variety—F. C. Burns & Co., first; Pelicano, Rossi & Co., second.

Twenty-five blooms, one variety—Pelicano, Rossi & Co., first; F. C. Burns & Co., second; Mrs. G. A. B. Spencer, honorable mention.

Six distinct classes, one bloom each—Richard Lohrmann, first; Bessie Boston Dahlia Farm, second.

Table decoration, dahlias and foliage—Pelicano, Rossi & Co., first; MacRorie & McLaren, second.

Basket dahlias, any style decoration, no other flowers—Miss Ruth E. Gleadell, first; Azalea Pelicano, second.

The Big Displays.

There also were fifteen competitive classes open only to amateurs. Special recognition was given various exhibits not for competition. The Richard Diener Co., of Kentfield, Cal., was given special mention for a large display of new seedling gladioli and pansies, which made a splendid showing. Other recipients of special mention were the California Seed Co., for a large display of dahlias, including many different varieties; N. F. Vanderbilt, for a special exhibit of seedling dahlias; Metzner Floral Co., for a pot of gerberas, or African daisies; Paul Grallert, for twelve pots of cyclamens; Fenton's Dahlia Farm, for a large display of dahlias; Mrs. John A. Scannavino, for a comprehensive display of dahlias.

A special prize offered by Vaughan's Seed Store, of Chicago, for the most meritorious display in the show, went to Pelicano, Rossi & Co., their display being the largest as well as the finest there. It occupied prominent space near the main entrance, the exhibit consisting of various large vases of dahlias, both established varieties and new seedlings, baskets and the table decoration which won first prize.

A landscape effect in the center of the hall furnished by MacRorie & McLaren added a great deal to the general effect of the show. A huge basket of dahlias and the table decoration made by this company were notable features also.

F. C. Burns' prize-winning vase of fifty blooms of Geisha attracted much attention. His exhibit as a whole was

Southern California has been visited by some more "unusual" weather, this time in the form of an early rain.
 About two inches has fallen so far and at present writing it looks as if there was more to come. Those who were not prepared for it, such as seed and bean growers, have, of course, suffered some loss, but in other lines the good done has far outbalanced the harm.

Outdoor carnations and chrysanthemums are more or less injured and the latter are already showing signs of decay, which will injure their shipping qualities. This does not, however, ap-flowers, but to the loosely built varieties with soft petals. A few days' sun will put the carnations in good shape again, and in the meantime there are quite a number of greenhouse-grown flowers. In the retailers' windows the mums are making an elegant show and business is said to be good in them.

Roses are improving right along and there is quite a demand for the pretty singles, Irish Elegance and Irish Fire-flame. Cecile Brunner is plentiful and good. Orchids are plentiful, but valley is scarce.

Various Notes.

At the Broadway store of S. Murata & Co. some of the finest Bonnaffon chrysanthemums seen this season are shown. The business done here is consistent and regular; large shipments are going out daily. An especially good line of pink carnations is being handled now.

Wallace Boyd, of the staff of Darling's Flower Shop, has returned from his combined vacation and honeymoon trip, which he enjoyed in the Yosemite. Mr. Boyd speaks highly of the natural beauties of this magnificent scenic wonder and says he feels like a giant refreshed for the autumn campaign. The new store is wonderfully attractive.

J. Morley, park superintendent of San Diego, was in town on a short visit last week.

L. Edlefson has returned from a business trip to San Diego.

During one of the recent rainy days Jacob Dieterich was observed cutting up in an unusual manner and exhibiting all appearances of extreme joy. Naturally we were all anxious to know the reason, and all one could get from Jake was the fact that it was raining daffodils for him. Later, when his temperature was down to normal again, he came through with the information that he had just sold about $4,000 worth of those Cocos plumosa trees he has been growing at Montebello. And still they say there is no money in the nursery business!

At the monthly meeting of the Los Angeles County Horticultural Society, held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms October 3, there was quite a large attendance of the general public, but not many members. James Taylor as vice-president took the chair in the absence of the president. Two papers were read, one by H. R. Richards on bulb culture, the other by C. E. Shaw, of Pasadena, on hardy perennials. Quite a large number of flowers were sent to illustrate Mr. Shaw's remarks, which were listened to with much interest. There also were some fine flowers of Fred Howard's new rose; Los Angeles, and an elegant table of baby roses from H. W. Turner, of Montebello. The pretty little Baby Doll was much admired, as it always is; in fact, all of them came in for a great deal of attention.

The Southern California Flower Market is installing a new and down-to-date refrigerating plant. Owing to the large number of greenhouse growers shipping to this house, they are able to send out good carnations during the wet season, when many growers of outdoor stock are in poor shape.

In my recent notes on A. Ecke's poinsettias I said that he was formerly at Pomona. This should have read

SAN FRANCISCO.

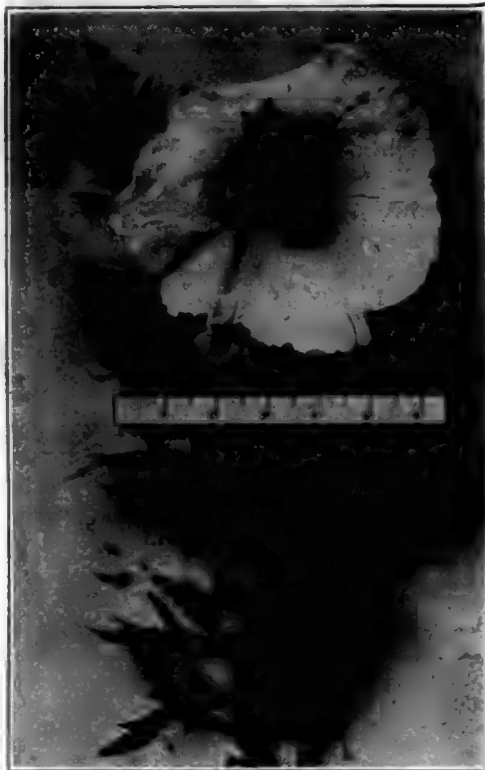

The Market.

The florists of the downtown business district of the city enjoyed an extra demand for flowers during the "Path of Gold" celebration, which inaugurated the new lighting system on Market street, and which was one of the most elaborate carnivals ever held in San Francisco. The event was well advertised and many out-of-town visitors came in to participate in the festivities. Various parties, dinners, banquets, etc., were arranged as side issues of the festival, some of which were of sufficient importance to provide good-sized decorations for the florists. Counter business was especially brisk, so the week as a whole was a good one for the trade.

The recent damp weather has had more or less effect upon certain varieties of flowers, but so far the chrysanthemums have not been hurt to any extent. The growers are not anxious for more rain right away, however. Chrysanthemums are the principal feature of the local market. All kinds and all sizes can be had in quantity, but they are well taken locally and the shipping demand is brisk, so the prices remain firm for good stock. Pompons continue in excellent favor. Interest in dahlias was somewhat stimulated by the dahlia show at the Civic Auditorium. The supply of this flower still is abundant, Burgle and Delice being popular varieties at the downtown stores. The rose supply has shortened, owing to the recent cold weather, and everything cleans up readily. Violets are good now and quantities of Prince of Wales, Marie Louise and California Giants are being disposed of. There are many good cut cyclamens, which clean up quickly. A limited quantity of cockscombs finds a ready outlet. In fact, the supply of flowers, taken as a whole, is no more than sufficient to fill requirements, so nearly everything of good quality is sold out from day to day. Orchids are in better supply, but more could be used if they were available.

Various Notes.

An engaging young man entered the store of Joseph Fregusi, at Twenty-ninth and Mission streets, a few days ago and told the proprietor that a well-known trade unionist had died, that flowers were wanted by the various unions, and that he was acting as their representative. He ordered several pieces and paid for them in bogus checks, several different ones, on all of which Mr. Fregusi gave him change in cash. The next morning when the flowers were delivered at the address

The Market.

With the arrival of cool weather and heavy frosts business is showing a decided improvement, especially in counter trade. Funeral business has been brisk. Numerous weddings and other social functions have provided good business for the stores that cater to that class of trade.

All stock is showing an exceptional quality, with roses, carnations and mums predominating. The greatest improvement has been in carnations, which are unusually good for this time of the year.

Various Notes.

Bernson & Halle are growing exceptionally good carnations, the stems and blooms being above the average.

A. J. Burt's store has had on display an unusual assortment of potted plants for so early in the season. While many may doubt whether there is any great profit in carrying a big assortment of potted stock so early in the season, it surely has been worth while in that it has added greatly to the attractiveness of the place.

H. L. Olsson is a busy man, lifting and sorting his dahlia stock. He reports a most profitable season and has a fine big bunch of orders for roots for next spring to substantiate his claim.

Robert Howard Smith, the vase and pottery man, was a recent trade visitor. He sold the Hoyt Bros. Co. a nice line of fancy vases for the new windows.

Work is progressing rapidly in the remodeling of the Hoyt Bros. Co. store, the cooler being almost completed and the machinery installed. Although working at a disadvantage, the business has been carried on as usual during the alterations.

Henry Reimer is about the only grower who is forcing valley. He expects to be able to supply the entire local demand.

The city beautiful committee of the Spokane Advertising Club, of which John W. Duncan, superintendent of city parks, and S. Younkin, of the Hoyt Bros. Co., are members, has been viewing and judging the lawns and gardens entered in the club's home ground improvement contest. Spokane is distinctive for the interest which its citizens show in the appearance of their homes and lawns, much of which must be credited to the men working on this committee. L. B. H.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The supply of outdoor flowers was cut short October 3 by a heavy frost in all parts of the city and vicinity. All tender things were killed and many cuttings destroyed; even the geraniums were injured. The frost was unusually early and entirely unlooked-for, so considerable stock that the growers intended to lift and put in the houses was lost.

The supply of indoor flowers, however, had increased, so there was no serious shortage. Mums are being shown extensively. The supply is partly locally grown and partly California-grown. Some of the varieties shipped in are Chieftain, Rose Queen, Chrysolora, Queen, Wells' Yellow and Indiana.

Business for the month of September shows an improvement over that of the

to follow the Chrysanthemum crop. No other flower will pay better. You will have fine flowers from January until late in spring. All progressive florists have abandoned growing the late Spencer and are making now four times as much money with this early-flowering type, not only for inside but for outside planting. If sown in October and November they will bloom two to three months earlier; if sown outdoors they will bloom three to four weeks earlier than the late Spencers, producing more and better flowers and keeping the buds during the most rainy weather. We have a limited quantity of the following varieties to offer at reduced prices:

PINK AND WHITE ORCHID, WHITE ORCHID, MRS. A. A. SKACH, ORCHID BEAUTY, rose; LAVENDER ORCHID, lavender pink; MISS FL. FABING, Yarrowa color. This lot will contain about two to five per cent of the late hybrids of the same color and for late planting they are of more value than the re-selected varieties of the same names.

FLORISTS' WINTER ORCHID-FLOWERING MIXTURE.

This mixture consists of all the leading commercial varieties of pink, rose, white and lavender, with a very few red and blue.

Price, $4.00 per pound.

GOLD MEDAL MIXTURE.

This is made up of about fifty distinct varieties, evenly balanced to each color. It contains almost every variety in commerce, including this year's and next year's novelties, all of the Winter Orchid type only. Last year we sold over 90,000 packets to private gardeners and retail florists. In semi-tropical countries they have been blooming all winter. In cooler climate, if sown early in spring they bloom in May, three to four weeks earlier. Florists who keep a seed counter should have this steadily on hand, ready for their customers. Sold only in one size packets. Each packet contains sufficient seed to plant 30 to 40 feet of row.

Prices: 1 pkt., 25c; 100 pkts., $12.00; 1000 pkts., $100.00.

Order now all you need for your winter or outdoor planting, as this limited quantity may not last long.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd O. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and General Manager, Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

THE bankruptcy petition filed by T. E. Griesa, Lawrence, Kan., is reported under "Business Embarrassments" in this issue.

THE Columbia & Okanogan Nursery Co., of Wenatchee, Wash., has been incorporated at $20,000, by J. R. Snyder and Andrew T. Gossman.

WM. G. KONING, of Kluis & Koning, Boskoop, Holland, has taken up his residence in New York as permanent American representative of the firm.

F. J. GROOTENDORST & SONS, Boskoop, are the latest Holland nurserymen to establish a permanent American branch. A. M. Grootendorst has taken up his residence in New York.

THERE is getting to be a quite general belief that if the nursery trade will grow less stock and grow it better the result will be an uplift, especially in prices, that will be greatly to the benefit of the business as a whole and to the individuals engaged in it.

JUST as nearly a dozen Holland bulb exporting firms have found it advisable to have permanent American branches, so several of the Holland exporters of nursery stock are trying out the plan of maintaining a regular representative in New York or vicinity.

AMERICAN GRAPES IN ZURICH.

According to a report published by the Economics Director of Canton Zurich, the diminution since 1881 of fifty-six per cent in the acreage and a loss of seventy-two per cent in the value of the crop of grapes, in this canton as well as in other parts of Switzerland, is understood to be due (1) to the ravages of the grape louse (Phylloxera vastatrix), grape mildew (Uncinula spiralis), and other grape pests during the dry years, and (2) to the hail damages, etc., during the wet years. To combat for Fruit, Grape, and Garden Cultivation in Wädenswil, Canton Zurich.

With reference to the experiments in this canton, the report of the Economics Director states that, although the improved American vines also suffered during the rainy years of 1913 and 1914, they nevertheless recovered well during the better grape year of 1915, and on the whole they thrived and developed better in both dry and wet seasons than the native vines. A record has also been kept of the yield in grapes and wine of the different experimental vineyards. These records and tests indicate that in quality the yield of the improved American vines was not inferior to that of the native vines, but allowance must be made for the fact that, in case of a heavy yield of grapes, the yield of the wine is always comparatively short. The average grape yield per American stock when grafted with the native Räuschling variety was three kilos (6.6 pounds), and when grafted with the Burgunder variety the average was two kilos (4.4 pounds). It has therefore been recommended that improved American vines be planted not only in places where the grape vines had formerly been pulled up, because the vineyards were infested by the grape louse, but also in all new plantings in general. U. S. Consul General F. B. Keene says experiments are now also being made at the Experiment Station at Wädenswil with improved American stocks in vineyards which have been infected with grape mildew.

CLASSIFY STRAWBERRY PLANTS.

The Federal Horticultural Board has classified strawberry plants as nursery stock within the meaning of the quarantine law. W. A. Orton, acting chairman, is the author of the following letter:

In reply to your inquiry as to whether strawberry plants fall in the definition of nursery stock as defined in the plant quarantine act, August 20, 1912, you are advised that it is the decision of the Federal Horticultural Board that strawberry plants are nursery stock within the meaning of the act. The strawberry is hardy in temperate climates and does not come under the definition of herbaceous plants; namely, those that perish annually down to and sometimes including the root; that is, soft, succulent plants.

In view of the wide territory through which strawberry plants are grown in this country, it is desirable to maintain inspection of strawberry plants for the reason that they may carry dangerous diseases and insect pests.

AZALEAS AFTER ALL?

In addition to a quantity of Dutch bulbs, the steamer Nieuw Amsterdam, from Rotterdam, which docked at New York October 2, discharged a number of plants, roots and shrubs, some of which undoubtedly are of Belgian origin—azaleas, etc.—coming to this country as they did last year, similarly described in the manifests and via Rotterdam. This would indicate that the seemingly insurmountable barriers raised by the belligerents against the

SPECIAL WHOLESALE PRICE LIST for FALL and WINTER, 1916-1917

CYCLAMEN:

We have from year to year been growing these popular winter flowering plants in steadily increasing quantities. The demand for them is such that our supply of plants, however large it may be, quickly gets exhausted. Our methods of cultivation have proved singularly successful. Our plants are healthy, stocky and strong; the results consequently are invariably satisfactory both to our many customers and to us.

As to the selection of colors and strains, we have been more careful than ever to get only the best, as can be seen from the following list of international strains, which can be had either in separate colors or assorted. As the orders come in, we pick out the heaviest, best leaved plants of a splendid stock of about 40,000.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

Cottage Gardens Nurseries, Inc., Eureka, Cal. — An especially well printed, finely illustrated catalogue of rhododendrons and azaleas for forcing, hardy rhododendrons, evergreens, deciduous shrubs, bulbs, peonies and sweet peas; sixty-four pages and cover. Inside of the front cover is a map of Humboldt county, California, "showing the great redwood belt colored in red, and the Cottage Gardens Nurseries located at its central point." Among the other illustrations are attractive views of the grounds and greenhouses.

Fraser Nursery Co., Inc., Huntsville, Ala. — Wholesale catalogue of nursery stock, roses, peonies, garden roots, nursery tools and supplies; twenty-eight pages and cover. Nut trees are included; among the specialties is young stock for transplanting.

Milton Nursery Co., Milton, Ore. — A 40-page nursery catalogue, comprising lists of ornamental, fruit-bearing and nut-bearing stock; also peonies and miscellaneous perennials. Ten pages are devoted to roses.

The Market.

Market conditions remain about the same, roses, as last week, being the principal item of sale. In these there is a scarcity of long-stemmed flowers and an abundance of shorts. Ophelia, Sunburst and Hoosier Beauty roses are of extra good quality and both short and long grades clear readily. American Beauty and Russell also clear easily. Other roses, such as Mott, Killarney, Maryland, Reid and Ward, are prominent.

Valley continues good in quality and makes $6 per hundred sprays. Orchids also are fine and high, many of them going at $9 per dozen. Carnation receipts are more satisfactory and the given it was discovered that no one had died there. They were brought back to the store and were awaited there by the engaging stranger, who assuaged the growing fears of Mr. Fregusi by telling him that he had said Twenty-fifth avenue instead of Twenty-fifth street. He ordered more flowers and even went so far as to accompany Mr. Fregusi on the wagon to show him the right address. Before they reached the destination, however, the stranger excused himself at a corner saloon and failed to appear again. After waiting some little time Mr. Fregusi went in search of his companion and was informed that he had left by another entrance. The florist reported to the police that he was out about $75 on the transaction.

Mrs. R. E. Darbee, who has been conducting her shipping business at 1036 Hyde street in conjunction with her retail trade, has found those quarters too small for both departments, and has taken a store room at 39 St. Anne street, near the flower market and the wholesale houses, for a shipping depot. The room is 25x60 feet, providing ample space for her stock of shipping accessories, etc. With the increased facilities, Mrs. Darbee plans to go into the shipping business more extensively than ever before.

Richard Diener, who specializes in unique varieties of carnations, dahlias, gladioli, pansies, etc., at Kentfield, is preparing five more acres for gladioli and pansies. He already has eight acres under cultivation and is making extensive improvements for drainage and irrigation.

John Gill, nurseryman of Berkeley, returned recently from a northern trip and reports things looking fine in the section he covered. He has a great many rose plants and is starting an active shipping season now.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. had a window display of orchids a few days ago, it being the first time in weeks that these flowers were plentiful enough to permit a display. Frank Thacher, who does the window trimming at this store, says they had been keeping their limited supply of orchids out of sight in order to keep down the demand as much as possible.

MacRorie & McLaren did the decorating for an elaborate fashion show held at the Palace hotel a few days ago under the auspices of I. Magnin & Co. A 50-foot hedge of primulas was the principal feature. They also furnished the bouquets for a bridal party, which was a special feature of the show. Apropos of the "Path of Gold" celebration, an attractive window display was arranged at the store on Powell street by F. H. Forrest.

One of the most spectacular features of the "Path of Gold" ball in the Civic Auditorium on the evening of October 5 was a pyramid of flowers donated and made by the growers and florists of this vicinity. F. C. Burns, of San Rafael, contributed 25,000 dahlias on behalf of the California Dahlia Growers' Association.

A. J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., as chief of staff with the grand marshal and his aid, led the illuminated parade of the "Path of Gold" celebration.

COLUMBUS, O.

Business is better and stock is more plentiful. Funeral work is the mainstay of the trade, but there is quite a bit of other business from weddings and parties.

Roses are extra fine at present, the blooms and foliage being all that could be desired. Maryland, Ophelia, Sunburst, Richmond, White Killarney and Killarney are showing up nicely. Beauties have been scarce during the last week or so, with the demand rather light. It seems as though the Beauty crop will be short this winter; not many are grown here.

Carnations are coming in quite heavily and they are cleaned up from day to day; sometimes it is hard to obtain enough to go the rounds. There are many mums in the market, mostly white, and the outlook is good. Good, extra early mums had their share of trade, with fair returns for the size of the blooms. Lilies are more plentiful and the demand strong. There are a few snapdragons and they find a ready sale. There also are some marigolds, cosmos, etc., but they do not cut much figure in the sales, as they are almost too common. Asters are a thing of the past and they were missed for funeral work until carnations became more plentiful. There now is every prospect of having enough stock to go around in all lines.

The demand for ferns and potted plants has been heavy and there are a few cyclamens, begonias, etc., to be seen, but not nearly enough to meet the demand.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

A HOUSE ON A HILLSIDE.

I have a greenhouse 21x121, built on a south hillside. The house runs east and west and has an uneven-span roof, with the long sashbars on the south side. The south bars are eighteen feet long and the north bars six feet. I wish to heat the house to 50 degrees with hot water. Please state the right sizes of pipes and the best arrangement of them. I am enclosing a post-card photograph of the interior of the house. The side walls are five feet high and the height to the ridge is nine feet. The boiler will be on the low ground at the southwest corner of the house and can be set at any reasonable distance below the returns. The outside temperature in this locality rarely drops below zero. The north wall is banked and the south one is boarded, with paper between. The house is in a sheltered position. C. O. G.—Mo.

Nothing is said about glass in the side walls of the house and, from the photograph, they seem to be entirely of wood. We would use as mains three 2½-inch flow pipes, and with them feed six 2-inch returns. One flow could be placed upon each row of the purlin posts, and the other upon the south plate. Two of the returns may be either on the south wall or under the south bench. Another coil of two returns may be upon the row of purlin posts passing through the middle of the house, either near the ground or higher, as will be most convenient. The remaining two returns may be either in the north walk or on the north wall.

It will be well to have the top of the boiler at least two feet below the lowest return.

LARGER RETURNS ADVISABLE.

Kindly give me some advice on the heating of a house 16x70, with hot water. There are five feet of glass on the south side and seven feet of glass on the north side. The house is eight and one-half feet high to the ridge and is three-quarter-span. I have a lot of 1¼-inch pipe, enough to pipe the house. I also have 250 feet of 2-inch pipe; will it be advisable to use this? One gable is protected by a barn. I wish to maintain a night temperature of 60 degrees. How large a boiler will give the best results, if it stands three feet below the lowest return and is attached to the west end of the house? Would you advise the use of a generator?

A. E. B.—N. Y.

We are not quite sure about the dimensions given. It is stated that the house has five feet of glass on the south side and seven feet on the north side. The statement does not make it clear whether these areas of glass are on the south and north sides of the ridge, or in the north and south side walls of the house. Since the width of the house is given as sixteen feet, the sides of the roof would probably measure something like seven and eleven feet, respectively, instead of the figures given. Therefore, though seven feet of glass would be an excessive amount of glass for the north wall of a house only sixteen feet in width, the inquiry will be answered with that understanding, since it appears to be the more probable of the two suppositions.

Our suggestion for heating the house is to use three 2½-inch flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns, running two of the flows on the plates and the other either under the ridge or the south purlin. Then place coils of four 2-inch pipes on the side walls, or under the side benches, and distribute the other four returns under the middle bench.

We do not recommend the use of 1½-inch returns for hot water in houses as long as seventy feet, and would only use them with a generator. For an open-tank system, if we were to use 2-inch flows in a greenhouse having the glass area of the one under consideration, we would suggest the use of at least four 2-inch flows and would prefer five. However, with a generator it will be possible to use three 2-inch flows and fifteen 1½-inch returns. By carrying the water under pressure, by use of a generator, it will be possible to make a considerable reduction in the amount of radiation needed, but it will not be so economical of fuel.

For heating to 60 degrees, with hot water, a greenhouse 16x70, with twelve feet of glass in the side walls, we would select a boiler rated at 750 square feet of radiation.

of which I am enclosing. The house runs east and west, with the office, 12x12, at the east end and the storeroom at the west end. I shall heat all except the storeroom, which has a cellar seven feet deep for the boiler. The outside temperature has been known to drop as low as 35 degrees below zero here. How large a boiler will be needed? What sizes of pipe should be used for the flows and coils? How many feet of radiation will be required? Do you think it would pay to install a closed system and would any pipe be saved by doing so? What should be the height of the chimney and the size of the flue?

greenhouse is 16x50, with two side benches three feet in width and a middle bench six feet wide, but there is nothing to show the amount of glass, if any, in the side walls, or the temperature that is to be maintained. If there is no glass in the walls and if a temperature of 50 degrees in the coldest weather will suffice, we would advise heating the house with three 2½-inch flow pipes, placing one upon each of the side walls and the other under the ridge, and eight 2-inch returns, placing three under each side bench and the others under the middle bench.

The sketch does not show the amount of glass in the windows of the office or the height of the walls, but if there is no more than 100 square feet in the window and door area of the office we would put in two radiators, with a combined radiating surface of 140 square feet. If there is more or less than 100 square feet in the area of the door and windows, we would increase or decrease the radiation one square foot for each square foot more or less than 100 in the door and windows in the office, not counting any glass there may be between the office and greenhouse. At a point directly above the east end of the middle bench in the greenhouse, place a tee, 2½x2x2-inch, on the overhead flow pipe, dropping down a 2-inch pipe to supply the two returns underneath the bench and carrying a 2-inch flow into the office. From this take off two 1½-inch pipes to feed the two radiators or coils in the office.

There will be about 400 square feet of radiation in the greenhouse and from 100 to 150 square feet in the office. For carrying this radiation, with economy of fuel under the severe conditions mentioned, we would use a boiler rated for 750 square feet of hot water radiation. The size of the flue will depend somewhat on the kind of boiler used, as well as the height of the chimney, but a chimney 8x12 inches inside, or ten inches in diameter, if thirty feet high, would answer for most boilers.

In an open-tank system the flows should run slightly downhill and the expansion tank should be connected with the highest part of the system. While the use of a closed-tank system, with the water under pressure, would make possible a slight reduction in the size of the piping as well as in the amount required, this would be at the expense of economy of fuel.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Stock has become plentiful and at the time of writing is more than equal to present needs. Between large wedding decorations and the automobile show, considerable stock is being used this week. Prices have dropped.

Roses are in heavy supply. Carnation receipts are sufficient for present needs. Easter lilies are plentiful. Early chrysanthemums, such as Glory of the Pacific, Donatello and Monrovia, now are in the market. Up to this time they have been selling well. Dahlias are plentiful; last week they suffered a drop of over two-thirds in price. Cosmos, too, is plentiful. Other offerings are excellent—orchids, valley and a few sweet peas.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell furnished a large quantity of wild smilax to George Fenn for the automobile show decorations.

John C. Rutenschroer won many prizes at the dahlia exhibition at the Zoological Gardens last week.

Among recent visitors were Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Lampert, of Xenia, O.; Charles A. Bower, of Dayton, O.; Martin Reukauf, representing H. Bayersdorfer & Co., of Philadelphia; A. Jacobs, representing the Florists' Decorating & Importing Co., of New York. C. H. H.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums are not plentiful as yet, but the receipts are increasing daily, and the flowers are larger and of better quality. Growers report that their chrysanthemum plants are developing splendidly. Carnations are coming into the market in larger quantities. They are not as yet of the best quality and many are short-stemmed.

Growers and retailers complain of the high cost of materials. The growers have to pay more for their coal, glass, pots and all other supplies. The retailers have to pay twice as much for their paper, twine, etc. The solution is found in better prices for stock, wholesale and retail.

Various Notes.

August C. Begerow has completed a handsome residence at Clinton avenue and Girard place.

Henry Breuninger finds business opening up somewhat slowly this fall. Flowers are reported scarce. R. B. M.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

Business was good last week; the only trouble was in getting enough stock to supply the demand. Carnations are extremely scarce, especially the pink and red shades. Good roses are at a premium and the cheaper grades are quickly taken for want of anything better. A few Easter lilies and valley are arriving and are eagerly sought. Mums are coming in a little better and in a few days there will be enough of them to relieve the pressure on the roses and carnations. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Philip Scott, formerly a florist of Denver, spent a few days here last week renewing old acquaintances. He has been living in Oregon and California and passed through here on his way to Buffalo, N. Y.

Miss Gertrude E. Page, secretary of the Park Floral Co. for a number of years, recently left here on account of ill health. She was compelled to live at a lower altitude and decided on Seattle.

The Park Floral Co. brought in some of the finest pot mums seen in this market. Jack Bowers has resigned his position with this concern and now is in the employ of the Mauff Floral Co.

H. R. Johnson, formerly in business here, died at Santa Barbara, Cal., October 5, of cancer of the stomach. The remains were brought to Denver for burial. Mr. Johnson is an uncle of W. Larson, who grows carnations for the local trade.

Philip Benson has left the employ of Fred Hall, of Montclair. R. S.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

The Market.

Business was fair last week. Some of the garden flowers are still to be had and roses are plentiful and bring good prices. Easter lilies are difficult to find—there do not seem to be any. Chrysanthemums and violets are slowly pushing themselves to the front and they are welcome indeed.

Various Notes.

Henry Smith is showing some fine roses.

Alfred Hannah & Sons have been busy with funeral orders.

Arthur F. Crabb is a visitor to the Chicago market.

Miss Mary Hartnett reports trade as being unusually brisk. A. F. C.

The Markets.

Business last week showed some improvement. Roses are plentiful and of excellent quality. Chrysanthemums are in short supply and are picked up as quickly as offered. Carnations still are in inadequate supply, but their quality is improving. Lilies are none too plentiful.

Various Notes.

Miss Rose Waltman again will assume the management of the Fairmount Greenhouses, at Davenport, which formerly were leased by Edward Allchin, who has accepted a position with Forber & Bird.

The marriage of Helen Pauli, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pauli, to Henry Anderson, took place October 7 in Newcomb Memorial church. Edna Anderson, sister of the groom, acted as bridesmaid and Albert Pauli, brother of the bride, acted as best man. The couple will make their home in a pretty bungalow erected by the groom on Eastern avenue. W. G.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Pittsburgh has had almost summer weather and this has brought to the market a large quantity of roses, among which were some extra fine and long-stemmed White Killarney, Killarney, Maryland and Richmond roses. But rain and cooler weather probably will shorten the cut again. Chrysanthemums are here, including good blooms of Smith's Advance, Unaka and Golden Glow, but the quantity received is not so large as that of other years. Orchids are more plentiful and good. Carnations are extremely good, but, unfortunately, there are not enough of them. Dahlias continue to come in, of good quality. Beauties run about even with the demand and greens are plentiful.

The stores did not seem rushed to any great extent last week, but all of them are looking their best and bidding hard for business.

Mr. and Mrs. Hostetter, of Manheim, Pa., were visitors last week and made a tour of the greenhouses growing flowers for cutting. Clarke.

AMHERST, MASS.

The Massachusetts Agricultural College opened its doors September 27. Prof. A. H. Nehrling reports an enrollment of thirty students in the courses in floriculture for the first term. The new 4-term schedule has gone into effect and under this plan the college will never close its doors. The department of floriculture and the department of landscape gardening will offer practical courses during the summer months, which has been impossible under the old 2-semester system.

L. H. Jones, of Milford, Mass., and C. E. Wildon, of Melrose Highlands, Mass., have registered in the graduate school as candidates for the degree of M.S. in floriculture. Both Mr. Jones and Mr. Wildon are graduates of the college.

A. S. Thurston has resigned as assistant in the department of floriculture and now is at Ames College, Iowa, as head of the department of market gardening and floriculture. Mr. Wildon has been appointed to fill the vacancy.

Prof. A. V. Osmun has been appointed to the position of head of the department of botany, recently left vacant by the resignation of Dr. G. E. Stone.

S. W. Hall, of Saxonville, Mass., who graduated from the course in floriculture, now is with S. J. Goddard, of Framingham, Mass.

G. A. Read, a recent graduate of the college, now is manager of the Peckham Floral Co., at Fairhaven, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fisher, of Ellis, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Patten, of Tewksbury, Mass., were recent visitors at the college greenhouses.

The following officers of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of the Massachusetts Agricultural College have been elected: President, E. Stanley Duffill, of Melrose Highlands, Mass.; vice-president, Walter I. Cross, of Hingham, Mass.; secretary-treasurer, John T. Dizer, of East Weymouth, Mass. Much interest is being aroused in the club and the new president prophesies the biggest year in the history of the club.

Plans for the annual flower show of the Massachusetts Agricultural College have been announced by Prof. A. H. Nehrling. Special prizes and exhibits are being arranged. The Northampton and Holyoke Gardeners' and Florists' Club will again cooperate with the department of floriculture.

The new perennial garden has attracted much interest during the last summer. Florists and gardeners in this vicinity have paid frequent visits to the garden and as a result many are contemplating the culture of perennials in conjunction with their regular florists' crops.

SOMETHING for the WINTER SEASON

The days are getting shorter. Darkness comes early. Before your work is finished you are compelled to stop because you can no longer see.

The ordinary barn lantern gives out about thirty candle power; not much good to work by.

The American Regent Lantern gives out 400 candle power, burns gasoline or kerosene and costs about 1/4c per hour to run. Can be used very roughly without damage and will not blow out in a wind.

It is a great thing to hang in your boiler or packing room, for it lights up the whole place, enabling all to do some extra work, and it spreads cheerfulness all around.

Greenhouse Builders

1363-1381 Flushing Ave., Brooklyn, N.Y.

If we should build a greenhouse for ourselves we would put the best material we could into it, but it would not be any better than we put into the houses that we build for our customers.

Yes, it would be an easy matter to skimp here and substitute there, and gloss over in another place to save a little and meet the lowest bidder. We do not do business that way. Why should we cheat ourselves in order to cheat a customer?

Figure it out for yourself and then write us your needs.

Does away with all diseases of Carnations

FOLLOWING is an extract from a letter of John G. Bettman & Sons, of New Albany, Ind.:

"We can truthfully say that we had not a bit of trouble with stem-rot, red spider or any other common disease of carnations since using the Skinner System of Irrigation."

The Market.

Cooler weather, which will improve stock and which has put a new tone in business, has set in. Outdoor flowers are done for. Roses are increasing in quantity and the quality is becoming better. With the cooler weather carnations are improving in quality of flower and length of stem, but there are not nearly enough of them to go around. Lilies of all kinds are in good demand, but the supply is insufficient. Chrysanthemums are here, but there are too few to meet the demand brought on by the cool weather. Local florists report business as being highly satisfactory. Funeral work is unusually heavy and wedding orders are frequent.

Various Notes.

Ralph Grohman was married September 27 to Miss Denese Gaudreau. The wedding took place at St. Andrews' cathedral, in Grand Rapids. The craft wishes them much joy and happiness.

The additional boilers installed by Grohman the Florist, three in all, are a double insurance against Jack Frost. Cyclamen plants here are about all sold out.

As usual, Charles Frueh & Sons are the first to show mums. They are of high quality but not plentiful enough to meet the demands.

The William Roethke Floral Co. reports that its large range of glass is in good repair and ready for winter business. Otto Roethke says the Dutch bulbs are slow in arriving, about four weeks later than in other years.

J. B. Goetz Sons have erected a new 60-foot steel stack in place of the one taken down. Their mums, numbering about 20,000, are a picture of health and some fancy blooms are expected.

The Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society held its meeting at the greenhouses of the Roethke Floral Co., the best attended in some months. There were over thirty in attendance. The paper on "Roses," by Charles Hamilton, was most interesting and brought about a good debate.

Visitors this week included David Kleinhans, of St. Louis, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Thayer and Mr. and Mrs. H. Mitting, of Midland, Mich. All attended the Saginaw county fair. Prof. Gunson, of the Michigan Agricultural College, East Lansing, Mich., also was here on a short pleasure and business trip. Gee.

We are just flooded with orders, thanks to The Review.—Charles Taynor, New Carlisle, O.

Getting a Bird's-eye View of Your Greenhouse Problems

IF you have a water tower or high roof you can get up on, and look your building location over, do it several times before you decide definitely on the layout for a new range or the changing of an old one.

Get a bird's-eye view of your proposition, so you can carefully consider every economy side, both from the standpoint of the houses you will build now and those to follow.

When you have come to some definite conclusions, send for us and let us go over the proposition, point by point, with you.

Let us pass along to you the benefit of our many years of laying out and building of greenhouses.

Take every advantage of this Advisory Service of ours.

If used the way others have used it, you will be saved money in both the building and the running of your houses.

If you are starting in small, or thinking of getting away from building cheap wooden houses, you will find a talk with us of special value.

You know we go anywhere for business, or to talk business.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.The Market.

Business improved last week to a considerable degree, and with the increased supply of roses and carnations, augmented by the early chrysanthemums, there is a good supply that moves readily, with good clean-ups practically every day. With the increasing supply there is a noticeable improvement in quality and a slight stiffening in prices, although normal prices have not as yet been fully reached.

Various Notes.

John Burke, of Burke & Burns, has returned from a several weeks' visit to Denver.

The engagement of Joseph Solomon, proprietor of the flower department at S. S. Kresge's, this city, to Miss Rose Lubin, of Fall River, was announced last week.

O'Connor had the decorations at the house and church for the Jordan-Carpenter wedding, October 4.

Charles Hunt furnished the palms and cut flowers for the decorations at St. Michael's church for the monster Holy Name Society celebration, when more than 30,000 men gathered for mass outdoors.

William Tarbox, of West Greenwich, attended the annual fair at Danbury, Conn., last week, making his usual exhibit of flowers. This year it was in the form of a floral couch, made of about 3,000 asters and 500 dahlias, while 400 white asters were used in making the pillow.

A. A. Kupfer has completed a concrete office building at 238 Potter avenue, which is connected with his range of greenhouses.

George W. Fraser has been making a special drive on Boston ferns in large pots, to good advantage.

M. F. Pollock reports an unusually heavy demand for funeral work during the last few weeks.

A. M. Cassidy, of Kingston College, is reopening the Strand Flower Store, on Washington street.

Carmichael Bros., of Shannock, are still cutting a few late varieties of gladioli. They began cutting about the middle of July and have had constant crops. They are preparing several acres for peonies and next season except to have upwards of ten acres of gladioli.

Samuel Kinder, of Bristol, last week had the decorations for the Colts' clam-bake to the principal bankers of eastern United States. He used 500 yellow mums and several thousand gladioli.

W. H. M.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.The Market.

Cooler weather prevailed during the week and appeared to stimulate business. Early mums are here and of good quality. Violets have made their appearance and find a ready market. Carnations are of better quality. Roses are plentiful and most reasonable in price, good flowers bringing as low as $3 per hundred.

Various Notes.

Edward M. Pierce is cutting some of the best early mums in the city.

George A. Reed, of the Peckham Floral Co., has been suffering with a severe cold. He was confined to his home for two days.

H. V. Sowle reports a week of good business. His new store on Bowditch street is about completed.

S. E. Shaw is cutting some fine Unaka mums. The flowers show the result of excellent culture.

W. M. P.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

F. E. Blake, of Marion, O., is off on a fishing trip on Lake Erie. A big catch is looked for, as he is an expert with the rod.

Constien Bros., of Upper Sandusky, O., have some fine carnations and roses. Cyclamens never were better, but the stock is scarce and they will not be able to ship as in former years.

Fred Sammet, of Upper Sandusky, continues to be busy with funeral work and with plant sales. A prosperous summer was reported.

Johnson's Greenhouses, of Carey, O., were in all their glory when I called, the stock being in excellent condition.

John Schillinger, of Bucyrus, O., still finds the scarcity of labor a handicap in getting the fall work done; nevertheless, things are progressing in a promising manner.

F. J. Norton, of Bucyrus, has his usual line of fall stock coming along splendidly. His carnations and chrysanthemums never looked better. The last repairs are being done on one house, which is being rapidly filled with late mums.

R. B. Hayes, of Shelby, O., has a small crop of new corn which is causing unusual excitement among corn growers in that vicinity. "Thin cobs, with big, long grains of corn," is the way it was described to the writer, who, by the way, knows nothing about corn except when it is boiled.

Mrs. F. A. Hoffstadt, of Shelby, notes that business is better than in former years. Preparations are being made to handle more stock this season.

Henry Clever is putting up two new houses in Mansfield, O. He was formerly employed by the Don Floral Co., of that city.

ROTARY FLORISTS.

The Rotary Clubs organized in the different cities of the country are unique in their membership in that only one of each line of business or profession can become a member, and he must either be proprietor, partner or executive of a business, or a representative of a concern not local.

The florists who have had the pleasure and honor of being selected by these clubs have an opportunity to do good work for floriculture in all its branches. As they are co-members with the other representative members of the city, they possess every privilege enjoyed by the others. Here is an opportunity to spread the gospel of flowers, by coming in contact with the others in a personal, intimate way. Here they can dispel from the minds of people the fallacies that are held by so many about our business. They have a good audience; they come in close relation with the press and every representative of every line.

The floricultural interests of this country should not be looked upon as a side issue, or merely as a business to furnish flowers, but as an influential factor in the uplift of mankind.

Edwin A. Seidewitz,
 Chairman, florists' section of the International Association of Rotary Clubs.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The American Rose Society has received applications for the establishment of rose test gardens in the states of Washington and Texas. The interest that has been aroused in this line seems to be country-wide, and conduces to better trade for rose growers.

This year there has been a marked increase in the number of associate members, the present membership exceeding 400, not including life members.

There soon will be a meeting of the executive committee, at which matters of special interest will be taken up. Twenty-eight members have subscribed to the fund for the investigation of black spot. Benj. Hammond, Sec'y.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

PLANNING A BETTER AUTUMN OPENING

Has the fall opening become a commonplace? Has the same thing been done over and over again until there is need for something new to restore drawing power? If the answer is in the affirmative, now is the time to plan the features that will bring life to the function.

THE first thing to do, if one is to have an autumnal "opening," is to consider the date. This largely is a local question, to be decided by factors that would have no bearing on any other case. If the local merchants in other lines are having a fall fashion week, a street fair, or if there is any other concerted endeavor to get the people downtown in the evening, or to start fall buying, the florist usually will do well to make his effort then—but in most cases, even when the florist goes it alone, the opening is too early.

Of course, we all are anxious to set the business ball rolling as early as we can, as the earlier the season opens the longer it probably will last.

Mid-November Right.

But it is just sheer waste of energy to try an opening before crisp weather comes. October is too early—in many sections the Indian summer, when the foliage is flaming, is the finest outdoor season of the year.

November is early enough for an opening, the second week better than the first. This year, with Thanksgiving postponed to November 30, the week of November 15 will be at least as good as any, as by then the people of adequate means will be taking up their indoor activities and will be in the mood to brighten their surroundings with the things the florist has to sell.

Having set the date for the fall opening, preparations for it should be along two distinct lines: First of all, of course, it is necessary to prepare an attractive display; there is absolutely no use in trying to have an opening unless there is something special for people to see. The second part of the work will lie in the direction of getting people into the store to see what you have on display; this simply means advertising. It is useless to get up a show unless some steps are taken to get the people in.

The Decoration.

Probably the easiest thing any retail florist does is to dress up the establishment for some special occasion. The work of decoration is so simple to one whose business is along that line that it is likely to be given less attention than it requires. In other words, the decoration is apt to be so similar from year to year that novelty is lost; the visitors will remark on the beauty of the establishment, but not on its distinctiveness; it will be like other flower stores.

When this point is considered the retailer will not be content with the purchase of an extra quantity of unusually fine flowers and their arrangement around the store. Instead, he will put special thought on obtaining a decoration distinctly different from anything he has used in other years.

Reproduced in connection with this article are some interesting illustrations showing the store of the E. G. Hill Floral Co., Indianapolis, as it appeared during its opening last November, arranged by C. C. Thomas.

Some Special Features.

One of the features of the store decoration was a number of panels like the one illustrated on page 12. The background for each of these panels was foliage-green silk plush with a bamboo frame trimmed with wild smilax. In front of this plush background the individual baskets showed off in a most effective fashion and they gave the visitor an idea for home decoration. The panel shown in the illustration was a basket of Major Bonaffon chrysanthemums, but all the larger flowers, mums, roses, carnations, etc., were shown in similar striking fashion.

A Pretty Demonstrator.

Note the pergola effect in the show window as shown in the store illustration. There were no flowers in the window, only in the background. The window decoration, be it ever so beautiful, usually lacks novelty. So Mr. Thomas put a living model in his window to demonstrate the use of novelty bouquets. When the lady wearied of posing in the window she walked among the visitors in the store. Costume and flowers were changed frequently.

By the use of a living model the florist can put distinct novelty into his window decoration and his autumn window. It must be carefully done. The wrong kind of model will repel the best class of trade instead of attracting it. Last year at this season The Review printed an article showing the ankle bouquet, and another showing shoulder and similar bouquets for dancing. These were brand-new at that time. The novelty has not yet worn off, although they have been exploited by many since The Review brought them to the general attention of the trade. They can be used again this season with just as good effect, shown on living models at the autumn opening.

Letting the People Know.

When the plans have been made for the general display and the special features of the opening, then it is necessary to give careful thought to the means of bringing the people in. It is not, of course, necessary that everyone enter the store, for one of the greatest benefits of the autumn opening comes from the attention attracted among those who simply pass the place; but the larger number that come in, the better it will be. The window, no matter how lively, cannot go more than a certain distance in carrying the story to the public. It needs assistance.

In the matter of the store opening, the downtown retail florist has the advantage of the one located in the residence district. He is the one who can use the living model idea. His window reaches more people and is worth more attention. The man in the residence district, however, has the simplest advertising problem. It is not likely that he draws much of his trade from outside the immediate neighborhood. He has a mailing list of all the flower buyers in the district and an invitation brings them in. But the invitation should be as handsomely printed as the circumstances will permit. Remember that the recipient who does not know the place is almost certain to judge the store, its stock and its service by the character of the announcement that comes through the mail.

The store that is located where it can be reached by a considerable proportion of the city's population should by all means make use of the daily newspapers to carry the word of the opening to the flower buyers. There is no other means by which so many persons can be reached in so short a time and at so small expense.

TUBEROSES MUST BE LIFTED.

I have several hundred Mexican tuberoses planted out. These were planted last spring. Will it be necessary to take them up this fall, or will they winter safely outdoors? I also have 200 Pearl tuberoses bedded out. These bloomed well this summer, but will they be of any account for blooming another year? F. C.—Ind.

It will be necessary for you to take up both the Mexican and Pearl tuberoses now, as they will not winter outdoors in your state. The bulbs can be packed in boxes of loam and gradually dried off. These, if used a second season, will not give as good results as new bulbs. C. W.

BEGONIA CHATELAINE.

Please tell us how to grow Chatelaine begonias, as we have bad luck with them. Do you think the trouble is in the watering? H. W.—Ind.

This fibrous-rooted begonia is of easy culture. It can be readily propagated from either cuttings or seeds. It is not at all fussy in its requirements, but, in common with other begonias, I have found it succeeds well in a compost consisting of one-half fibrous loam, one-third leaves not too much decayed, and the remainder sifted and dried cow or horse manure, with some sand added if the loam is naturally heavy. It is not even necessary to give them this soil, as I have had them grow to perfection in such soil as we pot geraniums and fuchsias in. A temperature of 55 degrees in winter and only a little shade even in warm weather are other needs. By the way, this begonia is splendid for bedding out, as well as an excellent pot plant, and one which is really a perpetual bloomer. C. W.

SPANISH IRIS.

We have 500,000 Spanish iris bulbs to plant and wish to know the best way to do so. How much ground will be required for this number and how far apart should the bulbs be planted? What treatment will be best for them? We are growing these for cut flowers for the northern markets and wish to get the best results we can. We shall appreciate any information you think will help us. W. A. L.—Va.

Plant the iris bulbs out in beds a yard wide and allow paths half this width for convenience in picking. Set the bulbs three inches apart in the rows and the rows can be five inches apart. A bed will accommodate seven rows. Planted on this basis, 500,000 bulbs will occupy a little over one and one-half acres of ground. The bulbs should be covered three inches deep. To prevent heaving of the ground, a mulch of coarse, strawy manure can be given when the ground freezes. These irises are quite hardy and this mulch can be removed as soon as the weather breaks.

If you have plenty of land and can afford to plant the bulbs in rows a foot apart, so as to permit cultivation while growing, you can set the bulbs two inches apart in the rows. Planted on this basis it would take nearly two acres to grow the irises, but the advantage of a few cultivations of the soil is obvious. C. W.

After luncheon the local committee had automobiles in waiting to take them to the Coliseum building, where a meeting was held by the local florists, who numbered seventy-five at the arrival of the national committee. President Bourdet, of the St. Louis Florists' Club, called the meeting to order and introduced Chairman Asmus, who told the local florists what the holding of the National Flower Show meant to St. Louis and to them, and also what was expected of them. All present promised loyal support and that they would follow his instructions to the letter.

R. C. Kerr, president of the S. A. F., followed Mr. Asmus in a talk for the good of the society. He was followed by C. H. Totty. Next came Adolph Farenwald, president of the Philadelphia Florists' Club. Then came Wm. P. Craig, John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., and J. J. Hess, treasurer of the S. A. F. All the speakers talked enthusiastically of the coming show and knew from the feeling that existed among the local florists that success was assured.

After hearing from all the members of the national committee, President Bourdet called on some of the local florists to say a few words regarding the prospects for the show. W. W. Ohlweiler, Otto Koenig, H. G. Berning, C. C. Sanders, F. C. Weber, Jr., D. S. Geddis, W. S. Wells, F. H. Meinhardt, J. J. Windler, F. Windler, J. J. Beneke, Vincent Gorly, August Hummert, W. J. Pilcher, W. A. Rowe, F. J. Fillmore, George Pring and Carl Beyer responded. The meeting then adjourned and the members of the committee were taken in hand by the local committee for a general good time.

ST. LOUIS, APRIL 6 TO 15, 1918

FIFTH NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Date and Hall Chosen.

Evidently there is not a particle of superstition in the make-up of the trade, for the national flower show committee, consisting of George Asmus, of Chicago; John Young, of New York; Adolph Farenwald and Wm. P. Craig, of Philadelphia; C. H. Totty, of Madison, N. J.; J. J. Hess, of Omaha, and R. C. Kerr, of Houston, Tex., met in St. Louis Friday, October 13, to make the final decision as to the place and date for holding the Fifth National Flower Show of the S. A. F.

The committee was met that morning, at the Jefferson hotel, by a committee of local florists, but only preliminaries were discussed. The committee went into session at the Planters hotel that afternoon and there fixed the dates of holding the national show as April 6 to 15, 1918.

After settling the dates the committee inspected the different halls in which the show might be held and decided on the Coliseum.

Local Enthusiasm High.

In the evening a luncheon was served at the Planters hotel, over which President King, of the Business Men's League, presided, with the secretary and manager of the convention and publicity bureau, who assured the committee they would do all in their power to make the national show a big success.

October 14 the committee visited the wholesale district and left in the evening for their respective homes. They said before leaving that the feeling shown by the local florists, and the reception given them, showed them that St. Louis surely is the right place to hold the next National Flower Show.

J. J. B.

Executive Session.

The final reports of the show held in Philadelphia were received and all business in connection with that exhibition was cleared up.

The secretary was authorized to prepare the necessary floor plans showing available spaces for the trade exhibits and, if possible, to arrange for a scale of prices which would include the cost of booth and signs. This would assist in having one general scheme of arrangement and decoration in the trade section.

Charles H. Totty, Thomas Roland and A. Farenwald were appointed a committee to prepare a preliminary schedule.

The secretary was instructed to communicate with the American Rose, Carnation, and Sweet Pea societies, inviting them to cooperate with the National Flower Show by holding their annual meetings and exhibitions at the same time.

The secretary was authorized to raise immediately the usual guarantee fund of $10,000.

Mr. Asmus tendered his resignation as chairman of the committee, giving his reasons why some other member of the committee should be elected to that office. After thorough discussion Mr. Asmus was induced to reconsider his decision and upon motion of Mr. Totty his resignation was not accepted.

Local Support.

Frank Robinson, secretary and manager of the Coliseum, who without question is one of the best show managers in this country, gave an interesting talk promising his support and assistance wherever possible. The National Flower Show will also have the hearty support of the Business Men's League.

The National Flower Show committee was delighted to see the great interest and enthusiasm shown by the florists of St. Louis and later on, when the local committees are appointed, the work of the exhibition will go on with a rush, and there is no question but what the Fifth National Flower Show will compare favorably with any preceding flower show.

A visit also was made to the Missouri Botanical Garden and the officials of that institution are also enthusiastic and pleased at the National Flower Show coming to St. Louis and will give their support, financially and otherwise.

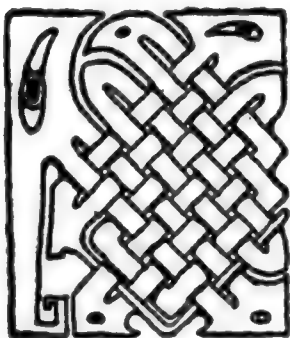

John Young, Sec'y.

TREATMENT OF VINCAS.

How shall I handle vincas to get rooted runners and rooted tips? I have just lifted my plants and planted them indoors in a solid bed. None of the runners is rooted, which probably is due to the dry season. I would be pleased to receive full information as to their treatment now and in the spring.

A. B. C.—O.

It would have been better had you potted your vincas when lifted and placed them along the sides of any of your benches, shortening the long shoots at the same time. You may use pieces of the long shoots for propagating purposes. It is best to select wood not too old and to have a couple of eyes on each cutting. Inserted in a cutting bench, with a good bottom heat, these will root within six weeks, when they can be potted in 2¼-inch pots and in the spring given a shift to 3½-inch pots. To secure really strong plants for vases and window boxes, it is best to plant out the vincas in a field for a season. You can also take soft-wooded cuttings. Those which are short, stocky and with a heel, will root most readily and in less time than the hard-wooded cuttings. The sides of carnation or violet benches make ideal growing places for variegated vincas. Young stock will come along more quickly if it is given a rose house temperature.

THE F. T. D.'S SPECIAL SESSION AT CHICAGO

PREPARES FOR PROGRESS.

A Highly Successful Meeting.

So highly successful did those who attended the meeting of the F. T. D. at Hotel La Salle, Chicago, last week consider the affair that it was the unanimous vote to repeat it at Detroit in October, 1917.

The principal interest of such a gathering does not lie in the actions taken in the management of the association, though these are important in their way, but the best part of such a convention is the opportunity it affords for the extension of acquaintance and the acquisition of new ideas. Where a lot of live wires get together, many sparks are sure to be thrown off. Secretary Pochelon stated that when he wants to get acquainted with a man he takes him fishing; the next best thing is to meet him around the corridors of a convention hotel outside either's home city.

At the Chicago meeting, the first day of which was reported in last week's issue of The Review, the broadening of the scope of operations of the F. T. D. was provided for with the adoption of new constitution and by-laws. These follow in a general way the carefully drawn document that has been the law of the organization since its inception, but they provide for increased revenue, for greater security through increased guarantee deposits, for the amicable adjustment of any dispute between members through the creation of an arbitration committee from whose decision there is to be no appeal, and for the extension of the organization's work through district representatives whose duty it shall be to develop the F. T. D. in their home territories.

How the Business Has Grown.

As instancing the growth of the telegraph delivery department of the business of progressive retail florists, C. A. Dahl, of the Dahl Floral Co., of Atlanta, Ga., made the statement that in the three years he has tabulated records he has found an increase that is fairly startling. In 1913 he says his firm received from its customers and transferred to other florists out of town, from ten to fifteen orders per month. In 1916 the orders sent out range from forty to sixty per month, and there have been months in which more than 100 orders were sent to florists in other cities.

Directory of Retailers.

By a unanimous vote Secretary Pochelon (the members pronounce it Push-a-long) was instructed to proceed at once with the publication of a directory of the retail florists of the United States and Canada.

The members of the association have for a long time felt the need of a list of florists, in addition to the list of members, who are able and willing to fill orders that come to them by wire. For a long time Secretary Pochelon has been compiling such a list. He now has the names of 3,500 florists, each of whom has signified by letter that he has the facilities for taking care of retail orders and that he is willing to give them his best attention even though an occasional one be somewhat difficult of execution. The result is, no time need be lost in compiling the retail directory. If any man wants to get his name listed he should write at once to Albert Pochelon, 153 Bates street, Detroit, Mich.

The Publicity Program.

Aside from the adoption of a new constitution and by-laws embodying an increase in dues and guarantee fund, nothing before the meeting occupied the time or created the interest that attached to the discussion regarding publicity. Nearly everyone had something to say on the matter and a number of advertising agencies, publishers' representatives, etc., were present to tell what they could do. Some of the members believed that the F. T. D. has progressed to the point where it can undertake to educate the public directly, while others believe that the publicity of the association still should be principally within the trade, for the purpose of developing the association's organization. Those who favored advertising in the general magazines found themselves at a loss for a reply when asked where the F. T. D., with about 350 members, is to find the funds for general advertising when space in such publications as the Saturday Evening Post costs $8 per agate line, which is at the rate of $112 per inch. The Review, for comparison, is charging its advertisers 70 cents per inch.

The subject of publicity came up at almost every session in one phase or another. In the end action was taken instructing the president to appoint a committee of three, of whom the secretary shall be one, to handle all publicity matters for the association. The committee was instructed to proceed along the following lines:

The first effort is to be a series of letters of instruction to the members of the association, the purpose being to inform all members as to the methods of handling telegraph orders employed by the most progressive members.

The second effort is to be a series of letters to members telling how they may obtain more F. T. D. orders to send out. This may include supplying signs, printed matter and advertising electrotypes for the members. It was the general opinion that thus far almost every florist has concerned himself more with obtaining his share of the orders coming to his city than with obtaining from his customers an increasing number of orders to send out.

The third effort, if the committee gets that far, is to be a set of articles on the use of flowers, and particularly on the delivery of flowers by telegraph, to be supplied free to the daily and weekly newspapers that will use them.

The fourth effort, if there still is energy and funds, is to be along the line of advertising the out-of-town service through the general magazines.

It will be noticed the program does not include any plan of publicity to increase the membership. This is left to the secretary, to the district representatives and to the individual members.

Secretary Pochelon, who seems to have anticipated everything, already had sent a circular letter to the members asking contributions to the publicity fund, the money for the committee's use being obtained outside the regular sources of revenue for the society. At the closing session he read a list of those who had responded, with sums ranging from $100, contributed by Penn, of Boston, and Schling, of New York, to $5 from members in inland towns. The aggregate was nearly $1,800.

President Gude stated that he would withhold the appointment of the two committee members until he could use some deliberation in their selection.

The Golden Rule.

E. Wienhoeber, of Chicago, introduced the subject of the special effort sometimes required to fill a telegraphed order. He said that sometimes the orders are small, sometimes they call for stock not on hand, sometimes they call for delivery at a great distance and frequently they call for immediate action, without time to investigate credits. He said that his own rule is to do as he would be done by and he asked for an expression of the opinion of the other members present. It would have been a revelation to some of those who regard the flower business merely as a means of earning a livelihood. Every man present, and it was fairly representative of the entire membership, asserted it to be his custom to spare no effort to fill every order in such manner as he would have his own orders filled by others.

"ACCOMMODATION" GUIDE

THE MAN WHO KNOWS NOT JEALOUSY—

THIS big, whole-souled, hearty Washingtonian, who among a dozen offices holds that of president of the F. T. D., has presented a new idea to retail florists who can not reach a wholesaler in time to fill an order—it is that of the "accommodation" price. Any Washington retailer, competitors all, can have any flower—every flower—in the Gude icebox by paying the accommodation price, a price half way between the wholesale value and the retail price. No obligation to anyone, except to do the same when the situations are reversed. The idea was new, but it made a hit and it promises quickly to become one of the customs of the retail flower business in every town where happy, prosperous, contented florists dwell.

Speaking of the matter of credits, A. F. Borden, of the Redondo Floral Co., Los Angeles, said that while they hold tight rein on the credit of Stage Door Johnny, every person who wants funeral flowers gets them at his store without a word being said regarding payment. He asserted that the losses had been negligible and that he believed any florist could treat with equal liberality any order that came from an out-of-town florist. J. A. Valentine added that nine times out of ten a failure to get prompt payment for an out-of-town order would be due to negligence in the florist's own collection department.

W. F. Gude, in discussing prices and service, stated that in his own establishment they have three prices. One is for the trade, by which is meant customers who purchase regularly in the wholesale department of the Gude establishment. Another price is the retail price, and the third price is the "accommodation" price, which is half-way between the other two. "Any florist," said Mr. Gude, "can get anything in the retail box, even if it is the last dozen valley, by paying the accommodation price, which really is a division of the profit of retail sales." This was a new idea to most of those present and it made an instantaneous hit. It bids fair to quickly become the rule with F. T. D. members; they heartily endorse the idea of helping each other out when stock is scarce at a fixed price midway between the retail and wholesale values, without obligation on either side other than to do as he would be done by.

Now the F. T. D. A.

One of the subjects for consideration was a change of name with the idea of securing a title that would be more comprehensible to the public. A variety of names were suggested, but it did not seem that any of these accomplished enough to justify a change, so when the new constitution was adopted the only change made in the name was the addition of the word association, which had not previously appeared. The official name now is Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association.

The Rotary Florists.

There are 27,000 Rotarians and among them, one in each city in which there is a Rotary Club, there is a florist. The florists' section of the International Association of Rotary Clubs purposes to bring all Rotary florists into the F. T. D. Thomas H. Joy, of Nashville, is secretary of the florists' section and he reported that the Rotary florists are at work raising a fund of $800 to be used to carry a full-page advertisement in the association's organ, The Rotarian, exploiting the idea of the out-of-town delivery of flowers. While one of the advertisements probably will contain a list of all the Rotary florists, most of the advertisements will be written with the idea of making clear the methods by which any florist can deliver flowers at a distance and the advertising therefore will have as much value for other florists as it has for Rotary florists. The reception given Mr. Joy's report indicated that this coöperative organization of florists has the full coöperation of the F. T. D.

Would You Win a Prize?

The discussion showed that the F. T. D. is in urgent need of several things, and prizes were offered in the hope of getting them.

First of all, the F. T. D. needs a trade-mark. It should have a mark that can be made familiar to the public. It should be something that can be used on a store window, on florists' stationery, in their advertisements and in the general advertising of the organization, so that in the course of time everyone will know this sign and what it stands for. The man who draws the accepted design will get $25.

Also, the F. T. D. needs a slogan—a short, snappy sentence that will take the place of the not easily understood term, "Flowers delivered by telegraph." The man who coins the slogan gets $25.

Also, there is need of a design for an advertisement that can be used in daily papers all over the land by members of the F. T. D., either included in each ad the member prints or as a special advertisement to appear in series with the member's other local publicity. The man who designs the accepted advertisement gets $25.

Anyone interested in the rules of the contest can receive them as soon as ready by addressing Albert Pochelon, secretary, 153 Bates street, Detroit.

The Financial Statement.

Treasurer W. L. Rock presented a detailed statement of the financial affairs of the organization from the day he took office, August 1, 1911, to October 5, 1916. It showed:

Additional Visitors.

In The Review of October 12 there was a list of forty-four out-of-town florists who had presented themselves at the meeting that morning. The next day quite a number of others appeared, among them the following:

Washburn, F. L., Bloomington, Ill.
Bragg, Ross, Rochester, Minn.
Dahl, C. A., Atlanta, Ga.
Fox, Charles Henry, Philadelphia.
Olson, O. J., St. Paul, Minn.
Brown, Chas. H., New York.
Breitmeyer, Philip, Detroit.
Murray, Samuel, Kansas City, Mo.
Bissinger, J. A., Lansing, Mich.
Boehringer, R. G., Bay City, Mich.
Wilson, Ella Grant, Cleveland, O.

Of course all the Chicago and suburban members of the F. T. D. were present, together with a considerable number of other Chicago retailers, wholesalers and persons identified with the trade in other ways. L. R. Bohannon brought O. J. Friedman, who not only applied for membership but donated $50 to the publicity fund.

A Bit of Relaxation.

Adjournment at the close of the convention was to a large private dining room of Hotel La Salle. Here both visiting and local members of the trade enjoyed, not only a good luncheon, but a chance to get together in a way not heretofore possible. In spite of a steady downpour of rain, everyone was ready for the automobile trip through the park systems, and at 1:30 o'clock eighteen cars, provided by local florists, started for the South Shore Country Club. So incessant was the rain after the party left the club that little pause was made in the round of the boulevards and parks until the Bismarck Garden was reached. Here the motor-ing party was joined by others of the local members of the trade who could not get away from business earlier in the day. After allowing the visitors sufficient time to go through this famous place of recreation, the party, numbering eighty persons, sat down to supper as the guests of the A. L. Randall Co., of Chicago.

CHRYSANTHEMUM OCTOBER KING.

October King is a seedling raised by William Duckham, of Madison, N. J., and certificated by the Chrysanthemum Society of America last season. The stock passed into the hands of C. H. Totty, also of Madison, who will disseminate it.

The variety has been attracting special attention in the New York market in the last fortnight because of the great size of the flowers and the excellent prices they have been realizing. Mr. Totty states that they have been bringing $9 per dozen, against $5 as a best price for the best stock at this date in recent years. The growth is stocky and the foliage, as will be seen in the illustration, is right up to the flower. The color is yellow. The time of blooming is the first week in October.

HOUSING HARRISII LILIES.

How long should Lilium Harrisii be left in the coldframe? After it is brought in, how should it be treated?
V. R. F.—Ind.

Just as soon as the growths have started and the roots are active in the pots, house the Harrisii lilies and give them a temperature of 60 to 65 degrees at night. Water them somewhat sparingly until the pots are well filled with roots.

DIRECTORS' ANNUAL SESSION.

Not Superstitious.

Insurance being an exact, mathematical matter in which superstition has no part, the annual meeting of the directors of the Florists' Hail Association, insuring 44,000,000 feet of greenhouse glass, was held on call at Hotel La Salle, Chicago, Friday, October 13.

At the time of the annual meeting of the insured, at Houston, during the S. A. F. convention, there was so small an attendance of directors that their meeting was postponed to a more propitious date. The result was an almost full attendance.

Those Present.

President E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., presided, the following officers and directors being in attendance: J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.; John G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J.; Anders Rasmussen, New Albany, Ind.; Charles P. Mueller, Wichita, Kan.; J. A. Valentine, Denver, Colo.; Samuel Murray, Kansas City; C. L. Washburn, Chicago; Fred Burki, Gibsonia, Pa.

The only directors absent were J. J. Hess, of Omaha, who was en route to the National Flower Show committee meeting at St. Louis, and Hon. Joseph Heacock, who is in the midst of a congressional campaign and was therefore unable to attend. Mr. Hess, however, conferred with the directors the evening previous to the meeting, so that they had the benefit of his valued counsel.

Officers Re-elected.

Officers were re-elected, as follows: President—E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind. Vice-president—J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.

Treasurer—Joseph Heacock, Wyncote, Pa.

Secretary—John G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J.

It was ordered that the twenty-ninth assessment, to be levied March 1, 1917, shall be at the rate of 20 cents per hundred square feet on single strength, and 8 cents per hundred square feet on double strength glass, the increase over the last assessment being occasioned by the exceedingly heavy hail losses during the last season.

The charter of the association, which will have been in practical and successful operation for thirty years June 1, 1917, will be renewed under an enabling act of the New Jersey legislature this winter and Secretary Esler was authorized to take the necessary steps to that end.

The secretary also was authorized to file the list of Hail Association members with the secretary of the S. A. F. for the purpose of securing representation on the S. A. F. board of directors under the affiliation plan, President E. G. Hill to be certified as the representative of the Florists' Hail Association.

By-Laws to be Revised.

The directors held two sessions of some length and a large part of the day was given over to the discussion of changes in the by-laws, which, it is believed, will render the conduct of the affairs of the association still more efficient and still further increase the membership, which has been progressing steadily all the time. In order to put the proposed amendments into the best legal form so as to clearly express their intent and meaning, J. A. Valentine, of Denver, whose ability in this regard is well known, was appointed a committee of one to draft the amendments in accordance with the trend of the discussion and report back to the president of the board of directors for eventual submission to the vote of the stockholders. These new amendments are expected to establish a fiscal year, under which arrangement the annual meetings of the association will be held at the call of the president after such fiscal year is concluded, at such time and place as he may designate.

WORK OF TWO BROTHERS

THE GULLETT GREENHOUSES.

A Modern Cut Flower Range.

Most of the large greenhouse establishments are the result of many years of building and it is not often that one has the opportunity to visit a big modern range that has been reared out of the cornfields in two short years.

Starting their new range in the late fall of 1914, Gullett & Sons, of Lincoln, Ill., erected two steel-frame houses, each 60x500. These are houses 1 and 2, at the south side of the range, as seen in the sketch which is shown on page 18. Each house contains two equal sections. In the sketch the encircled figure in the center of each house is the house number; the other figures are the section numbers.

During the same winter the firm added one house 60x500. In the spring and summer of 1915 three more houses 60x500 were added, and two propagating houses 27x415. Operations were suspended for the winter of 1915, but early this summer work was started on two growing houses 30x417 and two 60x500.

And the expansion of the range will not end with the completion of the even dozen houses. For the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., now at work on house 12, has already received an order for houses 13 and 14, each to be 60x500, and both to be finished by March.

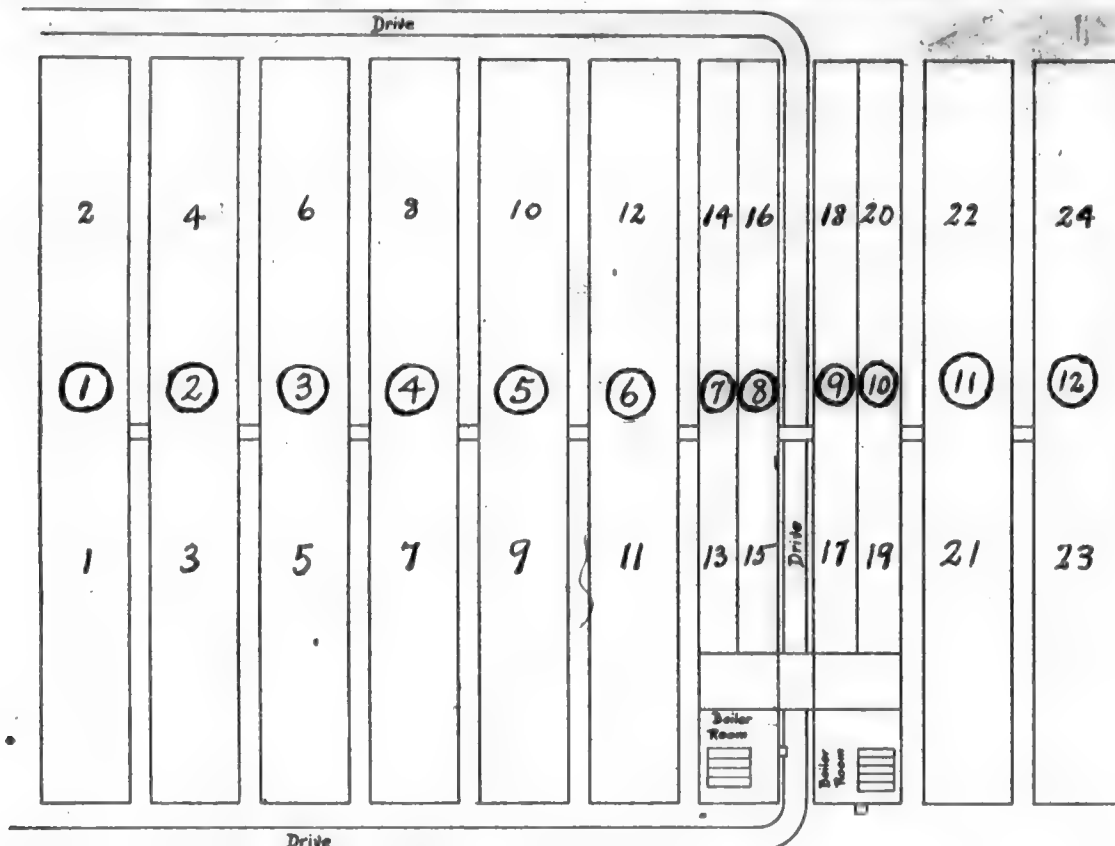

Two large service buildings have been erected, at the east end of houses 7 to 10. One is 55x110, of frame construction, and a new one, just completed, is 60x100, of tile and steel.

Boiler House and Packing Room.

for miles around. One chimney is five feet in diameter inside at the top and 110 feet high; the other is seven feet inside at the top and towers 160 feet above ground. These have a total capacity of 2,500 horsepower.

The boilers in this building are set two in a battery and there are three batteries at present installed. Each battery is 300 horsepower. The boilers are of the horizontal return tubular type and are all connected with one steam header.

After leaving the boiler room, one enters the big packing room. Here are all the modern conveniences needed for a big range. The refrigerating apparatus is large enough for 1,000,000 square feet of glass. It is a 2-room box, built right into the building. Each room is 12x20 feet and fitted with tables and shelves.

The packing room is fitted up with tables for packing, bins for supplies, scales, balconies for storage of boxes, etc. On one side is a private office for the manager and shipping clerk. Above this office there are two bedrooms of ample size. At one end a lavatory has been installed for the men. Another and larger room is fitted up for the seven steam pumps which handle the heating and watering systems. This room is enclosed with glass, and the maze of piping, valves, oilers, pumps, etc., is bewildering to the uninitiated. The outfit, however, is said to be simple and easy to handle.

Some Appreciative Visitors.

Under the guidance of the manager of the range, Adolph Nielsen, a party of visitors recently left the big service buildings and started through the greenhouses. The range has been carefully mapped and each bench, section and house is numbered, as indicated partly in the accompanying sketch.

Entering house No. 9, the visitors walked west on a broad cement walk over which several large pipe lines were laid on pipe arches. The arches were neatly painted and the pipes were all covered with asbestos.

House No. 9 is 30x417 and divided, like all the other houses, into two sections. The east end is section 17 and the west end is section 18. In section 17 the empty benches were being made ready for grafting and for Manetti stock. Section 18 was planted with chrysanthemums, comprising three benches of pompon and single varieties. There was also one bench of Bonnaillon and one bench of Charles Rager. By means of the center walk between the sections, house No. 10 was next entered. It, also, was planted to chrysanthemums. One bench of Unaka and one bench of White Chadwick looked exceptionally well. Two benches of Improved Chadwick also were coming along finely. Other varieties in this house were Golden Chadwick, Alice Salomon, Harvard, White Jones, Yellow Jones, Lynnwood Hall and Chieftain. A full bench was given to each of these varieties.

From house 10 the visitors passed into No. 11, the big new 60-foot house finished in August. This house contained the wind-up of the carnation planting. There are ten benches, 250 feet long, in section 21 and the same number in section 22. The house was planted with three benches of Nebraska Red, four benches of white varieties, two benches of Alice and two benches of Enchantress Supreme. The balance was made up principally of Ward and Enchantress varieties. This big house was certainly a pleasing sight. The plants were not high enough to obstruct the view and the green in the benches contrasted beautifully with the white-painted building. Never did a greenhouse and the plants in it seem to afford so perfect a view. It was worth the whole visit just to stand in this house and look around admiringly.

Among the Early Mums.

The construction of house No. 12 was just being started, so the callers retraced their steps to house No. 8. Section 16 was planted with chrysanthemums. At the time of the visit, September 12, Golden Glow had been cut from for three weeks and there were still a large number of elegant blooms on the bench. There was a bench of Smith's Advance in bloom and another bench that would be ready to cut in another week. A bench of October Frost in this house looked exceptionally well. In section 15, Bonnaillons were the main item and these were coming along in good shape. In house 7, section 14, there were five more benches of chrysanthemums, consisting of Golden Glow, Golden Wedding, Chrysolora and Maud Dean. This house was one of the first planted and some of the varieties had been cut from for three or four weeks. Section 13 of this house looked rather vacant, with the exception of about 1,500 White Killarney and Richmond plants left over from the grafted rose stock. The men were at work getting benches ready for propagating carnations.

The next house in order was No. 6, another of the big houses, 60x500. This house was planted to carnations, and of the entire bunch Nebraska Red certainly looked like the winner. White Wonder was coming into crop in good shape. Other varieties here were Belle Carnations in House No. 11 of the New Gullett Range at Lincoln.

Washburn, Enchantress and White Enchantress.

House No. 5 also was devoted entirely to carnations. They had been planted in the latter part of July and the varieties were Champion, Ward, Matchless and White Enchantress. In house 5, there were about 33,000 plants, the same number as in house 6 and house 11. Thirteen thousand of the plants in house 5 were Matchless. The other three varieties were divided about evenly.

The Rose Houses.

House No. 4 was the first rose house to be reached. In section 8 Killarney, White Killarney and some Brilliant had been rested and started up. They were just coming into crop in fine shape. Some Mrs. Russell and Ophelia in section 7 were just over the resting period and being started. Only one bench in this house had been run through without resting. This was a bench of Wards and they looked well.

In house 3, section 6 contained Killarney and White Killarney which had been started up after resting. Section 5 consisted of one bench of Ward and nine benches of Killarney and White Killarney, all in crop and giving a big cut. Section 5 in this house certainly was the best seen so far, but section 3 in house 2 was better still. This section had been planted with young plants, about half Russell and half Ophelia, all now in crop. Section 4 in this house was also planted with Russell and Ophelia, but here the plants were old. The entire house was in crop and, from the looks of things in the refrigerator, a good number of flowers were being taken every day.

In house 2 there were a few plants of Baby Doll. It was stated that these plants were merely a try-out of this variety and that so far it had made a fair showing. One bench in section 3 was devoted to Cecile Brunner.

The Red Roses.

In section 1 of the last house, No. 1, were some of the best Beauties that had been seen in a long time. There were eight benches and each bench seemed as perfect as its neighbor—tall, strong, healthy looking plants that any grower would admire. There was one bench of Richmond and one of Milady in this section. These two reds seemed to be doing nicely. In section 2 there were five benches of Shawyer that would do credit to any grower. There were three benches of Hoosier Beauty. These eight benches were all young stock. Two benches of Richmond were old stock. The three reds, Richmond, Milady and Hoosier Beauty, said Mr. Nielsen, were being grown together and watched carefully to see which did the best. The entire house was in crop.

The manager has been having considerable trouble with the leaf-roller and has tried some unique methods to get rid of it. One idea tested with considerable success consisted of having an electric light near the center of the house and beneath this a tub full of water and kerosene. The light was turned on during the night and the next morning the tub was covered with moths. Thousands of moths were caught in this manner.

The Plant Range.

After bidding good-bye to Mr. Nielsen, the party was taken in charge by C. G. Anderson and driven over to the plant range of Gullett & Sons, on Tremont street near the center of the city. This plant range is quite like many other greenhouse ranges, in that it consists of a number of small houses built from time to time over a period of many years. The houses are all of pipe-frame construction and some of them are rather old. There are twenty-five houses in this range, with a total area of 100,000 square feet. With the exception of a house or more of chrysanthemums and small quantities of other stock for cutting, this entire range is devoted to pot plants and bedding stock.

The visitors were forcibly impressed by two characteristics of the plant stock—its uniformly high quality and the judicious selection of the most salable commercial varieties. There were cyclamens, chrysanthemums in pots, Primula obconica, Dracaena terminalis, Pandanus Veitchii, crotons, ficus, Chatelaine begonias, French hydrangeas, poinsettias, peppers and miscellaneous bedding stock. In the palm houses were Phoenix Roebelenii, kentias, arecas, etc. In the fern sections there were Bostons, Whitmani and Wanamaker ferns, Pteris albo-lineata, Pteris Wilsoni, Asplenium Nidus-avis, smilax, Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri. In the propagating department there were thousands of cuttings of geraniums and other stock in the sand.

A Fine Stock of Cyclamens.

The stock of cyclamens was so notable, both in quantity and quality, as to deserve special mention. Six entire houses were occupied by these plants, in all sizes up to 10-inch. The visitors were told that the cyclamens this year were the best the company had ever put out, and an unusually large number of fine specimen plants were noticed. There were English and German varieties and the 4-inch to 6-inch plants were better developed than the usual plants in pots of these sizes. The large plants exceeded anything the callers had ever seen and Wilbur Gullett said they were the largest he had ever heard of. They were immense.

In the packing room five or six men were busy shipping stock of all kinds, some of the shipments going as far north as Duluth and others going to Houston, Tex. The company does a large business in its plant department, having been engaged in this line for many years and making a specialty of this class of trade.

The plant houses, however, did not efface the memory of the visit to the wonderful new cut flower range. Taken all in all, the Gullett place at Lincoln is worth anybody's time and railroad fare. Any who have never seen it have missed seeing one of the most interesting florists' establishments in the country. Ed. Gullett and Wilbur Gullett offered the visitors every courtesy and did everything possible to make the stay in Lincoln pleasant.

 From the close of the banquet until 12 o'clock there was dancing.

Wednesday was devoted to recreation. A printed list of the trade places to visit was given each person present. There was an interstate bowling match during the forenoon, luncheon being served at the alleys. At 1:30 the party took cars for the William Walker Co. establishment at Ormsby Station, Ky., where the afternoon was spent in looking over the Walker plant and in games of different kinds.

HANDS ACROSS THE OHIO

HOOSIERS AND COLONELS MEET.

First Joint Session.

The state florists' societies of Indiana and Kentucky held their first joint meeting October 17 and 18, the party gathering at the establishment of Anders Rasmussen, in New Albany, Ind., going thence to Louisville for the second day, which was devoted to recreation.

The affair was highly successful in every way. The attendance was large and the affair enjoyable from beginning to end. Arriving at the Rasmussen establishment, which is one of the largest and most thoroughly up-to-date in southern Indiana, the late morning hours were devoted to getting acquainted and to the inspection of the greenhouses. Shortly after noon an excellent luncheon was spread in the large service building for the 150 visitors.

Business Session.

After luncheon the regular monthly meeting of the State Florists' Association of Indiana was held, with President W. J. Vesey in the chair. A. F. J. Baur read a paper entitled "False Economy," which brought out an excellent discussion, participated in by Herbert Walker, Fred Lenson, George Schultz, H. Kleinstark and others. The paper appears in this issue of The Review and is open for further discussion in its columns. Edwin Morner, of Shelbyville, was elected to membership.

An invitation was extended by Earl Mann, of the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., to the Kentucky Society of Florists to attend the next regular meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association, November 2, at Richmond.

Indiana Experiment Work.

A report was made for the committee of the Indiana association appointed to advise in the work for florists at Purdue University experiment station. The committee consists of F. E. Dorner, Joseph H. Hill, A. F. J. Baur, A. R. Rasmussen and John Hartje. A meeting was held September 14, at the university, at which Mr. Dorner was elected chairman and Prof. Woodbury appointed secretary. There was extended discussion of the various problems of Indiana florists and it was suggested that work might well be done on aster blight, stem-rot, fairy ring and yellows of the carnation, testing new plants before dissemination, mealy bug, why sweet peas drop buds, the rose midge, florists' fertilizers and the most profitable methods of handling various crops. The belief was that the work done in Indiana should not duplicate the work done at other state experiment stations, although some members of the committee disagreed with the methods and conclusions of certain other stations. The matter was left open for investigation and further consideration, but the committee was able to give every assurance that the trade interests will be well looked after at Purdue.

The Second Day.

After adjournment a group photograph was made and the rest of the afternoon spent in looking over the city of New Albany, proceeding thence across the Ohio to Louisville, where a banquet was held at the Henry Waterson hotel in the evening, with the following program:

Address of Welcome, President Kleinstark, Kentucky.
 Response, President Vesey, of Indiana.
 Toast, "Our Honored Guests," William Mann, Kentucky.
 Toast, "Goodfellowship," W. W. Coles, Indiana.

PAPER WHITES FOR CHRISTMAS.

Will you please tell me how late Paper Whites may be planted to bloom for Christmas? I have been told of a grower who planted them in his mums beds after the mums were removed, about eight weeks before he wished to cut them. Is it advisable to do this, or should they be allowed to make their root growth before being brought into the heat and light? V. R. F.—Ind.

In a warm house Paper Whites can be planted and flowered for Christmas in eight to ten weeks. You would have better success, however, by planting in flats now. The longer the bulbs are kept out of the soil, the more poorly will they grow and flower. It is not necessary to place Paper Whites in the dark to make growth. Give them full light all the time. Place them in cold-frames now, or even outdoors. If they are placed outside, give the flats a covering of sand or coal ashes and move them before we get sharp frosts. C. W.

FALSE ECONOMY

ECONOMY is a subject most vital to us all. Indeed, it is a vital issue with practically every citizen, whether he is a poor laborer who lives by the sweat of his brow, or the manager of a large corporation with millions of capital at his command. Economy is considered of such great importance as to engage the best thoughts of some of our brainiest men. In the factory, on the farm, in the kitchen, in the bank and in civil government, "Economy" is the watchword, and wherever true economy is practiced there is progress and accumulation of wealth.

But, unfortunately, the average person's perception of economy is merely the saving of material or money and any kind of saving is considered economy, when really there is a point where it loses its virtue and becomes a menace, known as false economy, which is as bad as real economy is good. It is of this false economy I want to talk to you today. It will be my purpose to point out to you some of the things many of us do from day to day under the impression that we are economizing, when really we are wasting our resources in so doing. You have heard the old saying, "Penny-wise and pound-foolish." Well, that phrase is made a reality every day by members of our profession. For instance:

Poor Sites at Low Prices.

Why do we find so many greenhouse plants poorly located? Usually it is because the land could be purchased at a low price, little thought being given to proximity to the markets where the stock is to be sold or accessibility to an adequate water supply, which in most cases is the city water mains, or a handy railway switch for unloading coal and other materials, to say nothing of future real estate values. The benefits from these things would easily pay the interest on several thousands of dollars invested in a desirable location. To locate on low-lying ground, with its constant danger from floods, is foolhardy, to say the least.

In planning a greenhouse range and the heating system, not enough thought is given to future extensions. Growers most successful career as a florist was brought to a close October 12 when August Carl Oelschig, of Savannah, Ga., founder of A. C. Oelschig & Sons, one of the largest concerns in the entire south, departed from this life. Death came as an end of an illness that began about eighteen months ago.

OBITUARY

August Carl Oelschig.

The deceased, who was born in the kingdom of Saxony, Germany, November 27, 1848, was a veteran of the trade, for on his arrival in America in 1874 he secured employment with Gabriel Marks, at Woodside, Long Island, N. Y., and there mastered the profession.

In 1881 Mr. Oelschig removed to Savannah and launched the greenhouse business which later became the foundation of the large establishment he conducted at the time of his death. At the start Mr. Oelschig specialized in producing rose plants for the northern markets, and in this he had great success for a number of years. Later he expanded his business by venturing into the retail field and subsequently started a department for the wholesale production of rubber plants. As a grower of ficus the deceased enjoyed a national reputation; more than 20,000 ficus cuttings were shipped by the concern during last spring and summer. Mr. Oelschig was said to be the introducer of wild smilax, palm leaves, southern palms and pine tops for decorative purposes. The business, which makes use of twenty-four houses, a nursery and store, will be continued by the sons, Carl H. and Albert Oelschig.

The deceased was a member of the S. A. F. for a number of years and served several times as vice-president for the state of Georgia. He was the incumbent of the office at the time of his death. He was actively identified with the Fraternal Order of Eagles and Knights of Pythias and was one of the leading factors in German social and benevolent activities.

The survivors of Mr. Oelschig are his wife, six children, one sister and numerous relatives in Germany. The children are: Carl and Albert Oelschig, Mrs. L. Schweizer, Misses Anna, Elsa and Olga Oelschig. All of these reside in Savannah.

Funeral services were held October 13 and interment made in Hillcrest cemetery, with rites of the Knights of Pythias. Numerous floral tributes from his many friends and acquaintances marked the last resting place.

Samuel Fleming Kerns.

Samuel F. Kerns, pioneer of 1852 in the state of Oregon and founder of the first nursery at Portland, which he later transferred to Eugene, Ore., and conducted under the firm name of Kerns & Parson, died October 8 at the age of 83, death resulting from a broken leg sustained in a fall four weeks previously.

Mr. Kerns was born in Hillsboro, Highland county, Ohio. In his early boyhood his family followed the receding frontier, settling for a time in Indiana at Logansport and Rensselaer, when the boy was 19 years of age.

They entered Oregon by the old Barlow road and took up a farm in what is now Montavilla, Ore. The same year his future wife, Miss Elizabeth Claggett, was brought west as a child by her parents, who chose the route through The Dalles.

Mr. Kerns worked for some years in the Mt. Tabor district, and at the time of his marriage in 1868 was able to bring his bride to a 20-acre tract on the east side of Portland. Here he developed one of the first nurseries in Oregon. Mr. Kerns remained in the nursery business, first in Portland, but from 1883 to 1908 in Eugene. In 1908 he broke his leg, the same one whose repeated breakage caused his death, and retired from business, turning his nurseries over to his sons, LeRoy and Harold Kerns.

Twice Mr. Kerns responded to his country's call for soldiers. He served as a private along the Snake River in the Indian war of 1856, and in 1862 he volunteered for the Civil war.

The two sons, and two daughters, Mrs. F. L. Chambers, wife of a Eugene banker, and Miss Maude Kerns, teacher of art in the Lincoln high school at Seattle, survive him.

Nicholas Phillips.

Nicholas Phillips, for ten years manager of the rose department of C. P. Mueller, the Wichita, Kan., florist, was killed two weeks ago when the automobile which he was driving got beyond control and turned turtle on a road not far from Wichita. After killing Mr.

Phillips the car flopped right side up and, with its engine still running at full speed, stood sentinel over the corpse until found several hours later.

The deceased, who was well known in Wichita and neighboring towns, was 37 years of age and unmarried. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. George Winters, of Colwich, Kan.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS.

"This is the most vagarious season in my experience," remarked W. A. Kennedy, of the C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, "and I was raised in a flower pot, so to speak. With the greenhouse thermometer registering 160 degrees in the shade, is it any wonder that roses and mums, especially on the edges of the beds, were burned? We growers are feeling the effects of the heat in the early period and are compelled to fire to keep down black spot and other diseases. The result of the setback is seen in the late-flowering stock, more noticeable on account of the severe early frost that killed all outdoor stock, with nothing in sight but carnations—for a spell at least." Mr. Kennedy believes that sympathy with the other fellows in the same boat helps out quite a bit.

Herman V. Hunkel, of the Holton & Hunkel Co., Milwaukee, now figures labor as one fixed advance charge. He agrees that labor in the greenhouse, with its number of hours, has not been adequately recognized until now. "The item of coal is not fixed, as it is possible that the winter may be brighter and shorter, so that in the end the expense may not be beyond the average," said Mr. Hunkel. "The high cost of glass certainly has checked building, for the present anyhow. We are figuring the advance in prices now charged to cover the general increase already unavoidable, but we cannot stand the additional strain, which I believe is only temporary," concluded Mr. Hunkel. Russell and Killarney roses are seen in excellent quality for first crop, from the Deer Park range.

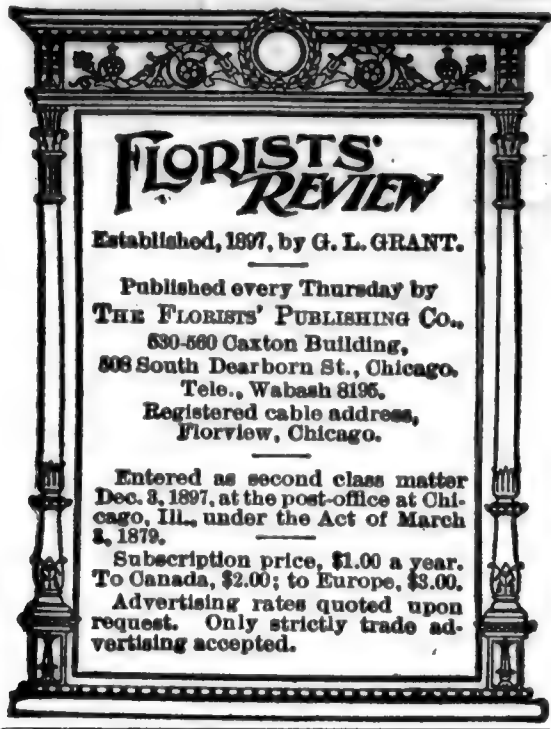

Robert Rahaley, manager of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, of Detroit, says anything good sells nowadays. "This cold spell will shorten up stock, just when we have begun to look for a good supply to please both our customers and ourselves," said Mr. Rahaley.

William Dilger, of the Dilger Landscape Co., Detroit, informs me that a large share of the company's business is done in Canada. When I met him he was making a visit to Walkerville, Ont., to look over the decorative work annually contracted for by J. Breitmeyer's Sons.

Van Bochove & Bro., of Kalamazoo, Mich., report a busy summer. July was rather better than August, with much design work. The first display of fall bulbs in the store window was fine and a good reminder of planting time. "Planting time soon will be here," observed Mr. Van Bochove, "for the frost is on the pumpkin and the gardens soon will be desolate."

THE men who make money are the men who make a trade progress. No trade prospers in which it is a sin to make more than $2 a day.

THE Ryndam, from Rotterdam, via Kirkwall, arrived at New York on the morning of October 18 with large consignments of Belgian azaleas and other imports for this trade.

EVEN cranberries now are advertised coöperatively by an organization of growers, but it is not yet possible to advertise flowers to the public in anything but a spasmodic and individual fashion.

A BUSINESS rarely rises above the motives of its owner. But what is the florist's motive? Is it a desire to make a living as easily as possible or a purpose to give the best that is in him, in quality and service?

THERE is an acute shortage of field-grown carnation plants throughout the middle west. Although it is late for planting, anyone who has plants to spare can convert them into cash in quick time by listing the varieties and prices in the Classified department of The Review.

EVERY day there are evidences that it no longer is sufficient to open a store, stock it with attractive merchandise and install someone to ring the cash register. Something more is necessary; it is essential that the management reach out and pull the people in. There now are so many places to buy flowers that a new store seldom is looked upon as filling a long-felt want.

DATE OF THANKSGIVING.

Thanksgiving will be November 30 this year, the latest ever.

President Wilson, with whom the matter rests, has indicated that Thanksgiving day will be on the last Thursday in November, as usual, which means that it will fall on the last day of next month. Suggestions have been made that, in view of the fact that the feast day is coming so close to Christmas this year, President Wilson should designate November 23 as the official date. It was announced this week, however, that the president will name November 30 as the date in his proclamation.

SEPARATE MEETINGS BEST?

After having met for years during the week of the S. A. F. convention, and in the same city, two of the societies most closely affiliated with the parent organization last week broke away by voting to hold future annual meetings at some other time than during S. A. F. conventions. The reason in each case was the same, the apparent impossibility of getting the members of the special society to attend meetings and work during the busy days of a big national convention.

It was the consensus that for anything more than the quick and perfunctory dispatch of routine work a separate meeting is in every way better. Both the F. T. D. and the Hail Association took the same view and will hold their principal meetings separately in 1918.

What effect, if any, this trend will have on S. A. F. conventions remains for the future to disclose. There is every prospect that S. A. F. conventions will be more irregular in the future. A record convention, so far as attendance goes, is indicated for New York in August, 1917, with another big one in St. Louis in April, 1918, only eight months apart. After that the society may seek pastures new, as it did in 1915 and 1916. The men whose principal interest lies in some of the special societies feel that either too large a meeting or too distant a one is equally prejudicial to the best interests of the special society that meets at the same place and time.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society met in New York city October 9, and considerable business was gone over. A report on the Washington test garden was made, stating that the garden had been materially improved since early spring and that Dr. Van Felt was to assume general direction of it.

Application was received from Howard & Smith, of Los Angeles, Cal., for the registration of a new seedling described as follows:

Rose California—Color, burnt orange, shaded with golden yellow at the base of the petals; flowers full; bud long and pointed; fairly fragrant. A strong, vigorous grower in this climate, and practically mildew-proof.

This rose has been investigated and the registration was ordered.

The place of the next annual meeting was a topic under discussion and the suggestion has taken form to hold a rose society meeting at Philadelphia next spring. There were certain offers of a guarantee fund made by five individuals towards making it a success. The matter, by resolution, was referred to President Pennock, who is to make preliminary inquiry relative to the rose exhibit at the annual meeting in Philadelphia in 1917.

Application and correspondence was gone over relative to a rose test garden at Bellingham, Wash., and at College Station, Tex.

It was decided to hold a meeting of the American Rose Society at the chrysanthemum show to be held in Philadelphia during November, when it is hoped many members of the American Rose Society will attend.

The fund for the rose disease investigations by Prof. L. Massey, of Cornell University, has been contributed to so far by twenty-eight members of the American Rose Society.

THE GLASS MARKET.

According to the report of the window and plate glass committee, the last year has been a notable one for the industry and from the manufacturing standpoint particularly gratifying for the following reasons:

There was more glass made than ever before.

There was more glass sold.

Prices advanced and kept advancing.

Largest export business ever known.

September 1, 1915, the stocks in the hands of the manufacturers amounted to 1,300,000 boxes. The stocks in the hands of the manufacturers September 1 of this year amounted to about 500,000 boxes and sales in the United States have amounted to about 8,600,000 boxes.

The cost of production advanced with the increased demand. Owing to the war, munition, machine and other manufacturing plants offered higher wages than they ever paid before and immediately labor became unrestful and discontented. Some material used in connection with the manufacture of window glass also arose on the wave of higher prices. It was therefore necessary for the manufacturers to get better prices for their product and in consequence they made several advances which aggregated about thirty per cent above the prices current during the summer of 1915. It is understood that the workmen will demand, and probably receive, a substantial advance in wages for the coming fire, and this will probably cause further advance in prices.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

Two things have contributed to make the market during the last seven days better than it was during the preceding week. First, shipping trade is beginning to assume the proportions incident to a thriving autumn business, and local demand, though erratic, is gradually gathering strength. October 12 was a decidedly bad day, but with its passing demand began to increase steadily and without a pause. The last two days of the week everything cleared with ease and present indications would lead one to believe that there is little chance of a serious relapse.

An unusual feature of the market is that chrysanthemums, though in much larger supply and variety than they were a week ago, do not seem in any way to detract from the sale of roses. To be sure, the supply of roses is

The Mum Season Has Opened Strong

WE hear that Mums are late. But you wouldn't know it from the looks of our counters! The fact is we never had a larger, finer or more complete assortment at this date. This week we are receiving Yellow Queen, Golden Glow, Robt. Halliday, Smith's Advance, Crystal Gem, Early Snow, Oconto, Polly Rose, Unaka and others. Can furnish any size, any color or any quantity you want—just let us know what. Pompons are ready—bronze, maroon and yellow.

HOOSIER BEAUTY

And Other First-class Roses

The Hoosier Beauty we offer this week are the finest roses now in this market and will appeal particularly to the retailer who wants something not common and of extra quality. We have them in quantity up to 30 to 36-inch stems.

Also we have large supplies of Russell, extra fine Milady, excellent Ophelia, splendid Sunburst, plenty of White Killarney, etc.

For corsage work we offer Mrs. Ward in quantity.

FINE BEAUTIES

You will have to search far for better Beauties—but why search at all when you can get here all you need? Can furnish any length, but the demand is so good we urge ordering early in the day, as city buyers quickly clean up all our Beauties not needed for shipping orders.

VIOLETS

Now ready to supply good stock of single or double in quantity.

ORCHIDS

We offer fine Cattleyas in quantity.

CARNATIONS

You can get of us nice clean stock, stems of fair length.

VALLEY

You always can get fine Valley here.

EASTER LILIES

While we never are without good Giganteum Lilies, our supply this week is larger than usual. The stock is fine, cut tight for shipping.

slightly smaller than it was, but that still leaves a most liberal supply, and yet, except in rare cases, roses are moving satisfactorily. Russell has been an exception to the general rule of plenty. In fact, it has been at a premium on the market. Beauties, too, have been in smaller supply. Demand, of course, has been increasingly large.

At last carnations are finding their way to market in sufficient quantities to enable wholesalers to fill orders to better advantage than for several weeks. Valley, too, is at least approximating demand. Easter lilies, being in only fair supply, clear readily. The supply of cattleyas is short. So, too, is the demand. Gladioli may be found on the market, but so far as constituting a factor, they are done. The status of the aster is much the same. Rubrum lilies may be added to the list of has-beens.

Violets sold better at the end of last week than they have at any time since their arrival on the market a few weeks ago. Sweet peas, also, are enjoying a period of favor. Though not received in sufficient quantities to cut a figure, snapdragon is selling well.

Smilax, though by no means as scarce as it has been, is yet far from plentiful. Other greens are in sufficient supply and move in a satisfactory manner.

Various Notes.

L. Baumann & Co. received last week a large shipment of goods from Germany, which was obtained only after long negotiations by the firm with the American, German and English governments.

There is much comment around the market with reference to the F. T. D. meeting last week, it having impressed nearly all who came in touch that this body of some sixty visitors represented a higher average order of business ability than has any other gathering of florists ever held in Chicago.

In talking of the Illinois State Florists' Association the other day, C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, presented some interesting facts. The association now has ninety members in the S. A. F. Ten more will give it representation on the board of directors of the S. A. F. It is now the largest state organization and if it attains to this honor of S. A. F. representation it will have the distinction of being the first state society to be so honored. Mr. Washburn believes that a strong state organization is of great value to the trade, inasmuch as all matters of express and freight rates, legislation and all things pertaining to the welfare of the trade will be participated in by it.

Running a branch store is not always as easy as it sounds. At least John Mangel finds it difficult to push his handsome new Edgewater Beach hotel store while giving his Monroe street store the attention it demands. He therefore is offering the branch store for sale. It is in one of the finest new hotels in the city, in a district of the best apartment houses and private homes in Chicago, where the flower-buying capacity is high, and it has no competition for an unusually long way north, west and south. It seems as though someone should be able to do a splendid business there and the store is complete and up-to-date in every detail.

Two of the brightest women in the local field now are associated, Miss Elsie Schnapp being right-hand man for Miss Charlotte Megchelsen at her handsome store on the southwest corner of Grand boulevard and Forty-seventh street.

The blue gentian, gathered in the Indiana woods, E. F. Winterson says, has been having a brisk sale for use in basket work. E. Wienhoeber has a patch of it at Highland park that affords his company a special supply.

There will be a celebration at Morton Grove Saturday, for October 21 August F. Poehlmann, president of the

Might is Quiet

Judged by its noise, a single cylinder automobile is the mightiest of motor cars.

Judged by its noise, Beaver Creek, a tiny Montana mountain stream, is far greater than the Mississippi River.

Judged by its noise, the crow is a more majestic bird than the eagle.

And so it is with men and business. Judged only by noise, many insignificant enterprises would be considered great.

As in nature, so it is with men. Those of us who try to do our part in life a little better than the average, go forward to our goal without pomp or ceremony, always simple, always friendly, ever willing to lend a helping hand to any man—and never boastful.

While quietness is not mighty, yet we realize that—village and president and treasurer of Poehlmann Bros. Co., will be 47 years of age.

The arrival of the Dutch bulbs is later than ever before, according to James Hancock, right-hand man for Frank Oechslin. Twenty-five cases arrived October 14 and notices have been received that the other lots are on the way. Notices also have arrived that the azaleas, or some of them, are en route, but Mr. Oechslin says there is no money in forcing azaleas and he would not regret it if none came to America this season; his reason for handling them is to keep abreast of competition.

Hoosier Beauty is a rose that did not make an instantaneous success when the local growers tried it, but if Meyer & Dramm Co., Elmhurst, Ill., can maintain the pace they have set with it this autumn it will become one of the leading roses on this market. The stock they are cutting this season entitles Hoosier Beauty to be ranked with the leaders.

The best keeper, as a cut flower, of all the gladioli, according to John Michelsen, is Kunderdi Glory, and C. S. Clausen, gladiolus expert, agrees with him.

There have been a great many telephone calls at the George Wienhoeber store during the last few days, but not all have been orders; quite a few have been congratulations on the arrival of a second daughter in the Wienhoeber home.

After having been employed there since its opening last spring, Richard Rolston left the Eagleston Flower Craft Shop on Hyde Park boulevard October 14. This is a new store run by a man without previous experience in the florists' business, but it seems to offer an excellent opportunity to establish a first-class trade in a good section of town that has little competition.

P. F. Dewinck recently opened a store at 5740 Ridge avenue and is doing nicely. He has been only five years in this country.

The alterations that have recently been made in the establishment of Charles Grabig, 1843 Irving Park boulevard, are most interesting to anyone desiring to make the most of a given space. The old refrigerator has been disposed of and a new one installed by the A. L. Randall Co. The unique thing about it is the fact that the builders converted what had at one time been a living room into an icebox. An added advantage of the construction is that the ice chest is filled from the outside. Edward Drehman, who is in charge of the store, has a striking display window, Red Riding Hood picking flowers while a fierce wolf, made of bark, watches her from a brake of ferns.

The affairs of the committee that handled the recent convention of the vegetable growers were closed up at a meeting held October 12 at Hotel Planters. Fred Lautenschlager was chairman, James B. Foley secretary, and E. F. Kurowski treasurer.

Following a few days' stay at West Baden, Ind., Peter Reinberg and his wife are again in the city. Mr. Reinberg visited the market October 16. Pompons are being cut in the Reinberg ranges.

Knoble Bros., Cleveland, O., bought an entire store equipment from the A. L. Randall Co. The order included fixtures, cooler, work tables and all accessories. After spending four months on the Mexican border as a member of the Second Illinois infantry, F. W. Haeger is again at work in the plant department of the Randall Co.

John Poehlmann, of the Poehlmann Bros. Co., who has been confined to his home with a severe cold for several days, is in his office again.

In speaking of the new carnation, Thenanthos, last week, C. L. Loveridge, of Peoria, who purchased several thousand plants, said that in his opinion it is one of the most remarkable carnations in the market. He placed an order before seeing the plants on the bench, and after he saw them he doubled the order.

Lawrence W. Tonner, brother of O. A. & L. A. Tonner, who is associated with Francis Grierson, author and improvisator, has left for an extended tour of the east after a visit of several weeks with the home folks.

Three crews of men employed by Buchbinder Bros. returned to Chicago last week, after installing refrigerators for the Siebrecht Floral Co., of Winona, Minn.; Charles Bloom, of Clinton, Ia., and Stuhldreher Bros., of Mansfield, O.

The Geo. Wittbold Co. is wrecking the Weiland greenhouses at Evanston, which it recently purchased, and is removing the material to Edgebrook, for the purpose of increasing its facilities at that point. The company also has rented additional glass in Rogers Park to take care of its surplus stock.

Carl Ickes, president of the Ickes-Braun Mill Co., says the orders recently received by his concern indicate that the florists' trade throughout the country is prosperous. From Mount Clemens, Mich., alone last week three orders from as many florists were received.

A large number of those attending the F. T. D. meeting last week made a trip to Hinsdale and Greggs to visit the new houses of Bassett & Washburn. They were particularly interested in the large cold-storage plant.

It is the well-founded boast of Pyfer & Olsem, of Wilmette, that they grow all the novelties. One thing is certain, they know a good thing when they see it. Several thousand plants of the new Carnation Thenanthos have been purchased by them. A. T. Pyfer says it looks like a winner to him.

The retail department of the W. W. Barnard Co. has added Jason P. Mallette, formerly of the O. H. Dickinson Seed Co., Springfield, Mass., to its staff.

Among those who specialize in the growing of new varieties is Edward H. Blameuser, of Niles Center. Chrysanthemums receive a large share of his attention in season. As a member of one of the pioneer families of Niles township he has an unusually large acquaintance.

On a recent trip to Flint, Mich., Sidney Buchbinder, of Buchbinder Bros., secured a contract to build a refrigerator for the new Hasselbring store. Mr. Hasselbring's new shop will be in his new building in Flint and no expense will be spared to make it modern in every way. A special feature of the refrigerator will be its oval shape.

Visitors.

S. B. Wertheimer, of the New York ribbon house, is in the city on a trip on which he is combining business and pleasure.

Roger Peterson, of J. A. Peterson & Sons, Cincinnati, has been in town several days, making his headquarters with the E. C. Amling Co., in whose store he has had a display of plants.

Samuel Murray, of Kansas City, who came to town last week to attend the F. T. D. and Hail Association meetings, being a director in the latter organization, still is here in company with his friend, Arnold Ringier, who returned October 17 from a business trip in the interest of the W. W. Barnard Co. Mr. Murray and Mr. Ringier have been chums for twenty-seven years.

Miss Charlotte Loveridge, daughter of C. Loveridge, of Peoria, is a guest in the home of A. T. Hey. Last week her father and J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., were his guests.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

The closing week of the Indiana centennial celebration was in every way a remarkable one; numerous visitors and the carnival spirit placed business at high tide. While it has been a great problem to supply the demand, all retailers seem to have met with success.

Roses have been predominant in popularity, with numerous varieties available—Killarney, Russell, Sawyer, Maryland, Radiance, Sunburst, Ward, Richmond, Milady, Ophelia and Kaiserin—ranging in prices from $2 to $8 per hundred. Beauties brought 75 cents to $3 per dozen.

Carnations seem to be more abundant, but the price remains the same and the demand good.

After a temporary recession chrysanthemums are becoming more plentiful. Comoleta, Golden Glow, Smith's Advance, Early Frost, Charles Rager, Unaka and Glory of Pacific now are in the market. Pompons and singles as yet have not made their appearance.

The market still is short on lilies, the supply of these being exhausted daily. Orchids and valley are holding their own at high prices. A limited quantity of violets is appearing. A striking feature for this time of year is a fine crop of snapdragons in yellow and pink. Buddleia Veitchiana and B.

We cut our flowers tight in the bud, as the majority of our trade is shipping. Flowers that are sold mostly to the city trade are allowed to open more than for the shipping trade.

We have the regular varieties of Roses in large quantities, receiving them direct from the greenhouses within a few hours of being cut, which enables us to fill all orders with strictly fresh stock. This is the great advantage of buying direct of the grower.

William Aherne, of Columbia, is cutting fine dahlias, of which he grows most of the good commercial varieties. His carnations are coming along nicely. He also grows mums and plants in quantity.

E. F. Campbell, of Marietta, has a good showing of mums, Pacific Supreme, Halliday, Turner and others being in the best possible condition. Mr. Campbell is upholding his record for growing the best Appletons in this section. He grows the standard varieties of carnations and they look promising. His cyclamens and poinsettias are of good quality. Mr. Campbell is one of those who aim to produce as much to the square foot of bench space as possible. He expects to add a considerable amount of glass to his range next spring.

E. S. Rutt, of Elizabethtown, grows carnations, chrysanthemums, sweet peas and asparagus, as well as lettuce, radishes and spring-flowering plants, which he disposes of in Lancaster county's most thriving borough.

M. E. & R. Hoffer, of Mount Joy, have a house of good chrysanthemums, in which some of the newest varieties are being tested. A nice business in winter-flowering plants and spring stock is done at this place.

E. P. Hostetter, of Manheim, is cutting Golden Glow and Smith's Advance mums of exceptional quality.

Charles B. Herr, of Strasburg, entertained at croquet last week Mr. and Mrs. Ira H. Landis, Mr. and Mrs. J. Rutter Hess and Mr. and Mrs. J. Gayley. Four hard-fought games were played, Messrs. Landis and Gayley winning three out of the four. The losers have challenged the winners for another afternoon of this "classy" sport.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The wholesale and retail florists are having an unusual experience at present. Every available flower is being cut and used. The severe frosts have ruined most of the outdoor stock, but a little comes in from growers who were fortunate enough to shelter their plants. Trade in general has not been quite so active as of late, although there is nothing to complain of. The month of October has opened with an unusual number of weddings, which, though they are small, consume a large quantity of stock. The daily consignments of roses are good in quality and sell well. The leading varieties with us are Mock, Milady, Russell, Ophelia, Ward, Sunburst and Francis Scott Key. These sell splendidly. Sweet-heart roses are becoming more popular. Some fine chrysanthemums are in the market—pink, yellow, lavender and white—and the demand for them is good. Some dwarf mums are selling quite well.

Carnations are not plentiful as yet, but they are becoming larger of bloom and longer of stem, and bring better prices. The demand for violets remains small. Lily of the valley is good and sells well. The supply of orchids is adequate and these sell well. Easter lilies are satisfactory, but move slowly. Tuberoses are arriving in small quantities and a few good potted begonias arrive and sell easily. The stock on the whole looks well and is readily disposed of each day. Prices on most items are good and few complaints are heard.

Association Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association was held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms October 9 and was presided over by Charles H. Vick, president. The general public was invited to attend.

NOTICE!

To Subscribers whose address labels carry an expiration number higher than 995 (Dec. 21, 1916).

EVERY florist knows through his own purchases what has happened in the paper market the last few months—prices have doubled all along the line.

And it takes more than four tons of paper each week to print The Review!

Many readers have been so kind as to write that The Review is worth considerably more to them than its subscription price. Well, the tremendous rise in the price of paper makes it no longer expedient to sell The Review at $1.00 a year.

The subscription price, therefore, will be advanced January 1, 1917, to $1.50 a year.

Until December 31, 1916, any member of the Trade may subscribe for one or more years at the old rate of $1.00 a year.

Readers whose present subscriptions do not expire until after January 1, 1917, may renew for as many years as they like at $1.00 per year, providing that such renewals are sent during 1916.

Send $1.00 and your subscription will be extended one year from the present date of expiration, whenever that may be.

Send $2.00 and the subscription will be extended two years from the present date of expiration.

Send $3.00 for three years, $5.00 for five years.

No renewals for a full year will be accepted at less than $1.50 unless they are mailed by December 31, 1916.

The Canadian subscription price will be $2.50 a year beginning January 1, 1917. Canadian renewals mailed on or before December 31, 1916, will be accepted at $2.00 a year.

John Dunbar, assistant superintendent of parks, gave his celebrated lecture on "Some Important Economic Plants and Interesting Trees of the World," illustrated with stereopticon views. The audience, though regrettably small, was interested in the strange assortment of fruits and trees that Mr. Dunbar caused to be flashed on the screen. Fruits that many had never heard of were seen in the pictures—the carob bean, the tropic food of swine, and off whose husks the prodigal son did feed, as also did John the Baptist. The speaker said that Dr. E. L. Sturdevant, head director of the Geneva experimental station, had compiled accurate descriptions of more than 4,000 food plants and that these never had been published but were buried in the archives of the station. He said if only these facts could be published it would give to the world

The winter meetings are promised to be most interesting.

PHILADELPHIA.The Market.

A drop of more than 50 degrees in two days brought frost on the night of October 10, the exact date when every well grounded gardener looks for it—a frost that was queer in its effects, to say the least. For one dahlia grower found his field completely blackened; another was immune, or nearly so; while a third lost a great, big slice of his dahlias, but not nearly all. Taking a general average, something like two-thirds of the dahlias were spoiled. When the retailers heard of it, many of them said that they would drop dahlias for the season.

With the warmer weather that has followed, the dahlias are coming in rather more freely. Gladioli also are quite numerous. A good many cosmos are offered. The rest of the outdoor flowers are not worth having.

Golden Queen is the notable addition to the list of chrysanthemums; it is a fine yellow. Unaka is not proving equal to the market requirements; it is too soft. The demand for chrysanthemums is excellent; for white especially so.

Returning from the special flowers now most prominent to general conditions, the market is showing signs of greater activity. There were accumulations last week that have not been wiped out, but the stock now coming in is clearing better in almost all kinds. Carnations are improving decidedly; they have size and stem. Roses are in fairly good supply and their quality is getting better. Violets of all three types—the fine single, Marie Louise and Lady Hume Campbell—now are available. Snapdragon is becoming popular. There are a few wonderfully good sweet peas, though not many. Valley and cattleyas are more plentiful; not so Easter lilies and mixed orchids. There have been some heavy orders both in and out of town for coming-out teas and for weddings.

A Hardy Phlox Bouquet.

There is a field of hardy phloxes at the Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Locust Farm that is especially lovely just before frost. Late one afternoon in September, J. D. Eisele selected five of the leading newer varieties that formed an exquisite bouquet together. They were Gefion, a tender peach-blossom pink, with bright rose eye; Riverton Jewel, mauve-rose, carmine-red eye; Thor, salmon-pink; W. C. Egan, lilac; Wanadis, light violet. The charm of these fields of hardy phloxes can only be understood by those who have seen them.

Each variety by itself in straight, well cultivated rows presents a uniform mass of color that is most effective. So large are the flower trusses that they cover the dwarf plants, the field somewhat resembling in effect the appearance of a great greenhouse of blooming plants at Easter. To this should be added the natural beauty formed by a background of trees and shrubs. Now that hardy phloxes are grown so easily, they are fast becoming of importance in landscape gardening. The improved varieties are doing much to increase popular interest.

Dahlia Miss Minnie McCullough.

I was coming home the other evening—it chanced to be Monday—a little tired and cross, as men sometimes are when pushed. It chanced that a lady coming from the opposite direction, a friend of earlier days, stopped and spoke. Knowing of our mutual horticultural interests, she gave a cordial in-itation to visit her garden. This reminded me so vividly of the fellow who acts as secretary for the Children's Aid, that I told the story.

This man complained that eighteen hours per day was his usual time for work, ten or twelve at the office, the remainder, because his friends made him talk children's aid, out of hours. The lady laughed pleasantly at this rather rude story. She explained that her garden was not for flowers; it was a real Italian garden. So in this beautiful spot, planned by a leading architect of Philadelphia, to which she had fallen heir quite accidentally, she told me the story of a dahlia named after herself.

It seemed that a friend's gardener at Chestnut Hill originated a new dahlia of a color then quite unknown. It was so much admired that her friend, a warm friend indeed, decided to name it in her honor, Miss Minnie McCullough. So it remains today, minus, to most of us, the first two words.

Various Notes.

Edward Reid returned from Dakota October 16, after a splendid trip. Mr. Reid kept his hand in at business by marketing flats and now is prepared to take up flowers with renewed vigor.

Convention hall has been condemned. No further gatherings will be held there.

Charles P. Poryzees, who resigned his position with Frank L. Polites, October 18 opened a flower store in his old quarters, at the northeast corner of Fifteenth and Chestnut streets, under the name of Poryzees Floral Co.

Recent visitors included J. N. King, of Norristown, Pa., and Julius Niednagel, of Evansville, Ind.

M. J. Callahan says that the demand for house plants and ferns is quickening. Bird's-nest ferns and Begonia luminosa plants are popular. Mr. Callahan carries a large stock of cut flowers in his handsome, electrically lighted icebox, a plan that evidently pays.

The center of J. J. Habermehl's Sons' window display in the Bellevue-Stratford took an autumnal turn this week. The center was formed by a handsome vase of Chrysolora.

H. Bayersdorfer & Co. report an unusual demand for wedding specialties. Paul Berkowitz says that the slow freight notice at several points in New England is a drawback for the moment to an exceedingly active fall season. A fresh lot of gold letters has been received.

Raymond Brunswick mentioned that

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The St. Louis wholesale market enjoyed more than usual activity last week. All items were in demand, and good prices were paid for choice stock. The fall season is on and optimistic reports are the rule from the retailers. Society has opened its doors for its many affairs and that helps to make trade lively with the florists.

Roses last week were plentiful, but they did not move so well as those of the week previous. The market was cleaned up well daily, but at lower prices. Carnations as yet are scarce and the good demand works hardships. The average price at present is $3 per hundred. Mums are arriving now and soon will be side-tracking other flowers for a month or so. Some of the early varieties, such as Smith's Advance, Glory of Pacific and early yellows, have been in robust demand during the week, at 12½ cents each.

Cosmos were a great glut last week and low prices prevailed. Dahlias, too, were overplentiful until the frost nipped them. However, quite a number of them continue to arrive and sell well. There still are many cornflowers and calendulas to be had. Valley is scarce and the demand holds it up to $5 per hundred. Easter lilies also are in vigorous demand, but not many arrive at present. Violets are in evidence and bring 35 cents per hundred.

The meeting was called to order by President Bourdet at 2 o'clock, with all officers present. After the preliminaries the chair called on committees for reports. The holding of the 1918 National Flower Show in St. Louis then came up for discussion and this took up most of the afternoon. D. S. Producing Baskets is Child's Play

There are thousands of basket makers in the country who can make any sort of basket you want; any color desired can be put on them by a painter; any designer can give you the shape or style desired; but what will these cost you when they are finished?

In the Neidinger factory you have all these skilled hands so trained that baskets of all styles can be made and put on the market at such low prices that they have caused remarks to be passed—"they are losing money on their baskets." Yet we go on increasing our force until now we have the largest basket shop in the florists' supply business. We are still turning out large quantities of the newest styles and still selling at the supposed ridiculously low prices. We are not getting rich, but we are making a profit; at any rate, you are not interested what profit we make or if we make any. So here goes for another of Neidinger's new creations and still at the low figure.

followed. The following made applications for membership: Paul Reden, J. J. Karins, Joseph Deutschmann, A. Faber, F. Sanders, J. W. Reese, W. J. Wright, A. P. Shaad and R. C. Kerr, the last-named of Houston, Tex.

The members recommended President Bourdet for the appointment as state vice-president of the S. A. F. for 1917. President-elect R. C. Kerr of the S. A. F., who was present, promised the appointment when he took office, January 1.

The opportunity to hold a fall flower show at one of the department stores was offered to the club, but by vote it was decided not to accept the invitation. The meeting then adjourned.

The members were then taken in hand by the officers of the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., which had invited the members to partake of a lunch on the first floor of the building. Before leaving, a rousing three cheers were given the new company by the members.

Count von Hoffman, manager at George Waldbart's, says business was good last week, with plenty of good society work. Fred Michel, designer, has been working overtime since the season opened.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle spent a most pleasant afternoon at the home of Mrs. Emil Schray October 11. Mrs. George Windler will entertain the circle at her home next month.

Emmett McDonald, of Overland, Mo., is consigning to the St. Louis market a fine lot of dahlias and a great cut of Lady Lenox cosmos. His cut of mums will begin this week.

Paul Scheider, of Clayton, Mo., has a fine lot of pompon mums, which will be ready for cutting this week. This stock is in large demand by the local buyers.

We had many visitors last week. Besides the members of the National Flower Show committee, there were Julius Dilloff, of Schloss Bros., New York; S. Freund, of the Duroc Paper Products Co., Chicago; M. F. Widmer, of Highland Park, Ill.; George Madsen, of Alton, Ill.; Charles Johann, of Collinsville, Ill.; Gus Grossart, W. E. Ogle, Max Schoenberger, of Belleville, Ill.; J. F. Ammann and H. Blixen, of Edwardsville, Ill.; Edward Denker, of St. Charles, Mo., and a number of St. Louis county growers. J. J. B.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums have so far held their own in the day's sales, but they are becoming more plentiful and the price is dropping rapidly. Flowers that had been bringing from $1.50 to $2 per dozen could be bought late last week at $6 and $8 per hundred, and this is by no means the lowest level to which they will go. October Frost, Yellow Frost and Pacific Supreme still rule the market. Among the newcomers is Polly Rose.

There has been a slight improvement in the quality of roses, noticeable particularly in Ophelia and Hadley. Good white roses still are scarce, but there now are more of these in grades below the best. Among these latter Double White Killarney is the best, and there are some fine Kaiserin to be had. American Beauty roses are bringing up to $4 per dozen and these have met with a good sale of late.

Carnations still are scarce. There is a fair demand for such as are received

THE FIRST IMPRESSION.

WHEN making a delivery the first impression is made by the box. Of course the flowers contained in it cannot fail to please, but you did not make the flowers. Your contribution toward the perfection of the whole is the box. A well made, neat and attractive box is the only means you have to impress your connection with the transaction, so why not make the box your opportunity to impress your name on the memory of those who receive the flowers?

in this market, but the quality is not all that could be desired. Snapdragon as a whole is not good just now, being largely too short to be considered first-class. There is a good quantity of double violets on the market, but these are not selling well. Singles locally grown are doing much better, for the reason that they do not have to undergo shipment and can be moved more quickly and thus retain fragrance and form for a longer period.

There are enough orchids on the market to meet all demands, although the supply is not so heavy as it has been, and the price ranges between $6 and $7.50 per dozen. More lily of the valley now can be obtained and the retailers are able to make purchases in as large quantities as they desire at the old price of $6 per hundred.

Cosmos is overrunning the market. Quantities can be had for little or nothing and the buyer wishing to secure a big showing at a small outlay turns from all other flowers to this, to the detriment of the greenhouse stocks. Indoor delphinium is scarce. There is not much of this flower grown and the occasional order requiring it is sometimes hard to fill.

The Market.

Business was good with the local florists last week. There have been plenty of flowers and plenty of work to use them.

Dutch bulbs now are coming in more satisfactorily. There is a reported scarcity of Paper Whites, notice having been received from at least one Dutch concern to the effect that it is only filling fifty per cent of its orders.

Various Notes.

William P. Pierce is spending his vacation on a shooting trip. Miss Catherine Pierce, in charge of the store on Elm street, reports business good. They have some excellent-looking mums of midseason and late varieties.

Peter Murray, of Fairhaven, is cutting good Cecile Brunner roses. Business at the Murray establishment is as good as usual.

This also may be said of other roses, save that they are selling at somewhat better figures. The stems are longer, but some of them have small heads. This, of course, is not noticed when roses are not abundant. Mock roses are arriving in better condition. We now are advancing to the season when mums will be the central figure. Some excellent blooms already are reaching the market, but these are not so large as those that will arrive later. October Frost and Smith's Advance come in larger quantities. Prices range from $2 per dozen up. Pompons soon will be with us. Easter lilies still cling to the scarce side and the demand for them is good.

Violets are selling at 50 cents per hundred without much difficulty. Valley is gradually becoming more abundant, as well as orchids. The few dahlias to be had are none too good in quality. Snapdragons and marigolds are always in demand, and heliotropes may be seen occasionally. The supply is somewhat spasmodic. Greens are sufficient for all present necessities.

ing some good begonia plants to the market. These are among the first flowering plants to be had. There is a good demand for such at the present time; in fact, there has been right along.

A thing that is causing the Buffalo florists much worry and trouble is the negligence of the express companies. The florists of Buffalo have coöperated with the intention of entering complaints with the public service commission. The carelessness of the express companies in the matter of shipments has reached the point where something must be done. Every florist is paying a perishable express rate, and yet gets no service in return. On several occasions it has taken forty-eight hours for a shipment from New York to Buffalo. It seems that florists throughout the country should take an active interest in endeavoring to better conditions in this direction. A. E.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

The market during the last two weeks has been all that could be desired. The demand has centered chiefly in October weddings, which have been numerous, Funeral work has been plentiful and the florists have been stepping lively. The shipping business has been unusually good this fall.

Cosmos and dahlias are blooming with much vigor. Chrysanthemums are beginning to dominate the market; October Frost, Smith's Advance, Golden Glow and Glory of the Pacific are here and other fine pink blooms made their appearance last week. These are used to good advantage in wedding decorations. All are of excellent quality.

Carnations are rather short in supply, but of vastly improved quality, bringing 75 cents per dozen at retail. Roses are plentiful in the medium and short grades, but scarce in long-stemmed stock. Russell, Shawyer, Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty are the leaders in popularity.

Pompon mums have begun to appear and chrysanthemum plants are meeting with a good sale. There is a large supply of orchids from local greenhouses. Lily of the valley is on the short side;

Market conditions have changed materially, there being a good supply of roses, even Beauties being in fair supply. Dahlias are plentiful and are selling well, and now that the first frost has passed without loss it is hoped they may remain with us for some time.

Other flowers are in about the same supply they were a week ago, except that the first chrysanthemums are now on the market. They are not especially good, nor are they at all plentiful, but they are readily cleaned up. Valley is going up in price as the visible supply of pips is decreasing. Our growers were fortunate enough to stock up pretty heavily last winter and there will be no real shortage here for some time.

Various Notes.

Floyd Bralliar intends to start digging cannas and caladiums this week.

Leslie Littel has begun the erection of a house for storing bulbs and tubers. It is expected to be capable of storing the product of two or three acres.

T. H. Joy attended the meeting of the F. T. D. at Chicago last week, returning October 13.

Geny Bros. were the first to get their Dutch bulbs on sale this year. They still have a part of them to come, however.

Haury & Sons are cutting a few mums. They soon will have their usual large stock of pot plants ready

F. B.

MAMARONECK, N. Y.

Despite the inclement weather October 13, there was an unusually good attendance at the monthly meeting of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society, held in Hubbard hall, Greenwich, Conn., at which President Sealey presided. A charming feature was the exceptionally fine display on the exhibition table; the exhibitors are to be commended for their unflagging interest in making the meetings attractive. The judges awarded a cultural certificate to William Graham, for a vase of bouvardias. Robert Grunnert was commended for a display of carnations. An exhibit of grapes, petunias, carnations and roses, by A. Pederson, was highly praised. P. W. Popp was commended on his display of gladioli, a certificate of merit having been awarded previously.

Four new members were elected at this meeting and one name was offered for membership. The exhibition committee for the fall show, which will be held October 31 and November 1, at Greenwich, reported everything in readiness for the exhibition. An attractive schedule comprising 121 classes has been prepared and is ready for distribution. Valuable prizes of cash, cups, cut glass and silverware articles are included in the premium list. The society anticipates a good display of flowers, fruits, vegetables, etc., that will be in keeping with the successes of the past.

J. H. Troy, of New Rochelle, N. Y., and F. E. Conine, of Stratford, Conn., were visitors and each in turn addressed the members briefly. The next meeting will be held November 10, at which nominations for officers for 1917 will be in order. A full attendance is requested. P. W. Popp, Cor. Sec'y.

"THE FLOWER SHOP"

D. C. HARTMANN, Prop.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Last week the weather was ideal, yet the anticipated "good Saturday" did not materialize. There were many unsold flowers in every wholesale window and icebox, and the real reason for the surplus developed in an oversupply of chrysanthemums; which are earlier and more numerous when compared with those of other years. Many of the flowers are magnificent specimens, readily commanding $5 and $6 per dozen. A great many brought $3 and $4 per dozen and large quantities of the medium grades were absorbed at $10 per hundred. From that the price dropped down to $50 per thousand—the department store class. This week the flood really begins.

Roses will have to yield the front row to the mums and stay in second place until after Thanksgiving. There already are several novelties and seedlings in the market. The popularity of the American Beauty rose is again on the increase. Evidently none of the novelties or new varieties can take its place. Prices are steady at the advance and the quality once more is ascendant. The score of new roses and novelties also are improving in stem and size, but prices still remain at the low quotations of last week, and are likely to remain there at least until November. Some rose accumulations October 14 sold under $10 per thousand.

Orchids are more abundant and prices are falling. One prominent wholesaler was shipping fine labiatus to a western city, at $25 per hundred. There were only a few perfect gigas in the market and these were offered at from 30 to 40 cents each. There is no prospect of an increase in orchid values. Gardenias still are limited in shipments and sell at $3 per dozen down.

Longiflorum lilies were firm at 8 cents each. Few sold under this and no break is at present indicated. Valley holds up its head proudly, the best of it, selected, bringing $5 per hundred. There is no surplus.

Carnations seem to be coming in more slowly than last year and the quality is not yet up to the usual high standard—$3 per hundred is obtainable only for the long-stemmed and selected stock. There are plenty of tritomas, but no demand; also cosmos, bouvardias and calendulas—every one of them overshadowed by the chrysanthemum. This will be the last week for the dahlias, asters and gladioli. For none of these has it been a disastrous season; each played well its part.

There has been a wide call for oak leaves by the retailers and the supply houses have been busy night and day in supplying the demand.

Sweet peas are here again, including some good Spencers. Violets are down to 25 cents per hundred and less, waiting for a cold snap.

Various Notes.

J. F. Sullivan, of Detroit, was a recent visitor to New York, en route to a family reunion at West Grove, Pa. Mark Sullivan, the famous editor, is a brother of the Detroit florist.

There was an enthusiastic meeting October 14 of the members of the growers' Cut Flower Co. at the company's office. The old officers were reelected.

Alexander Dutcher, of Nyack, N. Y., grower and member of the New York Cut Flower Co., celebrated his seventieth birthday October 14. He started his wholesale business on West Twenty-third street more than twenty-five years ago. Mr. Dutcher does not look his threescore and ten, and says he is good for a century.

cured the large store at 47 West Twenty-eighth street.

Business at the Cut Flower Exchange in the Coogan building is rapidly improving and the organization now rents no less than a full 6-foot space to its members.

Johnson & Millang will change the days of their plant auctions to Mondays and Thursdays each week, instead of Tuesdays and Fridays.

Adolph H. Rosens, of 112 West Twenty-eighth street, has returned from a successful business trip through New England. The stork left a 9-pound boy with his brother, Herman B., on Monday, October 9. Both sons are in business with their father, B. Rosens, who is one of the largest importers of florists' supplies in the country.

Philadelphia office of Hitchings & Co., Samuel Redstone sailed October 14 for an extended vacation at his home in Devonshire, England.

Herman Seommadau, of A. L. Young & Co., has received many words of sympathy in the loss of his father last week. The elder Seommadau, who was 72 years of age, was one of the oldest retail florists in New York. He began in 1859 and for the last thirty-five years had been located at the corner of Eighth avenue and Thirty-fourth street.

W. H. Miller, brother of A. L. Miller, has been unusually busy lately with funeral work and decorations for prominent retailers. His headquarters are at 54 West Twenty-eighth street.

Jack Trepel's new store on Fulton street, Brooklyn, is one of the handsomest in that city. It ought to be, at $10,000 annual rental. Business has been good since the opening.

John Young is back from his trip to Chicago and St. Louis.

The New York Florists' Supply Co. says business has never been so good at this season as now. Sales are double those of last year. J. Austin Shaw.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Conditions in the wholesale markets continue quite satisfactory and stock of nearly every kind cleans up well. October weather has materially improved the quality of roses and carnations and, killing frosts having finished off practically all outdoor flowers, there is an improved call for greenhouse stock of all kinds. Roses have weakened slightly, but there are no particular supplies of any varieties. American Beauties are in better supply and of improved quality. Russell, Maryland, Ophelia, Stanley, Hoosier Beauty, Sunburst and the several Killarneys are all in good demand. Ophelia remains the best selling rose. Carnations continue to sell well and all arrivals are speedily snapped up, crimson and scarlet varieties being in the least demand. The present cooler weather is just what violets need and there is a decided improvement in the quality of these. Marguerites, both yellow and white, are coming from several growers and sell on sight.

Chrysanthemums are more abundant. The varieties mostly in evidence at present are Advance, Golden Queen, Chrysolora, Halliday, Unaka and Geo. S. Kalb. Values, except on Unaka, vary from 50 cents to $3 per dozen. Some nice bronze and pink pompons are arriving and sell quickly. Lilies are temporarily in somewhat short supply and continue to sell well. Snapdragons, both pink and white, are seen in fair numbers and are of good quality. Cosmos is nearing the end. Dahlias are practically done. Asters and gladioli are each practically on their last legs. Valley continues in good demand in spite of high prices, for use in wedding bouquets. Bachelor's buttons are at present arriving in large numbers from both outdoors and indoors. Cattleyas are in increased supply, but sell well. Small lots of Bouvardia Humboldtii come in and are quickly sold. Asparagus is in somewhat improved demand. Sales of pot plants are still largely limited to ferns, crotons, dracaenas and other foliage plants.

Various Notes.

Approximately 100 members attended the October 17 meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club and heard H. H. Bartsch discuss the chrysanthemum from a commercial standpoint. This able speaker was followed by Eric H. Wetterlow, who delivered an instructive talk on how to grow specimen mum blooms for exhibition. An animated discussion followed. Exhibits of mums were made by the W. W. Edgar Co., of Waverley, W. E. Pratt and W. N. Craig. The latter also had Bouvardia Humboldtii and pure-culture mushrooms. Resolutions on the death of Jackson Dawson were presented and accepted.

Six new members were admitted.

The employees of P. J. Carbone, forty-five in number, with a number of friends and invited guests, seventy-five in all, were entertained by Mr. Carbone October 16 at the wholesale establishment, at 348 Congress street, the affair being a barn and Halloween party. A large part of one floor was partitioned off and tastefully decorated with corn-stalks, berried shrubs, flowers and the various effects common to Halloween parties. An excellent banquet was served, one special dish, spaghetti a la Italienne, being greatly appreciated. An efficient orchestra furnished music while the banquet tables were occupied, and later dancing was enjoyed until midnight. Some excellent lady soloists furnished popular songs at intervals. The whole affair, arranged under the auspices of the Carbone Cooperative Club, was a pronounced success and special praise is due the efficient committee in charge, consisting of Chairman W. A. Seaver, Miss H. M. Sykes, Miss M. Lynch and J. McLellan. An inspection of the commodious ware-rooms, stocked with baskets, garden pottery, statuary, glassware, china, straw matings, etc., proved to be an eye-opener to those who had no idea that Boston had a commercial enterprise of this character of such dimensions.

Charles Holbrow, of Brighton, has his houses in fine shape this season. Roses look particularly well. Varieties grown include Killarney, White Killarney, Ophelia, Francis Scott Key and one of Mr. Holbrow's own seedlings, a cross between Christie-Miller and Richmond. Carnations occupy three houses. The varieties are Ward, Enchantress Supreme, Benora, Pink Delight, Alice, Beacon, White Enchantress and Gorgeous. One large house is devoted to mums, Bonaffon being the leading variety. Mr. Holbrow has a large local trade and a great proportion of his flowers are sold at home.

The Halifax Garden Co. is cutting a fine crop of roses this season, averaging 2,000 blooms daily at present. The company grows quite a number of sorts, including Ophelia, Taft, Maryland, Hadley, Ward, Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, Russell, White Killarney and Richmond. The principal carnations grown this season are Ward, Matchless, Beacon, White Enchantress, Pink Delight, Enchantress Supreme, Penn and Winsor. Chrysanthemums are heavily grown, Advance, Golden Glow, Polly Rose, Pacific and Unaka being now in season. A fine lot of pink snapdragons is now being cut.

William Malloy, the popular manager for the Budlong Rose Co., of Boston, was operated on at the Morse hospital, Natick, for an acute affection of the liver. Mr. Malloy, at last report, was "resting comfortably," but his many friends are much worried over him, the operation being a most serious one.
We all hope to see him at his old stand before long.

N. F. Comley, of Burlington, through Henry J. Haas, now is selling a large quantity of cut flowers. He has a large house of bachelor's buttons and single violets in probably greater quantity than any other local grower. He is cutting Pacific Supreme, Unaka and other mums, while among carnations he has good Alice, Beacon, White Wonder, Matchless and Ward. Roses are not yet in good crop. Of these 40,000 were planted last season. Some fine Beauties and Hoosier Beauty are being cut.

At Welch's, 280 Devonshire street, the show windows are filled with cro-tons and dracenas. Edward Welch says Ophelia is their best selling rose.
They are getting extra fine valley, chrysanthemums and cattleyas, and shipping trade is good.

GROWER, WHOLESALE AND RETAILER

Careful and prompt attention given to orders. Alaska, Washington and Oregon.

ter, are most successful carnation specialists. They are growing this season Matchless, Ward, Pink Delight, Enchantress Supreme and White Enchantress. Some fine Halliday and other mums are being cut at present.

At Penn's numerous wedding orders were being filled when I called October 14. For the N. G. Eccles wedding at Watertown the bride's bouquet was of Cattleya Miss Williams and valley, a most charming combination. October business to date has run far ahead of that of the same month of 1915.

A. G. Lake, of Wellesley Hills, is specializing in carnations this season and his flowers are as fine as any seen on the markets. His varieties are Alice, White Wonder, Matchless, Benora and Beacon.

At the store of Thomas Galvin, Inc., last week, one window filled with crotons and large vases of oncidiums, and Cattleya labiata and C. Bowringiana made a charming display. Specimen mums filled other windows. Business here is good, especially in wedding orders.

The Budlong Rose Co. is getting good flowers of Mrs. W. R. Hearst and Montrose among its new roses. Prima Donna as yet does not show up well. Milady proves to be a better seller than Francis Scott Key just now. Ophelia and Lady Alice Stanley are in strong demand.

Donald Carmichael, of Wellesley, is this season growing the following carnations: Benora, Ward, Matchless, Pink Delight and Beacon. His flowers are a fine lot.

Patrick Welch reports business as being remarkably good, with a striking improvement in the quality of flowers and in the volume of shipping orders.

Edward Welch, of Welch's, and J. T. Butterworth have returned from a fortnight's visit to Nova Scotia and Maine. Some fishing and deer hunting were included in their trip. They saw 20,000 soldiers at Halifax ready to embark for England. In Maine, where Mr. Welch is opening business connections, a good number of cities were visited.

Robert Montgomery, of Natick, finds Hoosier Beauty a wonderful producer, giving twice as many flowers as Hadley. He is cutting good Ward, Russell, Ophelia, Hadley and the various Killarneys.

At the store of Wax Bros., on Tremont street, the window displays continue to be most artistic. Wedding and funeral orders continue to keep all hands on the jump.

Dutch bulbs continue to dribble in. Some of the large growers have only received a small proportion of their bulbs, many being either in New York or held up between the two cities. Growers were never so late in getting their supplies.

Thomas Roland at present is cutting roses heavily at his Revere establishment. Some of his leaders this season are Crimson Queen, Stanley, Sunburst, Ward, Ophelia, Killarney, White Killarney and George Elger. His big stocks of cyclamens, begonias and other winter-blooming plants at Nahant are all in grand condition.

Some excellent pink and bronze pompon mums are coming from Anderson Bros., of Woburn, and C. T. Beasley & Co., of East Milton. All meet with a quick sale.

James Wheeler, of Natick, is bringing in a fine lot of yellow marguerites, in the culture of which he is our local leader. His carnations are all giving a good account of themselves.

The Welch Bros. Co. now is well settled in its new premises. Beauties, valley, cattleyas and yellow marguerites are fine at this time. Shipping trade is good.

Visitors last week included Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Howard, of Los Angeles, who called at the local stores and markets and visited some of the leading growers.

William Jurgens, of Newport, is sending in giganteum lilies and valley of good quality.

Andrew Christensen, of Stoneham, says his carnations are all doing vastly better than a year ago. Nancy looks well and Good Cheer looks better than last season, as does Champion. Matchless is well liked, also Pink Delight, Beacon, Alice and Benora. The old
Queen still is one of Mr. Christensen's favorites and his beds of this variety are a great sight, looking like a field of rye, so thick are the flower spikes.

Herman Waldecker, of Braintree, grows Matchless, Enchantress Supreme and White Wonder as his leading trio of carnations. He is cutting some good early mums and has violets in quantity.

J. A. Nelson, of Framingham, is cutting good pink and white snapdragons.
His carnations are all in grand condition. The leading sorts grown are Matchless, Ward, Peerless Pink, Beacon, Pink Delight, Alice and Benora.

J. Leach & Son, of North Easton, and the Mishawum Flower Co., of Wo-burn, are shipping in good pink snapdragons.

H. L. Shedd, of South Lowell, in addition to carnations, is this season devoting a large house to bachelor's buttons, which he already is cutting in quantity.

J. E. Streckwald, of Tewksbury, is cutting good Golden Glow and Halliday mums. He also grows bachelor's buttons and sweet peas. W. N. C.

VISITED CHICAGO: Joe L. Schilder, of Schilder Bros., Chillicothe, O.

PROBABLY two-thirds of a crop is the best that can be said of the Michigan and Wisconsin pea crops.

WHILE beans are high this year, higher than most seedsmen ever had seen them until last year, still it does not seem likely prices will mount above last season's values.

THIS is a season that makes the wholesale seedsmen wonder where he is at. An inquiry comes in, he quotes a stiff figure, it is promptly accepted; next day another inquiry, he quotes a still higher price, but it is as promptly accepted.
The seller wonders what in fact is the real value of his goods.

The shipping season for Bermuda onion seed from Teneriffe, Canary Islands, closed August 28, according to U. S. Consul G. K. Stiles, who says:

"The season shows a record exportation, reaching to $84,314, as compared with only $41,801 for 1915 and $45,841 in 1914. While a slight increase in the value of the crop was indicated in the forecast, the gain of over 100 per cent was a surprise even to dealers here, who found it impossible to supply the entire demand from the United States for the ordinary, canary-yellow onion seed. On the other hand, the usually scarcer and more expensive wax seed gave an extra heavy crop.

"The showing made by American purchases of onion seed has had a most stimulating effect on the industry in these islands, and heavy planting may be expected for the 1917 crop, judging from the plans now talked of by the more important growers here. With even average growing conditions this circumstance may succeed in reducing prices for next year below the high level obtained for the 1916 output."

DUTCH BULB IMPORTS.

The records show that Dutch bulb imports this year, through the port of New York, even at this early date are greatly in excess of the grand total for 1915, and the import season usually runs until the end of November. The total number of cases received to date is 39,718; the grand total last year was slightly over 31,000 cases. This year's shipments have been few but extraordinarily large, in one case the manifest of a Rotterdam steamer showing that the boat carried nothing but Dutch bulbs—more than 10,000 cases!

The Dutch freighter Gorredyk docked at New York October 7 and discharged the following consignments, as given in New York customhouse papers:

ANALYST ON THE DISCLAIMER.

[The address of A. L. Stone, president of the American Seed Analysts' Association, delivered before the Chicago convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America.]

There are three classes of people more or less interested in the seedsmen's non-warranty clause and its operation. These are the seedsmen themselves, the crop growers, and, to a greater or less extent, the officials intrusted with the enforcement of seed inspection laws.

way commit or involve the association of which I have the honor to be president. As one not directly interested in the non-warranty clause, it is barely possible I can present the present situation as it appeals to a comparative outsider and make some suggestions which may lead to an even better relation, and form the basis for a satisfactory agreement, between the interests involved. It would certainly be unfortunate if anything said should in any way disturb or mar the harmonious relations at present existing between this society and the American Seed Trade Association. Rest assured that should such occur it will not be intentional and all blame should attach to me personally.

How Old Is the Disclaimer?

The American Seed Trade Association has now been in existence some thirty-six years. No data were available as to whether the non-warranty clause was in use before this organization was established or was not adopted until some time afterward. One seedsman supplied the information that it was discussed at some length in the convention of the Seed Trade Association held in this city in 1900, so it has been in effect for at least sixteen years. During its existence it has caused considerable controversy and been the cause of some dismay to crop growers bringing suit against seedsmen for the sale of seed claimed to be of low quality.

That we may have the subject of discussion clearly before us, I here quote the non-warranty clause as ordinarily used: "We give no warranty, expressed or implied, as to description, quality, productiveness, or any other matter of any seeds, bulbs or plants we send out and we will not be in any way responsible for the crop. If the purchaser does not accept the goods on these terms they are at once to be returned to us." The latter clause is sometimes omitted.

Reason for Its Existence.

The main argument for its existence is the protection from costly damage suits furnished the seedsmen. The absence of such protection would require that all seed sold must be not only vital and of good quality otherwise, but must produce a crop suited to the climatic conditions under which it is to be grown. Seedsmen claim that, because of the large volume of trade annually handled by many of them, it is practically impossible to secure a sufficiently large quantity of seeds to supply their trade without using some seed the source of production of which cannot be ascertained. Such seed may be of excellent quality in itself, but if produced under different climatic conditions may fail to produce a crop in the region where sown. Hence the sale on appearance only may prove to be unfair to the buyer.

If the seedsmen could be certain that no suits for damages would be brought except in cases where the seed sold had actually been of low quality, and that the amount of damages asked would be limited to the purchase price of the seed, they would undoubtedly be glad to see the non-warranty clause abolished. It adds to the printing expense and is a source of more or less irritation to the intelligent buyer of seeds, who feels that under any or all circumstances the seedsman is protected at his expense. The possibility of damage to seeds between the time of purchase and sowing, and the always present danger of unfavorable weather conditions after sowing, make it practically necessary under existing conditions for the seedsmen to retain the non-warranty clause. It is too easy for the grower to ascribe the loss of a crop to poor seed, when in reality not the seed but the manner in which it was handled or the weather and soil conditions were wholly to blame.

RAINBOW FREESIAS

RAINBOW FREESIAS are great money-makers for all florists, whether they grow for their own retail trade or for the wholesale market. Moreover, the habit of plant is branching, each bulb giving two to three flower spikes with stems long enough for all floral purposes. The mixture offered includes several shades of yellow, orange, lavender and pink, all harmonizing with each other when bunched together.

The Other Side of the Case.

In the preceding paragraphs I have tried to state impartially the reasons for the existence of the non-warranty clause from the seedsmen's viewpoint. If I have not done so, then I have not correctly sensed the situation. I shall now attempt to state the other side of the case.

[To be concluded next week]

MOTT-LY GLEANINGS.

Northrup, King & Co., of Minneapolis, Minn., have in course of construction what is intended to be the latest model of a seed plant. Through the courtesy of George C. Thomson I was able to inspect the new plant, which consists of five separate buildings, each of which contains an acre of floor space. The buildings are four stories high and have basements. A subway, which connects the buildings, is so constructed as to permit passage of a large auto truck. Around each building is a railroad track, which is connected by means of a spur with the main tracks close by. Fireproof and vermin-proof, each building is constructed to withstand the heaviest weights. It is intended to transfer the offices to the new establishment, which is within easy reach of the center of the town. Especial attention has been paid to ventilation and the siphon automatic system was considered the most satisfactory.

The W. H. Bofferding Co., of Minneapolis, has moved into a new and larger store near the market, where it expects to increase its extensive seed connections and add to the sale of plants.

The Faribault Seed & Nursery Co., of Faribault, Minn., reports a satisfactory business. It has taken over the store recently operated by H. Slack and conducts a retail branch downtown.

W. M.

Zvolanek's Well-known Winter-fl'ring Orchid Sweet Pea Seeds in original packages, at his prices. We handle all of his varieties, including novelties introduced this year for the first time, and give the following list of the best of those already introduced:

	1 Oz.	4 Oz.	1 Lb.
Mrs. A. A. Skach, widely known shell-pink.....	$1.00	$3.50	$12.00
Mrs. Joseph Manda, a shade lighter.....	1.25	4.00	14.00
Mrs. M. Spanolin, purest white.....	1.25	4.00	14.00
Venus, white ground, edges pink-blushed.....	1.50	6.00	16.00
Bohemian Girl, darker shell-pink.....	2.00	6.00
White Orchid, dwarf.....	1.00	2.50	12.00
Orchid Beauty, dark rose, blushed with orange, very large.....	.75	2.50	9.00
Pink and White Orchid, Blanche Ferry color and very large....	.75	2.50	9.00
Lavender Nora, the finest lavender.....	.50	1.75	6.00
Lavender Orchid, lavender-pink, large.....	1.00	3.50	12.00
Christmas Pink Orchid, improved bicolor.....	4.00	12.00	40.00
The Czar, similar to above.....	4.00	12.00	40.00

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

THE Dutch girl window decoration that appeared in connection with the leading article in The Review of September 28 was from a photograph supplied by Pelicano, Rossi & Co., San Francisco. This firm makes a special feature of its window displays and travelers from all over the world comment on the attractiveness of this San Francisco window.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

The opening of several new stores, a few good weddings and about the usual run of funeral work cleaned up stock rather well last week. Since the rain flowers of all kinds have been soft and unfit for long-distance shipping, and possibly some complaints will be heard from the consignees. But everyone hopes for a little more fine weather before the winter rains set in for good, and this will harden the outdoor and cloth house carnations.

Roses indoors are improving and some excellent Russell, My Maryland, Prima Donna and September Morn are shown. Red roses are decidedly poor. The pretty Irish Fireflame rose is shown in decorative vases, baskets and other receptacles, but beyond this it is not much in demand. People admire it, but do not buy it. Great bunches of cosmos brighten the stores, as usual at this time, and there still are large numbers of outdoor flowers. Perhaps the prettiest combination of all now is hunnemannia and Centaurea Cyanus. The deep blue and the bright yellow are superb together.

Valley has passed out of the staples and is only bought for orders. Orchids are fairly plentiful, the labiatae being particularly good in color. A few Cattleya superba blooms are shown and attract attention by their novelty—not as a new plant, of course, but new as a cut flower. Chrysanthemums are at their height, but the rain has not improved their quality any. Good ferns are coming in and are just about even with the demand. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

D. MacRorie, of San Francisco, was a visitor here last week.

G. Prechtel, foreman for J. Dieterich at the Montebello nursery, has had throat trouble and has been at the hospital for a slight operation, from which he has quite recovered. Mrs. Dieterich, who recently underwent a rather serious operation, is progressing as well as possible under the circumstances.

The stock in the new houses of Walter Armacost & Co., at Sawtelle, is looking well and Mr. Armacost expresses himself well pleased with the business done. They are now sending in a splendid cut of that excellent rose, My Maryland, which has somewhat gone out of favor the last few years. If all the flowers grown were like those sent from Sawtelle, it would probably be more grown.

G. A. Smith reports funeral work at the Seventh street store good and says work is progressing satisfactorily at the new nursery.

F. Lichtenberg has scored another success with a unique centerpiece in his window, which has the appearance of an immense bouquet with a fountain in the center, new flowers and grasses being placed daily. Business is good here.

The H. N. Gage Co. reports greater sales of its home-grown bulbs this year than ever before. L. L. Gage thinks this possibly is due in part to the delayed shipments of Dutch stock. At any rate, he points with pride to repeat orders from people sold to last season.

A. F. Borden, of the Redondo Floral Co., is visiting relatives in Chicago, where he will spend about two weeks. This firm is handling a large quantity of chrysanthemums and Mr. Knopf reports that, while the poorer grades go begging, they cannot get enough good ones to go around some days. In spite of the mums, Minnie Burgle dahlias are still a leader, with Golden West a close second. Several good wedding orders were filled here last week.

In just about ten months Fred Sperry has worn out his automobile, or at least has it in that condition when he figures a new one will be cheaper than paying for repairs. That means some going, but the L. A. Floral Co. is a going concern and an automobile or two does not count in the march of progress.

One of the big orders received last week by Wolfskills' & Morris Golden-son was the decoration at one of the biggest grocery stores, which was celebrating its twenty-ninth anniversary. Large quantities of fine stock were used and some artistic work was done.

Murata & Co. report an increasing out-of-town demand, as well as a spirited demand from local retailers, who are beginning to find out where they are well treated. Mr. Murata is making the rounds in a new six-cylinder Studebaker.

The brethren at Santa Barbara are preparing for the visit of the Southern California Nurserymen's Association and intend giving the members an interesting time.

Thomas Wright, of Wright's Flower Shop, has returned from a trip to Bear Valley. Manager W. Wern says that business has kept up well and that he looks forward to a busy time from now on. This establishment is lucky in being about the only one on the coast to have valley pips in any quantity. Mr. Wern says there are about enough pips left to last until February, when the new stock—if there is any—should be ready.

The California Cut Flower & Evergreen Co. is showing some magnificent mums, the Turners being especially good. They seem to be picking up quite a little business on Seventh street, where there is plenty of room. G. Morris is in charge of the old Broadway place.

The Victor Johansen Co. reports damage done to flower seed crops by the rain and the experience of this firm is doubtless the same as that of many others. A rain of nearly three inches at this time of year, welcome as it is in some respects, is a little too unexpected and caught many unprepared.

Darling's Flower Shop is a most attractive place these days, and Mr. Darling says that he is well satisfied with the volume of business.

years. Much good stock was offered during the season and the large variety of these blooms made a fine appearance, working up particularly well in basket combinations. Dahlias keep up well, considering the weather, and there still are many gladioli. The cut of chrysanthemums is large, the offerings including fine stock. Pink varieties are rather prominent and many pompons continue to find an outlet. A heavy shipping movement takes care of the surplus nicely. Several shippers are doing a larger business than ever and prices are held firm.

The carnation supply is moderate, the morning's offerings being quickly absorbed. There are many violets, but the local demand is strong and does not leave many for shipping. The rose cut is rather light and the supplies clean up readily. Cut cyclamens are offered quite freely, but there are not many plants on the market as yet. In potted stock, there are many good primulas. Orchids are more plentiful than flower show committee, H. Plath gave a satisfactory report of the dahlia show held last week in the Civic Auditorium. Mr. Plath also reported for the P. P. I. E. prize committee, saying that he had been informed that the distribution of prizes had got as far as "Agric.," and would reach "Hort." soon. Walter Reubold and J. A. Alexander were admitted to membership, their applications having been presented at a previous meeting. John Auga and John Hart, of Burlingame, and A. Van Vliet, of San Francisco, applied for membership and were elected. A letter was read from Frank G. Cuthbertson, of C. C. Morse & Co., regarding the spring flower show and offering a prize for that event. The communication was referred to the flower show committee.

Upon completion of routine business, Professor Stevens gave a stereopticon lecture on "Landscape Gardening in California," which was well received. Much interest was shown in the evening's exhibits, which were few in number but rather out of the ordinary. J. A. Carbone showed a number of orchid plants, including new hybrid varieties from England—Odontioda Brewii and Odontioda Madeline—which took ninety-five points. A small spray of bougainvilleas, exhibited by Mr. Asmus, was awarded ninety-five points. Richard Diener showed a collection of hybrid petunia blooms, which were remarkably large and took seventy-five points. An exhibit of dahlia seedlings by F. C. Burns was awarded ninety points.

Various Notes.

The Gill Nursery Co. has purchased five large greenhouses from the John Spring estate at Berkeley, and is moving the material to the Gill place in West Berkeley. It includes a large stock of flower pots, etc., as well as first-class houses. John Gill says they have as yet not decided whether to keep all the equipment for their own use.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

A heavy cut of locally grown roses and large importations of mums from California prevented what would otherwise have been an acute shortage of stock last week. The early frost was general throughout the Pacific northwest, killing nearly everything in the way of outdoor blooms. Florists in interior towns were caught short and sent urgent appeals for supplies. But little help could be given them, as the supply was hardly more than sufficient to meet the local demand. There were no carnations to spare and not enough mums to go around. Funeral work was brisk and counter trade showed improvement.

The reopening of the Multnomah hotel was the occasion for a considerable flower display October 10. Indian summer weather still prevailed and the weather bureau's record for a fall dry

Now is the best time to start to sow the

to follow the Chrysanthemum crop. No other flower will pay better. You will have fine flowers from January until late in spring. All progressive florists have abandoned growing the late Spencer and are making now four times as much money with this early-flowering type, not only for inside but for outside planting. If sown in October and November they will bloom two to three months earlier; if sown outdoors they will bloom three to four weeks earlier than the late Spencers, producing more and better flowers and keeping the buds during the most rainy weather. We have a limited quantity of the following varieties to offer at reduced prices:

PINK AND WHITE ORCHID, WHITE ORCHID, MRS. A. A. SKACH, ORCHID BEAUTY, rose; LAVENDER ORCHID, lavender pink; MISS FL. FABING, Yarrowa color. This lot will contain about two to five per cent of the late hybrids of the same color and for late planting they are of more value than the re-selected varieties of the same names.

Price: 1 oz., 50c; 4 ozs., $1.50; 1 lb., $5.00; 10 lbs., $45.00

FLORISTS' WINTER ORCHID-FLOWERING MIXTURE. This mixture consists of all the leading commercial varieties of pink, rose, white and lavender, with a very few red and blue.

Price, $4.00 per pound.

GOLD MEDAL MIXTURE.

This is made up of about fifty distinct varieties, evenly balanced to each color. It contains almost every variety in commerce, including this year's and next year's novelties, all of the Winter Orchid type only. Last year we sold over 90,000 packets to private gardeners and retail florists. In semi-tropical countries they have been blooming all winter. In cooler climate, if sown early in spring they bloom in May, three to four weeks earlier. Florists who keep a seed counter should have this steadily on hand, ready for their customers. Sold only in one size packets. Each packet contains sufficient seed to plant 30 to 40 feet of row.

Prices: 1 pkt., 25c; 100 pkts., $12.00; 1000 pkts., $100.00.

Order now all you need for your winter or outdoor planting, as this limited quantity may not last long.

Various Notes.

H. Cheeseman, of R. M. Ward & Co., called on Portland florists last week.

Albert Rahn came in from Spokane. Autumn foliage is brighter than usual this year, on account of the early heavy frost.

At the range of the Wilson, Crout & Gehr Co. many changes have been made to give the buildings a more convenient arrangement and make room for the new houses. Four houses have been completed and the materials for a fifth house have been painted, made ready, and will be erected this fall. Except the putty and paint, the houses are built entirely of materials taken from the old Pfunder range, and after overhauling and painting they "look amaisht as weel's the new." One of the large Pfunder boilers is being set alongside the company's largest boiler and most of the range will be heated by the two. W. Thompson has been the consulting architect and heating engineer for the company.

Joe Koida, the violet grower, said he had increased his area of violets fifty per cent, but so far he has not had so many blooms as he did last year. His plants, he says, are healthy and thrifty, and he cannot account for their failure to produce well.

Several growers of carnations held back their plants, fearing a glut as in 1914, and it now looks as though it will be several weeks before there will be enough of the flowers to meet the local demand.

Several dahlia shows planned in vari-

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and General Manager, Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

THE Winfield Nursery Co., Winfield, Kan., is preparing to add a mail order seed department.

A CAPITAL reduction from $25,000 to $10,000 has been made by the Le Clare Nursery Co., of Rochester, N. Y.

THIS week's obituary contains a brief sketch of the life of Samuel F. Kerns, veteran nurseryman of Eugene, Ore., who died October 8, at the age of 83.

C. S. HARRISON has sold his interest in Harrison's Select Nursery Co., York, Neb., of which he has been president, to H. S. King, who has been secretary and treasurer. Mr. Harrison will continue to make his home in York.

THE Brand Nursery Co., Faribault, Minn., has raised a set of new peonies which in the course of time will make the name much more widely known than it is today. The reds are particularly fine, at least on the home grounds.

ONE of the peonies in strong demand this year is Therese, a Dessert variety of 1904. It was offered as low as $3 per plant a year or two ago, with so many takers that today sales are being made at retail at $7 per plant. It is a late variety of largest size.

PROPAGATION OF BOXWOOD.

I have some old boxwoods to take up this fall and I would like to know if cuttings can be taken from these and rooted. How are the cuttings prepared, and what is the best way to root them? Any information on this subject will be appreciated. F. M.—N. Y.

I presume you refer to boxwoods used for hedges. Make cuttings four to six inches long and plant them in a coldframe, or, better still, in a cold greenhouse. They can be set quite thickly. In the spring, when they are calloused, plant them out in nursery rows, setting the plants thickly and firming them thoroughly. If the soil is not damp it is best to soak the cuttings well when setting them out. If you take your hedges up in the spring, divided portions can be deeply planted and, if well watered, practically all will root. Unrooted cuttings taken in the spring will root fairly well when tamped in well and kept moist for a few weeks. C. W.

PARK MEN CONVENE.

The Officers Chosen.

Seventy-five park superintendents, presidents or other officers of park commissions forgathered at New Orleans October 11 and 12 for the eighteenth annual convention of the American Association of Park Superintendents. The balloting for new officers on the second day of the meeting resulted in the election of the following:

President—John J. Walsh, of Bronx park, New York.

Vice-presidents—Henry W. Busch, of Detroit; H. W. Merkel, of New York; Ernest Strehle, of St. Louis; A. Stuart, of Ottawa, Can.; C. S. Brock, of Houston, Tex.; C. W. Davis, of Memphis, Tenn.

Secretary-treasurer—Roland Cotterill, of Seattle.

As usual, the conventionists devoted a larger part of the meeting to interesting inspection and pleasure trips, and held business sessions in the morning and evening.

Playgrounds New Factor.

This year the park men gave particular attention to consideration of the relationship of playgrounds and parks.

"City Planning in Relation to Park Properties," "Playgrounds in Parks from a Designer's Standpoint" and "The Trend of Playground Movement as it Affects Parks," papers in which the authors promulgated constructive advice, covered the subject most thoroughly.

The association went on record as favoring the elimination of the abbreviated "Annette Kellerman" bathing suits at park beaches.

Lively voting featured the selection of the next meeting place. St. Louis was heavily backed and an eloquent plea for Louisville went for naught. The vote stood: St. Louis 30, Louisville 14, Hartford, Conn., 3. St. Louis, therefore, won, but only after a bitter fight.

Theodore Wirth, of Minneapolis, and a number of delegates remained in the city after the convention to see more of the historical places at old New Orleans.

two in place of ells at slight extra initial cost. The same might be said in regard to provision for attaching additional boilers, without having to tear down the whole piping system inside the boiler room.

Buying "Cheap" Stock.

In stocking the place, catalogues and trade papers are hunted through in search of offers of cheap stock, quality seeming to be of secondary importance. Cash is usually demanded in such offers and if the stock is inferior it is benched anyway, because it is paid for and there might be trouble in inducing the shipper to take it back, and there would be further delay in procuring good stock elsewhere. And thus the chance for success is given the first jolt.

Frequently, after a poor season, the grower imagines that he can carry the weakened plants along and induce them to start into a vigorous growth for the second season, to make up for what they failed to yield the first season, incidentally saving him the cost of re-planting with young stock. Almost invariably, however, he finally dumps the whole lot as worthless, just when the space should be yielding the heaviest returns.

Too many owners of small places hold to the idea that they must carry over stock plants and propagate their own stock of everything they grow. This is the age of the specialist, who can produce young stock of better quality and sell it for less money than it costs the average small grower to produce it. If the same space were devoted to finishing salable stock, considerably more than the cost of the young stock could be derived therefrom and the customers would be better served.

"Saving" in Soil and Sand.

There still are some growers who persist in using old soil where the best soil is none too good. Old rose or carnation soil is not fit to grow high-grade carnations or chrysanthemums in. I realize that the soil problem is a serious one with many growers in the large cities, but new soil would have to cost considerably more than I have ever known to be paid, to offset the difference in the yield. And right along the same line is the question of manures and fertilizers. To skimp on fertilizer means to cut the yield. What is generally called overfeeding is not so much excess of fertilizer as it is improper application of fertilizer. A closer study of the effects of fertilizers under varying conditions would prevent much damage.

Using propagating sand for several successive batches of cuttings is another source of much loss. The cost of sand, in proportion to the value of the cuttings, does not justify the risk taken in using it for more than one batch. The most successful propagators follow the practice of renewing the sand after each batch of cuttings.

False Economy in Hiring Help.

We are frequently asked how much help is required to run a given amount of glass, or, rather, with how little help a manager should be able to get along. There is perhaps no greater fallacy than to run an establishment with less help than is needed to keep everything right up to the minute at all times. Once you get behind, it is hard to catch up. As the season advances, the stock develops, new work continually comes crowding along and soon the stock suffers for want of attention and the yield is curtailed. We find this short-help condition especially prevalent among beginners. They seem to think that they can be grower, salesman, designer and delivery boy all in one. Consequently, when there is a funeral in the town, the growing stock goes without watering until afternoon or evening, and the cuttings—well, they are shaded if they are not forgotten in the rush. Hence, in a season's run, the losses would easily pay for a good extra man. Some of these gluttons for work imagine that they can even stay up the greater part of each night and do the firing, though they thus render themselves unfit to attend to their business properly, and unable to accomplish a man's share of the day's work.

While on the question of help, it might not be amiss to say a word on the question of pay. Many employers seem to think that the less they can get a man to work for, the more money they are saving for themselves—a mistaken idea, of course. Other, more progressive employers have come to a realization that the more wages a man can make himself worth, the more profitable he is to his employer, and the best incentive is to let your men understand that their wages will be increased in proportion to their service. Once let an employee get the impression that he can progress no farther in your establishment, and you have killed his ambition to render you more valuable service.

Fuel and Fumigation.

Why do so many of us put off starting the fires under the boilers until everything has had several good chills? Often the effects are seen for several weeks after.

There are still some growers who persist in fumigating their houses with tobacco smoke, produced by burning the stems, just because they can be had for little or nothing. Some even pretend to believe this method to be more effective than the modern methods of spraying or fumigating. Most of you will be able to recall many a case of burnt tips on the mums, or a batch of ruined spiræas, to say nothing of the heavy crop of aphids and thrips, which grew while you were unable to smoke for one reason or another at the proper time. Tobacco smoke produces the same effects on plants now that it did in those days and that method of fumigating is one of the shining examples of false economy.

Profit and Loss on Novelties.

How about letting the other fellow try out all the novelties? How many growers there are who pride themselves on their exceeding wisdom in letting the other fellow get stung on the new things that are offered by the novelty sharks, when really they are letting their competitors skim off the cream before passing the skimmed milk on to them! The biggest profits are usually made off a winner during the first two seasons after dissemination. Take, for example, the rose Ophelia. Nearly every grower who bought it the first year was pleased with it and made money on it. This season, with the increased plantings, the price will probably be about the same as that of other standard varieties. Next season Ophelia may be a drug on the market, and the grower who was so "wise" as not to hop onto the bandwagon until Ophelia had a good try-out will be drinking the skimmed milk.

We could cite parallel cases without number. We call to mind a conversation some years back with a grower from a city about the size of Louisville. He asserted that he bought more of the novelties than all the other growers in his vicinity put together. Why, just that season he had spent about $15 on new carnations! When we informed him that our firm spent anywhere from $100 to $300 each year for new carnations, he nearly fell dead. It is a fact that the successful growers are those who buy the novelties, and I firmly believe that their success is largely due to the fact that they make use of the improved varieties as they become available.

Safety First in Shipping.

Too much stock is subjected to the delays and dangers attending freight shipments. Few if any plants are benefited by shipping, and every additional day in transit reduces their value more than the amount saved in express charges. I recall a shipment of palms, invoiced at nearly $200, which was caught in an early cold snap in November and completely ruined. "Safety first" should be your watchword in shipping plants.

Perhaps no class of buildings are worse neglected than greenhouses when it comes to painting. And this in spite of the well-known fact that not only does paint prolong the life of the greenhouse, but plants thrive better in a light house than in a dark one. The only excuse ever offered is the cost of the painting. I believe that the cost of painting a greenhouse every three years would be returned in the increased yield of the plants, to say nothing of the prolongation of the life of the house.

The Trade Organizations.

Every person connected with the trade should affiliate with the trade organizations. The good accomplished by both local and national societies is such that they merit greater support than is now given them. We sometimes hear the complaint that there are too many different societies and that it costs too much to belong to them all. The fact is, you can belong to them all for life, for less money than many of you have spent on some pet hobby, and they are doing you infinitely more good.

And don't stay away from the conventions and flower shows on account of the expense. Here, again, I might say that the successful ones among you are those who take advantage of every opportunity to mingle with their fellow craftsmen, and the larger the gathering the greater the opportunity for learning.

There are many other forms of false economy, but I have pointed out those which are in daily use and which we all ought to know better than to practice. I have touched upon each one but briefly, feeling that a free discussion would perhaps do the most good.

There is perhaps no more popular Begonia on the market today. Its floriferousness and all-round satisfactory behavior make it a favorite with both grower and customer. We have fine plants in 3-inch pots, ready to shift into 5 or 6-inch azalea pots for flowering, $8.00 per 100.

MERRY CHRISTMAS.

We will be glad to have you visit our place any time, to look over this fine scarlet Carnation of ours. Visitors invariably express themselves as being highly pleased with its appearance, and we feel sure you will like it too. Many orders have already been booked for rooted cuttings and we are booking them right along now. Better hop onto the bandwagon now.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

There has been an increase in the supply of chrysanthemums, but these flowers as yet are not too abundant. The quality and variety are improving daily. Carnations are improving in quality and increasing in quantity. Gladioli are rapidly passing from the market. Notwithstanding the frosts, asters continue to come into the market. They have brought far better prices than in other years.

Dahlias were fairly plentiful last week, and the quality was fine. Earlier in the season the flowers were not so perfect as desired, but there has been no trouble on that score during the last two or three weeks. Cosmos is more plentiful and of good quality. Orchids are plentiful and cheap. Good valley is scarce and high.

The florists' business has been a little slow in starting this fall, but now each week shows some improvement. There have been a considerable number of October weddings and these have helped to increase sales.

Growers who put in a winter's supply of coal during the summer are fortunate, as the price has advanced and may go up again before the winter is over.

Various Notes.

Philips Bros. report business good so far this month. There has been an increase of funeral work over that of last month, and a considerable quantity of wedding work. Counter trade is fair.

According to New Jersey state statistics, florists' products grown annually in New Jersey are valued at $4,000,000.

H. B. McKnight, grower for A. C. Begerow, has finished taking his stevia plants from the field. The plants have been put in deep frames and as soon as the first crop of chrysanthemums is gone they will be transferred to the greenhouses. Mums are reported to be remarkably free from disease this year. Carnation plants have been small, but they are growing better now. They are stocky and healthy and promise a good crop.

SPECIAL WHOLESALE PRICE LIST for FALL and WINTER, 1916-1917

CYCLAMEN:

We have from year to year been growing these popular winter flowering plants in steadily increasing quantities. The demand for them is such that our supply of plants, however large it may be, quickly gets exhausted.

Our methods of cultivation have proved singularly successful. Our plants are healthy, stocky and strong; the results consequently are invariably satisfactory both to our many customers and to us.

As to the selection of colors and strains, we have been more careful than ever to get only the best, as can be seen from the following list of international strains, which can be had either in separate colors or assorted. As the orders come in, we pick out the heaviest, best leaved plants of a splendid stock of about 40,000.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Last week was an exceedingly busy one. Numerous social affairs created a good demand for cut flowers, baskets, bouquets and decorations.

Chrysanthemums now are asserting themselves and are in sufficient number and variety to appease all demands. Prices range about normal. Violets are still shy, but gradually increasing in supply, the growers refraining from pushing them hard until after the mums have made their exit from the stage. Carnations are improving rapidly in quality and roses are quite plentiful. There is little room or call for novelties at present.

Various Notes.

T. O'Connor reports a busy week, no less than three of the leading social weddings of the week falling to his care.

James Hacking has been reelected superintendent of the Moshassuck cemetery, at Central Falls.

The management of the Westminster Greenhouses has rebuilt several of its houses this season.

Miss Ellen O'Connor had several good decorations for weddings last week, both house and church.

Several of the downtown florists are talking of having a get-together banquet during the coming winter, with one or more good speakers from out of the city.

The wife of Charles Smith, the Washington street florist, who was operated upon in a private hospital at Boston several weeks ago, is reported improving.

James B. Canning, who has been spending the summer with his family at his seaside cottage at Highland Heights, on Narragansett bay, has returned to the city home. Mr. Canning is much improved in health.

Eugene McCarron has overhauled his greenhouses on Hope street.

T. J. Johnston & Co., Edward Brooke, manager, are to give up the store on Weybosset street, which they occupied for more than twenty years, and will take up larger quarters on Washington street at an early date. W. H. M.

WESTERLY, R. I.

The Washington Trust Co. has taken charge as trustee of the greenhouses of Samuel Rankin, who disappeared September 12 while on a trip to New York. The houses contain about 25,000 feet of glass and are well stocked with roses.

Louis J. Reuter, of S. J. Reuter & Son, Inc., was a business visitor to New York last week. This concern has just received a large supply of tulip and daffodil bulbs.

Conrad Schultz has made extensive improvements at his range of greenhouses on Beach street.

George L. Stillman was a visitor to New York last week, combining business with pleasure. W. H. M.

The Markets.

Business was good last week. Killarney roses are in large supply, both long and short-stemmed stock, and Ophelia and Russell roses meet with a vigorous demand. Unfortunately, the supply of them is not enough to meet requirements. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful and the demand is good. Carnations have improved in length of stem and quality of bloom.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Club was held at the residence of Henry Gaethje, with a good attendance, President Stapp presiding. J. M. Hassett, of Davenport, was elected to membership. Bulbs and potted plants for Christmas were the topic for discussion, which was led by P. J. Pearson.

C. J. Reardon was appointed to select the subject of discussion for the November meeting, which will be held at Van Der Veer park, at the residence of C. O. E. Boehm, park superintendent. It will be an afternoon meeting, in order that club members may view the park chrysanthemum show.

Various Notes.

Henry Gaethje is growing a fine lot of bouvardias in all colors, both as potted plants and in the benches for cut flowers.

Julius Staack & Sons are cutting large quantities of carnations at their Watertown houses. The blooms are of excellent quality.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

SIZE OF BOILER PORTS.

I have a house 36x75 which I heat to 52 degrees by means of a 35-horsepower boiler—a hot water system. I am building another house 25x30 and I would like to know if the outlet and inlet of the boiler, four inches each, are large enough for both houses.

F. C. F.—Ind.

The information furnished is not complete enough for us to give a positive answer about the size of ports needed for the main flow and return pipes. If there is glass in the side walls, or if the new house is to be used for roses, we would prefer to use a 4-inch flow pipe for the larger house and a 2½ or 3-inch pipe for the smaller one. For carnations and for other plants for which the temperature need not be more than 50 to 55, it will probably answer if the main for the new house is taken off from the 4-inch main supplying the large house, provided there is only a limited amount of glass in the walls of the houses.

PIPING TWO PARALLEL HOUSES.

Please give me your advice about piping, for hot water, the two greenhouses outlined in the accompanying sketch. They are six feet high to the eaves and ten and one-half feet to the ridge. One house is 12x68 and the other is 18x95. The houses run east and west. The shorter house is on the south side, with the boiler house at the east end of it. There are twenty-eight inches of glass in the south wall and fourteen inches of glass in the north wall. There is no partition between the two houses. I want a night temperature of 60 degrees. I should like to use some pipe that I have on hand. I have about 1,200 feet of 2-inch pipe and a small quantity of 1¼-inch.

C. G. W.—O.

For the house 12x68 we would advise the use of two 2½-inch flow pipes and six 2-inch returns. One flow pipe should be placed upon each of the wall plates and run to the farther end of the house, with a fall of one inch in fifteen feet, and each flow pipe should there be connected with three returns, arranged in coils under each of the side benches.

For the house 18x95 we would use three flows and nine returns, of the same sizes as in the other house and arranged in the same way, except that the third flow pipe should be about three feet below the ridge and at the farther end of the house it should drop down and supply three returns placed in a coil under the middle bench. Three 1¼-inch returns may be substituted for two 2-inch returns.

DETACHED SWEET PEA HOUSE.

I am building a new greenhouse, 16x56, fourteen feet high to the ridge and eight feet to the eaves. The walls will be all of glass except the lower two feet, which will be wood. The house will be well sheltered on the north, west and east. It will be used for sweet peas. I also have a carnation house, 25x60, parallel with the new house but separated from it by an open space sixteen feet wide. I use hot water heat. The houses run east and west and the boiler is near the east end of the older house. Can I heat the sweet pea house from the same boiler? There is no doubt that the boiler is sufficiently large, but the flow pipe would have to be run forty-one feet south in a box and fifty-four feet west in the greenhouse; then the water would return fifty-four feet and finally would pass under the ground sixteen feet, back to the carnation house and the boiler. I would use one 2½-inch overhead flow and six 2-inch returns in the new house.

B. A. L.—Conn.

We can see no reason why the two houses cannot be heated with one boiler, as proposed. While it would be possible to heat the new house with one 2½-inch flow pipe and six 2-inch returns, we would prefer to use eight returns. In the carnation house, 25x60, we would use two 2½-inch flow pipes on the side walls, or four feet below the ridge, and eleven 2-inch returns on the walls.

The Market.

Market conditions are good considering the time of the year, as it usually is hard to get enough stock to supply demands at this season. Outdoor flowers, with the exception of dahlias, are gone. Chrysanthemums are just starting to bloom and only a few good carnations are to be had. This leaves the market in such shape that ordinary Arthur Newell was kept quite busy with decorative work and has several good orders booked for the near future. He reports that business has increased in all lines.

Glen Parker, manager of the George M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co., has tendered his resignation, to take effect January 1, 1917. He intends going into the automobile business at that time. He will have a garage at Thirty-first

T. J. Noll & Co. report business good. They are now receiving large supplies of roses and mums. Sales of baskets and supplies were heavy at this place.

A. F. Barbe is cutting a large quantity of roses, as well as some good mums and carnations. The cemetery business continues good.

Henry Kusik & Co. report they are receiving nice lots of home-grown chrysanthemums and carnations. Mr. Lacy, formerly with Arthur Newell, now is with this concern.

The Forest Hill Cemetery Co. has its greenhouse finished and the heating plant has been installed.

Nelson Jarrett has his new house completed and everything is about ready for the winter. His stock is looking fine.

John Stevens now is sending in a large cut of carnations. His carnation plants are unusually fine—none better to be seen anywhere. His chrysanthemums, too, are excellent.

W. J. Barnes had a busy week in funeral work.

Visitors last week were Walter Mott, of Hammond's Paint & Slug Shot Works, Beacon, N. Y., and Julius Dill-off, of Schloss Bros., New York.

The Elmhurst Nursery is cutting some excellent dahlias. From 500 to 1,000 flowers are cut daily. W. J. B.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

There continues to be a strong demand for funeral flowers. The demand for flowers for socials is increasing as the season advances. There has been no killing frost as yet and outdoor flowers are still plentiful. Chrysanthemums arrived last week, but were not of as good quality as they will be later. Roses and carnations are improving fast and are sold quickly. The weather has been almost ideal for these, with bright days and cool nights.

Club Meeting.

The Evansville Florists' Club met at C. E. Gysemans' October 11 and had a fine time. Mr. Gysemans fixed up a long table on the wide middle bench of a greenhouse, with seats for all. Here the business meeting was held and afterward a splendid lunch of sandwiches, cakes, fruits, coffee and other drinks was served.

Resolutions were drawn up and forwarded to the head offices of the American Express Co., complaining of the poor local service.

At the annual election the following new officers were unanimously chosen: President, Karl Zeidler; vice-president, Julius Niednagel; treasurer, C. E. Gysemans. E. L. Fenton was reelected secretary.

The next meeting will be held at Boonville, at the residence of Ernest L. Lutz, November 8. The members will leave in a body on the 6 o'clock traction.

Various Notes.

J. C. Elsperrmann is again able to attend to his duties. Funeral work is heavy at his place.

C. L. Niednagel is cutting a large crop of roses of good quality.

Miss Nellie Goodge is busy with her fall work. She is able to be more

"The handiest thing any retail florist ever had in his store."

FLORISTS' PUBLISHING CO.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

A drop in temperature and rain were the cause of a decrease in the supply of flowers. Roses and carnations, which have been coming in quantity, are fewer, and gladioli and dahlias are a thing of the past. Chrysanthemums are more plentiful, but they do not make up for the shortage in other flowers. Violets arrive in good condition and cattleyas are fine. Of these there are enough for all demands. The supply of greens of all kinds is sufficient for the demand.

Various Notes.

There are a number of small growers who bring in a few chrysanthemums and sell them for the same price retail as wholesale, and sometimes for less, and this causes complaint on the part of some of the retailers.

The retail stores seem to be fairly busy, some good funeral orders helping out nicely and general counter trade improving right along.

One of the members of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association stopped off in Pittsburgh long enough to remind us that we had not had a representative at the convention in Chicago last week and to point out the importance of every retailer lending his support, both morally and financially. He suggested that retailers read the reports in the trade papers concerning the work done at the meeting, and he felt sure more of them would show interest.

In speaking of dahlias a retailer said one of the things he had heard from customers was that dahlias brought hay fever and that when they were used on a dining table many of those at the table would be sneezing before the dinner was over. We know that dahlias sometimes bring mosquitoes into the house, but this is the first time we have heard that they carry hay fever.

SAN FRANCISCO NOTES.

J. A. Carbone, one of the leading orchid growers of this vicinity, has a good many Cattleya labiata, phalenopsis and dendrobium plants in flower at his place at Berkeley, and reports a strong demand.

According to Mr. Diener, the Richard Diener Co., of Kentfield, Cal., has a good batch of seeds from its new hybrid petunias, which will be put on the market this fall. These flowers are said to be the largest of their kind ever produced.

Peter Perkins has moved his store to a new location at Visalia, Cal. The new place provides more room than the Palace hotel annex formerly occupied and is nicely fitted up.

Extensive preparations are being made for the flower show to be given at Redwood City October 27 to 29; under the auspices of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society. The orchid exhibit promises to surpass all previous displays and will be one of the special features of the show. Among the exhibitors will be Mrs. Herbert Fleishacker, who bought the entire collection of orchids exhibited in the Philippine building at the P. P. I. E.

Nursery stock from Oregon has been quarantined by the supervisors of Butte county, upon the request of Earl Mills, county horticultural commissioner, who stated that the peach root borer had attacked the nursery stock of that state.

S. Piccetti, the able manager of the Emporium flower stand, which is a branch of the Charles Navlet business in San Jose, Cal., announces that Mr. Navlet is preparing to move to new quarters on San Fernando street, in San Jose, after being in business at the present location for the last twenty-five years. He has taken the whole of a 3-story building and is having the new place well equipped.

The new firm of Avansino Bros., composed of H. A. and J. B. Avansino, formerly members of the Fairmont Floral Co., on Powell street, which was succeeded by MacRorie & McLaren, formally opened for business at 182 Geary street, October 7. Many trade and personal friends called to inspect the new establishment and many favorable comments regarding the beauty of the store were heard.

The E. W. McLellan Co. is receiving a fine cut of baby roses and is starting to ship them. It also is sending out some violets.

Enomoto & Co. are making large shipments of chrysanthemums. S. H. G.

The Market.

Business is fairly good. The supply of stock, however, is too large for present needs, and this has resulted in crowding the market.

Roses are in good supply and there are many excellent offerings. The general run of Killarney, White Killarney, Hoosier Beauty and Shawyer is of a high order. Carnations have become somewhat scarce. Chrysanthemums now are plentiful and by the end of this week the cut of early varieties should be at its zenith. Easter lilies are plentiful. Both cosmos and dahlias are plentiful and sell only at bottom prices. A good supply of orchids and valley is on hand. A limited number of sweet peas may be had. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell has been having excellent orchids and lily of the valley.

Fred Gear had an "opening" decoration last week in which he used several thousand dahlias.

L. H. Kyrk disposed of 1,500 dahlias and 300 bunches of cosmos to George Klotter one day last week.

The William Murphy Co. has been getting in some excellent Pacific Supreme chrysanthemums.

William Mayhall, of E. G. Gillett's, leaves the first of next week on a business trip to Fort Wayne, Ind., and Kalamazoo and Grand Rapids, Mich.

Among recent visitors were Julius Dilloff, representing Schloss Bros., of New York; M. A. Leganger, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; A. G. Guthman, of Atlanta, Ga., and Fred W. Ritter, of Dayton, O.

C. H. H.

Scranton, Pa.—G. B. Clark had the distinction of being the only local florist exhibiting at the recent industrial exposition. Mr. Clark began business in 1878 and has built up one of the largest trades in the city by his first-class methods and by availing himself of every opportunity that will bring his flowers and name before the public.

The Market.

There has not been much change in market conditions during the last week. There has been a surfeit of rain and we have had some frosts. Stock is in fine condition and business in general has shown a marked increase.

Better carnations are arriving in larger quantities each day. The quality shows a big improvement and the stems are gradually becoming longer. The demand remains strong and the daily cut is being cleaned up readily at good prices. Roses are in the market in large quantities, but the demand is just as large as the supply, so that there is no surplus, and prices are good. Mums are coming in more heavily and are selling exceptionally well. Yellow is in great demand and its supply is light as yet. Prices range from $1.50 for small stock to $4 per dozen for fancy stock.

Valley still is scarce and the quality is only medium. Prices remain steady at $6 for first quality. Lilies are in short supply and the daily cut is being moved readily. There is a fair quantity of orchids, which are disposed of at good prices. Sweetheart roses are in good demand and seem to be finding favor with the general trade.

Various Notes.

The Market.

Business, while not rushing, is good. Stock is more plentiful, but still not quite equal to the demand. Roses of fine quality are arriving, the prices on these ranging from $1 to $8 per hundred. Excellent Beauties were seen in the market and these found a ready sale. Easter and rubrum lilies are scarce and the big demand for them keeps prices high. Valley and violets may be had, but as yet they are not plentiful. Chrysanthemums are arriving more rapidly. Cyclamens and primroses now are in the market, and, although somewhat scarce and high-priced, find a ready sale. Splendid green goods are to be had. Boston ferns are beginning to crowd the market.

Various Notes.

The retailers' stores and windows are most attractive. The combined use of autumn foliage with splendid colors in flowers makes the displays fine.

William F. Holmes last week decorated his store quite artistically. He has made many alterations and improvements at his place. He reports a good business and a steady trade.

O. C. Swansen had a pretty display of livistonas, autumn foliage and fine yellow chrysanthemums.

Miss H. B. Whitted reports a week of good business, with a large number of funeral orders. The window display at the Fifth street store was much admired.

Johnson & Co., one of the new retail concerns, are doing splendidly. This company carries a fine stock and is building up a good trade.

FREAK FLOWERS FUNNY FANCIES

While no florist is urged to go beyond the conventional, unusual uses of flowers undeniably have an interest for the public, even for that part of the public which would not consider admitting such ideas to their own practices. Read, but do not necessarily go and do likewise.

THE one thing a flower business most needs is novelty. Probably there is no retail florist who has not, like the writer, felt the force of this fact. There are, as we all know, innumerable differences in the quality of flowers and an immense variety of combinations that are possible in arrangement, but the differences pass almost without notice from the public. Flower buyers tire of the same thing used time after time in much the same way and the greatest need is novelty, in every store that is pushing forward.

But in the search for novelty the florist must remain within the conventions; freak arrangements have no place except in advertising.

What Started It.

The development of new ideas in the arrangement of flowers for personal adornment began with the illustration in The Review more than a year ago of what is known as tango bouquets. These had a legitimate place and use, for the reason that the conventional style of corsage was not adapted to the close style of dancing that was so much in vogue a year or two ago. The shoulder and arm bouquet, though a bit extreme, might safely be recommended by the florist to even his most discriminating customers, but when The Review showed the anklet bouquet it was with the admonition that "he would be a most rash, thoughtless and undeserving retailer who would even suggest that a lady tie flowers on her leg—no matter how near the shoe!"

But the anklet bouquet undoubtedly has had a vogue. It has been seen on the stage of many a musical comedy and in the window of many a florist who was seeking departure from the humdrum by showing novelty arrangements on living models.

Good for Publicity Only.

In the attempt to elaborate the tango bouquet, many freak ideas were developed—some of them unobjectionable, and nearly all of them good for advertising purposes, but most of them short-lived, for the simple reason that no florist with any pretension to standing in his community could possibly recommend the use of such things to his patrons. Indeed, many thought that the prestige of the store would suffer if these freak arrangements even were shown in the window.

It is beyond question, however, that the idea of displaying merchandise on living models has become extremely popular in the last year or so. It is done in the windows of department stores of the highest class and there seems no reason why florists should not employ the same method to attract patrons and create talk. But extreme care must be taken to see that the talk is not discreditable to that particular flower store and to florists in general. Ours is a high-class merchandising business. Flower stores should be among the most scrupulously conducted of the leading specialty shops in every city and nothing should be attempted that will in the slightest degree offend good taste.

If a man runs a downtown flower store that caters to "sporty" trade, he can make good advertising capital out of the living model idea, but it is of no use to the man in a residence district with a family trade. Nor can the store that deals in the flashiest kind of floral arrangement afford to recommend the freak ideas to its customers. The only value the idea has is in hippodroming; "unique" uses of flowers have no commercial possibilities and such arrangements never can be sold except in the occasional instances of a demand from a musical comedy star or the queen of a movie ball.

Living Models.

The illustrations in this issue of The Review are not in any way intended as a recommendation of any of the forms of personal adornment shown. They are given merely for the purpose of showing what can be done by the man who wants to attract attention by the use of the unusual. It is true that some of these might "get by" in an occasional way as regular articles of sale. For instance, the bouquet for the walking staff is not half bad; it is inoffen-

"Excuse My Back."—One of the Funniest of Freak Flower Fancies.

Flowers for the Walking Staff are Not Out of Place, but a Flower Decorated Umbrella Would Make People Laugh.

sive, not vulgar. But the commercial possibilities of selling flowers to ladies who carry walking sticks is not great. On the other hand, a great many women carry parasols and still more carry umbrellas, but the occasions on which one would be apt to expose flowers to the elements, either on sun shades or rain sticks are much less numerous. There have, of course, been many table decorations in which a beflowered parasol was used and the idea illustrated no doubt grew out of this, but it can have little use outside the hippodrome.

Another Salable Idea.

The arm bouquet is all right; it has been used so frequently that it scarcely can be called a novelty, although no large number of sales have been made and the fad will pass with the passing of the fad that brought the arm bouquet into being—the close dances. The headdress of flowers is a freak. We are accustomed to jewels in the hair, an aigrette passes without comment and a single rose or gardenia is approved, but the public is not yet ready for any more elaborate use of flowers on the head. You can put them on the pretty demonstrator in the show window, if you use one, but you can not sell them to your trade.

Questionable Publicity.

The man who sets his wits to work can devise an almost endless number of freak ways of using flowers for the personal adornment of woman and her apparel. He even can go so far as to devise something for the one whose popularity is so great she must "excuse my back" to a portion of her admirers—say, a small bouquet of miniature roses—but there is absolutely nothing in it except publicity that becomes of questionable value the moment it has gone beyond the bounds set by local opinion.

TO SHIP DAHLIAS SAFELY.

Please inform me what is the best method of packing dahlias for shipment; also, what is the proper treatment before shipment? Do you know of any method to make a dahlia perfect its flower when picked with the bloom half opened? I use hot water for all the fresh-picked blooms, but that will not open a flower not perfect when picked.

B. M. C.—Mich.

Cut the flowers and place the stems in water for an hour or two before shipping. Tubs or pails filled with fresh water, with 1-inch wire netting laid over each pail to prevent the flowers and foliage from touching the water, should be used. Give the flowers a fine spraying before packing. Many flowers cannot be packed damp, but dahlias carry better if moistened over the petals. Do not place the flowers in an ice room, but in a cool shed, or even in a shaded position outdoors. Use boxes which will contain only one layer of flowers. The boxes should be of wood, if for long shipments by express, and light cross cleats covered with paper can be tacked to the sides of the boxes to hold securely in position each row of flowers. Boxes should be well lined with newspapers and oil paper to exclude air as far as possible.

Cardboard boxes are generally used by exhibitors, who usually travel with their flowers, these boxes being tied in bundles, but if I were shipping to a wholesale market or store I would depend only on wooden ones. Cut the flowers early in the morning or in the evening; never while the sun shines on them.

I do not know of any way to develop immature dahlia flowers in water and doubt if it can be done successfully. It is well to state that dahlias grown in rich soil keep poorly compared with those grown in poor soil. C. W.

FALL TREATMENT OF LAWNS.

I am writing for information on the treatment of a lawn at this time of the year. How should it be prepared for the winter and what fertilizer should be used? Please state the best method of covering the lawn with manure and how thick the manure should be used. Would fresh horse manure be all right? I can easily procure plenty of pulverized limestone. Would this be good for the lawn? When should the manure be put on? C. B. B.—O.

If your lawn shows considerable mossy growth, due to acidity of the soil, a top-dressing of pulverized limestone will be helpful. I cannot recommend a mulch such as you suggest for the winter. It is unsightly and unsanitary, and fills the lawn full of noxious weed seeds. Use some cleanly fertilizer in spring and fall, such as pulverized sheep manure, or a well balanced chemical lawn fertilizer, or one composed of fine bone and wood ashes. It is an erroneous idea that lawns need any such winter mulch and protection. The finest lawns in the country never receive any such coating and it would not be tolerated on estates where good lawns are a feature. C. W.

LOW EVERGREENS FOR GRAVES.

I have a customer who wants a plant for a grave in a cemetery, preferably a hardy, evergreen vine, with or without blooms. This customer dislikes myrtle and ivy, the planting of which is prohibited by the cemetery authorities. I am unable to advise, but perhaps you can suggest something.

E. L. L.—Ind.

A good, low-growing evergreen plant for the purpose named is Pachysandra terminalis. This is perfectly hardy. The foliage is of a handsome green color. The plants flower, but the blossoms are not striking. This plant can be set out almost any time between April and October with perfect safety. Euonymus radicans is another splendid hardy evergreen for your purpose, and one which will withstand a minimum of 20 degrees below zero without injury. The form radicans is naturally a low grower, but it makes a splendid climber. If you want something a trifle taller try Euonymus radicans vegetus, or E. Carrieri. These are more shrubby habited. They flower in summer and attractive berries succeed the flowers. Euonymus may be planted during any of the months suggested for pachysandra. C. W.

POINTERS ON CALENDULAS.

How long does it take calendulas to bloom from the time of sowing and what degree of heat should be used in their culture? W. F.—Ia.

Much depends on the time the calendulas are sown. If seed is sown now, the plants will start to bloom about the end of January. If sown January 1, the plants will start to flower from March 15 to 30. Of course, the plants flower for quite a long time. A night temperature of 48 to 52 degrees suits them best. C. W.

ARAUCARIAS FROM SEED.

When is the best time to sow seeds of Araucaria excelsa? If plants can be grown successfully from seed, what should their treatment be?

M. E. H.—Tenn.

Seeds of Araucaria excelsa should be sown as soon as received, but they will germinate more rapidly toward spring.

Sow the seeds in shallow boxes or trays, the latter to be supplied with a layer of drainage material in the bottom, and then fill with light, sandy soil. Cover the seeds with soil to a depth of about half an inch, press it down moderately firm and keep it moist. Place the boxes in a greenhouse having a night temperature of 55 degrees.

Seedling araucarias are likely to be rather lanky and not so well furnished at the bottom as plants that are grown from cuttings, so that the experiment of growing a stock by this method may not prove a most successful one.

W. H. T.

VARIETIES OF FUCHSIAS.

I am sending by parcel post a fuchsia of which I would like to know the name. Also please tell me the names of several of the earliest single and double fuchsias. G. M. W.—Mich.

The flower of the fuchsia was quite faded and could not be named. Some single and double fuchsias are Black Prince, single; Rose Phenomenal, double; Elm City, single; speciosa, single; J. Christian, double. To the foregoing you could add, if you wish, White Beauty, Lord Byron and Beauty of Exeter. C. W.

HANDS ACROSS THE OHIO

HOOSIERS AND COLONELS MEET

State Societies Hold Joint Outing.

In last week's issue of The Review there was a full report of the joint meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association and the Kentucky Society of Florists, which closed October 18, the morning being enjoyably and profitably spent visiting the Louisville establishments located near the cemetery, Jacob Schulz, J. E. Marret and E. G. Reimer & Son. The cemetery itself was quite a point of interest because of its artistic landscape gardening. After visiting the Kentucky Tobacco Products Co. and the downtown stores, teams were picked for bowling contests, Kentucky vs. Indiana, for which elegant prizes were awarded. A luncheon was served in the alleys, after which a special car took the party to the Walker establishment, ten miles out of Louisville. All enjoyed this clean and well kept place and also the buffet luncheon that was served in the evening. The Walkers entertained with a dance that evening, but most of the Indianians left on the 5 o'clock car for Louisville, after a vote of thanks had been proposed by W. W. Coles, an invitation to the American Carnation Society meeting at Indianapolis had been extended to the Kentuckians by A. F. J. Baur and a farewell speech made by Jacob Schulz.

Those Present.

Those who attended this highly successful "get acquainted" meeting were:

Able, Jos., and wife, Louisville, Ky.
Aebersold, Mr., New Albany, Ind.

The Management.

The management of the affair was in the hands of the Kentucky Society of Florists, with officers and committees as follows:

President—Herman Kleinstarkink, Jr.
Vice-president—Jacob Schulz.
Financial secretary—Emil Walther.

Corresponding secretary—August R. Baumer.
Treasurer—Frank Kleinstarkink.
Executive committee—August R. Baumer, chairman; Louis Kirch, Joseph Able, Anders Rasmussen.

Automobile ride—Anders Rasmussen, chairman; Carl Gueltig, Adam Heitz, Louis Kirch.

Banquet committee—Joseph Able, chairman; Louis Kirch, August R. Baumer, Miss E. Kleinstarkink, Miss N. Able.

Decorations—H. Kleinstarkink, Jr., chairman; George E. Schulz, Herbert Walker, Joseph Able, Henry Fuchs.

Bowling committee—Louis Kirch, chairman; H. Kleinstarkink, Jr., William Walker, Jr., Joseph Able.

RAMSBURG TELLS HOW.

Antirrhinum Sells Itself.

The up-to-date snapdragon sells itself, but it is not so well known to the public that buyers will ask for it—the stock must be shown. The flowers are so good that they sell where they are seen. The introduction of the snapdragon as a cut flower, however, is of such recent date that flower buyers must be educated as to its uses. Those who are interested in developing the flower strongly urge that prices be kept within bounds and that the stock be used wherever possible. The pink varieties will be found particularly effective in funeral sprays, and may be combined with white carnations, roses, stevia, etc.

Hints on Culture.

G. S. Ramsburg, the originator of Silver Pink snapdragon, who advises growing it from seed, has prepared the following suggestions for culture:

"Seeds should germinate within a week, when they should be placed in full sunlight, and the soil always kept moist by frequent spraying rather than one soaking. Run them on the dry side during cloudy weather, to avoid damping. Seedlings should be ready to pot within thirty to forty days from germination, and should be potted while the plants are small, short and stocky. A few days over will weaken and spoil them.

"When plants have formed the fourth set of leaves, pinch the top above the second or third set. This will be from two to four weeks after potting. The plants should be ready to bench or pot on in three to four months from sowing, according to the season. Our rule is to bench out of 2½-inch pots and to pinch but once, which gives three to six spikes in the first crop and countless numbers thereafter. There is no need of disbudding. We strongly advise against carrying over old plants, but if this is desired you will note that after the fall crop is done, a number of light green shoots will start from the base of the plant. Let these remain, but cut or break out all other growth.

Benching the Plants.

"Use good soil, prepared with one-fourth dressing, and set the plants about 12x12 or 12x14, remembering that a seedling plant of Silver Pink does big business and requires room. If the walks are narrow, set the first row six or more inches from the side of the bed, to allow for spread of plants. Avoid setting the plants deep. Keep them growing by cultivation and moisture, giving all the air possible at all times. During the flowering season use light feeds of well-rotted or liquid manure, but be careful not to overdo. The temperature should be run at 50 degrees. When the plants have made six inches of growth, put up supporters. We prefer wires at each side of the row, eight, eighteen and thirty inches high, with cross strings every four inches. Whatever method is used, attend to it at once. Straight stems are wanted; besides, supports let in air and light.

"Regarding the kind of bench, there is no difference between solid and raised benches, providing the solid beds have drainage. Allow four feet or more of head room, to avoid drawing the plants. Attend to fumigating or spraying at least once every three weeks. Green fly is the worst enemy. If tobacco dust is used for fumigating, go lightly to avoid scorching.

When to Sow.

"The following dates are taken from our records; they may vary in different latitudes: For fall blossoms sow the seed in April and May. For late winter sow the seed in July and August, and continue until Christmas for crops until Memorial day. For a special Memorial crop we sow the seed the first week in September. Plants beginning to flower in February or later will continue in profitable crop until July. Blossoms at Christmas are hard to get from any variety, due to dull weather and short days. You can come nearest to it by experimenting with the temperature and the date of sowing the seed. Additional profit can be had by letting one flower spike on each plant remain until several seed pods form. Then cut the head down above the side shoots and in a short time the spike will carry a dozen or more nice flowers on short, wiry stems, which are fine for bouquet or spray work. A little experimenting will greatly increase your profits.

Germination of the Seed.

"Regarding the number of plants to be had from a packet of seed, much will depend upon the success of the grower. We have had reports of as many as 800 plants from a packet, while others have had poor results. Seed of Silver Pink should be saved from plants of the original stock, propagated from cuttings. The seed from seedling plants would be worthless. Make a careful test of the seed by placing a few between the folds of damp cotton or a cloth and note the germination. In the event of failure when sowing the seed, this will help you to find the cause.

"There are two chief reasons for failure in starting small seeds; namely, covering too deeply and insufficient moisture. The covering of soil on the seed should be extremely light. Should you fail from too deep covering of the seed, scratch the soil, keeping it moist, and some results may yet be obtained. We beg to cite one instance occurring on our place. A new man was directed to sow seed in four large flats. No plants came, and upon examination the seeds were found to be covered one-eighth of an inch deep. The soil was scratched and good results followed. In the next lot, properly sowed, one flat gave us over 5,000 plants. The matter of covering is most important. 'Depth of seed,' is a safe rule.

"After May 1, blossoming plants should be kept shaded. This is important, as are also a cool, airy temperature and plenty of moisture at the roots."

THE NIMRODS.

For several years Wallace R. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., and Roman J. Irwin, of New York, have been making pilgrimages to the north during the hunting season. This year they went to New Brunswick and have just returned with many evidences of their prowess with the gun and rod, including the two photographs reproduced herewith, showing that each got his moose. The stuffed heads soon will adorn their office walls.

SOIL FOR DUTCH BULBS.

On page 12 of The Review of August 31 there is an article on "How to Care for Bulbs." There is one point not taken up, on which I would like to be informed. What kind of soil is best for potting Dutch bulbs and how should the soil be prepared. B. V. N.—Cal.

Use two-thirds well decayed fibrous loam, one-third well rotted and dried cow or horse manure and some sharp sand. The sand is of the most benefit if your soil is heavy. Fine charcoal also will help such soil. If rotted manure is unprocurable, use spent hotbed or mushroom manure, or even pulverized sheep manure, but do not use chemical manures in any form. Mix the compost at once for Dutch bulbs.

PRICES MUST GO UP

TRADE LEADERS NEEDED.

To Set the Upward Pace.

The price of wheat, of steel and of paper, to mention only a few of the things every florist uses, are at the highest level ever known, but what of the price of flowers?

"The point has been reached where florists as a body must consider the rapidly rising cost of doing business," said one well known western grower to The Review the other day. "There has been such a general advance in the price of everything that goes into the erection and operation of a greenhouse, and the increases of late have been so rapid, that it is not possible to expect to meet the increased cost through the cleaner sales that have been the rule the last few months. Indeed, where a few growers are having a good season through clean sales of fairly large supplies of stock, there are many florists who have much less to sell this season than usual and who will do well if they make both ends meet, considering current prices."

While the opinion represents only the point of view of the grower, retail florists also are in much the same position, for the cost of everything that goes toward the operation of a flower store has increased in like proportion. The retailer is as much in need of better prices as is the grower and wholesaler.

Discussion Needed.

The following letter is from one of the proprietors of one of the largest greenhouse establishments in the middle west, doing both a wholesale and retail business:

Our firm, like many others, is particularly interested at present in the cost of production and in its relation to our selling prices. It seems that during the last couple of years practically every expense item has increased and recently the increases have been extremely large and rapid. We believe it has been the same in practically every line of business, but for our own part we cannot see that the selling price of the stock we produce in our greenhouses has increased in anything like the same proportion that the expense has increased.

It seems to us that anyone who studies the situation will come to the conclusion that the florists' business throughout the country has not kept up with other lines as far as prices compared to expenses are concerned. We do not know just why this is so. The market in our territory is governed more or less by the Chicago market, and likely the Chicago market is similarly governed by eastern markets.

We are wondering if some sort of campaign could be started which might eventually result in a good meeting of wholesalers at Chicago similar to the meeting recently held by the retailers. We are not suggesting anything in the way of combination to raise prices, but we believe that an advance in prices will be the result of a general discussion of the situation in which the trade finds itself today.

In this trade there are too many people selling for it to be possible to regulate prices by agreement; the only thing that is possible is regulation through a more thorough understanding of the necessities of the moment.

Some Always Hold Back.

There are two kinds of men in this trade. One kind thinks his stock is as good as any other man's stock and therefore worth as much money. The other kind of man thinks that if the store down the street sells carnations for 50 cents a dozen his own price should be 35 cents per dozen, regardless of the reflection thereby cast on the quality of his stock.

To raise prices in this trade it is necessary for the men who believe their stock is as good as anyone's to set the pace; if they ask 60 cents for carnations the other fellow probably will raise his price to 50 cents, so the competitive conditions will not be greatly changed.

Profits Have Taken Wing.

The necessities for increasing prices to reimburse the trade for the extra costs of doing business apply to the pot plant growers as much as they do to the cut flower growers; they apply as much to the man who grows the stock he retails as to the man who buys from wholesalers.

The margin of profit in this trade has been growing steadily smaller for years; a few men who possess special qualifications for the work are making as much or more than in the earlier days, but the rank and file of the trade has found it necessary to double the turnover to clear the same amount of profit. In the last year the increases in cost have been much more rapid than ever before and the trade now stands at a point where many can see their profits taking wing.

The necessity is for a leader in each community to set a higher pace.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

The executive committee of the American Rose Society held a meeting at the Hotel Breslin, New York, October 23, those present being President S. S. Pennock, Treasurer H. O. May, Wallace R. Pierson, J. Horace McFarland, L. J. Reuter, Admiral Ward and Fred H. Howard, of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, Cal.

A letter was read from Robert Pyle suggesting a committee to report upon the various test rose gardens in the west and the president appointed Jesse A. Currie, Alfred Tucker and A. J. Clarke, all of Portland, Ore. A long discussion took place on the subject of test gardens, Mr. Howard contributing many details as to his experience in rose growing in California. Wallace R. Pierson told of his visit to Mr. Howard in California and of the splendid work being done by Mr. Howard's firm.

The resignations of W. R. Pierson and Alex. Cummings from the central committee were not accepted.

A committee was appointed to report at the December meeting of the executive committee at Horticultural hall, Philadelphia, as to the test gardens, Admiral Ward, L. J. Reuter and Wallace Pierson being the members. Mr. Pierson emphasized the fact that the rose society is "fast getting big enough to run its own show." It was suggested that the rose growers of Philadelphia and vicinity be requested by the president to cooperate in making the rose exhibition a success. The dates selected for the show are the same as those of the New York spring exhibition, March 20 to 23. The president was empowered to appoint a committee to solicit a guarantee fund of $5,000 should it be determined to hold the show in Philadelphia. The guarantee subscribers to date are S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., A. N. Pierson, Inc., S. J. Reuter & Son, Robert Simpson, H. O. May, Benj. Hammond, E. Allan Peirce and Admiral Ward, each for $100.

The next meeting of the committee will be held in Philadelphia, November 8. J. A. S.

ORCHIDS

ORCHIDS FROM SEEDS.

I have two cattleya plants that have seed pods as big as small lemons. Please tell me how to plant the seeds and how to carry them on to make them grow. Do these orchids usually seed freely?

H. G.—O.

The seeds of orchids germinate best when sown soon after maturity, and many lose their vitality in a few months if kept too dry and warm. When sowing the seeds, the best results are often obtained when they are dusted on the surface of pots or baskets containing a plant of the same genus as the seed and carefully watered with a fine rose until they become attached, watching carefully for snails, slugs and predators in general that infest the compost. The pots or baskets should have a favorable-looking surface, with the compost in good condition, firm and free from fungi. A writer in Bailey's Cyclopaedia recommends that one use pots or baskets that will not have to be disturbed for a year or more, as it often takes that length of time for the seedlings to come through. Seed sown in early spring seems to germinate soonest.

After the seedlings have perfected two or three leaves it is quite safe to remove them to small pots, singly, or several to a small pan, using compost of the same material as that for the parent, but cut a trifle finer. Many tiny seedlings are lost shortly after germinating, through the soil becoming sour or through fungi. When thus attacked they should be transferred to other pots or baskets not infested.

FAITH IN ORCHIDS' FUTURE.

During the recent summer the trade was surprised to learn of the sale of his entire stock of orchids by George Field to W. J. & M. S. Vesey, Fort Wayne, Ind. Mr. Field was one of the oldest growers of orchids in the east, a large shipper of cut blooms, and the sale of his stock that made possible his retirement is said to have been the largest single transaction in orchid plants that ever has occurred in America. The stock now has all been transferred to Fort Wayne, where, added to the previous Vesey collection, the plants occupy six houses. In speaking of the plans of the firm Will J. Vesey, Jr., said:

"We feel there is and will be a heavy demand for orchids and, basing our judgment on the demand of the American markets, we have ventured heavily into the growing of orchids. Our firm first grew orchids in 1907 and we have increased our collection each year until at the present time we have about 16,000 plants. The collection embraces practically all of the orchid family suitable for commercial purposes; namely, Cattleya labiata, C. Trianae, C. Percivaliana, C. Schroederæ, C. Mossiæ, C. gigas, C. Mendelii and C. Bowringiana; Dendrobium formosum and D. Phalaenopsis, Lælia anceps alba, Vanda cærulea, Cypripedium insigne and C. villosum, Cœlogyne cristata, Oncidium splendidum and O. tigrinum.

"Orchids at present are difficult to purchase through the middle and western states, but we hope, with the collection we now have, to be able to remedy this problem of the western florist to a large extent. We shall be able to cut blooms the entire season, not only of the large cattleya type, but of the small, dainty sprays which are now being used so much for work in baskets, sprays and decorations. The sprays of vandas and dendrobiums have become a fad during the debutante season in the large cities.

"It is our intention to make further purchases the coming season, so that we shall have a complete collection by 1918."

BUSINESS EMBARRASSMENTS.

Syracuse, N. Y.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Chester A. Harris, a retailer on Genesee street. Those named in the petition are George Young, with claims of $1,000; the J. F. Friedel Paper Box Co., $26, and the Miller Paper Co., $18. L. T. Haight has been appointed receiver.

Stillwater, Minn.—October 17 Francis Berry was adjudged bankrupt. The first meeting of creditors will be held at St. Paul November 2. Mr. Berry has been in business here many years, retailing the stock he grew in his range of greenhouses. It is thought his difficulties arose from retailing at prices that did not afford a sufficient margin above cost of production.

W. J. Vesey, Jr., in a House of Cattleya Trianae at Fort Wayne.

CARRIED-OVER AZALEAS.

Can old azaleas be forced in time for Christmas? By placing them in a temperature of 50 degrees now, would the buds form, or should they be kept in a cold house until the buds form?

H. W.—Ind.

It is quite possible to have azaleas that have been carried over in flower for the holidays, provided they are of the early-blooming sorts, such as Hexe, Mme. Petrick, Deutsche Perle, etc. It is too early yet to start forcing them. Leave them outdoors or in a cold pit until the buds are well plumped up. Place them in a temperature of 60 degrees about October 20, spray them freely and they should come in on time.

C. W.

SHASTA DAISIES.

I grew some Shasta daisy plants from seed this summer and planted some of them in flower beds. The surplus plants I potted in 4-inch pots a few days ago and they are growing nicely. I would like to know if these plants will bloom in the greenhouse this fall or winter; otherwise I do not want to take up space with them. The greenhouse temperature is about 60 to 70 degrees during the fall and winter.

E. H. S.—Pa.

It will pay you to grow the Shasta daisies under glass. Plant them out in the herbaceous border or in a row in the field with your other perennials and they will give you good returns.

C. W.

SOIL FOR BULBOUS PLANTS.

I have some bedding soil, but it is quite poor. Should dried blood or ground bone meal be added to make it good potting soil for Easter lilies and Dutch bulbs? What amount should be used?

J. C.—N. Y.

It would be inadvisable to use either dried blood or bone for any bulbous plants such as you have named. Cannot you secure some old and well decayed cow or horse manure and add one-third of this; also, some sharp sand? If you have manure from the bottom of an old hotbed or mushroom bed it will answer well. Allow it to dry out and pass through a coarse screen. Turn the pile over several times to be sure that it is thoroughly mixed.

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

STRATTON & WIFE.

Some are born to the business; some achieve the business; others have the business thrust upon them—and in the last division is C. D. Stratton, of Lancaster, Wis. But here is Mr. Stratton's history of how he, or rather they—Stratton & Wife—became florists:

"In the first place, it was through my wife's love for that glorious queen of autumn flowers, the chrysanthemum, that I became interested in a greenhouse, and I wish to say right here that it has been through her interest, cooperation, constant help and advice that we have been able to bring about success in our undertaking.

"In the fall of 1906 we decided that it would be impossible to handle the number of mums we had growing in the garden and in the dwelling, without devoting more room than we could conveniently spare, to say nothing about the litter they caused or the ill-shaped plants we obtained on account of lack of light. Accordingly, we purchased some hard pine sashbars, lumber, glass and old sashes from local dealers, and erected a small lean-to 9x23, on the south side of our residence. In this we were able to bring our plants to a fair state of perfection, for amateurs, without artificial heat. To say that we were proud of and enjoyed our greenhouse is putting it mildly.

"I was at that time employed as a manager for the Wisconsin Telephone Co., so all the greenhouse work that I did had to be done outside of office hours.

"Then the unexpected happened. As soon as the public found that we had a greenhouse and saw our blooming plants they wished to purchase. To establish a business was not our intention, but we figured that we might sell enough plants in time to help to pay for our greenhouse, and this we did.

But the demand did not stop with mums; it increased until we were having a demand for plants of all kinds, as well as for cut flowers. Finally we made arrangements with one of the wholesale houses at Milwaukee to supply us with cut flowers.

"This continued until the next fall, when we decided to increase our house capacity a trifle. We did so by adding to our lean-to, which gave us two benches 4x23 each. We also installed a small hot water boiler in the basement of our residence and connected it with a system of pipes in the lean-to, which enabled us to keep our stock in fine shape through the winter.

"When this addition was completed my wife became the florist. She advertised and conducted the business under her own name, and she certainly 'made good.' By July, 1908, the demand had increased to such an extent that I decided to resign my position with the telephone company and engage in the florists' business for a livelihood. And I can say that I have never had occasion to regret the change.

"At that time we purchased material and erected two houses, about 3,000 feet of glass. We installed a first-class boiler and heating system. Since then we have added about 1,000 feet. Last fall we built our store, as shown in the illustration.

"We have watched our enterprise grow from a small beginning to a gross business of about $7,000 last year. This, I believe, will compare favorably with the florists' business in most towns of 2,500 people.

"We have agents in several of the nearby towns, to whom we allow the usual commissions, and with their assistance we have increased our business considerably.

"We grow a general line of pot plants in the medium sizes, as we have found that specimens will not bring prices high enough to make them profitable. In the spring we grow from 50,000 to 75,000 vegetable plants, using coldframes for all but the most tender. This last item we consider the most profitable one handled, from the standpoint of time required to produce and quantity from a given area. We also grow mums, sweet peas, carnations, snaps and lilies for cutting.

"We entered another department of the business two years ago, that of ornamental trees and shrubs. For this purpose we purchased one acre of land a few blocks from our greenhouses. This we planted partly to young stock for growing on and also some stock of sufficient size for retailing at once. We use the remainder of the land during the summer season for asters, dahlias, cannas, etc.

"We found the nursery line quite profitable and one that florists, especially those in small towns, should give more attention to. Without a great deal of expense or labor they can add considerably to their incomes and keep some of the money at home which formerly was sent to out-of-town nurserymen.

"While we have not as yet undertaken any of the actual planting of this stock, we have given our customers all the assistance possible with regard to laying out their grounds and advising what stock is best suited to the location and for the purpose wanted. This does not take much of our time and I believe it is appreciated by the customer and is a good form of advertising.

"In conclusion I wish to say that we always have made it a rule to settle our accounts as we go along, saving the trade discounts and knowing that all we possess is our own."

METCALF'S METHODS.

During his four years as road salesman for a large supply house L. E. Metcalf did more than merely sell his line successfully—day by day he assimilated, as it were, a raft of knowledge and information on how to run a retail store, and how to run it right. So when Mr. Metcalf acquired the long-established business of Mrs. A. Guillaume, at La Crosse, Wis., he immediately proceeded to put his theories into practice. The first thing was—but here is Mr. Metcalf's own story:

"During my experience with the A. L. Randall Co. I called on a large number of florists throughout the country and had many talks with them on the advantage of good store fronts, window displays as advertising, fall openings and the like. Their opinions differed greatly.

"I have always been in favor of attractive windows and when I took the Guillaume store the first thing I did was to put in the best window I could get. It is shown in the accompanying illustration. The results during the short time I have been here fully convince me that I am on the right track. Thousands of people pass my store daily and over seventy-five per cent of them either stop, look, come in or make remarks about the display. I have them all talking about the place, and it is resulting in good business—much better than I expected.

The Establishment of Stratton & Wife, Lancaster, Wis.

"I had my formal opening October 14. I sent out 1,500 attractive invitations and ran an announcement in two of the local papers. As a result I had between 7,000 and 8,000 people in my store on that day, from 2 to 8 p. m. I had the store nicely decorated; there was a 5-piece orchestra and two little flower girls dressed in white who gave each visitor a rose. I had three clerks in the store to wait on the people. They did a wonderful business.

"Since the opening I and two clerks have been busy every minute, once remaining at work until 3 o'clock the next morning to turn out funeral work. I am fully convinced that, though they are expensive, fall openings can be made to pay."

DARWINS FOR MEMORIAL DAY.

How may outdoor Darwin tulips be held back for Memorial day? What are the varieties? S. K.—Ia.

The best way to hold these tulips back is to plant them four to four and one-half inches deep the first week in November. Give the bulbs a mulch of coarse, strawy manure after the ground has frozen and do not be in too great a hurry to remove it in the spring. Select a position for the bulbs, if possible, on the north side of buildings or trees, especially those of an evergreen nature. Our springs are quite erratic and it may be necessary to cut flowers and hold them in water for a day or two if unseasonably warm weather sends the flowers along too rapidly. In addition to the Darwins, plant some of the brilliant scarlet Gesneriana spathulata. This is of the ideal Memorial day color. Good outdoor sorts are Gretchen, Clara Butt, King Harold, Mrs. Krelage, Europe and Salmon King. C. W.

PALM LEAVES TURN BROWN.

What is the cause of palm leaves turning brown on top and at the tips? Sometimes it seems as if the leaves are dying. What is the proper location for palms in the greenhouse and in the store? When and how often should the palms be watered?

L. F. F.—W. Va.

There are various causes for the tips of palm leaves turning brown, one of the most common being insufficient watering; but without seeing a specimen of the damaged foliage, it is not easy to say just what the trouble may be in your case. In the greenhouse palms should have a light shade on the glass and a night temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. They should not become extra dry at any time, and require a good watering and spraying overhead at least three times per week. In the dry atmosphere of the store they may need water oftener, and should be kept away from the radiators or other heating apparatus. W. H. T.

NYMPHÆAS FROM SEED.

I have a few seeds of a hardy nymphæa and would like a few hints on how to sow them. Can they be sown in a greenhouse this winter and transplanted to a pond in the spring? If so, should the seed pans be submerged before germination? What temperature of the water would suit them best? As I do not know the variety, it may be difficult for you to answer these questions, but I shall appreciate any notes for general culture.

L. B. H.—Okla.

The present is not a suitable time to sow seeds of any aquatic plants. Wait until spring, then sow the seeds in small pots of loam which are plunged in a tank or pan of warm water, the temperature of which should be 80 degrees. As the little plants grow they may be shifted to larger pots. The majority will flower the first season if they are well cared for and given a suitable bed or box that contains a mixture of loam and cow manure. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Cinerarias.

As the cool weather arrives the rate of growth on cinerarias becomes accelerated and they will need rather frequent spacing apart in the coldframes. As they fill the pots somewhat quickly with roots, overhaul them before they become at all stunted. The best place for cinerarias until mums have passed is in coldframes. By using the necessary protection they can easily be kept in these until Christmas. Scatter fresh tobacco stems among the plants to keep down green aphids, or, better still, spray them once in eight or ten days with a good nicotine solution.

Variegated Vincas.

A few degrees of frost will not harm the vincas in the field, but it is not wise to expose them to too much cold, as the young, tender shoots are liable to be nipped. Some of the clumps can be divided when they are lifted and all should be pruned back well. The plants can stand fairly close on a bench in a cool greenhouse. Later in the season, as the growths get under way, they can be stood along the edges of some of the benches where their long shoots can hang down. If you are short of stock, take a good batch of cuttings now. Soft shoots rubbed off with a heel will root the most quickly, but more mature wood, cut in lengths, can also be used, although it takes much longer to root.

Fancy Caladiums.

As the foliage on the fancy caladiums begins to decay, gradually reduce the water supply. Keep them in a moderately warm house still, as they will not endure cold. When all the foliage has died away, store the pots or pans in a warm, dry shed or under a bench that is absolutely free from drip. It is quite necessary to keep caladium tubers warm in winter. They need a higher temperature than tuberous begonias, gloxinias or achimenes, all of which should now be gradually dried off also.

Freesias.

The earliest batch of freesias should now be about a foot in height, and a temperature of 55 degrees at night, with a light bench, or, better still, a sunny shelf, will bring a fair proportion of them into bloom for the holidays, when they are specially valuable. Any bulbs still in bags or boxes should be placed in pots or pans at once. They merely fritter away their strength if kept out of the soil beyond this date, and when they flower they will come much shorter-stemmed. If you have a lot of small bulblets, scatter these fairly thickly in flats containing four inches of soil. They will make good flowering bulbs for another season.

Planting Deciduous Shrubs.

Many deciduous shrubs succeed much better if planted in October or early in November than in the spring, and there is more time to do this work properly now than in April or May. Among shrubs which do better if fall-planted are: All varieties of lilacs, philadelphus, loniceras, symphoricarpos, spiræas, most of the viburnums, deutzias, cornus, eleagnus, exochordas, forsythias and prunus. The following do better if set out in the spring: Weigelas, hydrangeas, tamarix, buddleias, vitex, ligustrums, or privets; Viburnum plicatum and V. tomentosum, and corchorus, or kerrias. Most of these latter can be successfully planted if great care is taken, but spring planting for them is safer.

Nerines.

The nerines, or Guernsey lilies, are attractive at this season. They succeed best in comparatively small pots and flower most profusely when baked thoroughly all summer, receiving no water from the time the foliage dies until the flower spikes show. The scarlet varieties, like Fothergilli major, Sarniensis and corusca, flower earlier than the pink, rose and other forms. Among the latter are some beautiful varieties and they flower with wonderful freedom. Plants of N. excellens in 5-inch pots carry twelve spikes each; even 2½-inch pots in some cases have three good spikes. The nerines want cold house treatment when growing and should only be repotted when they become much crowded. Usually the plants flower more sparsely the season after being repotted. For use in groups at fall shows the nerines are not nearly so well appreciated here as they are in Europe. The cut spikes last well and there can be no more charming table centerpiece than one of pink or rose-colored nerines.

Rambler Roses for Forcing.

Rambler roses that were pot-grown through the summer should be kept much drier at the roots now, to assist in ripening the wood well. Field-grown plants should be potted up as soon as possible. Stand the plants in an open, sunny pit and pack some straw or leaves about the pots to prevent breakages as frosts become more severe. The plants should be kept outdoors until December and then stored in any frost-proof pit or frame until they are wanted for forcing.

Bougainvilleas.

Unless they are wanted for quite early forcing, keep bougainvilleas in a rather cool house for some time and give them a reduced supply of water at the roots. Occasionally plants are seen in bloom as early as Christmas, but the color is hardly what people are looking for at the holidays, and Easter will be found a much better season for disposing of them. Let the plants have full sun to ripen the wood well. While propagation can be done now with half ripe or well ripened wood, it can be carried out more successfully in spring.

News from Abroad

Marseilles, France.—The value of the French bulbs exported from Marseilles, the only shipping point, to the United States increased from $258,091 in 1914 to $261,047 in 1915.

Paris, France.—Among the recent casualties reported by the war office is that of Lieut. Paul Mottet, son of the chief of the experimental grounds of Vilmorin-Andrieux et Cie, who is known to many American seedsmen.

Groningen, Holland.—One may see an evidence of the necessity for a rise in the cost of Holland's seed, bulb and plant crops in the statement that such outdoor crops as cabbage are selling at prices from 100 to 300 per cent above those that prevailed before the war.

London, England.—Sphagnum moss is being extensively used in the war to provide first field dressings for wounds. Speculations are made as to the theory of the moss containing any actual healing properties, besides the quality which makes it valuable, viz., resiliency, and the exclusion of air and germs from the wound. The moss grows thickly on Dartmoor, and it has been assiduously collected by many people for the purpose of field dressings.

Quedlinburg, Germany.—Until the U. S. government finds a means to secure the inviolability of mails passing between neutral countries, American orders will fail to reach addressees here, except in desultory fashion, and shipments, even of small flower seeds by parcel post, will be attended with much uncertainty. Advices from Holland representatives of German houses are to the effect that they are, one by one, falling under the ban of the British censor.

Reading, England.—Sutton & Sons, seedsmen, have completed a second series of experiments with radium fertilizers and have published a report from the pen of Martin H. F. Sutton. Briefly, it was found that "radium has no marked effect on the growth of plants. This conclusion, though negative, is valuable to the horticulturist, for without it he might be tempted to incur considerable expense in the purchase of radium 'fertilizers.' With these results before him, however, the gardener will, if he be wise, spend his money on natural and artificial manures rather than on the radium fertilizers which are beginning to find their way into the market."

OBITUARY

Thomas B. Franks.

Thomas B. Franks, the first gardener at the University of Illinois and the first florist in Champaign county, Illinois, died October 18 at the home of his sister, in Champaign. Premature old age is given as the cause of his death.

Mr. Frank was born at Westbury, near Bristol, England, in 1844. He left England for America at the age of 21 and landed at Quebec. The first American news he heard was that Jeff. Davis, the president of the seceded south, had been captured and that the Civil war was at an end. From Quebec Mr. Thomas went to Hamilton and Ancaster, Canada, where he remained about three years.

When Lincoln park in Chicago was being laid out Mr. Franks moved to Chicago and found employment on the park work for several months. While thus employed he was recommended to the trustees of the University of Illinois as a capable gardener. He accepted the position offered him as head gardener and was listed with the faculty, inasmuch as students in certain courses were required to work under him two hours each day.

After three years at the University Mr. Franks moved to Champaign, where, after considerable hard work, he succeeded in giving that part of the state its first greenhouse. This was in 1871. After many difficulties he prospered, and upon his son, George, becoming of age he made the boy a partner. Thereafter the business was conducted under the name of Thos. Franks & Son, as it is today, George B. Franks continuing the business.

Mr. Franks was married twice, his first wife dying in 1901 and the second, an Englishwoman, in 1908.

Mr. Franks was a charter member of the S. A. F. and for a number of years was active in the work of the organization. He attended the first meeting of the society, at Cincinnati, in 1885, and was at every meeting for a number of years afterward. The deceased also was a member of the Elks.

The son and a sister are the only near relatives surviving Mr. Franks.

Eben E. Rexford.

While never a member of the trade, the name of Eben E. Rexford was known to most of those who make their living in this field, as Mr. Rexford was a prolific writer for the newspapers and magazines that print amateur gardening matter. He also had written several books on home gardening.

Mr. Rexford died in a hospital at Green Bay, Wis., October 18, aged 68, of typhoid fever. His chief fame is as author of the ballad, "Silver Threads Among the Gold."

Salt Lake City, Utah.—B. Cramer has a winter-blooming snapdragon that he plans to disseminate. It is rose-pink and the flowers are closely set in a spike that is nearly half the total length of the stem. The variety originated with him twelve years ago and is well known locally. Stock has been increased both by cuttings and seeds.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"These," observed Secretary Dysinger of Holm & Olson, Inc., of St. Paul, Minn., pointing to a pile of statements, "represent accounts with our country patrons, who make up an extensive and pleasant branch of the business, which required much time and much advertising to build up." Messrs. Holm and Olson are positive that higher prices must prevail; in fact, carnations are opening the season at $1 per dozen; roses, $3 and $4 per dozen. It is not hard to convince the public of the necessity for the increase in prices. Asters and chrysanthemums are arriving semiweekly from California, in excellent condition, and are acceptable prior to the fine stock being prepared by W. E. Tricker, the capable grower.

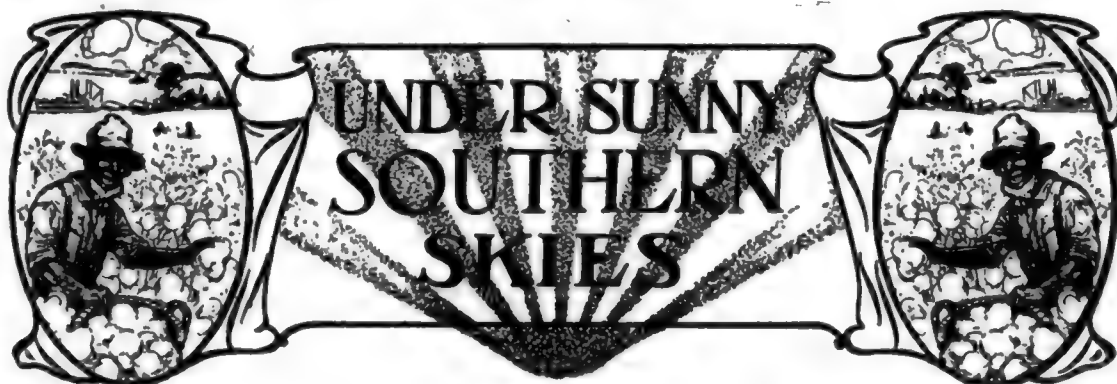

Rice Bros., of Minneapolis, are making extensive improvements to their place to keep pace with the increasing business. A feature will be a larger office.

I. N. Kramer & Son, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., have a fine lot of chrysanthemums in sight. The dry summer affected their usually large crop of late strawberries.

F. L. Davis, of the Davis Floral Co., of Davenport, Ia., commented on the temptation of those who grow combined crops of cucumbers and chrysanthemums to hold the former at the expense of the latter. "The good prices we got for our cukes," said Mr. Davis, "were too much for us. Now our mums, while stocky and full of buds, as you see, will be somewhat short in growth and late in bloom. Bonnaffon is our leader. Another season we may start earlier and grow Virginia Poehlmann; it is such a good seller. Carlson's aster did well with us. We planted three houses early, the vines of the dying cucumbers affording shade. We cut splendid blooms on stems three feet long and easily received 4 cents each. It was a profitable catch crop and no doubt will become popular, owing to the uncertainty of outdoor stock. We have about 12,000 cyclamens, in salable condition, you will notice, but a mistake was made in sowing the seed too early. I believe seed sown as late as the end of October will produce the best plants for ordinary sale," concluded Mr. Davis.

Albert Ankeny, manager of the Davis Floral Co., of Davenport, remarked as we passed through the Lord & Burnham Co. house just finished: "Would it not make a dandy house for melons, 76x600 feet? We may experiment, as undoubtedly the returns would equal in proportion what we are receiving for cucumbers, and the demand is limited only by the supply. Grand Rapids lettuce is grown all the year around, thus keeping the customer constantly supplied. The space between the houses is successfully worked for summer crops. Comet is our favorite tomato, in yield, earliness and flavor. It is a splendid all-round forcing variety." W. M.

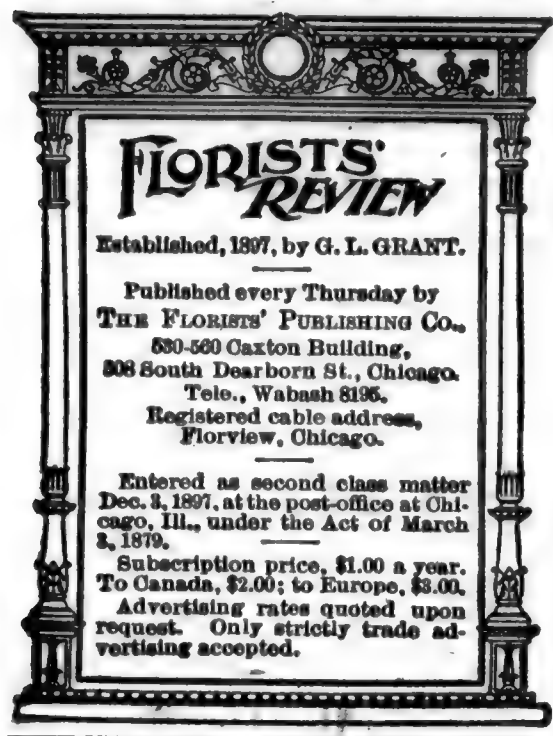

Humboldt, Tenn.—W. R. Craddock, who started out with the intention of selling cane stakes, has become interested in a market gardening business here.

Dallas, Tex.—The Texas State Florists' Association is planning a still larger show for this season. It is to be held here November 15 to 17 and premium lists will be sent out in a few days. T. J. Wolfe, of Waco, the new president of the association, will supply any information.

Clarksville, Tenn.—The range of the Metcalfe Greenhouse Co. has passed to M. L. Baxter, the former manager, under a lease. The lessor, T. L. Metcalfe, an indefatigable worker, operates greenhouses at Hopkinsville and Madisonville, Ky., and Union City, Tenn. November 1 Mr. Metcalfe expects to add the Jackson Pride Greenhouses, at Jackson, Tenn., to his string. Further, when Mr. Metcalfe is not occupied as a florist he is likely to be found in the counting room of the Metcalfe laundry at Union City, counting up the profits.

Birmingham, Ala.—W. G. Roegner has succeeded to the business formerly conducted under the name of Veasey & Co.

Jacksonville, Fla.—The value of Florida peat, properly treated, as a commercial fertilizer, recently was demonstrated at the range of Mills, the Florist. J. W. Walker, Mr. Mills' grower, became interested in Florida peat as a fertilizer. He obtained a small quantity of bacterialized peat and planted a coleus in soil with which the peat product had been mixed. In another pot he planted another coleus, using the regular compost of loam and commercial fertilizer. After thirteen weeks the results are astonishing. The coleus under which the peat was placed is three times the size of the other, more beautifully colored and hardier—and the smaller plant had done better than usual. There are 3,500,000 acres of peat lands in Florida—a conservative estimate. The new fertilizer would cost about one-third that of the average grade of commercial fertilizer.

Officers for 1917: President, Robert O. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; vice-president, A. L. Miller, Jamaica, N. Y.; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.

Thirty-third annual convention, New York, N. Y., August 21 to 24, 1917.

Results bring advertising. The Review brings results.

OFTEN the spirit of perseverance strikes a florist hardest when he is in the wrong.

THERE are some florists who can see the other fellow's side, but too many call it a square deal only when they get fifty-one per cent or better.

A PRELIMINARY premium list has been issued for the St. Louis flower show of 1917, March 15 to 18. Copies may be obtained by addressing W. W. Ohlweiler, secretary of the committee, care Missouri Botanical Garden, St. Louis.

Is it a coincidence that most of the many complaints of the depredations of the rose midge that have come to hand this season speak of Ophelia as being the variety principally affected? Or has this rose some special attraction for this unmitigated pest?

THE supply of Boston ferns is not so large as usual this autumn, but still many growers who look only to their local market find their houses crowded and are pushing the stock out at prices that are below the real value of the goods. It is ever thus: pressure to sell in the autumn and a hunt for stock in the summer.

THUS far the chrysanthemum season has been most excellent, marketwise. While not all the stock has been of first-class quality, the wholesale prices for all grades have been decidedly better than were realized in any of the last several years. The best blooms have brought close to record figures thus far and the prospect is good.

WHAT HAVE YOU?

No usable second-hand material should be permitted to go to waste when it easily can be turned into cash. Like this:

Please cut out the little liner offering a Wilks boiler for sale. I got four buyers for it and can only sell it once. The Review certainly is a business-getting paper for its advertisers, but the boiler was a bargain; we only sold it because it was too small to heat our enlarged place.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

HOW TO RAISE PRICES.

Wherever florists get together nowadays there is discussion as to how the trade can work prices up in a way that will compensate for the greatly increased cost of doing business. It is everywhere conceded that the public is not paying more for plants and flowers in anything like the proportion it is paying more for other articles.

But the raising of prices for flowers should be the easiest thing imaginable. Let the retailers begin by adding a little something to prices right down the line. Scarcely any customers will know the difference, or care. Then, with a better margin of profit, the retailers will not have to fight the wholesalers' prices so hard and everybody will be prosperous and happy!

THE COST OF CASES.

Bulb importers are getting a taste of the high cost of living in an advance in the charges for packing cases. In previous years the practice of charging for cases was not general, but it usually was felt by the buyer that if the cases were not invoiced, or were invoiced and deducted, still the buyer paid for them in another way. Last spring, however, the Dutch Bulb Exporters' Association took action to make the charges uniform and universal this season, with the result that cases that were charged at $1 last season appear at $1.50 on this year's invoices. There has been no report of concerted action on the part of the French exporters, but cases that were 2 francs before the war and 3 francs last season were charged for at 4 francs this year. When it is considered that the season's arrivals now total nearly 40,000 cases of Dutch and over 34,000 cases of French, it will be seen that the advance of nearly 50 cents per case represents nearly $37,000 of extra expense.

WHY BUSINESS IS GOOD.

It is the almost unanimous report that business is unusually good this autumn, but especially in a wholesale way. The reason for it lies partly in a high degree of general prosperity, resulting in many persons having a greater purchasing power than ordinarily is the case, but this is offset to a certain degree by the high cost of necessities of life, which leaves persons of fixed income with less surplus than usual. Consequently, it can be figured out that the heavy demand for cut flowers, plants and bulbs is due principally to the unusual weather conditions and the difficulty of importing, both of which have operated to reduce the supply of usable stock below what it otherwise would be at this date. The weather has been the chief factor—a bad growing season, too wet or too hot and dry, followed by remarkably early frosts. Outdoor flowers were less abundant and less good than usual and their season was cut off earlier than many persons ever knew before. An early frost always makes an active fall market for indoor cut flowers and this season carnations and late stocks of palms, etc., are lower than usual, partly due to the difficulty of importing during the last two years; there has been uncertainty about the arrival of this year's shipments from across the water and there are many empty spaces in greenhouses that are being filled with bulbs and other substitute crops, all adding to the activities of the early autumn season.

It is the general belief that this will be an exceptionally good season for those who have something to sell, but that many growers are caught in a position where they will have, for some time, less than the usual quantity of stock to offer.

IN SPITE OF HIMSELF.

How the man who doesn't advertise pays the advertising bill of the man who does:

A grower from down Missouri way dropped into The Review office one day last week. Some of the things he said interested the publishers and probably will interest quite a few others. Incidentally, the man from Missouri told how the man who doesn't advertise pays the advertising bill of the man who does.

It seems that in the earlier days this grower was accustomed to send his orders to a certain house in New York. "But," he said, "I did not find their ads in The Review and I gradually got to sending my orders to another New York concern that every week was printing ads of the things I wanted."

Desiring to know how much this non-advertiser was paying of the advertising bill of his competitor, the Missourian was questioned:

"The seed orders every now and then were $12 or $15 each time," he said, "but the bulb bill was more; this year it was over $500."

As a half-page advertisement can be carried in The Review each week for a full year for only $546, it appears that in this one account a house that doesn't advertise is paying quite a good proportion of the advertising bill of the man who does.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The cold, dark weather of last week caused a sharp reduction in supply and temporarily placed a damper on city demand. Shipping demand, however, steadily gains strength. The chief difficulty seems to be to find stock of a suitable nature to fill orders. This is not an easy task, for the shortening in supply did not affect all kinds of stock in the same degree. This is not to be understood as implying that market conditions are altogether unsatisfactory, for this they are not. Stock is clearing, and though it requires no small degree of activity and alertness to fill orders satisfactorily, little complaint is heard.

To begin with, carnations are again so scarce that they are, in a way of speaking, almost out of the question. To be sure one can find them, but not

POMPONS ARE READY

AT 25c TO 50c PER BUNCH

POMPON MUMS are to have a great run this season—it is perfectly plain from the way the leading retailers began featuring them the moment they came on the market. Many growers have not yet cut any Pompons, but we have a good supply, including practically all colors. It will be a pleasure to fill your order so it will be a pleasure to you to open the box.

CHRYSOLORA

$15.00 to $25.00 per 100

In the end of October and early part of November there is no yellow mum to compare with Chrysolora. We never had them better than this year and can supply any size in quantity, medium at $15.00 per 100; big, fancy flowers, $25.00 per 100.

Of course we have all other Mums in season, grown by specialists—not catch crops, not dumpings of surplus, not outdoor stock from California—none of these are up to Amling standards of quality.

FINE BEAUTIES

You will have to search far for better Beauties—but why search at all when you can get here all you need? Can furnish any length, but the demand is so good we urge ordering early in the day, as city buyers quickly clean up all our Beauties not needed for shipping orders.

POPULAR ROSES

Look over our list of Roses—all the popular varieties are there. And Amling quality is well known to be distinctly above the average. Retailers who are looking for a dependable supply of first-class roses will feel at home here.

VIOLETS

Now ready to supply good stock of single or double in quantity.

ORCHIDS

We offer fine Cattleyas in quantity.

CARNATIONS

You can get of us nice clean stock, stems of fair length.

VALLEY

You always can get fine Valley here.

EASTER LILIES

While we never are without good Giganteum Lilies, our supply this week is larger than usual. The stock is fine, cut tight for shipping.

everywhere nor in any quantity. Some of those being received are so short of stem that they are useful only for work. Valley, too, has lapsed into its normal condition of extreme scarcity. Easter lilies, also, are found on the short side of the market, while rubrums are practically gone. Sweet peas continue short, both in the matter of supply and stems.

Beauties are of excellent quality, but are in short supply. Other roses, with the exception of Russell, are in sufficient supply to meet demand and yet scarce enough to clear nicely. While many growers are cutting good crops of Russell and receipts on the market are comparatively large, the popularity of this variety continues to grow in a manner that always keeps the demand about two jumps ahead of the supply. Next to Russell, Milady seems to lead the chase. All grades of roses, however, are not equally satisfactory in supply. The shorter grades in every variety are unusually scarce.

So much greater are the receipts of chrysanthemums this week than last that the wholesalers are at times compelled to make slight concessions in order to clear them. In addition to the varieties that have been on the market some time, there are now William Turner, Chrysolora, Kalb, Bonnafton, Halliday and McNiece. Shipments of mums have been coming from California and have opened in good shape. Pompons are in liberal supply and have met with the cordial reception always accorded them in the Chicago market. The status of cattleyas remains little changed. There is now a fair supply of Hudson river violets. Yellow snapdragons, too, are in fair supply.

Smilax remains scarce. Other greens are in satisfactory supply and move evenly.

Announcing a Sunday Show.

novelty show scheduled for the November club meeting and is planned to interest the public as well as the trade. The retailers will be invited to exhibit as well as the growers and novelty raisers; indeed, the retailers are expected to come in strongly, as Hotel La Salle will make a social feature of it, sending invitations to its roof garden list. Each retailer who participates will be given invitations to send to his customers. The attendance of the right people seems assured and it only remains to make a show that is worth while.

Agmco In New Quarters.

Finding itself hampered by a lack of space, the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. moved its offices, October 24, from the fifteenth floor of the Masonic Temple to suite 1000 of the same building. The change is an advantageous one in many respects. Not only is the new suite much larger, but, being on the corner, it receives light from two sides. The corner room, a large, airy space, affording a view of the lake and Marshall Field's windows, will be used as a reception and consultation room.

Budlong Increases Facilities.

Within a week the entire ground floor of the Le Moyne building, southwest corner of Wabash avenue and Lake street, will be occupied by members of the florists' trade; for the Lake street corner, heretofore unoccupied, has been taken under a long term lease by the J. A. Budlong wholesale cut flower house. The work of removing the partitions that divide the present quarters from the newly acquired space has already begun.

The new arrangement gives the J. A. Budlong company a frontage of forty feet on Wabash avenue, and a frontage of sixty feet on Lake street. The two entrances now in use will be retained in addition to the new entrance in the corner. Philip C. Schupp, the manager, says the increase in space was necessitated by the growth in the volume of business transacted, which has practically doubled during the last eighteen months.

Various Notes.

It is stated that October 19 A. Henderson acquired the interests of G. M. Reburn and A. Miller in the firm of Henderson & Co., of which he now is sole owner.

Swift automatic stokers for the sixteen boilers which heat plant A of Poehlmann Bros. Co., at Morton Grove, have recently been installed. To facilitate the bringing of coal to the heating plant, an overhead coal dump from the switch is being constructed. This will reduce the labor required to shovel the coal from the cars. Four new stokers have also been installed in plant B. A 7½-ton Sterling auto truck has been ordered to carry coal from plant A to plant B. The great capacity of Sterling trucks was shown last week by the manufacturers in a demonstration in which they moved, in one machine, fifty tons of coal in two hours and twenty minutes. Having recovered from the after effects of a minor operation which was necessitated by a broken nose, Earl Poehlmann, son of August Poehlmann, has returned to Urbana, where he is taking work at the University of Illinois.

At Mt. Greenwood cemetery the annual requirements now run to about 125,000 bedding plants, of which about 30,000 are 4-inch geraniums. Some of the stock, however, is planted in Mt. Olivet, across the street, where there are no greenhouses.

The order book of the E. Wienhoeber Co., just around the corner from the Lake Shore drive, is the best index of the activity of the approaching social season. Mr. Wienhoeber says the orders on file indicate an unusually large number of debutante affairs next month.

The fall flower show of the Illinois State Florists' Association will be held at Bloomington, November 9 and 10. The Chicago & Alton train leaving the Union station at 10:15 a. m., Thursday, November 9, has been selected for the Chicago delegation and it is hoped this city will be well represented, the Bloomington show being the only one of importance in the state this year. The regular meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club has been postponed to November 16, especially to permit members to attend the Bloomington exhibition.

Krowka Bros., 5038 Lincoln avenue, whose nine houses are planted exclusively with mums, are enjoying a good season. They are cutting and shipping heavily and the quality of the stock is excellent.

Louis Sielsky, who for the last three years has been connected with the Swain Nelson & Sons Co., has opened a flower store at 6747 South Halsted street. It is known as the Marquette Floral House.

The Paradise Flower Shop, owned by William A. Dolezal, moved last week from 6534 South Halsted street to 6824 South Halsted street, a better location in every respect.

Gus Marshall, formerly connected with Reed & Keller, of New York, last week joined the sales force of the American Bulb Co.

Were it not for Peter Reinberg's presence on the committee, the trade would not be represented in the campaign that is being waged for the tax amendment to the state constitution. Vote "Yes" on the proposition; it will be on the little ballot November 7.

Tuesday was a day of special good cheer at the pleasant home of N. J. Wiator on Ridge avenue, for October 24 is the anniversary of Mr. Wiator's birth, in 1872, and it always is celebrated.

After having driven for a season a Packard Twin Six with 125-inch wheelbase, E. C. Amling likes it so well he wants a larger one and has ordered the 1917 model 135-inch car. Of course the old one goes in on the deal.

Three bird cages, decorated with flowers and ribbon to make a color harmony, this week have occupied a window of the Fleischman Floral Co. They have served to stop many passers-by, who noted not only the artistic effect but that the songsters seemed to be having the time of their lives.

Ben Gage, of Peterson Nursery, is superintendent of parks in Wilmette and C. J. Strombach is head gardener. The sanitary district trustees last week told them to go ahead and make a park of the banks of the drainage canal through their town.

The store at 57 East Monroe street is chaos, being fitted up as the permanent home of the Bohannon Floral Co., which expects to open there early in November.

N. J. Kruchten, 5308 North Western avenue, is cutting 8,000 to 12,000 carnations per week. Although carnations are rather late this year, due to the unusual conditions which obtained during the summer, Mr. Kruchten's stock has not suffered, the crop being only a trifle late and of high quality.

Matthew G. Kill, head draftsman for the John C. Moninger Co., last week joined the ranks of the benedicts. His bride was Miss Pauline Kramer.

Alois Frey, of Crown Point, says he never before has received such good prices for short-stemmed snapdragons of the first crop.

The John C. Moninger Co. is building extensions to three of the greenhouses at the University of Chicago. The structures are temporary ones, to house certain plants of the university's botanical department over the winter months. Plans are being drawn for extensive greenhouses which are to be erected for the university's botany department, to be located in the block extending from Cottage Grove avenue to Maryland avenue and from Fifty-eighth to Fifty-ninth streets. It is estimated that the new buildings will cost $40,000.

Retail bulb sales are now in full swing and present indications are that the season will be most successful, according to Arnold Ringier, of the W. W. Barnard Co.

The Western Floral House, 2347 West Chicago avenue, of which Mrs. J. P. Banasik is manager, reports a good business in that locality last week.

The retail demand for bulbs is rapidly gaining strength, according to John Degan, of Winterson's Seed Store. In his opinion some of the wholesale buyers are, so to speak, giving up the ghost, and are buying in this country. This is due to the fact that the Hollanders are slow in making deliveries because of the great difficulties in shipping. In some varieties of bulbs, such as some of the forcing varieties of early tulips and some varieties of Darwins, he anticipates a scarcity. Mixed hyacinths and possibly certain varieties of forcing daffodils may be included in this list.

It is eight years since Jacob J. Sluis, of Niles Center, started in the seed business. He is the fourth generation of seedsmen in his family. His chief activities are directed to the importing of seeds from Holland, Belgium, Denmark and Germany, though he deals quite extensively in domestic seeds.

L. Baumann & Co. last week issued an attractive late fall and Christmas catalogue containing many new and artistic designs.

The large shipment of phalaenopsis expected by the Poehlmann Bros. Co. has arrived in Seattle, Wash., in good shape. Andrew Benson, the collector, and the winner of the famous punch bowl, is expected in Chicago this week.

A complete store equipment, including display refrigerator, wall cases, counters and register stand, all done in white enamel, has been installed in the store of F. C. Mendonza, at 4300 Grand boulevard by the Koellner Refrigerator & Ice Machine Co.

Let come what may in the way of weather, Miss L. A. Tonner, of O. A. & L. A. Tonner, should worry. That is, as far as her personal comfort is concerned. All this because she plans to leave the city this week on her annual trip to Baconton, Ga., where she owns a large pecan grove. She expects to be gone about ten days. While she is away, the partitions shutting off the space in the front of the salesroom, until now occupied by a jeweler, will be removed and the room used for display purposes.

According to Allie Zech, of Zech & Mann, who, with his wife, motored to Maywood October 21, William H. Ameling has the best looking chrysanthemum crop he has had the pleasure of growing in several years. Mr. Zech said the Hallidays are particularly fine.

Eber Holmes, representing W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., has had a display of pot plants for several days at the store of the E. C. Amling Co.

A visitor on the market early this week was M. E. Carter, of the William L. Rock Flower Co., of Kansas City, Mo.

Among the week's visitors was H. E. Krebs, of H. E. & C. W. Krebs, Cedar Rapids, Ia.

H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, who visited Chicago last week, has returned to Canada by way of Minneapolis.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Market conditions last week remained unchanged from those of the week previous, save that receipts of mums were heavier and that pompons attained more prominence.

As Thanksgiving occurs unusually late this year—November 30—the mum season will be a prolonged one. Perhaps the desirable effects of this condition will be steadier prices on mums and an absence of the customary mum glut early in November.

Once again Paper Whites claim the attention of buyers—an evidence that the bulb season is well upon us.

Those of the growers who did not replenish their coal bins or failed to contract for their supply of coal when prices were lower, are in for an expensive winter, it seems. The current quotation on soft coal is $4.25 per ton, on track—for run-of-mine coal that last year was worth only $2.70. The prices probably will continue to soar; the chances for a recession in prices are slim indeed.

The grower who cuts prices on his products this winter will be considered by many in the first stages of lunacy.

Fall Flower Show.

The final premium list of the Cleveland fall flower show, which will be held at Hotel Hollenden November 10 to 12, under the joint auspices of the Cleveland Florists' Club, the Ohio Horticultural Society and the Garden Club of Cleveland, is being distributed, and copies of the list may be had from M. A. Vinson, 402 Leader building.

The committee in charge of the show consists of the following: Frank A. Friedley, chairman; C. E. Russell,

W. E. Cook, O. P. Blackman, H. B. Rapley, Rudolph Thurman and E. A. Bause.

The chief interest in the show is centered around the Corrigan cup, which is valued at $500 and offered as a prize to the private grower of Ohio having the best exhibit of thirty-six gladiolus blooms, six varieties, six blooms of each. The cup becomes the temporary property of the winner for one year and must be returned to the Cleveland flower show committee one month before the date of the next show. Before this cup becomes the permanent property of any private grower, he must win it three times at the Cleveland show. Only private growers of Ohio can compete.

The commercial classes call for exhibits of cyclamens, begonias, valley, lilies, calendulas, violets and an-tirrhinums.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

The Market.

The general report is that business last week was good. The conditions as to supply of stock remained about the same, except that one or two items arrived more plentifully. The prices on good roses ranged from 2 to 8 cents, the offerings consisting chiefly of Killarney, White Killarney, Ward, Richmond, Ophelia, Cecile Brunner and Sweetheart roses. Gorgeous American Beauties experienced a lively sale.

Easter and rubrum lilies and valley retain their reputation of the season for scarcity and stiff prices. As anticipated, there are a great many more mums offered, including the pompons. Plants of cyclamens and primroses have been conspicuous, but the cyclamens as yet are rather small, flower sparsely and are high-priced. Plumosos, Sprenger and adiantum are in adequate supply.

There has been a cold snap, accompanied by a liberal fall of snow, and this undoubtedly has stimulated business and started fall business with a vigorous push. The first cold weather marked the commencement of social activities for the season.

Various Notes.

Rice Bros. have enlarged their store by erecting a balcony at the rear and moving the office from the main floor to the midway floor.

The W. H. Bofferding Co. has taken possession of its new store, but finds it difficult to settle down comfortably, as the workmen still have a number of things to finish.

About thirty young women employed by Northrup, King & Co. were poisoned last week. The cause has not been ascertained, but some of the officers believe the poisonous agent was in candy eaten by the workers. The drinking water at the seed houses is being analyzed.

Miss H. B. Whitted has enlarged her Tenth street store, to take care of the growing business. A handsome summer house, decorated within with hanging baskets and supplied with live birds, is a great feature.

The first clash between the bowling teams representing the W. D. Desmond Co. and Rice Bros. resulted in a victory for the Desmond hurlers by a lead of seventy-six pins. E. M. P.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Pittsburgh had a hard freeze October 22, but there was nothing of any importance to freeze. The supply of roses and carnations is just about sufficient for present requirements. Chrysanthemums are arriving more plentifully each day and it is noticeable that mum stock is better as a rule than that of former years. Pompons are arriving slowly but surely, and they meet with a good sale. The demand for Beauties has fallen off since the large mums became more plentiful. Cattleyas are in full crop and of good quality. Valley continues the scarcest article on the market.

The wholesalers find more work now that mums are to be packed, but as business is good no one complains about the extra trouble. The chief difficulty is to deliver orders promptly and without any hitch. Errand boys constitute a problem. If a wholesaler does secure a good boy, in a short time he becomes so independent that he has to be handled with silk gloves.

Various Notes.

Fred Evans, formerly of Cleveland, now is associated with Randolph & McClements. When last seen he was up to his eyes in chrysanthemum bunches.

John Koenig, who has been laid up for some time with a broken leg, now is able to get around on crutches.

Howard Hook, auditor of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., is back at his desk after a five weeks' illness.

Randolph & McClements had the decorations for the dedication of the new Shriners' Temple. Clarke.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Market conditions have improved. The demand for stock is stronger, a good sign that fall business has commenced. Cut flowers are more plentiful, especially chrysanthemums. The large-flowering varieties are plentiful and are of good quality. Pompons and singles, too, are of good value, but there are not enough of them to meet the demand. Roses are becoming more plentiful, but still sell at a good price. Carnations are arriving in larger quantities, but they sell on sight. California violets now are to be had and they clean up quickly. Greens of all kinds are in sufficient supply and move well.

Various Notes.

The Elmhurst Nursery Co. has finished its new building at Forty-seventh street and Mill Creek parkway. It is of latest construction and will be used for the nursery business. The building is two stories high, with office, storage and salesrooms. C. A. Chandler, who at one time was in the employ of the

EVERY florist knows through his own purchases what has happened in the paper market the last few months—prices have doubled all along the line.

And it takes more than four tons of paper each week to print The Review!

Many readers have been so kind as to write that The Review is worth considerably more to them than its subscription price. Well, the tremendous rise in the price of paper makes it no longer expedient to sell The Review at $1.00 a year.

The subscription price, therefore, will be advanced January 1, 1917, to $1.50 a year.

Until December 31, 1916, any member of the Trade may subscribe for one or more years at the old rate of $1.00 a year.

Readers whose present subscriptions do not expire until after January 1, 1917, may renew for as many years as they like at $1.00 per year, providing that such renewals are sent during 1916.

Send $1.00 and your subscription will be extended one year from the present date of expiration, whenever that may be.

Send $2.00 and the subscription will be extended two years from the present date of expiration.

No renewals for a full year will be accepted at less than $1.50 unless they are mailed by December 31, 1916.

The Canadian subscription price will be $2.50 a year beginning January 1, 1917. Canadian renewals mailed on or before December 31, 1916, will be accepted at $2.00 a year.

there is plenty of work. Mums find a ready sale and the stores look 100 per cent better, for what flowers are better than mums for window displays?

The pompons are scarce as yet, but the outlook is most promising, as to their sale, quality and quantity. Violets of choice grade are arriving and find a ready sale.

Roses remain steady, not in over-supply, but plenteous and of good quality, especially Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia. Russell roses are a bit short in quantity, as well as Sunburst. Ward, Reid, Killarney, Richmond, Kaiserin and others are coming in fine shape. American Beauties remain firm, with the special grade in short supply. Sweetheart roses are cleaned up as soon as the boxes are opened. Carnations still are a scarce article, but an improvement is noticeable. The new Alice carnation looks promising.

Snapdragon is somewhat short of stem, but it clears quickly nevertheless. Dahlias have had their day, what few there were this season. Gladioli also are back numbers for this season. The market for orchids and valley is about the same, but Easter lilies are a bit off crop.

Various Notes.

October 17 members of the Detroit Florists' Club motored out to Tom Brown's and A. J. Stahelin's greenhouses. Every one of the motorists had a splendid time.

Among last week's visitors were W. J. Vesey, Jr., of Fort Wayne, Ind.; H. C. Neubrand, representing A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn.; E. G. Hiff, of Richmond, Ind.

J. F. Sullivan is in New York sizing up conditions there.

Visitors.

Eber Holmes, representing W. A. Manda, South Orange, N. J., has had a display of pot plants for several days at the store of the E. C. Amling Co.

A visitor on the market early this week was M. E. Carter, of the William L. Rock Flower Co., of Kansas City, Mo.

Among the week's visitors was H. E. Krebs, of H. E. & C. W. Krebs, Cedar Rapids, Ia.

H. E. Philpott, of Winnipeg, who visited Chicago last week, has returned to Canada by way of Minneapolis.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

Market conditions last week remained unchanged from those of the week previous, save that receipts of mums were heavier and that pompons attained more prominence.

As Thanksgiving occurs unusually late this year—November 30—the mum season will be a prolonged one. Perhaps the desirable effects of this condition will be steadier prices on mums and an absence of the customary mum glut early in November.

Once again Paper Whites claim the attention of buyers—an evidence that the bulb season is well upon us.

Those of the growers who did not replenish their coal bins or failed to contract for their supply of coal when prices were lower, are in for an expensive winter, it seems. The current quotation on soft coal is $4.25 per ton, on track—for run-of-mine coal that last year was worth only $2.70. The prices probably will continue to soar; the chances for a recession in prices are slim indeed.

The grower who cuts prices on his products this winter will be considered by many in the first stages of lunacy.

Fall Flower Show.

The final premium list of the Cleveland fall flower show, which will be held at Hotel Hollenden November 10 to 12, under the joint auspices of the Cleveland Florists' Club, the Ohio Horticultural Society and the Garden Club of Cleveland, is being distributed, and copies of the list may be had from M. A. Vinson, 402 Leader building.

The committee in charge of the show consists of the following: Frank A. Friedley, chairman; C. E. Russell,

W. E. Cook, O. P. Blackman, H. B. Rapley, Rudolph Thurman and E. A. Bause.

The chief interest in the show is centered around the Corrigan cup, which is valued at $500 and offered as a prize to the private grower of Ohio having the best exhibit of thirty-six gladiolus blooms, six varieties, six blooms of each. The cup becomes the temporary property of the winner for one year and must be returned to the Cleveland flower show committee one month before the date of the next show. Before this cup becomes the permanent property of any private grower, he must win it three times at the Cleveland show. Only private growers of Ohio can compete.

The commercial classes call for exhibits of cyclamens, begonias, valley, lilies, calendulas, violets and an-tirrhinums.

RUSSELLS

We are growing the finest Russells arriving in this market. All visitors to the greenhouses in this district say that our Russells are the best to be found.

We cut our flowers tight in the bud, as the majority of our trade is shipping. Flowers that are sold mostly to the city trade are allowed to open more than for the shipping trade.

We have the regular varieties of Roses in large quantities, receiving them direct from the greenhouses within a few hours of being cut, which enables us to fill all orders with strictly fresh stock. This is the great advantage of buying direct of the grower.

The Market.

The general report is that business last week was good. The conditions as to supply of stock remained about the same, except that one or two items arrived more plentifully. The prices on good roses ranged from 2 to 8 cents, the offerings consisting chiefly of Killarney, White Killarney, Ward, Richmond, Ophelia, Cecile Brunner and Sweetheart roses. Gorgeous American Beauties experienced a lively sale.

Easter and rubrum lilies and valley retain their reputation of the season for scarcity and stiff prices. As anticipated, there are a great many more mums offered, including the pompons. Plants of cyclamens and primroses have been conspicuous, but the cyclamens as yet are rather small, flower sparsely and are high-priced. Plumosos, Sprenger and adiantum are in adequate supply.

There has been a cold snap, accompanied by a liberal fall of snow, and this undoubtedly has stimulated business and started fall business with a vigorous push. The first cold weather marked the commencement of social activities for the season.

Various Notes.

Rice Bros. have enlarged their store by erecting a balcony at the rear and moving the office from the main floor to the midway floor.

The W. H. Bofferding Co. has taken possession of its new store, but finds it difficult to settle down comfortably, as the workmen still have a number of things to finish.

About thirty young women employed by Northrup, King & Co. were poisoned last week. The cause has not been ascertained, but some of the officers believe the poisonous agent was in candy eaten by the workers. The drinking water at the seed houses is being analyzed.

Miss H. B. Whitted has enlarged her Tenth street store, to take care of the growing business. A handsome summer house, decorated within with hanging baskets and supplied with live birds, is a great feature.

The first clash between the bowling teams representing the W. D. Desmond Co. and Rice Bros. resulted in a victory for the Desmond hurlers by a lead of seventy-six pins. E. M. P.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Pittsburgh had a hard freeze October 22, but there was nothing of any importance to freeze. The supply of roses and carnations is just about sufficient for present requirements. Chrysanthemums are arriving more plentifully each day and it is noticeable that mum stock is better as a rule than that of former years. Pompons are arriving slowly but surely, and they meet with a good sale. The demand for Beauties has fallen off since the large mums became more plentiful. Cattleyas are in full crop and of good quality. Valley continues the scarcest article on the market.

The wholesalers find more work now that mums are to be packed, but as business is good no one complains about the extra trouble. The chief difficulty is to deliver orders promptly and without any hitch. Errand boys constitute a problem. If a wholesaler does secure a good boy, in a short time he becomes so independent that he has to be handled with silk gloves.

Various Notes.

Fred Evans, formerly of Cleveland, now is associated with Randolph & McClements. When last seen he was up to his eyes in chrysanthemum bunches.

John Koenig, who has been laid up for some time with a broken leg, now is able to get around on crutches.

Howard Hook, auditor of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., is back at his desk after a five weeks' illness.

Randolph & McClements had the decorations for the dedication of the new Shriners' Temple. Clarke.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Market conditions have improved. The demand for stock is stronger, a good sign that fall business has commenced. Cut flowers are more plentiful, especially chrysanthemums. The large-flowering varieties are plentiful and are of good quality. Pompons and singles, too, are of good value, but there are not enough of them to meet the demand. Roses are becoming more plentiful, but still sell at a good price. Carnations are arriving in larger quantities, but they sell on sight. California violets now are to be had and they clean up quickly. Greens of all kinds are in sufficient supply and move well.

Various Notes.

The Elmhurst Nursery Co. has finished its new building at Forty-seventh street and Mill Creek parkway. It is of latest construction and will be used for the nursery business. The building is two stories high, with office, storage and salesrooms. C. A. Chandler, who at one time was in the employ of the

NOTICE!

To Subscribers whose address labels carry an expiration number higher than 995 (Dec. 21, 1916).

EVERY florist knows through his own purchases what has happened in the paper market the last few months—prices have doubled all along the line.

And it takes more than four tons of paper each week to print The Review!

Many readers have been so kind as to write that The Review is worth considerably more to them than its subscription price. Well, the tremendous rise in the price of paper makes it no longer expedient to sell The Review at $1.00 a year.

The subscription price, therefore, will be advanced January 1, 1917, to $1.50 a year.

Until December 31, 1916, any member of the Trade may subscribe for one or more years at the old rate of $1.00 a year.

Readers whose present subscriptions do not expire until after January 1, 1917, may renew for as many years as they like at $1.00 per year, providing that such renewals are sent during 1916.

Send $1.00 and your subscription will be extended one year from the present date of expiration, whenever that may be.

Send $2.00 and the subscription will be extended two years from the present date of expiration.

Send $3.00 for three years, $5.00 for five years.

No renewals for a full year will be accepted at less than $1.50 unless they are mailed by December 31, 1916.

The Canadian subscription price will be $2.50 a year beginning January 1, 1917. Canadian renewals mailed on or before December 31, 1916, will be accepted at $2.00 a year.

T. J. Noll & Co. are receiving some fine California violets and have a steady supply of Cecile Brunner roses. They report a large demand for baskets, artificial flowers and supplies.

Henry Kusik went to Council Bluffs, Ia., last week. He reports that the sale of wirework has commenced to boom.

The W. L. Rock Flower Co. is bringing in some fine potted mums from its greenhouses. Good roses and carnations now are being cut.

Samuel Murray is stepping lively with wedding work. He has several good orders booked.

Business across the state line is improving. Orders for decorations are heavy. General business has not settled as yet, but is good.

Reinhardt & Son are cutting some excellent chrysanthemums in all colors. This is their first year in growing mums and the stock looks splendid.

Mr. Parker, manager for the Geo. M. Kellogg Flower & Plant Co., went to Pleasant Hill October 22. He reports that stock is coming in more heavily.

there is plenty of work. Mums find a ready sale and the stores look 100 per cent better, for what flowers are better than mums for window displays?

The pompons are scarce as yet, but the outlook is most promising, as to their sale, quality and quantity. Violets of choice grade are arriving and find a ready sale.

Roses remain steady, not in over-supply, but plentiful and of good quality, especially Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia. Russell roses are a bit short in quantity, as well as Sunburst. Ward, Reid, Killarney, Richmond, Kaiserin and others are coming in fine shape. American Beauties remain firm, with the special grade in short supply. Sweetheart roses are cleaned up as soon as the boxes are opened. Carnations still are a scarce article, but an improvement is noticeable. The new Alice carnation looks promising.

Snapdragon is somewhat short of stem, but it clears quickly nevertheless. Dahlias have had their day, what few there were this season. Gladioli also are back numbers for this season. The market for orchids and valley is about the same, but Easter lilies are a bit off crop.

Various Notes.

October 17 members of the Detroit Florists' Club motored out to Tom Brown's and A. J. Stahelin's greenhouses. Every one of the motorists had a splendid time.

Among last week's visitors were W. J. Vesey, Jr., of Fort Wayne, Ind.; H. C. Neubrand, representing A. N. Pierson, Inc., of Cromwell, Conn.; E. G. Hiff, of Richmond, Ind.

J. F. Sullivan is in New York sizing up conditions there.

PHILADELPHIA.The Market.

The queen of autumn has swept all other flowers aside. The dahlia made heroic efforts to retain its place, despite two sharp blows from Jack Frost. There are quite a lot of dahlias now from the farms, or part of the farms, that suffered only slightly. The rose also made a fight to keep its place, but without avail. Valley has done well in a smaller way, the quantity consumed being surprisingly large; larger, in fact, than last October.

Returning to chrysanthemums, there are some fine flowers of the earlier mid-season varieties. Oconto is a promising white in its first year here; Chrysolora is the leading yellow, quality and quantity considered. Marigold and Golden Queen are splendid; Robert Halliday and Comoleta also are with us. The pinks are represented by Pacific Supreme and Chieftain; the last-named has just arrived. Tint of Gold still stands for bronze, or orange. The most important addition to the list of chrysanthemums comes in the form of pompons, grown under glass, in frames and outdoors. Their quality may be graded in the order of their surroundings, just given. They cover a range of color in numbers surprisingly large. The market has taken kindly to them.

Carnations still are short of the demand, although they are becoming more plentiful and are improving, except on hot days, such as, for instance, October 20. A day like that reduces the value of the carnations about one-half, because they get sleepy so early that they are shunned by many good buyers. Orchids are quite plentiful and meet with favor. A change in orchid conditions here is due to the fact that the Field collection at Washington, D. C., has been sold and shipped to Fort Wayne, Ind. From this collection formerly came many of the mixed orchids sent out from here. There still are a fair number of vandas, dendrobiums and oncidiums, with plenty of cypripediums.

Snapdragon is quite a factor. There are some sweet peas, pansies, daisies and mignonette. Violets have not been much in demand; the singles have suffered most.

To sum up the market, the supply exceeds the demand and probably will continue to do so for the next three weeks, barring some unforeseen change in conditions.

The Rose Show Here.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the American Rose Society, held in New York city October 23, the committeemen approved the plan proposed by President Samuel S. Pennock of holding an independent exhibition in Philadelphia next spring. Heretofore the American Rose Society has held its annual meeting and exhibitions in connection with the national society or with some state horticultural society or florists' club. Now it is proposed that the society shall hold a show of its own. The time has come, it is urged, when the society should hold its own show and take its position in the front rank of horticultural bodies of this country.

Indications are that our growers will be cutting Bonnaffon the week of October 30th, and splendid stock it will be. Plenty of other sorts. All colors. All lengths. Price, $1.00, $1.50, $2.00, $2.50 and $3.00 per dozen.

A Difference of Opinion.

There was a group of men in one of the leading horticultural business centers of the city, or, to be exact, in that portion of the rear of the conservatory of Pennock Bros. presided over by Ira Keen. There were several men in the group whose names stand foremost in the floral world of this city. The subject under discussion was: "Is the retailer or grower obliged to give the longest credit under existing conditions today?"

A retailer, whose every word commands attention, positively asserted that the grower has far and away the best of it, because he can collect his money for his product in thirty days or less, while the retailer must often wait two, three or four times as long before his bills are paid. A wholesaler, who is closely in touch with the growers, replied that this was not the case, for even after the greenhouses are planted, which is a heavy expense, the grower must wait for many months before his crop is ready to harvest—months during which labor and coal and whatnot cause heavy outlay.

Geranium S. A. Nutt.

It is an interesting fact that this old variety has stood the test of time remarkably well. The story of its introduction is well known. John Thorpe, parent of the S. A. F., named it after a friend, one who was to fortune and to fame unknown, yet who was immortalized by this production. Despite the fact that Alphonse Ricard and Beaute de Poitevine are considered geraniums of today, neither of them compares with Nutt outdoors, under trying conditions. You may finish Ricard to perfection in a pot under glass; everyone will take it in preference to Nutt; but put each variety in a bed by itself and see which one is the more effective throughout the summer. There are, of course, exceptions to this rule—beds where with poor soil and with no especial care Alphonse Ricard has been glorious throughout the summer, but these cases are exceptions. S. A. Nutt can be relied on to do well almost anywhere.

Various Notes.

A wedding of trade interest occurred at St. Thomas' church at White Marsh, October 25, when Miss Campbell became the bride of Joseph S. Myers. While descriptions are not the province of this column, it may be added that the bride wore her grandmother's wedding gown of sixty-eight years ago.

William Graham, of Chicago, returned to this city for his son's wedding October 24.

Other visitors were E. L. Tanner, of Ratcliffe & Tanner, Richmond, Va.; William H. Rehder, of Wilmington, N. C., and Charles Uttley, of Harrisburg, Pa.

under; grand stock was offered at $10 per hundred; and still there was apparently no end to the supply. Some of the wholesalers would not even let me look into their iceboxes and cellars. No wonder; the counters and windows were actually making an ordinary chrysanthemum show pale with envy. It is hard to diagnose correctly or list fairly the prices of the present week, but one thing is certain—the day of $6 per dozen and over for mums is waning.

Mum plants also are here in abundance and a lot of small or mediocre stock that meets with a light demand.

“The Florist in question was in business for over 20 years and, as he told our man, he had tried all sorts of baskets during his career; even up to two months before placing a small order with us he had bought a line most of which he still had on his shelf at the time. Our man knew at a glance that neither he nor any other florist could sell the line he had in any quantity, and so advised him. After a long conversation (which by the way was probably too long for the florist in question) he gave our man an order which, from the amount purchased, looked more as an order to get rid of the man than to get the few baskets. It was not long after that a good-sized repeat order came by mail; then another. Until today this same florist is one of our largest buyers of baskets.

“Because you don't sell many baskets is because you don't have the baskets that can be sold at a nominal figure. Get the habit of buying your baskets where large quantities of baskets run into small quantities of money.

“Don't fail to see the line our men have on the road.

“Our special offer for this week. All baskets contain liners.

with their quality. Many of them are already at their best. In another week there will be no rose surplus, as a most brilliant season will open in November.

Carnations have much space for improvement, few of them arriving worth over $2 per hundred. A lot of short-stemmed stock scarcely brings $1 per hundred. “Quality” flowers are overdue and the present week should see a decided change for the better.

Longiflorums hold remarkably steady and strong at 8 cents each, and good valley still commands $5 per hundred. Orchids were somewhat scarcer during the last of the week and prices firmer. Shipments out of the city made $35 per hundred, for labiatas, selected, and the few gigas coming in were valued at 40 cents each and more. Gardenias are more numerous and prices are satisfactory. Sweet peas again are a factor in the seasonable offerings, while violets continue to demonstrate the inadvisability of shipments before November.

an elaborate program for the occasion. Next month two large New York mum shows will do their best to outshine each other, November 8 to 10 at the Engineering building, and November 9 to 12 at the Museum of Natural History. New York is big enough to take care of two such shows on the same dates; but why?

Joseph Trepel opened his new store at Fifth avenue and Fifty-first street, Brooklyn, October 21. This is his seventh store in the City of Churches. More than 5,000 invitations were issued and a big crowd celebrated the inauguration of this enterprise, in a section of Brooklyn which is rapidly growing in population and opportunity.

Charles Schuette, of J. K. Allen's force of salesmen, who has been on the sick list, is on duty again.

William Kessler says October 21 was his biggest day in receipts for four months, but prices were far from satisfactory. Mr. Kessler has purchased a home at Lynbrook, L. I.

R. Clucas was a visitor in New York October 20, the guest of H. A. Bunyard.

Nicholas Schreiner now is in the employ of the Growers' Cut Flower Co. This company had the first narcissi of the season October 21. The enterprising firm of Malandre Bros. offered $1 per bunch for it, and got it. The grower, of course, was Anton Schultheis, of College Point, L. I.

Samuel Woodrow has returned from his landscape work in the Berkshires, where snow has fallen.

The branch retail stores at Newport have been closed for the season.

The enterprise of the George W. Crawbuck Co. in securing the big Clipper store at 47 West Twenty-eighth street is "highly commended." It is a good stand and next door to the wholesale headquarters of Riedel & Meyer, Inc. November 1 will be house-warming day.

Recent visitors were: B. H. Tracy, of Wenham, Mass., and William Graham, of Chicago.

Harry Ramm has opened a flower store at 350 Madison avenue, near the Biltmore, Belmont, Manhattan and Ritz-Carleton hotels. Mr. Ramm has a lifetime's experience, both in growing and in the wholesale cut flower business. During the last five years he has been manager of Dards' retail business on Madison avenue. He is popular with the trade and his success seems assured.

At his store at the middle entrance of the New York Central building, J. S. Nicholas has a charming effect in a Halloween window decoration, with fruits, vegetables and flowers happily blended.

Peter McKenney has had some good decorations of late, including an elaborate one at the Sleepy Hollow Country Club, Scarborough, N. Y.

J. F. Sullivan, of Detroit, left for his home October 21.

Many local members of the trade are planning to attend one or another of the suburban flower shows, of which there will be half a dozen in the next fortnight.

The Market.

Trade has been heavy during the last two weeks and no doubt more stock has been moved than usual at this time. Chrysanthemums, which have come in heavily, are cleaned up daily and in some cases it is hard to secure enough of them to go the rounds. And there seem to be more mums on the market than usual at this date.

Roses are in fine condition and all that could be desired. Some extra fine Ophelia roses are to be seen, as well as Sunburst, Killarney, Richmond and a fair sprinkling of Russell. Carnations are of good quality, but at times there is a shortage of them, as some of the growers are not cutting largely as yet. In most cases the plants are looking well and promise good crops later on.

Lilies are rather scarce and mums are frequently substituted for them. Valley has almost been out of the question here, and it is risky to take any orders for it, for as a rule one is sure to be disappointed. There is still quite a batch of outdoor stock, cutting a figure for use in cheap work. Snapdragons are scarce, far short of the demand. There are few potted plants of any kind, but potted mums will be in shortly. There is a shortage of smilax, but plenty of other greens.

Various Notes.

The Livingston Seed Co. reports heavy business in all cut stock, especially mums, and says that it cannot buy enough to supply the demands.

Underwood Bros. are busy with fu-

McCray Florists' Refrigerators

The McCRAY construction keeps flowers cool and fresh longer than by any other system of refrigeration. It provides an even temperature of the correct degree for cut flowers and stops the great waste and profit loss that is caused by imperfect refrigeration.

The various compartments in a McCRAY are of different sizes to accommodate the different lengths of cut flower stems and your flowers are given an inviting display.

For interior linings you have your choice of either handsome bevel plate mirror or beautiful white enamel, which are very easy to clean. The exterior may be of any finish desired to match the interior of your store woodwork or other fixtures.

Invest in a McCRAY. Make it a partner in your business. You will value it more highly than its mere intrinsic dollar-and-cents value. Investigate anyway!

THE FIRST IMPRESSION.

WHEN making a delivery the first impression is made by the box. Of course the flowers contained in it cannot fail to please, but you did not make the flowers. Your contribution toward the perfection of the whole is the box. A well made, neat and attractive box is the only means you have to impress your connection with the transaction, so why not make the box your opportunity to impress your name on the memory of those who receive the flowers?

neral work, which has been abundant with them.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. is cutting heavily of roses, carnations and mums.

Sherman Stephens & Son say business is rushing, and that they are back several weeks on their work on account of the erection of their new house, which was done mostly by their own help.

The Block-Crane Co. is back at its old stand after a lay-off during the summer months.

Winters & Kramer are cutting a few sweet peas at this time, but expect to furnish large quantities before long.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The plans of the Newport Garden Association for 1917 include the usual June rose show, the maintenance of the club grounds on Gibbs avenue for exhibition purposes and the trying out of new plants. The association has received an invitation from the Newport Garden Club to cooperate with it and the Newport Horticultural Society in a midsummer flower show in August. This invitation it has been obliged to decline, because its budget has already been prepared and it does not feel that it can assume any further financial responsibilities for the coming season.

Three new members were elected at the last meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society.

Ralph Armstrong has closed his store here for the winter and returned to New York.

A. T. Bunyard has closed his Newport store and now is in New York. He has leased quarters on Bellevue avenue for 1917.

Wadley & Smythe have closed a most successful summer season and have returned to New York for the winter.

Carl Jurgens was a business visitor to New York last week.

John Urquhart, head gardener for Gov. R. L. Beeckman, played the role of life-saver one morning last week off the estate. Seeing a small boat with two men in it capsize, Mr. Urquhart, with a son of James McLeish, Jr., manned a boat and brought the two men to safety.

an increasing business. Several out-of-town funerals made things quite interesting.

The Indiana Floral Co., of Indiana, Pa., has cut its first carnations. Chrysanthemums had not arrived when I called, but some fine stock was seen.

The L. S. Peterman Co., of Altoona, Pa., has completed two new houses. A new boiler house also has been built. Stock is fine here and a good crop is looked for this season.

A. A. Whitbred, another Altoona grower, has some fine stock coming in. Business continues good, but the high cost of coal is causing some worry.

Everything is hustle and bustle at the Myers Bros.' stores, Altoona. Funeral work is heavy and cut flower sales are good. W. T. U.

FORMOSA LILIES.

I did not make myself clear in my recent inquiry. In growing Formosa lilies should they be potted the same as L. giganteum? Do they need any cool treatment to make root growth, or can they be started the same as L. giganteum? Will a compost of three-fourths light loam and one-fourth well rotted cow or horse manure be satisfactory? Shall I start them later than L. giganteum? Is the Formosa lily as good as L. giganteum for cut flowers?

A. L.—Mo.

The Formosa lily bulbs should be potted the same as those of L. longiflorum giganteum. They can be started under a greenhouse bench or in a cold-frame. They do not need cool treatment to make roots, but succeed well if they are started a little cooler than the giganteums. The compost you mention will do well, but be sure the manure used is old and well decayed. The Formosa lily, started with giganteum, will come into flower earlier. It is of more variable height than is giganteum. Some may grow no more than eighteen inches in height, but the general run will vary from three to five feet. It carries occasionally only one and two flowers per stalk, but frequently has twelve to fifteen or even more flowers. It is a much better lily for cutting than giganteum, but giganteum, being a dwarf, is usually preferred as a pot plant. C. W.

"THE VACCINATED WOOD."

"Homely but honest" is the description of pecky cypress in a new booklet on pecky cypress issued by the Southern Cypress Manufacturers' Association. The enduring qualities of this now favorite greenhouse bench material have resulted in its being called "the vaccinated wood," also "the eternal part of the 'wood eternal.'" The booklet quotes from Dr. von Schrenk, who says:

"The uses to which pecky cypress can be put are so numerous that it is possible in a brief paper to give only a few of the most important uses of this extremely valuable material. As stated before, pecky cypress, to one who does not know it, at first sight looks like a joke. The writer had a carpenter some years ago who refused to put pecky cypress in a greenhouse bench, as he feared his professional reputation would thereby suffer. Every now and then he comes and looks at the bench, and his surprise increases from year to year when he finds it in as good condition as it was the day he put it in."

The Market.

Chrysanthemums now dominate the market. They are arriving in increasing numbers and values on them have taken a decided drop. The leading varieties are Oconto, Pacific Supreme, Tint of Gold, Unaka, Polly Rose, Chrysolora, Comoleta and Alice Byron. There is an increased supply of pompons, which continue to sell well. Roses are in somewhat reduced supply and, while they are dragging a little, they hold last week's prices pretty well. Beauties are rather more abundant. Of other roses Ophelia still is easily the leader. Russell is coming in more heavily and sells well; so do Hoosier Beauty, Francis Scott Key, Hadley, Stanley and Double White Killarney. Carnations are a little lower in price, as is always the case when mums are in season. Single violets as yet are somewhat small. Cooler weather is needed to give them size, color and stem.

A few straggling asters and gladioli are seen, but outdoor flowers now are practically done. Valley has sold well, as weddings have been numerous. Lilies continue to clean up nicely. Pansies are arriving more freely and bunches of separate colors are in demand. Catleyas are much lower in price, C. labiata, as a rule, not going beyond $3 per dozen. Of other orchids, such as oncidiums, Dendrobium formosum and cypripediums, there is a good supply. Snapdragons, especially pink ones, are selling well. Yellow marguerites move quickly, but white ones drag. Sweet peas grown indoors are as yet rather short-stemmed. Asparagus and smilax are selling well.

Market Banquet.

The annual meeting of the Boston Co-operative Flower Market was held at the Quincy House October 21, with a large attendance of stallholders, stockholders and salesmen. The financial reports showed the market to be in a flourishing condition. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Secretary, John McFarland; treasurer, Donald Carmichael; directors, Robert Montgomery, John McFarland, Edward Wood, Elijah Cartwright, J. W. Simpson, W. H. Elliott, N. F. Comley, James Lister and Donald Carmichael. The new members of the board are Messrs. Cartwright and Lister. W. H. Elliott is president and a new president will later be appointed by the board of directors. It was voted to hold a banquet in 1917 and that ladies be included.

Following the meeting a splendid banquet was served, with 125 ladies and gentlemen to enjoy it. All the ladies received fine Russell roses, the gift of Charles Streiferd. W. H. Elliott, as toastmaster, welcomed everyone and called on a few of those present for remarks. Among those responding were James Lister, Elijah Cartwright, W. N. Craig, H. R. Comley and Charles Streiferd. An efficient orchestra furnished music during the banquet. Afterward popular songs were lustily sung. The evening proved a most enjoyable one.

Florists' Bowling League.

The Boston Florists' Bowling League started the season October 19 with a large and enthusiastic attendance. There are several new teams this year and the rivalry promises to be particularly keen. The standing of the teams is as follows:

Team—	Won	Lost	Total
Carbone	4	0	1201
Flower Exchange	3	1	1282
H. M. Robinson & Co.	3	1	1159
McAlpine & McDonald.	2	2	1353

C. S. Andem, of Putnam, Conn., is shipping in good mums, such as Tint of Gold, Pacific Supreme and Polly Rose. Of carnations his best varieties are Alice, Benora and Pink Delight.

William Sim, of Cliftondale, is this season growing carnations, roses, polyanthus, sweet peas and carnations. As yet he is only sending in carnations, in which his leaders are Alice, Matchless, Benora and Rosette.

The annual fall show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, formerly called the chrysanthemum show, opens November 1. While the date is a trifle early for local flowers, a splendid and varied exhibition is assured.

N. F. Comley, of Burlington, is shipping in fine calendulas, violets, bachelor's buttons, snapdragons, carnations and roses. In the roses, American Beauty, Shawyer, Radiance and Double White Killarney are extra good.

A. G. Pembroke, for the Rawson Conservatories, is handling large quantities of carnations, of which the finest are Alice, Ward, Matchless, Enchantress Supreme and White Enchantress.

Commencing October 23, George Gordon handled all the carnations and other flowers from A. A. Pembroke, North Beverly. In addition to carnations, Mr. Pembroke has a fine lot of Oconto and Chrysolora mums.

W. S. Phelps, of Lexington, is cutting good Oconto, Early Snow, Pacific Supreme and Halliday chrysanthemums.

The nominating committee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society has posted the following nominations of candidates for the various offices of the society, to be filled at the annual meeting, November 18: President, R. M. Saltonstall; vice-president, N. T. Kidder; trustees for three years, S. M. Weld, E. B. Dane, A. W. Preston, E. S. Webster. The nominating committee consists of M. A. Patten, William Sim, N. T. Kidder, J. K. M. L. Farquhar and William Downs.

Wax Bros. have been busy with weddings of late. For the Pope-Marion wedding, at Concord, Mass., October 17, the bride's bouquet was a shower of orchids and valley. The maid of honor carried cattleyas. They had a large wedding at Gloucester, Mass., October 18.

Pierce Bros., of Waverley, are cutting a fine crop of Ophelia roses from their new 350-foot house. Other good varieties with them are Killarney Queen, Hoosier Beauty, Francis Scott Key and Baby Doll.

Local bulb growers never before experienced such exasperating delays in the receipt of bulbs. Many cases of Dutch stock and some French bulbs are

W. R. Morris, of Wellesley Hills, is doing splendidly with roses this season. His standbys at this time are Ophelia, Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond.

F. J. Dolansky, of Lynn, has a heavy crop of Cattleya labiata at present. Among other orchids he is cutting oncidiums, Dendrobium formosum, odontoglossums and cypripediums.

Some of the heaviest shippers of pompon mums to the markets are J. E. Streckwald, of Tewksbury; W. R. Nicholson, of Framingham, and the C. T. Beasley Co., of East Milton.

sending in large shipments of high-grade mums, including Oconto, Unaka, Clifton, Pacific Supreme and Mme. C. Touset.

W. C. Stickel, of Lexington, the genial president of the Boston Flower Exchange, is a well known carnation specialist. He has limited his varieties this season to Benora, Beacon, Ward, Matchless and Pink Delight.

The first local Paper Whites cut this season were grown by W. J. Patterson, of Wollaston.

Everett E. Cummings, of Woburn, is getting a fine crop of sweet peas and Princess of Wales violets.

Chandler Bros., of Tewksbury, are cutting fine Early Snow and Halliday mums. They have large quantities of Bonnaillon to come along later.

Harry L. Shedd, of South Lowell, is this season strong on bachelor's buttons. His carnations are looking fine. His leading varieties are Alice, Matchless, Beacon and Champion.

William Malloy, of the Budlong Co., recently operated on for cirrhosis of the liver, remains in a rather critical condition.

The annual meeting and banquet of the Boston Flower Exchange will occur at Young's hotel, October 28, at 6 o'clock.

The Market.

The local wholesale market experienced a splendid business last week. The cold days, with the first snow of the season, put new life into the trade. Heavy frosts last week put an end to outdoor flowers and trade among the retailers has picked up wonderfully, the many social events resulting in many orders.

Chrysanthemums lead in demand at present. The market was well supplied with these and good prices were obtained during the week. Pacific Supreme has been a good seller; also Chrysolora. Pompons have made their appearance and are cleaned up daily. Halliday, October Frost and October Yellow will be in this week. Roses are plentiful at present, but will have to take second place until the public tires of the chrysanthemum. The cut of Killarney, Ophelia, Russell, Ward, Milady and Sunburst now coming in is of the best. Beauties are not overplentiful. Carnations are scarce and the market is cleaned up early on these almost daily. The average price asked was $3 per hundred. The stock still is short-stemmed, but the blooms are excellent. Local growers promise a heavy crop of carnations this season.

Small quantities of violets arrive, but the blooms still lack color and stem. If the cold weather continues the quality of the violets soon will improve and better prices will prevail. Orchids are fine and clean up daily at $6 per dozen. Good quality valley continues to sell at $5 per hundred, with a good demand for it. Cosmos and dahlias have been cut off by the frost and are practically over for the season. Easter lilies are in big demand, with only a few for sale. Ferns, adiantum, asparagus and smilax sold well last week, with a slight advance in price.

Mission Inn Garden. The meeting was largely attended and interesting throughout. Many interesting discussions took place, most especially the one on publicity, which was of vital importance to all. The membership committee presented a number of new applicants. This committee reported that by January 1 they will endeavor to reach the 100 mark. The members spoke enthusiastically of the selection of St. Louis for the National Flower Show and S. A. F. meeting in 1918. All promised their hearty support for its success, and also for the success of the spring flower show. At both shows the retail florists' displays will be the best ever attempted.

L. P. Jensen, Julius Koenig and Ernest Strehle, who attended the park superintendents' convention at New Orleans, have returned home and speak in the highest terms of the hospitality of the southern people. The next meeting of the association will be held here next September. Ernest Strehle, park superintendent, was elected vice-president of the association. The support of the local florists is promised when the park superintendents come to St. Louis next year.

The St. Louis County Growers' Association will hold its meeting next week, November 1, at the Eleven Mile House. Secretary Deutschmann says a most interesting discussion will take place. As the chrysanthemum season will be at its height, many of the Kirkwood growers will undoubtedly feature their blooms.

The executive committee of the spring flower show held a meeting October 18 at the establishment of Jules Bourdet. Secretary Ohlweiler reported the preliminary programs ready to be mailed this week. All committees are working hard for the success of the show. Frank Windler, chairman of the publicity committee, is making good announcements in the daily papers. Chairman Bourdet says the spring show should make a great forerunner for the success of the National Flower Show a year later.

Orchids have become quite a factor in this market. All the leading retailers are carrying them in stock, with others falling into line. This market now has a daily supply arriving. The St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co. clears daily shipments of cattleyas and other varieties of orchids.

Miss M. S. Newman furnished flowers for several large weddings and social affairs last week. A large quantity of extra quality stock was needed for these.

The Bergstermann Floral Co., on South Grand avenue, has installed an attractive electric sign, which can be seen at a great distance. Oscar Ruff, head of the company, says the cold days last week opened the fall season nicely.

Henry Jennemann, of Webster Groves, Mo., consigned a fine lot of dahlias to this market last week. Mr. Jennemann is noted for having the finest collection of fancy dahlias in the west.

Martin Lechner, of Lechner Bros., again is at his desk attending to business, after a long spell of sickness. This firm has a big run of business this season and is kept busy shipping out-of-town orders.

The Washington avenue store of Grimm & Gorly had a splendid window display of cut stock last week. Frank Gorly says it is surprising how the few cold days last week doubled the business of the week previous.

George Angermueller reports a good shipping trade in florists' supplies last week.

Oscar Kuehn, head of the wire department of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., says the demand for special designs last week was excellent. William Ossick, head of the cut flower department, also has a good word for the business done.

Alexander Siegel has been missed in the wholesale market since his return from a summer vacation. He has been confined to his home with sickness, but expects soon to be among the buyers again.

Fred Foster says his new location at 703 Olive street has proved a good one. The big show windows on the Olive street side and in the lobby of the Central National Bank building attract many good buyers.

Visitors last week were Frank McCabe, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago; Sydney Wertheimer, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, and E. Fancourt, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia. All report a splendid trade.

J. J. B.

The Market.

There is a good supply of all kinds of seasonable stock; more than enough to take care of all present needs. Prices are reasonable. Roses are in good supply. Killarney, White Killarney, Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty are of the highest quality. Carnations are in fair supply. The cut of chrysanthemums is large enough for all present demands. The later of the early varieties have been in the market for nearly a week. Easter lilies are plentiful and excellent valley and orchids

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.;
Secretary-Treasurer, O. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

WHILE dealers here are getting as many seeds as possible from Europe, California never sent so many seeds abroad as will be the case this year.

At the moment German seeds can not be reckoned on for 1917 and all European stock is in short supply, the result of war conditions and an unusually wet season.

ALTHOUGH Alaska peas are nominally quoted at $4.25 to $4.50 per bushel, many orders have been refused at that figure, according to Arnold Ringier, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago.

THE sweet corn situation was plainly shown in the contracts made during the Western Canners' convention recently held in Chicago, Narrow Grain Evergreen selling at $6.50 to $7 per bushel. There are reports that Golden Bantam sold at $10 per bushel.

ACCORDING to A. H. Smith, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, a big advance in price in all seeds is reported by canners. In fact, the shortage is so marked that canners are obliged to apply for seeds to the seedsmen, instead of the usual condition of the seedsmen going to the canners.

F. H. BRUNNING, LTD., Melbourne, Australia, writes: "Owing to the shortage of freight and failure of crops, our overseas business is practically spoilt for this season. What small stocks of peas and beans we had are completely sold out and we will have none available until 1917 crops are in. Onion seed we still have." It should be remembered that it is just coming spring in Australia.

CONDENSATION of catalogues and curtailment of editions is the order of the day. Mailing lists are being pruned after a fashion unknown before. Quite likely the high publishing costs this year will teach the trade that the catalogues had become much more elaborate than need be to sell seeds. It is quite well known already much money has been wasted in sending books to persons who inquired years ago but never ordered.

"Now that the cow peas and soy beans have been harvested and are being threshed," writes a grower at Nashville, Tenn., "we find that our report of a few weeks ago was misleading. While there is a heavy crop of both of these farm seeds in our immediate vicinity, a recent trip through the state has developed the fact that there is a decidedly short crop; the seed did not set. There are none on the market as yet, and will be none for some weeks, but the general prediction is that the seed will be high."

SWEET CORN HIT BY STORM.

Last week the section of the United States from Lake Michigan west to the mountains had the coldest weather ever known for mid-October. This was the first word that reached The Review, in a telegram October 19:

Severe snow storm, with no indications of stopping today; effect on sweet corn will be serious.

Sioux City, Ia., showed the lowest temperature in the United States, 22 degrees, October 19 and the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co. wrote as follows under date of October 21:

"In regard to the storm of October 18 and 19, conditions are somewhat improved at this writing. We had a severe storm, starting with rain and going into sleet and winding up with a driving snow which weighted the stalks of corn and blew them over. The crop is more or less covered with snow and we look for about twenty-five per cent damage on the crops that are out in the field, where, of course, at this time of the year, a great many are. However, the weather is clear and if it warms up and the snow goes away quickly the condition will be improved. The sweet corn was good and dry and will stand more of the present conditions than it otherwise would. We had about eight inches of snow besides the rain and it blew into drifts badly."

BOOSTERS ONE AND ALL.

The following interesting communication has reached The Review from John B. Geraghty, chairman of the publicity committee of the Philadelphia Salesmanship Club:

"Some men are born great, some achieve greatness and some have greatness thrust upon them." Mr. Shake-

"Then he was chosen to sit with a group of forty of the city's leaders to consider plans for advertising Philadelphia and from that group of forty he was chosen to be one of seven men to consider plans for holding a World's Fair in 1926 to mark the sesqui-centennial of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

tried to state impartially the reasons for the existence of the non-warranty clause from the seedsmen's viewpoint. If I have not done so, then I have not correctly sensed the situation. I shall now attempt to state the other side of the case.

In the first place, there have been a number of dishonest seedsmen who have knowingly sold poor seed and protected themselves from suits for damages by invoking to their protection and defense the non-warranty clause. There is no doubt whatever that great damage is suffered by growers from the use of this poor seed, which is often not only low in vitality but also contains noxious weed seeds the progeny of which require years of time and labor to destroy. While such cases are comparatively rare and are frowned upon by reputable seedsmen, they are still much too common.

The Inconspicuous Disclaimer.

Unfortunately, while the disclaimer is usually printed on the letterheads, on the invoices, and sometimes on the labels attached to the seed containers, it is often printed in such a way as to appear a fixed part of the other printing and fails absolutely to impress the general purchaser. Even if he reads it he fails to realize its significance. Not until he has proved to his satisfaction that he has received poor seed, suffering thereby actual damage, and plans to bring suit for reimbursement, does he realize that he overlooked this important clause and has thereby sacrificed practically all chance of recovery.

The number of seed purchasers so largely exceeds that of the seed dealers that the latter would seem to have a marked advantage. On the other hand, were not the seedsmen protected in some way, frequent unreasonable demands for reimbursement of losses would rapidly lessen the profits of the business.

The Loss of a Season's Crop.

It may be maintained, however, that the dealers' profits over a series of years depend not so much upon large profits on sales to a small number of dissatisfied customers who pay high prices for poor-grade seed as upon a larger number of sales to satisfied customers who pay good money, get their money's worth and continue to do business at the old stand. Nor does the profit of the seedsman depend on any one sale, as a rule, but the farmer or vegetable grower who pays the price of good seed for bad and has a crop failure as a result cannot be greatly blamed for wishing to get back, not only the price of the seed, but a return for the wasted labor and ground, or rather the crop which might have been produced by it. In it may be involved the financial return for his entire year's work. To me it has always seemed unfortunate that the seedsman, who is so much bigger than any individual grower, should be protected at the lat-

MEMORIAL DAY NEXT

If you wish to have a money-making crop for this most important holiday, sow some seed of snapdragons at once.

The accompanying picture was taken at Memorial time. You could grasp in one hand a dollar's worth of blooms anywhere on the bed. There is no plant to equal snapdragon.

Seed of our famous Silver Pink, $1.00 per pkt.; 3 for $2.50; 7 for $5.00. Seed of Nelrose, Garnet, Yellow, Phelps' White and Fancy Mixed, at 35c per pkt.; 3 for $1.00.

ter's expense. Rather should he be willing to face the issue on an equal footing and abide by the decision of the jury after hearing all the evidence.

As Applied to Vegetable Seeds.

The statements thus far made apply to the purchase of any class of seeds. Many states now have seed inspection laws, but in a majority of them the restrictions apply to the sale of field-crop seeds only, no restrictions being placed on the sale of vegetable seeds. In addition, vegetable seeds are sold largely in small packets by grocers and others, on commissions paid by the seedsman. There is no possible control by the seedsman over the conditions to which the seeds are exposed after leaving his warehouse. The vitality of the seeds may be greatly impaired or completely destroyed before they reach the grower. I am told that practically all seed firms doing such a commission business require that unsold seed be returned to them at the season's close. Some such seedsmen have been openly accused of mixing this old seed with the new for the next year's sales. Whether this is true or not, much of this packet seed gives extremely unsatisfactory germination tests, as shown in Bulletin No. 131, Bureau of Plant Industry, U. S. D. A.

Where any examination of the seed is practically impossible without mutilating the packets, the purchaser is unable to take any measures for his own protection. If he gets poor seed he suffers a loss and the seedsman is protected by the non-warranty clause. The old rule of caveat emptor ("Let the purchaser beware") is not even applicable, because this involved the right of the purchaser to see the seed and buy on his own judgment. It would seem, therefore, that vegetable growers are or should be even more vitally interested in the non-warranty clause than users of other classes of seeds. As a rule, all that any purchaser asks is to be supplied with the quality of seed for which he pays and that it be suited to local environment.

Can Seeds Be Guaranteed?

Personally I have never been much in sympathy with the claim that it is impossible to guarantee the quality and place of production of any class of seeds. It is barely possible that some reorganization of the seed business may be necessary to make it feasible, but I see nothing impossible in it. As a matter of fact, I believe the time is coming when seedsmen will do this, perhaps voluntarily. If not voluntarily, then I believe they will eventually be forced to do it by the exigencies of the case.

Only the other day a letter from a seedsman in another state, where the enactment of a new seed law was proposed, contained the statement that there were certain classes of seed purchasers which seemed to be exempt from the restrictions of the seed laws. These were the gardeners' and vegetable growers' associations, which, because they were unable to get guaranteed seeds from the seedsmen, had co-operated in the purchase of their seeds directly from the growers, thus completely eliminating the seedsmen from the transaction. The statement was also made that the volume of business annually conducted by some of these associations would make a seedsman rich.

Some of you may have heard how Wisconsin pea packers insisted on being furnished guaranteed seed peas, and drew up a contract of their own, pledging themselves to buy only from such seedsmen as would warrant their seed peas as to purity, vitality and trueness to name or variety. Some seedsmen had been selling seed peas without the non-warranty clause, but immediately adopted it, all of them apparently agreeing to supply no seed peas on the Wisconsin contract. The result is that the Wisconsin packers have also made arrangements whereby their seed peas are not handled by the seedsmen.

The Trend of the Times.

I cite the foregoing two instances only to show what to my mind is an indication of the trend of the times. These organizations want good seeds and insist they are willing to pay the price. Other conditions being favorable, good seed is crop insurance. Where so much depends upon it, the grower must provide this insurance or expect a marked reduction of his yearly income. This is particularly true of the vegetable or truck grower, because the nature of the business requires location in the vicinity of some large

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Vashon, Wash.—Three houses here, each 20x200 feet, are being operated by Charles Todd.

San Jose, Cal.—Charles Navlet and Arthur Cann, local growers, were prize-winners in a flower show recently held here by a social organization.

Ritzville, Wash.—J. C. Kittel and Edward Langlois have formed a partnership to operate a greenhouse and growing gardens here.

Seattle, Wash.—J. O. Hankins has acquired all the interests in the Seattle Pottery and has ordered new equipment which will at least double the output and make the output equal to, if not greater than, the output of any exclusive flower pot factory on the coast.

Wilmington, Cal.—J. M. Ridley, of the Harbor Floral Co., commenting on an item that appeared recently in The Review, states that he has for some years had a small stock of a white amaryllis, the origin of which he has never been able to ascertain. The flowers are as white as those of the Easter lily; in fact, like the Easter lily, they first are pale green and ripen to a pure white.

THIS IS ONE VIEWPOINT.

As time flies by it is gratifying to note that more florists are rebelling against the old, conventional arrangements in funeral designs. Almost every week now brings to the surface someone who mixes brains with his funeral work—those who not only please patrons but attain a prestige that makes possible a liberal charge for their "knowledge of the business."

Nowadays the graduate designer in preparing a piece for any occasion aims to have some sort of theme or dominant feature embodied in his design that will harmonize with the occasion. He does not believe that a funeral piece should be of such common arrangement that it could serve as a floral tribute to any number of deceased persons. He makes each piece fit each case, as a custom tailor shapes a suit of clothes for one man, and one man only. The full-fledged designer employs as the motif of his design an event or circumstance in the life of the decedent, such as the decedent's vocation or avocation on earth, his achievement or hobby in life. Then when the bill for the piece is presented there is no complaint against the price. The design was worth it; it was clever; it was unusual; it was just right.

At the grave of a New Englander some time ago there was a funeral piece representing a violin, made entirely of flowers. The decedent, although a business man, was a master of the violin. Two months ago a much respected Californian passed away. At his funeral was a heart-shaped design formed of wild flowers and shrubbery picked from the hills around his home. The deceased was a native of the state and a lover of the outdoors.

The accompanying illustration shows a floral "forget-me-not," an arrangement designed to bring out the vocation of florist, as the piece was a tribute to Royal Hodsden, of Santa Monica, Cal., for many years a florist at Boston, who died July 23. The design was made by Albert V. Amet, manager of the Mountain View Nurseries, who describes its make-up as follows: "The stem of the 'forget-me-not' was closely covered with plumosus, the word 'memory' being made of white chenille. The 'petals' consisted of pale blue cornflowers; the lower portions were of light blue cornflowers and white centaureas. The 'stamen' and 'pistils' and the yellow 'pollen' were made of wild spinach flowers, African marigold, of lemon color, and a few white centaureas. From a distance the 'forget-me-not' appeared to be real, indeed."

A Forget-Me-Not in Flowers.

Before starting a funeral piece it is desirable to have a brief sketch of the life of the decedent. Then one may plan and "render to Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's."

improved greatly. Chrysanthemums still are a little soft, but they are improving with the sunshine. Violets, which had rather a washed-out appearance and lacked fragrance, now are brighter and better in every way. Outdoor carnations are improving and the greenhouse stock is good. Roses are much improved, longer in stem and of better color.

Various Notes.

The monthly meeting of the Germain Improvement Association was held in the big Germain store October 13. Nomination of officers was the principal business and, as usual on such occasions, much merriment and fun was got out of the affair, as the two "political" parties again roasted each other. These meetings of the association tend toward an excellent feeling on the part of all the employees and are an excellent means of getting together.

H. W. Turner noted some falling off in his crop during the last few weeks, as his steam pipes were not quite finished with for the season. But since starting fire a couple of weeks ago the stock has improved wonderfully, both in quantity and quality. He reports that he continues to be able to sell his entire cut.

An attractive flower show was held in the high school at Montebello October 13 and 14. The amateur exhibits were good, and the trade was well represented. The Germain Seed & Plant Co. put up an attractive group from the Montebello nurseries, of palms, ferns and flowering plants. Extra good cyclamens were shown. Howard & Smith showed a fine cut of dahlias and other good exhibits came from the Star Nursery, K. Groen and others.

Some of the finest roses ever seen in this market are coming from W. Armacost & Co., of Sawtelle, Prima Donna being exceptionally good. W. Nugent, salesman, is no longer with this concern.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums have about recovered from the effects of the recent rains and are coming in more freely. The quality is excellent, the colored varieties selling better than any of the white varieties. The new brown chrysanthemums seem to be getting more attention than in previous seasons. Good stock retails for $3 to $4 per dozen, and there is little surplus from day to day, as the local demand is strong and shipping business is satisfactory. Pompons maintain their popularity well.

While the rains shortened the supply of summer stock to a considerable extent, there still are many cosmos, gypsophilas, marigolds, scabiosas and stocks. Straw daisies are popular and zinnias continue in good favor. Gladioli linger, but they are passing rapidly, as well as dahlias.

The carnation cut still is limited and the offerings sell quickly; prices are only fair, however. Improvement in both quality and quantity is expected shortly. There are more roses, but the supply is not excessive by any means and more liberal supplies are anxiously awaited. Baby roses are prominently displayed and disposed of without difficulty. Lily of the valley still is on the short side of the market and prices are well maintained.

There is a splendid cut of gardenias and the demand leaves no ground for complaint. The same is true of orchids. Potted stock is more in evidence and the demand is fully up to expectations. As a whole, business is quite good, few complaints being heard from any quarter.

Various Notes.

Mark Ebel, of Sacramento, was here a few days ago. He announced that extensive preparations are being made for a flower show to be given in that city November 2, 3 and 4, under the auspices of the Sacramento Floral Society, of which Mr. Ebel is a member. The object of the show is to promote interest in flowers, and the proceeds will be turned over to charity. Several San Francisco growers have signified their intention of exhibiting and it is expected a lot of fine stock will be shown.

The E. W. McLellan Co., according to Manager Axell, has started heavy shipments of chrysanthemums, violets, Cecile Brunner roses and greens. Mr. Axell says pompons are fine for shipping and that Mexican ivy and maiden-hair ferns are in excellent demand.

Shipping business generally is heavier than usual, as evidenced by the fact that the American Express Co. recently had to put on an extra refrigerator car.

Frank Pelicano, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., is spending a week at Byron Hot Springs, not on account of rheumatism this time, but as a preventive measure.

D. Raymond, of the Garden City Pottery Co., of San Jose, H. Plath, of this city, and H. A. Hyde, of Watsonville, left in the latter part of the week on a 10-day automobile trip to Los Angeles and other points in the southern part of the state. The principal object of their making the trip at this time was to attend the convention of nurserymen at Santa Barbara.

The sixth annual convention of the California Association of Nurserymen was postponed from October 19, 20 and 21 to October 26, 27 and 28. It was held in the Civic Recreation building at Santa Barbara, Cal. An interesting and instructive program was provided, covering nearly every phase of an enlightened horticultural practice.

John Gill, of West Berkeley, sent out a large number of pamphlets extending a cordial invitation to members of the trade to attend the nurserymen's convention in Santa Barbara.

A huge white chrysanthemum plant, bearing no less than 220 blooms, was placed on exhibition in the main lobby of the Palace hotel a few days ago by MacRorie & McLaren. Needless to say, it is attracting a great deal of attention, as it is one of the largest and most perfect specimens of its kind ever seen here. The company contemplated exhibiting it in the window of the store on Powell street, but it was too large for the space.

Harry Bensen and Felice Lagomarsino, doing business at Sacramento under the firm name of Bensen-Lagomarsino Seed Co., have dissolved partnership.

It is understood that a new store is to be opened at Fourteenth and Webster streets, Oakland, by W. Higgins, who formerly was in business in San Francisco.

The Misses Hannon report an excellent fall trade at their store on Sutter street. They were much gratified by being called upon to make the pall for N. Peterson, of the Peninsula Nursery, San Mateo, says his carnations are coming rather slowly but that he soon will be cutting liberally. He has many advance orders for cuttings of the new varieties.

The Market.

Business is good, and it is getting better. Outdoor stock has been out of the market for a couple of weeks, and as a consequence the demand for indoor stock has been considerably strengthened. Heavy funeral work has helped to move a large portion of the stock. The social season is starting strongly, with good decorations for weddings and parties.

Club Meeting.

At the meeting of the Portland Floral Society October 17 two new members were elected. F. A. Van Kirk, chairman of the committee on entertainment, reported that the entire fifth floor of the Masonic Temple could be secured by the society for November 21. The committee was instructed to rent the quarters and arrange for the society's yearly social event—Ladies' night—on that date. All members and employees will be invited to attend with their families.

Frederick Hyskell spoke of the plans for holding a food products show November 9 to 18, in the ice palace, and offered free space for a chrysanthemum show. The matter was referred to the committee on exhibitions.

D. Kelleher, of the Anti Blue Law League, told of the work of the organization in its campaign for the repeal of the old Sunday closing laws and appealed for contributions to help to carry the vote for repeal, which will appear on the ballot at the election November 7. He was informed that the society did not have funds available for such a purpose, but that the members would contribute individually. H. A. Lewis, candidate for state senator, asked his brother members to help to elect a nurseryman to the legislature.

The entertainment feature was an exhibit of colored slides on a screen, by J. G. Bacher, showing mountain scenery and home life in Switzerland, with views from other lands, and comics, to the accompaniment of Swiss yodels on a phonograph. At the refreshment table Secretary Niklas read an invitation to attend the St. Louis flower show. While it may not be possible for any of the society's members to attend the show, the invitation was appreciated and will be acknowledged by the secretary.

E. J. Steele was the champion holder of no trump hands at 500.

John Holden was appointed a member of the committee on exhibitions, to succeed Albert Rahn.

Various Notes.

G. Teufel has installed a new heating plant at his range, spending about $5,000 on the improvement. A new boiler of 100 horsepower furnishes heat for the entire range of 50,000 square feet of glass. Hot water is the circulating medium. He has built a 75-foot brick stack, which rests on a concrete base twenty feet square and has an opening at the top twenty-eight inches square. Except the brickwork, Mr. Teufel installed the system with the help of his greenhouse force.

Now is the best time to start to sow the

to follow the Chrysanthemum crop. No other flower will pay better. You will have fine flowers from January until late in spring. All progressive florists have abandoned growing the late Spencer and are making now four times as much money with this early-flowering type, not only for inside but for outside planting. If sown in October and November they will bloom two to three months earlier; if sown outdoors they will bloom three to four weeks earlier than the late Spencers, producing more and better flowers and keeping the buds during the most rainy weather. We have a limited quantity of the following varieties to offer at reduced prices:

PINK AND WHITE ORCHID, WHITE ORCHID, MRS. A. A. SKACH, ORCHID BEAUTY, rose; LAVENDER ORCHID, lavender pink; MISS FL. FABING, Yarrowa color. This lot will contain about two to five per cent of the late hybrids of the same color and for late planting they are of more value than the re-selected varieties of the same names.

Price: 1 oz., 50c; 4 ozs., $1.50; 1 lb., $5.00; 10 lbs., $45.00

FLORISTS' WINTER ORCHID-FLOWERING MIXTURE. This mixture consists of all the leading commercial varieties of pink, rose, white and lavender, with a very few red and blue.

Price, $4.00 per pound.

GOLD MEDAL MIXTURE.

This is made up of about fifty distinct varieties, evenly balanced to each color. It contains almost every variety in commerce, including this year's and next year's novelties, all of the Winter Orchid type only. Last year we sold over 90,000 packets to private gardeners and retail florists. In semi-tropical countries they have been blooming all winter. In cooler climate, if sown early in spring they bloom in May, three to four weeks earlier. Florists who keep a seed counter should have this steadily on hand, ready for their customers. Sold only in one size packets. Each packet contains sufficient seed to plant 30 to 40 feet of row.

Prices: 1 pkt., 25c; 100 pkts., $12.00; 1000 pkts., $100.00.

Order now all you need for your winter or outdoor planting, as this limited quantity may not last long.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSEYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd C. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and General Manager, Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

THE third "Bulletin of Peony News" has appeared. It contains the proceedings of the American Peony Society at its fourteenth annual meeting, at New York last June, the list of members, a symposium on the merit of the newer foreign varieties and other matters of interest. Copies may be had by applying to A. P. Saunders, secretary, Clinton, N. Y.

At an executive session of the South Alabama Nurserymen's Association, recently held at Mobile, a committee of three was appointed to investigate the matter of enforcing a quarantine against all citrus fruit states, in order to better combat the canker evil within the state. Composing the committee are A. A. Rich, of Foley; L. H. Read, of Deer Park, and S. Imura, of Grand Bay.

THE state nursery inspector in Tennessee states that in general nursery stock has made a good growth this year. It is doubtful if there is as much fruit tree stock in the state as there was last year at this time. The tendency seems to be toward less quantity, better quality and better prices. Sales are reported excellent thus far. There is undoubtedly more ornamental nursery stock in the state than there has ever been before.

ORCHARDISTS in the vicinity of North Tonawanda, N. Y., are stirred over what they term "intentional or unintentional frauds" on the part of nurserymen. One orchardist planted fifty-seven peach trees on his property a few years ago, having purchased them with the understanding that they were of the one variety ordered. This year they yielded fruit and the owner says he has almost as many varieties of peaches as there are trees. Other growers have had more damaging experiences and as a result they intend to protect themselves in the future by exacting an ironclad guarantee from nurserymen as to the variety of the trees they purchase.

THE sixth annual convention of the California Association of Nurserymen, which was postponed from October 19 to 21 to October 26 to 28, is being held at Santa Barbara, Cal. The program includes papers and discussions on the following topics: "Valuable Additions to Ornamentals," "Why Import Seedling Stock?" "A Plea for Our Native Plants," "Amateur and Professional Plantsmen," "Advances in Economic Entomology," "New and Little Known Fruits," "Growing Bulbs Commercially," and "Street Tree Planting and Beautifying."

WHITE ANTS IN NURSERIES.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has received reports of the destructive work of white ants in a number of nurseries and has advised: "Injury to nursery stock will be most serious on recently cleared land where there is abundant decaying wood. Such debris, in which the insects breed, should be removed. In general, the use of recently cleared land should be avoided in planting nursery stock. Care should be taken not to allow the roots to dry out before planting; such weakened stock is liable to attack. In the case of the pecan, it is recommended that two or three cereal crops be grown on newly cleared land before the young trees are set out. The use of commercial fertilizers instead of stable manure is suggested. Deep late-fall plowing should be of value in breaking up subterranean nests."

AZALEA IMPORTS LARGE.

the morning of October 18, as the vessel had on board the first substantial shipment of Belgian azaleas, shrubs, trees and other imports to the trade "via Rotterdam." As the hostile submarines operating off the coast had sunk several neutral bottoms, one of which was an outgoing Dutch freighter, some fears were expressed as to the Ryndam's safe passage through the danger zone, despite the fact that the boat is of neutral registry and is said not to carry contraband of war on its return trips to Holland.

This arrival of azaleas would indicate that somebody has come down from his high perch. The German authorities this year refused to issue export permits to Belgian growers to ship to the United States, unless the money was paid in advance to Belgian growers. Money cannot be sent into Belgium; British authorities would not allow the shipments to pass if payment were made to the Belgians, who are under control of the Germans; yet the much-discussed azaleas are here! Perhaps the efforts of the Washington, D. C., representative of the S. A. F. and others in this direction are responsible for the release of the plants.

Following are the consignees of the Ryndam shipment, as given in New York customs papers:

business, then the volume of business should be curtailed and higher prices charged for the guaranteed seed. Holding the position I do, I am anxious to see the grower protected, but certainly not to the extent of putting the seedsmen out of business.

The Burden of Proof.

In addition, I am heartily in sympathy with the seedsmen in their desire to protect themselves from unreasonable demands for damages. In this connection, however, I believe the burden of proof to be upon the grower, who has to show to a jury's satisfaction that nothing but poor seed could have been responsible for the crop failure. This seems to me to place both on an equal footing and make unnecessary the protection of the non-warranty clause, at least in its present form. A seedsman recently informed me that seedsmen were at present discussing the advisability of a change, and I believe that with the spirit of harmony already established between these associations, a common basis for agreement can be reached.

There are few lines of crop production where the loss of a crop is so serious as in truck or vegetable growing. Is it not possible to reorganize the business in some way so that the desired quality of seeds can be furnished to vegetable growers and still give a legitimate profit to the seedsmen? My judgment is that it can be done, and cooperation on the part of your committees in order to secure an arrangement satisfactory to all concerned is suggested.

LANCASTER, PA.

The Club's Auto Tour.

October 19 the members of the Lancaster County Florists' Club visited the greenhouse establishments in the vicinity of the city. The weather was wet and unpleasant, yet twenty-two were in the party.

The first stop was made at the range of Rudolph Nagel, whose mum houses were found in fine order. Marigold, McNiece, Naomah and Chadwick are the principal varieties grown. The early mums, Golden Glow, Smith's Advance and Unaka, grown in portable sash houses, were a successful and profitable crop.

At B. F. Barr's a number of the houses have been rebuilt. The stock in general is in better condition than we have ever seen it at this place. In roses Hoosier Beauty, J. J. L. Mock, Ward and Ophelia are principally grown. A bed is devoted to Sweetheart and other miniature roses. Carnations and chrysanthemums grown here include all the best commercial varieties. Mignonette, calendulas, buddleias, stevias, white and yellow marguerites and myosotis, all for cutting, are in fine shape.

The next stop was at the houses of Thos. R. Fries, where stock in general was found in the usual fine condition.

At the houses formerly under the direction of the Wheatland Greenhouse & Aquarium Co., but now under the management of Albert M. Herr and George B. Wilson, carnations are in good condition, with several houses of fine mums. Beds of antirrhinums are most promising. We predict for this establishment a prosperous year. J. L. Lockard is in charge.

A call at Harry A. Schroyer's range was made, where carnations and chrysanthemums are well grown. Much bulbous stock is under way for the early spring and Easter business.

At Frank L. Kohr's we saw the best sweet peas examined on our trip.

Freesias and Paper Whites are grown in quantities, as also are calendulas and mignonette. Mr. Kohr disposes of most of his stock at his stand in the Central market.

At Enos W. Kohr's a house of 15,000 Matchless carnations truly was a great sight. Clean, vigorous plants they were, just starting to bloom. Several houses of Mrs. Ward and Alice were noticed. There were several benches of Chrysolora mums. These had good blooms and long stems. Bonnaffons also are grown by Mr. Kohr. About 50,000 Paper Whites will be forced by Mr. Kohr this season.

The Evening Session.

In the evening, at 7:30, J. Otto Thilow, of Philadelphia, gave us his illustrated lecture on "A Trip Through the Canadian Rockies and Their Wild Flowers." The lecture was a treat and thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience. In the afternoon Mr. Thilow had lectured at the Iris Club, Mrs. Albert M. Herr, president, on "Flowers from Snow to Snow."

Our guests for the day included our genial friends, James Brown, Jr., of Coatesville, and S. S. Pennock, of Philadelphia.

The flower show committee reported progress and expects to have a good show at the Hiemenz Auditorium November 9 to 11. Exhibitors should notify H. K. Rohrer, chairman, as to their entries. H. K. R.

TERRE HAUTE, IND.

John G. Heintz has just been elected president of the Morris Plan Bank of Terre Haute. It is the fifty-fourth organized in the United States since 1910. These banks, which have had such a remarkable growth, were started for the protection of small borrowers from usurious transactions of the money lenders and were aimed principally at the loan sharks. A man may secure a loan at a low rate of interest upon two good signatures. Bankers themselves have endorsed the Morris Plan and in many cities are serving as officers in the new institutions.

Mr. Heintz has practically retired from the florists' business, having been succeeded by his son. However, he is still active in other fields, being the vice-president of the Fort Harrison and a director in the Indiana, two of the largest building and loan associations in the state. C. L. L.

WORCESTER, MASS.

The Market.

Retail trade has been good lately and is improving every day. The cold weather creates a better demand for flowers. There have been a great many weddings this month and the decorations have been large. Social functions are becoming more numerous. Violets have been on the market for a month and chrysanthemums are becoming plentiful. Roses are in great demand, as usual.

Various Notes.

H. F. A. Lange has a fine showing of wicker plant baskets, which are much in vogue at present. His stock is exclusive, so his customers are well pleased when looking for originality.

Harry Randall reports business fine and he is looking forward to a good winter. He has a fine showing of Boston ferns and is selling a great many of them. His stock is in excellent condition and he carries nearly everything.

At the October show of the Worcester County Horticultural Society, at Horticultural hall, Miss Lucy M. Coulson received a silver medal for her

There is perhaps no more popular Begonia on the market today. Its floriferousness and all-round satisfactory behavior make it a favorite with both grower and customer. We have fine plants in 3-inch pots, ready to shift into 5 or 6-inch azalea pots for flowering, $8.00 per 100.

MERRY CHRISTMAS.

We will be glad to have you visit our place any time, to look over this fine scarlet Carnation of ours. Visitors invariably express themselves as being highly pleased with its appearance, and we feel sure you will like it too. Many orders have already been booked for rooted cuttings and we are booking them right along now. Better hop onto the bandwagon now.

The Market.

Chrysanthemums now are working into the column of things plentiful; the consignments are daily increasing in size and include good Turners and a few of the early pompons. Roses are in adequate supply, Beauty, Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia rating good as to quality. Good carnations clear daily. Valley, as usual, is scarce, and of rather inferior quality. There are always a few buyers on hand to snap up the first violets and sweet peas that venture into the market. Cattleyas, despite their small number, as yet have not found favor.

Various Notes.

Double violets are being picked at the E. N. Petersen establishment.

Leonard E. Chaffer and Miss Ruth Daye were leading man and leading lady in an elopement and marriage staged at Littleton October 6. The news of the nuptials has just leaked out. Mr. Chaffer is one of the members of the Union Station Floral Co.

J. A. Valentine has returned from Chicago, where he attended the special session of the F. T. D.

Good sweet peas are coming from the range of Charles France. R. S.

Some time ago, C. A. Benson, familiarly known as "Charlie," issued invitations to a dinner at his house for Thursday evening, October 19. At the appointed time nine of the growers sat down to an elaborate dinner in the new house, which Charlie has recently built and moved into. And after the dinner was finished, in a brief little talk Charlie explained that this dinner was given to celebrate the tenth anniversary of his starting into business for himself. The success he has achieved in that comparatively short period is evidenced by his ownership of a nice range of glass and an elegant home. All the guests united in extending their congratulations to him and expressing their pleasure in his well earned success. Everyone had a most enjoyable time, as evidenced by the fact that the gathering did not break up until the small hours of the morning.

NEW NEPHROLEPIS FERN

JOHN WANAMAKER

A "sport" from Nephrolepis Scholzeli, with longer, narrower, gracefully drooping fronds. It is not so compact in growth as Scholzeli, and therefore does not decay in the center, and is a durable house fern. It is a rapid grower, making an abundance of fronds, and is quite distinct from any other Nephrolepis.

CROTONS

NEW SEEDLING VARIETIES

Our new Seedling Crotons, some of which we disseminated in June, 1911, are varieties that should be in every grower's and private person's collection. They are far superior to many of the older varieties of Crotons and the types range from narrow to very large leaf.

We particularly call your attention to our set of thirteen, named after the "Thirteen Original States," which have won highest honors wherever shown.

4-inch pots, strong plants, $3.00 each; $39.00 doz.; $200.00 100.
6 and 7-inch pots, larger plants, $3.50, $4.00 and $5.00 each.

CROTON

LEAVES AND SPRAYS

Cut Croton Leaves and Sprays have been supplied by us in the past few years to some of the leading retail florists, who have featured them in mantel, table and funeral work. They are also specially attractive to use with Chrysanthemums.

Cut Crotons will last in a cool place from three to four weeks. We can supply them every day in the year. Very highly colored sprays at 25c, 35c and 50c; cut leaves, $3.00 and $5.00 per 100.

CUT CHRYSANTHEMUMS

We are growing over 50,000 cut blooms of Chrysanthemums in all the best commercial varieties. Ready now and until December 1st. Make arrangements with us to have your "cut mums" supplied by us. Either daily or weekly shipments. Lowest market prices.

The Market.

Business has been brisk during the last week and stock has been exceedingly plentiful and of excellent quality. The weather has been ideal, with the exception of Friday, October 20, when we experienced our first snowfall of the year and a considerable drop in temperature. The demand for funeral work has been unusually heavy. Weddings have been numerous, creating a lively demand for decorations and bouquets. Violets of the single variety made their season's debut on the market last week. Chrysanthemums are seen in many varieties now, the latest arrivals being Chrysolora, Virginia Poehlmann, Halliday, October Frost and Touset. These are of splendid quality. Some excellent labiate and Triana catleyas and vandas are being cut in the local greenhouses. Roses are in big demand. The supply is equal to the demand in the shorter-stemmed varieties, but long stems are scarce. Russell and Shawyer have the biggest demand in pink. Hoosier Beauty also is a good seller. Sunburst and Ophelia are the best varieties in yellow. Carnations are short in supply but greatly improved in quality. Pompon mums are being offered in large quantities.

There are few outdoor flowers left in the market. Lily of the valley is moving fast and is of fine quality, with good, long spikes. The demand for green goods is heavy and all kinds are plentiful, except smilax.

Various Notes.

Visitors to the trade last week were P. J. McCarthy, representing the M. Rice Co., of Philadelphia; J. B. Dubuc, of the Lindsay Box & Paper Co., Gas City, Ind.; I. M. Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia.

Judge W. J. Vesey, Misses Catherine and Margaret Vesey, Mr. and Mrs. William Vesey and Mrs. Richard Vesey motored to Muncie, Ind., last week for a visit of several days with Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Max.

Will J. Vesey, Jr., has returned from New Albany, Ind., where he attended the joint meeting of the Indiana and Kentucky state florists' associations as president of the Indiana organization. He reports a good attendance. The firm is cutting some fine chrysanthemums of Touset, Halliday and October Frost varieties. They report the demand brisk in both wholesale and retail lines.

The Doswell Floral Co. is cutting some excellent Chrysolora mums and is showing the first single violets of the season.

The Flick Floral Co. is cutting some fine Shawyer and Cecile Brunner roses.

The Wells Fargo Express Co. is canvassing for customers for cut flowers grown in California, to be shipped from the coast in special refrigerator cars.

The Market.

The first killing frost arrived on the morning of October 21. There had been several light frosts prior to this, but none of them heavy enough to do any damage. Until this time there has been an abundant supply of outdoor flowers—cosmos, dahlias, zinnias, etc.

Stock is considerably better than it was two weeks ago. Roses and carnations are blooming freely and the size of the flowers is steadily becoming larger. The early varieties of chrysanthemums, such as Chrysolora, Ramapo and October Frost, now are at their best. The demand for these is fully equal to, if not greater than, the supply.

Business has been good, even better than expected at this season of the year. The demand for bulbs seems to be better than usual. Dutch bulbs were not received until October 15, which probably accounts for their sale being brisk. The bulbs are of excellent quality, but the prices are a little higher than heretofore.

Visitors.

Among recent visitors were P. M. Koontz, representing the McGregor Bros. Co., of Springfield, O.; I. Rosnosky, of the Henry F. Michell Co., Philadelphia. R. E. M.

White Marsh, Md.—This year's dahlia show of the R. Vincent, Jr., & Sons Co. was one of the best attended ever held by Mr. Vincent, who, as president of the American Dahlia Society, is working hard to further popularize the dahlia.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

STEAM HEAT IN SMALL HOUSE.

I have a greenhouse 14x37 and ten and one-half feet high to the ridge. The side walls are six and one-half feet high and there are two feet of glass in the east wall. The house runs north and south and is protected on the west side by another greenhouse. How much steam radiation will be required to heat the house to 60 degrees in zero weather? How many lineal feet of 2-inch pipe will be needed to heat the house? Which arrangement of the returns is the more effective, on the side walls or under the benches? How many feet of steam radiation is represented by a shell boiler six feet in length and three feet in diameter, containing seventy 1½-inch flues, four feet long, with return fire? The boiler is bricked in.

A. W. F.—Mich.

A greenhouse like that described, with two feet of exposed glass in one side wall, can be heated to 60 degrees by using 125 square feet of steam radiation. If 2-inch pipe is used for both flows and returns, we would install one flow and four returns, but we would prefer to use six 1½-inch returns. We recommend placing part of the returns under the benches, if they are not placed too near the bench bottoms and if care is taken to avoid the drying out of the soil. However, when there are walks located along the walls, and especially if there is glass in the walls, we would have about one-half of the returns on the walls.

For small greenhouses we prefer to use hot water radiation, since it gives a more regular temperature and requires less care. In piping the house in question for hot water, we would use a 2-inch flow upon each plate and nine 1½-inch returns, placing the odd return on the east wall and dividing the others so that there would be some returns under each bench.

The boiler described would be rated at ten to twelve horsepower, according to the size of the grate. There would be something like 180 square feet of fire surface in the boiler and this would probably answer for 600 square feet of steam radiation.

GET YOUR COAL IN NOW.

The worst car shortage since 1907 is shown in the report of the American Railway Association as of October 1. On that date there was a net shortage of 61,300 cars. The shortage had increased 41,157 cars in a month. At the same date last year the surplus was 78,331.

These figures will give an idea of what will happen when the movement of cars is slowed up by severe cold and heavy snows. It behooves every greenhouse manager to see to it that he has a supply of fuel sufficient to keep his place from freezing up if he should find his receipts of coal cut off for weeks at a time.

Most of the large growers bought their coal months ago and it now is only a matter of getting deliveries on the contracts. The contract price was high this year, for Pocahontas usually $1.35 at the mine against a former price of $1.25, $1.10, $1 or even 90 cents as one counts the years back, but the present "spot" prices are a good deal higher than the contract prices were last spring. The recent jump in the prices of bituminous has been one of the sensations of the season, but there are plenty of well informed men in the coal trade who are certain that the market is not yet anywhere near the top. Which is another reason for filling every possible corner of the sheds right now.

HAS 1¼-INCH PIPE ON HAND.

We have two houses, each 20½x60. They run east and west and have a partition between them. The east ends of the houses are exposed and contain seven feet of glass. The west ends abut on a shed. The north side of the houses is in a bank of earth. The south wall of the south house contains two feet of glass. How many runs of 1¼-inch pipe will be required to give a fern temperature in the north house and a temperature for general potted stock in the south house, using hot water? Please state, also, the number and size of the flows. We also have a house 21x24, in which nine feet of glass and two feet of concrete are exposed. to maintain a temperature of 70 degrees? This house is sandwiched in between two others, so that only the roof and one end are exposed. We have a lot of 1¼-inch pipe and some of the 2-inch size. W. S. P.—Ont.

We do not feel certain regarding the lowest outside temperature, but for a minimum of 20 degrees below zero we would use in the north house three 2½-inch flow pipes and eighteen 1¼-inch returns. Place one flow pipe upon each plate and the other three feet below the ridge. Six of the returns should be upon each wall, or under the side benches, and the others should connect with the overhead flow pipe and run to the boiler under the middle bench, or in the walks if solid beds are used. For the south house use five returns on each of the side walls and six in the middle of the house.

In planning the piping of the house 21x24, with nine feet of glass in the walls, it would be helpful if the location of the benches and doors had been given. We would use 400 square feet of radiation in this house. If the arrangement of the house makes it possible so to locate them, we would run a 2½-inch main on each side, under the purlins, and another overhead through the middle of the house. With the flows under the purlins feed seven 1¼-inch returns, starting the coils just below the ends of the flow pipes and running them to the corners of the house and then along the side walls back to the boiler. With the overhead flow feed eight returns.

These specifications have been prepared with the idea of utilizing the 1¼-inch pipe, but we would not feel safe in using it with an open system in the 60-foot houses unless the returns are above the top of the boiler. For these houses we would prefer to substitute twelve 2-inch returns in the north house and ten 2-inch returns in the south house.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

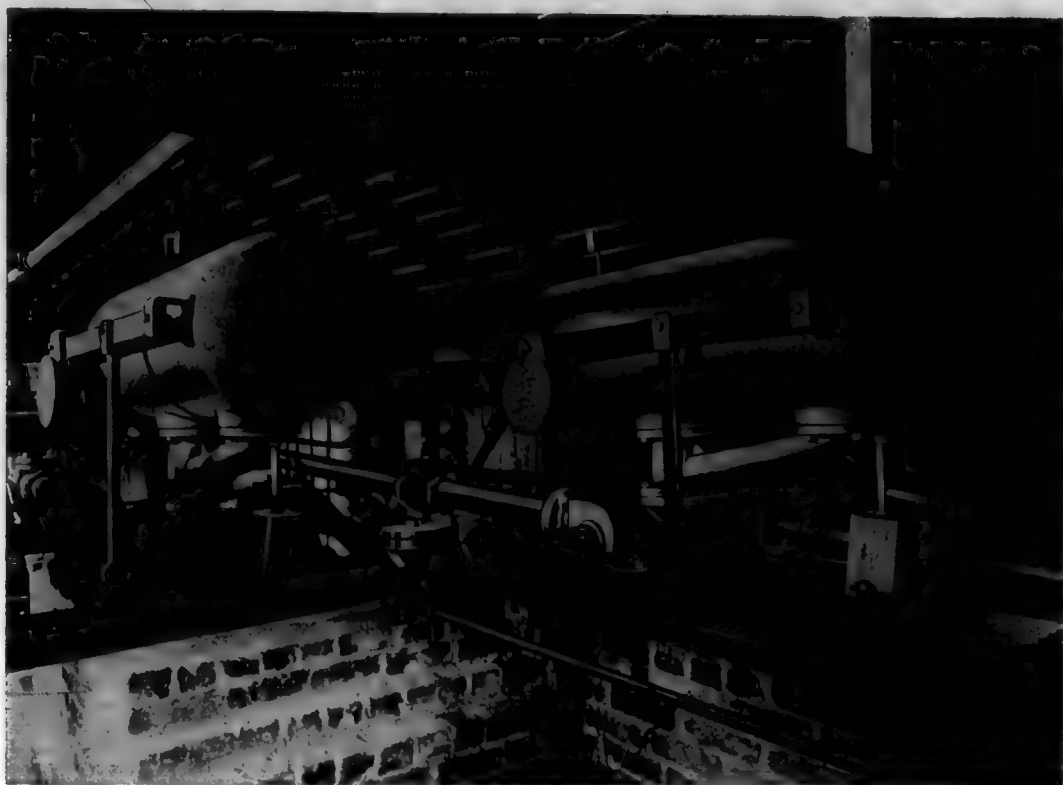

Business last week was less active than that of previous weeks this month, but there was sufficient to keep everyone busy. The fall season has opened remarkably well and the quantity of wedding work is in advance of that of previous seasons. The weather, turning from the cold, frosty nights, is mild again. The chrysanthemum season is beginning to assert itself and most of the stores are selling the blooms freely. There are a few good varieties on the market; they range in prices from $2 to $5, retail. Among them are found Chrysolora, Smith's Advance, Pacific Supreme, October Frost and Tint of Gold. The Chrysolora mums have stems four to five feet in length and have perfect foliage. More and better carnations are coming in; some of the stock is in every way first-class. White Wonder and Alice are extra fine. The demand for roses is good. American Beauties sell slowly, but other varieties, such as Francis Scott Key, Russell, Ward, Sunburst and Ophelia, sell well. The quality of the roses is improving. Some fine white and pink snapdragons are to be had. Valley is not in so large demand as previously. Tuberoses are not plentiful, but they are of good quality. A few bunches of cosmos reach the market and sell quickly. Violets, although more fragrant, do not sell extra fast as yet. A few late gladioli reach the market and sell immediately; orchids are fine and move freely. Greens are sufficient for present needs and good smilax is arriving.

Various Notes.

Much inconvenience has been caused the florists who depend on incoming out-of-town shipments. A train which formerly arrived at a reasonably early hour in the morning now arrives about three hours later, and consequently a good many of the early orders suffer. Freight is slow, and this also means worry to the storekeepers.

Hugo Teute is bringing in some good primulas and cyclamens, which find ready sales on account of the scarcity of blooming plants. His chrysanthemums are doing well, particularly Polly Rose, Oconto and other early whites.

Among the visitors to the trade during the week were E. T. H. Schmidt,

"DETROIT" SYSTEM IN GREENHOUSE.

Here is Evidence of Value in the "Detroit" System of Handling Condensation.

"Detroit" Systems will pick up every ounce of condensation in your steam lines and turn it back to the boiler without loss of temperature—100 to 150 degrees hotter than pumps can handle it. This means a saving of from 10 to 15% in fuel alone.

Compare the simplicity, ease of operation, adaptability and capacity with others, and you'll readily see the superiority of the "Detroit."

Send for your book No. 5A; "Watch Your Condensation," illustrated fully. Write for it today.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

It will require real football weather to make the sale of chrysanthemums what it should be. The extra fine locally grown dahlias still coming in by the wagon-load are playing havoc with the prices of mums. Not until dahlias and cosmos are killed by frost is there much hope for that increase in price which the growers must have to make the crop a profitable one. Unaka has made its appearance and this, with Polly Rose, October Frost and Yellow Frost, is the best of the week's offerings. The prices range from $2 per dozen down to $4 per hundred. Quite a quantity of bunch stock is coming in. This is good, but it has helped to force prices down to a low level.

Roses in all colors are reasonably plentiful and include white roses, of which there has been a considerable shortage. Mock is good and Radiance, Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty are attracting considerable attention. American Beauty roses also are plentiful and the price is suffering because of the oversupply of other flowers, so that they can be had as low as $1.50 per dozen. There has been a big demand for corsage bouquets, making good the sale of Sweetheart and Ellen Poulsen roses.

Never before have the single violets been so fine so early in the season. Quantities of these are being picked outdoors. They are fragrant, hold up well, have exceptionally long stems and meet with a ready sale, replacing to a large extent the doubles that are being shipped in from distant points. Orchids still are quite plentiful and meet with a fair sale. Snapdragon in the three colors is coming in nicely and finds favor for use in dinner decorations.

Various Notes.

William F. Gude and Walter Hawley, of the Gude Bros. Co., were members of the party representing the Retail Merchants' Association of Washington, D. C., which last week went to Leonardtown, Md., by automobile on a boosters' trip. This is a part of the campaign to secure some of the Maryland business for the Washington wholesale and retail establishments.

J. Harper Hetherington, manager of the Washington Floral Co., is receiving congratulations on the advent in his family of a little girl. Mrs. Hetherington was Miss Alice Cramer, who for a number of years was bookkeeper and cashier in the store.

election. Washington is peculiarly situated in this respect and political activity always has its effect upon the commercial life here. Z. D. Blackistone has made a careful analysis of the situation and says that he finds conditions much the same as four years ago; that many of his customers are out of town campaigning, while others are conserving their resources with a view to taking an extended vacation around election day. He says that this condition has become noticeable since September. Added to this is the continued hot weather, which is making itself felt in all lines of business. The social season is backward this year and the number of decorations is less than was expected.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Last week Milwaukee was visited by a rain storm that caused considerable delay to delivery service. Quite a few shipments made Thursday night did not reach destinations on time. There was an exceptionally high wind, but no damage was done to glass, as far as I know. Despite the rainy days, business last week was good, shipping orders making up the bulk of the trade.

There still is a good supply of roses, and these are in first-class shape and clear daily at fair prices. Carnations now are in sufficient quantity to fill orders with some degree of satisfaction, although the supply still is short of the demand. The quality of this stock is improving right along and purchasers have their money's worth at this time. Chrysanthemums are coming in quite heavily and are cutting a figure in the market. All grades are to be had and prices range from $1.50 to $4 per dozen. The quality is exceptionally good this year and the stock is moving readily. Pompons are finding a ready sale. Wisconsin-grown violets are arriving steadily, but only in small quantities as yet. They are picked up daily as soon as they reach the market and are bringing good prices for this time of year.

The supply of lilies is limited and no trouble is experienced in disposing of the cut to good advantage. Valley, of course, is scarce, and is bringing $6 per hundred for first-quality stock, but at that the quality is none too good. Orchids are fairly plentiful and sell well at about $6 per dozen. If present conditions are to be taken as a criterion, the Christmas holiday business should be satisfactory this year.

Various Notes.

During the storm of October 20 the delivery automobile owned by W. Maas & Co. was run into by a pedestrian. This is rather an unusual condition, the tables usually being vice versa. The man was knocked down by the machine and was taken to the Emergency hospital. He was not injured, however, and stated that he was thinking of nothing but the rain, and did not see the automobile.

W. Lubliner has purchased a new delivery car. It has a panel top and numerous small windows. H. J. S.

The Market.

Notwithstanding that flowers are much more plentiful than a few weeks ago, prices remain good, although a trifle lower than formerly. Chrysanthemums are splendid, the blooms being extra large and fine. Good mum plants also are on sale. Gladioli have disappeared and asters are almost gone. Some dahlias are coming in, but the frosts have killed most of them, as it has nearly all outdoor stock that has not been protected. Roses are more plentiful and of good quality.

Violets have appeared; they are of good quality. Orchids are plentiful enough to supply the needs of the market and are reasonable in price. Cosmos is abundant, but it will not last much longer on account of the frosts. A small quantity of spiræas is coming in.

Autumn foliage, principally oak leaves, has been a feature of the market. It plays a conspicuous part in window, store and wedding decorations. Some florists use it in place of ferns with orders of cut chrysanthemums.

Various Notes.

Fred P. Wolfinger reports business good and that the outlook for future business is most encouraging.

Charles Luthy has opened a branch store at 459 Eighteenth avenue. A. Deisler & Son, whose store is at 31 Holland street, formerly conducted a branch at the same location, but when summer came they closed it, planning to reopen it this fall. They finally decided to give up the branch. The store has been repainted and redecorated. There is a 60-foot greenhouse in the rear.

M. Gahr reports business improved in his new quarters.

Joseph Kroehl has recovered from his recent attack of rheumatism and now is able to attend to business.

John W. Blakeley, of Elizabeth, reports a large demand for flowers for hospitals.

At the meeting of the Essex County Florists' Club, held October 19 in the Krueger Auditorium, it was decided to hold a flower show in November. Any florist of Essex county may exhibit. Henry Hornecker, president of the club, heads a special committee which will have the arrangements in charge. The show will be held at the Palace ballroom. The date will be decided upon this week. R. If we should build a greenhouse for ourselves we would put the best material we could into it, but it would not be any better than we put into the houses that we build for our customers.

Yes, it would be an easy matter to skimp here and substitute there, and gloss over in another place to save a little and meet the lowest bidder. We do not do business that way. Why should we cheat ourselves in order to cheat a customer?

Greenfield is a suburb of prosperous Detroit and is making rapid strides forward as an ideal place for the homes of Detroit's best people.

All kinds of building are in full blast at Greenfield. Grandy Bros., for instance, are erecting a large range of greenhouses, which will be devoted to vegetables.

Thomas F. Browne has a splendid batch of 75,000 mum plants, good blooms of which he sends daily to the Detroit Cut Flower Exchange. His carnations are developing nicely and a house of sweet peas, 84x600 feet, could not look better.

W. Madetell finds a good market for his lettuce of the Grand Rapids forcing type. Mr. Madetell's carnations are the finest around Detroit, taking everything into consideration.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

The stores are taking on a semblance of real business activity. The windows are displaying new and attractive vases, ferns and other novelties. The growing popularity of the mum is being demonstrated by the increased demand for all varieties in white, yellow and pink. Short-stemmed roses are plentiful, but there is a dearth of long-stemmed stock. Carnations are of good quality and in quantity.

Various Notes.

THE pendulum has swung back again and the mania for long runs of ventilating sash, operated from one gear, is past.

To obviate the rubbing and often sticking of the sash, where the runs meet, we are recommending skipping a light of glass, making a complete separation.

Some claim it also has an advantage in securing better ventilation, as the break gives a chance for the air to enter more freely. This may be only a notion, or a fact; whichever it is, the growers who have their sash this way are highly pleased.

This may seem like a small thing to devote an entire ad to; but every well built big house is made up of a lot of small things.

Our president is always harping that "if we look carefully after the small things, the big things will almost take care of themselves."

Likely enough, his training us all that way has a lot to do with the finished perfection of the houses we build.

It, no doubt, has much to do with the reason we have put up house after house for such men as Thomas Young, of Bound Brook, N. J., and L. B. Coddington, of Murray Hill, N. J., who have reputations for exacting exact exactness.

If you are the exacting kind, we are exactly the concern who can satisfactorily meet them.

The Market.

In spite of heavy campaigning, business has been rushing. After several weeks of scarcity, flowers are now becoming more plentiful. Chrysanthemums are here in all their glory. The pompons and singles are coming in as well as the larger varieties, but all are bringing good prices. Roses are abundant and all varieties are available at medium prices. Carnations have greatly improved in quality and are bringing 3 cents; some extra fine ones bring 3½ cents—a topnotch price for this time of year. More lilies are obtainable, but they are not in excess. Valley and orchids are receiving numerous calls, but the supply is equal to the demand. This week finishes the dahlias, gladioli and cosmos. Greens have been rather limited, but no particular scarcity has been felt. Smilax now can be had at 20 cents per string.

Various Notes.

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

WHAT MY BUSINESS HAS TAUGHT ME

Here, word for word as he wrote it down, is a successful retail florist's philosophy of business. His ideas are not new for those who look at the broader aspect of retailing, but they are sound, and System, the magazine of big business, found he gives them a new twist.

By MAX SCHLING.

Reprinted from System.

FLOWER store is just like any other business, and a man who runs a flower store businesslike, has to suit his methods to his surroundings and to the classes from which he draws his patrons. When a man opens a store he should try to open it where he comes among an element with which his education or his knowledge is most in keeping.

If a man selects for opening a flower store, a place where his natural wit and knowledge quickly attach people to him, where the people look at him as one whose ideas are similar to their own, and whose knowledge suits their taste, he will make quicker progress in business, collect a lot of friends. And a lot of friends to business men under most conditions means success.

But it is not this alone which should be considered when one wants success in business. There are many details which should not be overlooked: the quality of stock; the quality of the service; the gaining of confidence not only for oneself, personally, but also gaining confidence for one's work; careful buying; honesty with customers to the extreme; and, most of all, untiring ambition.

Love the Work.

The quality of stock one buys signifies one's knowledge of flowers and plants. Most florists buy and sell what they can make most money on.

Is this correct? I hardly believe so.

When one is a florist he has to be not only a florist for the sake of dollars and cents, to have success, but he has to be a florist because the business awakens sufficient interest in him so that he loves his work; he has to have an interest in the people whom he sells to and interest in the people he buys of.

Cheap Stock or Good?

Cheap stuff does not mean a poor quality of stock. Cheap stuff means a flower or plant of good stock at a cheap price; and if a florist buys cheap stock of the kind I think of, he will never take advantage to sell it otherwise than in accordance with the standard of honest business men—to sell it at a fair profit, regardless of petty expenses like packing, care and such.

If one buys dahlias for $2 a hundred he should not try to get $1 a dozen because they look too much for 50 cents; and he should not try to buy poor dahlias below the regular wholesale price when he can get good ones for a little more, even though he does not charge his customers more for the good ones than he would have charged for the poor ones. This is a comparison between cheap and good stock. There are stores which take advantage of just this kind of business. They buy poor stock at a low price instead of buying good stock at a little higher price, and when general business conditions are depressing they are the first to figure only on transient customers. People go there once, twice, and never again.

This business man does not see that insufficient service keeps the steady buyer away from his door. The man who buys good flowers and pays a little higher price and sells at reasonable prices, follows his customers wherever they move with his flowers. They come back to him or telephone for his flowers or plants from wherever they are.

A Winning Way.

It is what we call a family trade. No matter what the general conditions are, his business always keeps up, because through his good service and through the good stock he carries, he gains new business without spending too much money on advertising, because his patrons are his best advertisers and they spread his fame to all their friends.

To gain the confidence of people one not only has to keep good stock and charge fair prices. He has also to give good service. When a customer comes into a store and orders $5 worth of flowers and selects something which might have been in the store for three or four days and is not up to the standard, he should be told: "Do not buy this." I can not sell flowers that would cause dissatisfaction and that are utilized only for the store.

Sometimes a patron sends $5 or $6 worth of flowers only a block. Then there is no expense attached to the order. And when this customer comes back for only $1 worth of flowers and has the same sent where there is a little more expense attached than the ordinary car fare, he should not be charged with extra expense. His one order which he gives for delivery in the neighborhood should even up the order which goes to a far distant point. Just in little things people are particular. They will notice the fair-mindedness of their florist and they will remember.

Possible Impossibilities.

When a customer calls or phones for flowers which are scarce and rare or which are not in stock, he should be told: "How long will you allow me to deliver the order? I shall try my utmost to have it delivered on time."

Do not say, "I will send out and try to get for you the flowers you want." That is a wrong expression. If we get something which we need for a patron in our store, we do not get it for him; we get it for us, for our business. In serving our customer our answer should be: "We will try our utmost to deliver your order promptly. Kindly give us the best time limit."

Where there is a will there is always a way to fill this kind of order, even if it is at times with a loss—that does not count. By making possible the impossibilities, we gain the confidence of customers, and through the fact that we are willing and that we never say "no" to them, we greatly strengthen this confidence.

Not only so, but when we do something that they themselves thought impossible, they do not forget. The first chance they may have, they speak about it to their friends, they send us new customers and our business grows. Good service given to a customer is nothing but capital laid out by us in the form of so and so much work which bears interest for us for the future.

The Meaning of Service.

Our service does not mean only to be prompt, never to refuse any order, but means to be careful with the filling of the orders by selecting the stock; by packing the stock; by protecting the flowers after they are in the customer's hands. We can do that only by educating our customers regarding the best way to treat plants or flowers, how to take care of them properly so as to get the longest possible life out of them—here there should be no expense or time saved.

We have to begin the moment we select the flowers for an order to see that each flower is perfect, and we should not stop until the flowers are properly placed in water at the customer's house. So, service means untiring attention not only to the flowers themselves but to the purchasers of our flowers. And if we have too much to do, so that our business grows and we have to have employees, then it means alertness at every hour of the day, constant vigilance, to see that our employees shall be exact and work with our thoughts of service and with our knowledge of service.

We must impress on them the value of this attention and service to customers. We must impress on them honesty, teach them to sell a customer only what is good and to give a customer full value for his money.

Can We Stand Criticism?

We have to do our work and oversee their work at the same time. We should have untiring ambition when we make up a bouquet or a wreath or a basket. We should not wrong ourselves by asking, "Isn't it pretty?" We must ask them: "How do you like it?" We can listen to criticism and ask ourselves if this criticism is warranted. We should try to improve our work from day to day, and when we make something, no matter how pretty we may think it is, we should ask ourselves, "Is it well enough made? Can't we make something better?" And this spur to ourselves to do better will sharpen our judgment and will improve our knowledge and will certainly show in our work.

We or It?

Our business—does it belong to us or do we belong to it?

A business man who feels himself the proprietor and nothing else, loses his hold on his business sooner or later. A business man is only proprietor or owner of his business in his own private life. The moment he steps into the business surroundings where his activity is necessary to keep the business in progress, where his mind is really the soul of the business, he is not less an employee than any of his other employees. He is there to see that goods sold are sold right. He must teach his salesmen, if they do not know it, how to do it right. He must instruct his buyers. He has to understand bookkeeping and do bookkeeping. He has to be a gardener, a florist, a designer. It does not harm him if he knows how to sweep his own place and to deliver his own orders.

We Live to Learn.

A business man should be able to replace any of his workmen and should in the average small business be able to match the knowledge of every one of his employees. What they all know together he has to combine in his own self, and his ambition should be to know it better than the others, so that when he gives an order he can look straight into the eyes of his employees and not blush over his incompetency.

We can not know everything when we start a business, but we can learn, and none has as much chance to learn as the beginner in business. Success in business comes not only in consequence of what a man does for his customers. A very important factor is whether he is strict in his dealings with his growers and commission dealers or whatever sources of supply he may happen to deal with.

The Buying.

He must be first of all a critical buyer. That does not mean to cut prices. That means to buy what is necessary to keep a good stock on hand in accordance with the amount of business he does. He should buy good stock which lasts well. He wants to make progress by selling his own stock at a fair profit, and he should be willing to pay a fair price when his judgment tells him that the stock is justly worth it.

He must be prompt in his payments. It improves his credit and in this way strengthens his selling power. When a man is fair in his dealings with his business friends and any merchandise shall be scarce and many demand the rare stock at the same time, the man who is far-sighted in his dealings will always have a plentiful supply for his needs, while the man who only considers himself is often handicapped.

An Exchange of Places.

A business man has to become to a certain extent even an inventor and prepare in time for the busy season new things to awaken the interest of his patrons. He has to teach his employees, whenever opportunity offers, what life and experience have taught him. And when he is on the way to success, if he wants to continue his success, he must do one last task: become an employee among his employees, not only in form but with all his heart.

A busy man spends half of his life in his business. His successful business which, when small, was not too big to take all its motive power from him, grows to need besides himself strong support which he can not gain for a weekly salary. He can gain that added motive power only if he manages to awaken the interest of his employees to such an extent that they begin to look at him not only as an employer but as a co-worker.

The Workers' Ideals.

He must manage to arouse their ambition to such an extent that when they begin to talk of his business they will not say: "The place I am working in,"

but "Our place," or "Our business." That is the kind of ambition which will help them, because they will respect themselves more in that they respect their work and their employer, and it will help the business in that customers will like to have dealings at a place where the employees seem to be heartily interested in seeing that people get the best kind of service.

When he makes his workers' ideals his ideals and the other way about, and shows some interest in their affairs and lets them look into his affairs; when he again becomes as most business men are when they are beginning in business and want helpers, and the helpers impress them so favorably that they treat them like co-workers; when he manages to show his workers that he is unselfish, that he thinks of more than himself and the business; then will his workers think for him and with him. The motive power which drives his business machine over the way to success will be strengthened, and success will not only stay with him, but with them all who keep his shop windows bright.

THE SOUTHWEST UP-TO-DATE.

At the recent fashion week in Oklahoma City, which is one of the season's events in that section of the country, attracting visitors from hundreds of miles around, the merchants did their best with window decorations, but none succeeded in getting up a more pleasing display than that of Furrow & Co., whose decoration was arranged by

Floyd Pendergraft, chief assistant to Manager Lon Foster. The illustration reproduced herewith shows the window as it appeared at night. The special attraction was two of the self-contained electric fountains invented by Edward Galavan, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. These are operated by a small electric motor which throws the same water over and over and they have enjoyed a large sale to florists for the reason that they can be used in window and table decorations with no other attachment than an electric wire, no piping being needed. In addition to the fountains the accessories used were two bird bowls, decorated with flowers, one with Ophelia roses and valley, the other with Sunburst roses; a bird cage decorated with valley and plumosus, large vases for mums and bud vases for Russell and Ophelia roses. Retail florists have been slower than most merchants to employ accessories in window decoration and still largely confine themselves to the use of such articles as they sell or employ in work for their customers, although in other lines of trade the window decorator frequently spends much money on his background and the surroundings that are so valuable in showing merchandise to best advantage. The stage setting counts almost as much as the acting.

The Oklahoma City merchants have advertised fashion week far and wide and people come from all over the state to see the sights. The Furrow window was viewed by thousands and attracted so much favorable comment that Mr.

Foster considers it one of the best advertisements they ever have had.

ON TO BLOOMINGTON.

According to J. F. Ammann, secretary of the Illinois State Florists' Association, the prospects are good for an excellent show at Bloomington, Ill., November 9 and 10. The local florists all will participate in the show and many exhibits are pledged from Chicago growers and members through the state. The Coliseum is to be used. Exhibits should be shipped care of A. Washburn & Sons, who will see that they are properly staged.

There is to be no business meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, but a good fellowship luncheon is to be served at 7 p. m., November 9, at which there will be a general exchange of views. It is figured that this opportunity for talking over the trade situation is of sufficient importance to command the attendance of practically all the leading florists through the state. Chicago will be well represented. The party will leave on the Chicago & Alton train from the Union station at 10:15 a. m., November 9.

Olivette, Mo.—Steam was turned on for the first time in the new range of Charles Steidle, of Olivette, Mo., last week. The houses were constructed by the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. The entire cut of this range will be shipped to H. G. Berning, of St. Louis, Mo.

At the recent fashion week in Oklahoma City, which is one of the season's events in that section of the country, attracting visitors from hundreds of miles around, the merchants did their best with window decorations, but none succeeded in getting up a more pleasing display than that of Furrow & Co., whose decoration was arranged by

Floyd Pendergraft, chief assistant to Manager Lon Foster. The illustration reproduced herewith shows the window as it appeared at night. The special attraction was two of the self-contained electric fountains invented by Edward Galavan, of the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago. These are operated by a small electric motor which throws the same water over and over and they have enjoyed a large sale to florists for the reason that they can be used in window and table decorations with no other attachment than an electric wire no piping being needed. In addition to the fountains the accessories used were two bird bowls, decorated with flowers, one with Ophelia roses and valley, the other with Sunburst roses; a bird cage decorated with valley and plumosus, large vases for mums and bud vases for Russell and Ophelia roses. Retail florists have been slower than most merchants to employ accessories in window decoration and still largely confine themselves to the use of such articles as they sell or employ in work for their customers, although in other lines of trade the window decorator frequently spends much money on his background and the surroundings that are so valuable in showing merchandise to best advantage. The stage setting counts almost as much as the acting.

The Oklahoma City merchants have advertised fashion week far and wide and people come from all over the state to see the sights. The Furrow window was viewed by thousands and attracted so much favorable comment that Mr.

Foster considers it one of the best advertisements they ever have had.

ON TO BLOOMINGTON.

According to J. F. Ammann, secretary of the Illinois State Florists' Association, the prospects are good for an excellent show at Bloomington, Ill., November 9 and 10. The local florists all will participate in the show and many exhibits are pledged from Chicago growers and members through the state. The Coliseum is to be used. Exhibits should be shipped care of A. Washburn & Sons, who will see that they are properly staged.

There is to be no business meeting of the Illinois State Florists' Association, but a good fellowship luncheon is to be served at 7 p. m., November 9, at which there will be a general exchange of views. It is figured that this opportunity is of sufficient importance to command the attendance of practically all the leading florists through the state. Chicago will be well represented. The party will leave on the Chicago & Alton train from the Union station at 10:15 a. m., November 9.

Olivette, Mo.—Steam was turned on for the first time in the new range of Charles Steidle, of Olivette, Mo., last week. The houses were constructed by the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. The entire cut of this range will be shipped to H. G. Berning, of St. Louis, Mo.

MORE ON CHEAP SALES.

I have read with interest the articles in The Review dealing with the injury done the trade by department stores selling flowers and plants at ridiculously low prices. This cut-price competition has been brought to my attention by my own customers, who have frankly told me that they can purchase roses in the department stores at 10, 15 and 25 cents per dozen. My defense has been to point out that the flowers offered by the big stores at cut prices are poor and vastly inferior to mine; but the average customer cannot distinguish a good flower from a poor one.

One or two of my customers have suggested that we florists organize some sort of union, the purpose of which it should be to fight the big stores and prevent them, as far as possible, from buying flowers at sacrifice prices. I in turn have suggested this idea to both retailers and wholesalers, but most of them think the plan unfeasible. Of course the plan won't work if we don't try it!

Let us assume that retailers, wholesalers and growers got together and formed an organization, the object of which would be to prevent the big stores from buying flowers—at least at low prices. Any union grower or wholesaler who violated the rule by selling to the department stores would be expelled from the organization, and retail members would refuse to purchase at his store thereafter. As the wholesaler and grower usually sell only their surpluses to the big stores, and really make their profits on sales to retailers, it would behoove them to behave themselves and remain with the organization. Conversely, a retailer of the union who bought stock from an outlawed wholesaler or grower would meet with a difficulty in procuring stock from members of the union. There may be many obstacles to overcome—but united we stand, divided we fall.

STIMULATING INTEREST.

I have recently come to the Iowa State College, at Ames, to take charge of the development of floricultural interests. November 10 and 11 I am planning on staging a flower show, hoping thereby to stimulate an interest in floriculture in several ways. Some of these ways are to interest the public in flowers and to teach them how to use them, to make the students of the college and the visitors realize the importance of the floricultural industry at the present day and also to get the florists of the state to send in exhibits and have them work together. The latter is to my mind an important thing which the college will attempt to do in connection with the coming show. There was an attempt to stage a flower show, by the florists of the state, in Des Moines this fall, but the support given us was not sufficient to warrant the expenses which would be connected with staging such a show. Therefore, I am endeavoring to stimulate a greater interest among the florists and trying to obtain their support in exhibiting flowers by providing several classes for the commercial florist.

I have provided nineteen competitive classes which are open only to the commercial florists of the state and awards will be made for the three best exhibits in each of these classes by a committee of judges. A circular letter and statement of the classes has been sent to about eighty of the florists in the state. This matter has received the endorsement of some of the larger and more prominent florists in the state and at the present time entries are being made in these various classes.

A call is being sent out for a meeting of the florists of the state here November 10, in connection with the show. A program is being arranged which will be followed by a banquet. In addition to the competitions which are open to the commercial florists, competitions have been provided in home floral decoration, open only to the senior students in home economics.

Another thing which will be of great interest to the florists will be the exhibit of novelties. Several of the larger florists in the middle west have promised to send in novelties in carnations, roses and chrysanthemums. Last, but not least, will be a fine exhibition of chrysanthemums grown by our gardener, John Reardon. One large house is filled to overflowing with specimen plants which are now beginning to show signs of their future glory.

A. S. Thurston.

Crown Point, Ind.—Alois Frey recently has installed two Lord & Burnham low-pressure steam boilers to heat his new Lord & Burnham steel-frame greenhouse, 60x200. Either boiler has capacity for taking care of the house in ordinary weather, but two were installed for the sake of safety. The older houses are heated by two hot water boilers on the same principle.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Schizanthus.

The schizanthus requires a cool house to grow it satisfactorily. A temperature of 45 degrees at night is sufficiently high and, if given a light, sunny bench in a well ventilated house, the plants will make a nice, sturdy growth. Our earliest plants now are in 6-inch pots and will be given a further shift into 8-inch pots when well established. The schizanthus is a strong-rooting subject and needs a rich soil and rather frequent doses of liquid manure when the pots are well filled with roots. A second batch now is in 3-inch pots, while a last sowing has just been made. The earliest batches will flower about the end of February, while successive batches will persist until the end of May. S. Wisetonensis, or one of the so-called improvements on it, is much the best variety for pot culture. One good point about the schizanthus is that the flowers have excellent keeping qualities when cut and, being light and airy, make delightful centerpieces.

Snapdragons.

The earliest planting of snapdragons has been giving a fine crop of spikes for some time, and plants from which all flower spikes have been cut are breaking away strongly from the base for the second crop. Do not make the mistake of keeping the plants too warm; 48 to 50 degrees at night should be the absolute maximum. Unless you want a large number of small to medium stalks, it is well to reduce the number of shoots per plant. If you want fancy stalks, leave five or six per plant, but rub off all the weakest breaks anyway. Plants in 2¼-inch or 2½-inch pots, nicely rooted, are suitable to use as a succession crop to early and mid-season mums. Before planting them, give the beds or benches a good coating of well rotted manure and fork it in well, or, if this is not at hand, a good dressing of sheep manure and fine bone will answer well.

Cyclamens.

Now is the season of rapid growth with cyclamens and the plants will need spacing apart a little about once a fortnight. Those intended for Thanksgiving or Christmas sales now need a temperature of 52 to 55 degrees at night and a fair amount of sunshine. Plants intended for spring flowering must be grown quite cool; a temperature of 40 to 42 degrees at night is ample. Look out for thrips and aphids. Either fumigate or spray once a week. If a spray is used, let it be a nicotine solution. Young plants for next season, if the seed was sown early in August, should now be ready to prick off into shallow flats of light, sandy soil. Grow them along in a temperature of 60 degrees at night.

Ericas.

Plants of Erica melanthera, E. gracilis and E. Mediterranea which have flower buds well advanced should be moved into a temperature of 50 degrees at night, in order to have them in nice bloom for Christmas. All other ericas should be kept in a cold greenhouse, or in a cold pit from which frost can be excluded. As these hard-wooded subjects are easily injured by anything approaching dryness at the root, be sure that they have an adequate supply of water at all times.

INVESTIGATION OF DISEASES.

For the American Rose Society.

A special and extensive investigation of the diseases of roses has been undertaken by the department of plant pathology, Cornell University. This work, which was begun August 1, 1916, is being conducted in coöperation with the American Rose Society, whose members have contributed towards the financial support of the undertaking.

During the last three months much time has been spent in visiting rose plantings in the northeastern United States, making a survey of diseases. The gardens and greenhouses of some thirty-five rose growers have been visited. The number and extent of the diseases present have been noted and specimens taken for further study. Growers have also materially aided the work by sending in specimens. These specimens have been examined and the grower advised as to the cause and control of the disease so far as our present knowledge and experience allow.

Practical Knowledge Sought.

Unfortunately, nothing is known concerning the control of many diseases of the rose, and but little concerning even some of the most common diseases; and what little is known is mostly of an academic rather than of a practical nature and not accessible to the average grower. Every grower who has endeavored to obtain much information upon any rose disease has been brought face to face with this unfortunate situation. It is for the correction of this condition that members of the American Rose Society have enlisted the services of a plant pathologist to investigate rose diseases and place the information before the growers.

The preliminary survey has shown that the two most common diseases of the rose are the powdery mildew and the black spot, both on indoor and outdoor plants. These diseases have received the most attention of growers and plant pathologists in the past. It has been proved beyond doubt that they are caused by fungi, the life-histories of the casual organisms have been partially worked out, and various suggestions for control offered. Considerable work remains to be done to determine the conditions which favor the development of these diseases and the best methods of treatment. It is the plan of the writer to publish a short article in the near future upon each of these diseases, in which the known facts concerning them will be placed before the growers.

However, the survey has revealed the fact that other diseases besides mildew and black spot cause rose growers considerable losses. In fact, many greenhouse men claim that these two diseases cause them little worry.

Root-Rot Observations.

Ophelia and American Beauty plants affected with a serious root—or crown—rot have been received from growers and observed by the writer, in visits to rose houses. The plant decays just below the surface of the soil, usually where the plant breaks, the developing branches being encircled by the rot. Soon the parts of the plant above ground become yellow and of a sickly appearance, as if starved for moisture or food; and die a more or less lingering death. Some growers have kindly furnished samples of plants so affected, and several organisms which may possibly be causing the disease have been isolated from diseased tissue. Inoculations will be made to determine which organism is the cause. The life-history of the pathogene will be studied and an attempt made to work out some method of control. This is necessarily a slow process, but will, we trust, result in the discovery of an effective means of controlling the trouble.

Other diseases which have been noted are: (1) crown gall, caused by a bacterial pathogene, affecting the roots and occasionally the stems of both indoor and outdoor roses; (2) rhylosticta leaf-spot, affecting outdoor roses, chiefly ramblers; (3) other leaf-spots and cane diseases of unknown causes. Work upon the cause of the diseases in this last group is now under way. Extensive experiments on the control of leaf-spot diseases of indoor and outdoor roses are being planned and will be tested out as quickly as possible. Reports of progress will be made from time to time.

To Send Specimens.

Some misunderstanding seems to exist among growers in regard to sending specimens for examination. Where desirable a postal card will bring to the grower one or more franked tags which will carry specimens by mail postage free; or the grower may pay the postage if he so desires. The specimens will be examined and the sender furnished with all available information regarding the cause and control of the disease. Not only members of the American Rose Society, but rose growers in general, may take advantage of this opportunity to obtain information relating to rose troubles. By sending specimens the grower will not only help himself, but will be materially aiding the project. Specimens will always be appreciated, regardless of whether or not they are of a new or old disease, or of economic importance. It is especially desired at this time to obtain rose plants affected with root diseases.

GRILLO'S GREENHOUSES.

The accompanying illustration shows an establishment that is typical of the greater number in this trade. It is that of Nicholas Grillo, at Milldale, Conn., and was only recently completed. A general stock is grown.

North Judson, Ind.—C. Vorm, who formerly was located at Hammond, has removed to this place and is doing business as the American Oak Preserving Co. When the oak season is over it is the plan to prepare other decorative materials.

CARNATION RUST.

I am sending some carnation leaves which have spots on them. There seems to be a brown powder coming out of the infected places. Would a nicotine spray or Aphis Punk fumigation do any good? Please inform me as to the cause and the best remedy.

J. M. D.—N. M.

The disease you complain of is the common carnation rust. The nicotine or Aphis Punk would have absolutely no effect on it. Bordeaux mixture is the best remedy yet discovered. Pick off as many of the affected leaves as practical and then spray once in ten days with the Bordeaux. Also paint one of your steam pipes with a thick paint made of equal parts of sulphur and lime, using water to make the liquid.

A. F. J. B.

PLANTS DIED AFTER BENCHING.

I am enclosing a carnation plant and should like to know what is the trouble with it. I have 500 of these plants. The variety is Enchantress. When I planted them they were clean and healthy, but after a few days they wilted and started to become dry, like the one sent you.

M. W.—N. J.

The specimen submitted does not disclose any reason for its dying. There is no stem-rot or branch-rot visible and there are only a few specks of leaf-spot, which may have appeared during the last stages of the plant's existence. Neither does your letter give any definite clue. The fact that the plants wilted badly after benching might indicate that they wilted so severely as to ruin them. Certainly there has been no growth of either root or top. Better throw them out and use the room for some other crop.

A. F. J. B.

LEAF-SPOT ON CARNATIONS.

The enclosed foliage was picked from a number of carnation plants that seem to be withering and drying up—evidently the ravages of a disease or pest. I have examined the roots of the plants and find them in perfect condition. The temperature of the house is 48 to 50 degrees, and the house is fumigated once a week. I keep the plants neither too wet nor too dry. Mrs. C. W. Ward, Rose-pink Enchantress and White Enchantress are the varieties. Any information you can give me will be appreciated.

J. A. D.—Pa.

Your carnations are affected by the disease leaf-spot, which may have been brought on by the excessive heat during the late summer, after the plants were benched. Pick off the spotted leaves and then spray the plants once every ten days with Bordeaux mixture. Water the plants carefully, and do not syringe them overhead, unless you see red spider getting a start. The dead ends on some of the leaves are caused by the large spots reaching across the leaf and shutting off the nourishment at that point.

A. F. J. B.

LEAF-SPOT AND RED SPIDER.

Please let me know what is the trouble with the enclosed carnation foliage, and the remedy.

M. B.—O.

Those specks on the foliage submitted are the common leaf-spot. Remove as many of these leaves as you can and then spray with Bordeaux mixture once every ten days. Do not syringe for a while, except with salt water about once each week, to get rid of the red spider which one of the leaves disclosed. Get one of John Evans' salt sprayers and use rock salt in it once each week.

A. F. J. B.

CARNATIONS SOW BUG'S FOOD.

I am enclosing a specimen of some of my carnation stock, which has been attacked by an insect of some sort. Can you give me the name of the enemy and suggest a remedy for its control? I have noticed a small, brown spider near or on the infested plants.

G. A. D.—Mich.

Your plants are being eaten by an insect commonly known as the sow bug, or wood louse. These insects usually are found where there is old, decaying wood, and in the absence of this they will eat almost anything in vegetation. They seem especially fond of carnations and have been known to strip the plants of all leaves. Hammond's Slug Shot is recommended as being especially good. We also use Paris green and sugar. Drop a pinch of either of the two remedies here and there, where the bugs are likely to get it, and in a few days they will disappear; if not, repeat the application.

A. F. J. B.

NITRATE OF SODA.

Please print in The Review instructions relative to the proper use of nitrate of soda in composts for carnations and roses.

J. K.—Mo.

Nitrate of soda generally is used in liquid form. One pound of nitrate of soda to fifty gallons of water is the strength recommended. Nitrate of soda, as the name implies, is used for its nitrogenous content, which is one of the chief elements required by all plants. Nitrogen produces size of foliage and flower, and is one of the chief constituents of all fertilizers. The soda should be used sparingly, unless it is used in conjunction with other elements that make up a complete fertilizer, such as potash and phosphoric acid, or unless the soil is rich in the latter two and poor in nitrogen. Excessive nitrogen will produce a soft growth in both foliage and flower, reducing the keeping quality of the flower. Carnations receiving too much nitrogen will go to sleep quickly, and bruise more easily than those grown under normal conditions.

A. F. J. B.

RUST OF CARNATIONS.

The carnations in one of our benches have succumbed to rust. Can you supply us with a remedy that will stamp out this disease?

H. G. C.—S. D.

I know of no remedy that is completely effective as an exterminator of rust, but I have used Bordeaux mixture successfully as a deterrent. If the plants are not too badly affected, I would suggest that you pick off the rusty leaves you find and then spray the plants with Bordeaux mixture, as recommended for leaf-spot.

THE FIRST AUTUMN SHOW

HELD AT MADISON, N. J.

Superlative in Quality.

The twenty-first annual flower show of the Morris County Gardeners' and Florists' Society was held in James hall, Madison, N. J., during beautiful weather, October 26 and 27. The show, in some respects, was not quite so large as last year, as there was a slight falling away in quantity in the rose, carnation and hardy chrysanthemum sections, but the quality of the exhibits, particularly in the chrysanthemums, was superlative. The awards were distributed as follows:

Chrysanthemums.

Thirty-six flowers in six varieties, six of each—Wm. H. Duckham, superintendent for M. H. Dodge, Madison, N. J., first, with October King, Bob Pulling, Mrs. J. Gibson, Mrs. R. O. Pulling, Mrs. G. G. Mason and Mrs. Gilbert Drabble. Eighteen flowers in six varieties, three of each—James Fraser, superintendent for O. H. Kahn, Morristown, N. J., first; Peter Duff, superintendent for Mrs. J. Crosby Brown, Orange, N. J., second; Ernest Wild, superintendent of Harkness estate, Madison, N. J., third. This was a close competition. The finest flowers in these exhibits were Earl Kitchener, A. S. Baldwin, Pickett's Crimson, Mrs. R. O. Pulling and Lady Hopetoun.

The winner in the class for twelve flowers, twelve varieties, one vase, was James Fraser, with varieties practically a replica of the previous class.

Ten flowers, any yellow variety—Otto Koch, superintendent of New Jersey State Hospital, Morris Plains, N. J., first, with a fine vase of Chrysolora.

Ten flowers, any white variety—David Francis, superintendent for Mrs. Charles Bradley, Convent, N. J., first, with Beatrice May.

Ten flowers, any pink variety—Charles H. Totty, Madison, N. J., first, with Pink Chieftain. Mr. Totty also secured first for ten flowers, any other color, with Mrs. G. G. Mason.

Twenty-four flowers in twenty-four varieties—Wm. Duckham, first, his finest varieties being Morris Kinney, James Fraser, Earl Kitchener, October King and Wm. Rigby.

The finest flowers in the whole exhibition were shown in the class for twelve flowers in three varieties, four of each, in three vases, stems twenty-four inches. This brought out some ten exhibitors, Geo. Fisher, superintendent for Morris Kinney, Butler, N. J., was first; Wm. Huck-vale, superintendent for Grant B. Schley, Far Hills, N. J., second. The most remarkable flowers shown in this class were Lady Hopetoun, Wm. Turner and James Fraser.

Twelve flowers, twelve varieties, stem not to exceed twelve inches, to be shown in single vases—James Fraser, first; Robert Tyson, superintendent for Mrs. F. V. Twombly, Convent, N. J., second. This was an exceptionally close competition. Mr. Fraser's flowers of R. O. Pulling, James Fraser and Rose Pockett were particularly fine in finish, as were also Mr. Tyson's flowers of Mrs. G. Lloyd Wigg, Mrs. J. Gibson, Mrs. J. P. Mitchel and Mrs. Gilbert Drabble.

Six flowers, six varieties, stems not to exceed twelve inches, to be shown in single vases—Wm. Huckvale, first, with Mary Mason; David Francis, second, with C. H. Totty.

Six flowers, any pink—Geo. Fisher, first, with six fine blooms of Lady Hopetoun. Although this variety has been on the boards over fifteen years, it is still unapproachable when shown as grown by Mr. Fisher. James Fraser was second, with Meudon.

Six any white variety—Wm. Huckvale, first, with six splendid examples of Wm. Turner; A. Sailer, superintendent for J. Gordon Douglas, Morristown, N. J., second, with Mrs. Drabble.

Six flowers, any yellow variety—Peter Duff, first, with Bop Pulling; James Fraser, second, with Colonel Appleton.

Pockett's Crimson is still invincible and this variety won first for Wm. Huckvale in the class calling for six any crimson variety; James Fraser, second, with the same variety. Mr. Huckvale also received first for six any other color, with Mary Mason.

The vase of flowers with other foliage, arranged for effect, was won by Robert Tyson, with a beautiful collection of large-flowered pompons and autumn foliage. These vases, exhibited for effect, are always one of the fine features of the Madison show.

Charles H. Totty secured first in the pompon classes and in the commercial classes, as follows: Ten flowers, any yellow, with October King; ten flowers, any pink, with Chieftain; ten flowers, any other color, with C. H. Totty.

A. S. Baldwin, Madison, N. J., was first for ten white, and John Mitchell was second for ten yellow and ten pink.

Six vases, singles, six varieties—Won by J. G. Walker, Superintendent for J. C. Brady, Gladstone, N. J.

Six flowers, any variety not previously exhibited—Won by Robert Tyson, with a new seedling yellow.

Certificates for novelties in mums were awarded to C. H. Totty for W. H. Waite, bronze; Golden Champion, orange-yellow, and President John Everitt, a bronze with an amaranth reverse.

Among the special vases of flowers were the twelve Marigold staged by C. H. Totty. The stage, as usual, was decorated with single, early and large-flowering mums, combined with autumn foliage. This, as in previous years, was taken care of by Mr. Totty. Among the most noticeable flowers on the stage were Lillian Doty, White Doty, Mrs. John A. Stewart, Jr., and other singles, standing five or six feet high.

This has been an ideal fall for mums, as was proved by the quality of stock staged at the Madison show.

Roses.

Among the interesting impressions obtained from this show was an evident change in rose growing in the vicinity of Madison—a change indicated by the fact that only two vases of Killarney were staged, and these only in classes that called specifically for that variety.

In the American Beauty section L. A. Noe, New York, N. Y., easily captured all the first prizes.

Twenty-five red roses, any variety—C. H. Totty, first, with Hoosier Beauty; L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J., second; A. S. Baldwin, Madison, N. J., third.

Twenty-five any other pink rose—L. B. Coddington, first, with some splendid examples of Jonkheer J. L. Mock; L. M. Noe, second, with Shawyer; Springfield Floral Co., third, with the same variety.

Twenty-five any yellow rose—L. M. Noe, first, with Mrs. Aaron Ward; C. H. Totty, second, with Tipperary.

Twenty-five Ophelia—Springfield Floral Co., first; C. H. Totty, second; L. M. Noe, third.

Twenty-five blooms, any variety except American Beauty—L. B. Coddington, first, with Lady Alice Stanley; C. H. Totty, second, with Ophelia; Noe & Ruzicka, third, with Francis Scott Key.

The Florists Review,
Chicago, Ill.
Gentlemen:--

Enclosed find copy for increased space---our fall campaign.

The "Review" certainly is profitable to us.
We get as many orders from small space with you as we did from big space in other papers.
Orders received in the last two weeks through the "Review" pay for increased space for some weeks to come.

And large space is especially gratifying at this time, when every florist is preparing to safeguard his greenhouses by buying a few clamps for emergency.

Any time we can say a good word for you let us know.

Very truly yours,

M.B.SKINNER & CO.

The roses in the private classes were splendid and most of the prizes were won by J. G. Walker. He won in ten white, with White Killarney; in ten pink, with Pink Killarney; in ten red, with Hoosier Beauty.

The class for ten any other pink was won by David Francis.

Six yellow, any variety—Wm. Huckvale, first, with Sunburst.

Vase of roses, thirty-six blooms, arranged for effect—Robert Tyson, first, with Ophelia; L. B. Coddington, second, with Prima Donna; L. M. Noe, third, with Mrs. Chas. Russell.

Certificates were awarded to Chas. H. Totty for the following new roses: Lillian Moore, Gertrude Hale and Primrose, in forcing varieties, and Ethel Dickson, Ulster Standard and Golden Spray, in garden roses.

Carnations.

Twenty-five blooms light pink carnations—M. Macdonald, Summit, N. J., first; Ernest Wild, second.

Ernest Wild was first for twenty-five pink; also for twenty-five yellow, with splendid specimens of Yellow Prince, and twenty-five variegated, with Benora.

M. Macdonald was first for twenty-five white, with Matchless; Springfield Floral Co., second.

Wm. Huckvale was first for twelve light pink, with Enchantress Supreme; second for dark pink, with Mrs. Ward, and first for twelve red, with Beacon.

Robert Sloane, superintendent for F. Frelinghuysen, Morristown, N. J., was first for twelve dark pink, with Mrs. Ward.

Wm. Bunny, superintendent for P. H. B. Frelinghuysen, Morristown, N. J., was first for twelve blooms of white.

The prize for fifty blooms or more, arranged for effect, was captured by J. G. Walker.

Bunch of 100 violets, single blue—Ernest Wild, first; Peter Duff, second.

Miscellaneous Classes.

In the group classes, Robert Tyson was awarded first for a graceful exhibit of crotons, ferns, pompon and single mums. This exhibit occupied the center of the hall and was much admired by all the visitors, as the arrangement was novel, being designed to give a fountain effect.

The class for mum plant in flower was won by Peter Duff, with a fine specimen of Lady Lydia, carrying over 500 flowers.

David Francis was first for the 6-inch pot plant.

E. Blondin, superintendent for Mrs. Chas. F. Bassett, Summit, N. J., was first for specimen begonia, with Gloire de Lorraine.

Table of orchid plants in flower, arranged for effect, won by Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J.

The vegetable classes are among the special features of the Madison show every year. In this section Robert Tyson was first, with an arrangement of vegetables beautifully staged on black velvet. James Fraser was second, with vegetables exhibited on growing grass. This idea is a new feature with many people. The grass seed is sown on coarse canvas and the result is a neutral green carpet which blends splendidly with any subject.

In the individual vegetable classes, Louis Borkman, superintendent for Mrs. C. B. Witt-penn, Bernardsville, N. J., was first.

In the fruit section the apples were wonderfully fine. Wm. Bunny, Morristown, was first, and Wm. Reid, superintendent for S. & A. Colgate, Orange, N. J., second.

Five plates of apples, five varieties, five apples to a plate—Wm. Reid, first; J. R. Francis, superintendent for Mrs. Wm. V. S. Thorne, Morristown, N. J., second.

Certificates of merit were awarded to A. S. Baldwin for a group of foliage and flowering plants; to C. H. Totty, for the stage decorations, and to Everett B. Shephardson, Short Hills, N. J., for a collection of dahlias.

The table decorations on the second day of the show are beginning to be one of the most remarkable features of the Madison show, and they always draw a record attendance. There were five entries in this class and first prize was awarded to Samuel Golding, superintendent for Mrs. Ridley Watts, Morristown, N. J. David Francis, superintendent at Wayside, Convent, N. J., was second. This class was, as always, judged by a committee of ladies, members of the Morristown Garden Club, and brought out splendid and close competition.

The judges were Peter Duff, of Orange, N. J.; John Downing, of Reading, Pa.; Frank Traendly, of New York, and John Everitt, of Glen Cove, N. Y.

The attendance was fully up to normal and the interest seemed to be well maintained. Taking it altogether, the annual show was, as usual, one of the events of the year. C. H. T.

MUM BUDS ARE EATEN.

Can you tell me how to get rid of little bugs or flies that are eating the buds of my chrysanthemum plants? I think I have read in The Review about someone who was troubled with some pests and who called them chinch bugs. I do not see many of them, but they must be either ravenous or multitudinous, as they have eaten over half of the buds and some of the plants are entirely gone.

With the mums we are also growing sweet peas, snapdragons, callas, cyclamens, stevias, geraniums, vincas, etc. Is there anything that could be sprayed on the plants, killing the bugs without injuring the stock? Oh, if I use cyanide of potassium, how much of it shall I use? The house is 50x130. I have only been here since April 3 of this year, having come from Massachusetts, and I never heard of the pest before. Is it a native of Michigan, or is it probable that we got it on some plants we bought? H. C. G.—Mich.

It seems to me that if the buds are eaten so badly as stated, the trouble is probably due to the ravages of the grasshopper. I never saw anything save a grasshopper that would destroy the plants so badly, eating half or all of the buds. I would suggest that H. C. G. get around a little early in the morning, before the sun has reached the house, and he will possibly see a good number of his grasshopper friends, which can be expeditiously disposed of at that time.

Another pest that might possibly be responsible for this condition, but is seldom seen on account of its being the same color as the soil, is the army worm. This pest is particularly destructive when the buds are about half developed. It is one of the worst pests to eradicate, but, fortunately, it attacks only at infrequent intervals.

Chas. H. Totty.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

The Committees Will Meet.

The examining committees of the Chrysanthemum Society of America will be at the following shows, to examine new chrysanthemums for C. S. A. certificates. Not less than six blooms of each variety must be shown, and these only such as have been given the second year's trial. All sports of existing varieties must be submitted to three of the five committees, the average of three scores to regulate title to certificate. A fee of $2 for each variety submitted should be sent to the secretary, previous to the exhibition.

The annual exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America at Philadelphia, Wednesday, November 8. Ship flowers to A. B. Cartledge, chairman, care of David Rust, secretary of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Horticultural hall, Broad street, Philadelphia.

Cleveland flower show, Cleveland, O., November 10. Ship flowers to Frank A. Friedley, chairman, Hollenden hotel, Cleveland, O.

The floral festival of the Illinois State Florists' Association at Bloomington, Ill., Thursday, November 9. Ship flowers to C. W. Johnson, care of Washburn & Sons, Bloomington, Ill.

Chicago Florists' Club's chrysanthemum novelty night. Date and place of meeting to be announced later.

Work of the Committees.

The examining committees of the C. S. A. have submitted reports on new varieties as follows:

At Cincinnati, October 28, Niphetos, white, Japanese incurved, submitted by the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., scored as follows on the commercial scale: Color, 19; form, 12; fullness, 9; stem, 12; foliage, 11; substance, 14; size, 9; total, 86.

At Cincinnati, October 28, Richmond, yellow, incurved, submitted by the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., scored as follows on the commercial scale: Color, 17; form, 14; fullness, 10; stem, 13; foliage, 12; substance, 13; size, 8; total, 87.

At Cincinnati, October 28, Mrs. C. O. Pollworth, yellow, incurved, submitted by C. O. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, Wis., scored as follows on the commercial scale: Color, 17; form, 13; fullness, 7; stem, 14; foliage, 14; substance, 13; size, 8; total, 86.

At Cincinnati, October 28, October Herald, golden bronze, Japanese reflexed, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows on the commercial scale: Color, 19; form, 13; fullness, 9; stem, 13; foliage, 13; substance, 14; size, 9; total, 90.

At Cincinnati, October 28, Smith's Imperial, white, incurved, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows on the commercial scale: Color, 18; form, 14; fullness, 10; stem, 15; foliage, 15; substance, 14; size, 9; total, 95.

At Cincinnati, October 28, Yondota, pink, Japanese incurved, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows on the commercial scale: Color, 18; form, 12; fullness, 7; stem, 14; foliage, 14; substance, 12; size, 9; total, 86.

A Special Prize.

The offer has been made of the following additional special prize for the annual exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, which will be held at Philadelphia, Wednesday, November 8.

Wm. K. Harris Prize. For best collection of American-raised seedling chrysanthemums not disseminated; one bloom each, and not less than twenty varieties, on short stems. First prize, $15; second, $10. Offered by Wm. K. Harris, Philadelphia.

The schedule of premiums has been mailed to all C. S. A. members. Anyone else desiring a copy should apply to David Rust, secretary Pennsylvania Horticultural Society, Horticultural hall, Philadelphia.

C. W. Johnson, Sec'y.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS FOR SOUTHERN FLORISTS

BULBS IN THE SOUTH.

Both French and Dutch bulbs were later than usual in arriving this season. French bulbs, such as Paper Whites and Roman hyacinths, should have been planted as soon as received if intended for early forcing. Where these are wanted for sale as pot plants it is a better plan to start them in boxes and make up in pots or pans as they come into flower. Only in this way can you obtain an even-flowered pot this early in the season. These require at least four weeks in a night temperature of 60 degrees to bring them in for the holidays.

Dutch bulbs, especially the Golden Spur narcissi, should be planted as soon as possible for early blooming. It is a mistake to try to force Golden Spur too early. If you bring the first boxes into heat about the holidays, that will be early enough. Tulips, hyacinths and narcissi intended for pot sales should be planted in pots at first, as they do not lift and make up as well as the French bulbs.

When planted all these bulbs should be well watered and placed in a cold-frame under a covering of four or five inches of light soil.

Good flowers for funeral pieces are alliums, which can be planted along the edges of carnation beds. Freesias are good sellers both in pots and as cut flowers. Make a planting every two weeks to secure succession, but make the last planting not later than December; otherwise the bulbs are likely to come blind. L.

GIGANTEUMS IN THE SOUTH.

Lilium giganteum bulbs are due to arrive any day now. Get them in their blooming quarters as soon as possible after arrival. In potting these lilies it is always well to leave the pot little more than half full of soil, so that after the bulb has made a growth the pot can be filled up with a rich compost. This will take care of the roots which come from the base of the stem and which are the best feeding roots of this lily. After potting, the plants may be set away under a bench and well watered. Thereafter water must be given only sparingly. Too much water in the early stages is the most frequent cause of disease. While a temperature of 60 degrees really is the best, in the south this lily does almost as well under a bench in a carnation temperature of 52 degrees at night. The lilies should be brought out into the light of their forcing quarters fourteen weeks before Easter. L.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Various are the causes given for last week's market congestion. Many remember experiences for the two or three weeks prior to other general elections and declare this slump is but a repetition of all election years. Others find a menace in the mild temperature. Some say society is still at its summer homes and the retail demand not begun, while the balance of opinion favors the abnormally early and enormous shipments of chrysanthemums and roses, the market having for many days been subjected to a flood of these flowers. Little relief is anticipated till after the election, but the expectation of good times from November 7 until May seems universal.

The supply of good mums is especially notable. Most of the fine stock was sold at $2 per dozen and under; $10 per hundred was the usual offer of the retail buyers, and the wholesaler who could dispose of his best at $12 to $15 was called an expert salesman. The department stores and the enterprising owners of a chain of stores reaped a harvest.

The rose shipments, too, have been excessive. Accumulations brought offers of $5 per thousand. Even the new varieties and the standbys of last season shared in the general depression. Prices were cut nearly fifty per cent below last week's quotations. Hadley, Prima Donna and American Beauty show marked improvement in size and quality.

The smallness of the carnation shipments is noted and yet prices are low, the week end top being $2 per hundred. Valley had a quick advance October 28, the best touching $6 per hundred. Longiflorums were weak, $6 per hundred being also the highest price for lilies. Violets are improving in quality daily, but prices hold at 15 cents to 35 cents per hundred. A few sweet peas are arriving. The supply of orchids is growing less.

The Plantsmen's Tour.

The New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association made its annual tour of the Jersey growers October 25, in five autos, and with perfect Indian summer weather rounded out a delightful day. Those participating were Anton Schultheis, Herman Schoelzel, Christian Madsen, Knurd Christensen, Alfred Zeller, Louis Schmutz, Jr., Harry Schmutz, Henry Schmidt, H. Baumann, Joseph Baumann, Erwin Jeker, J. H. Fiesser, Julius Roehrs, Charles Koch, Alfred Winnefeld, George Scott, H. A. Wagner, Arthur Emmichauer, Paul Fischer, Fritz Dressel and J. Austin Shaw.

The first call was at Weehawken, where Fritz Dressel's ferns and ficus maintain his quarter-century reputation. Herman Steinhoff's lilies and bouvardia next came under admiring scrutiny.

At Henry Baumann's, in West Hoboken, table ferns are the specialty. President Fiesser, in North Bergen, had a grand display of dracenas, cyclamens and ferns. At Henry Schmidt's primroses are of special interest. Herman Schoelzel's palms and ferns proved superb and here the company was treated to an elegant lunch by Mrs. Schoelzel and her lady assistants.

Continuing the journey, the next call was at Paul Rickard's, where aucubas, azaleas and mums are worthy of special mention. Lehnig & Winnefeld's, at Hackensack, was next on the program and here the finest cyclamens were seen. These and begonias are the specialties. Mr. Lehnig was on the sick list and unable to enjoy the day with his confreres. Madsen & Christensen were next visited. Here peppers, wall-flowers and white and yellow daisies are grown to perfection.

The immense establishment of the Julius Roehrs Co., with its 100 greenhouses and acres of nursery, unfolded enough of variety and beauty to deserve a full day's contemplation. The two most interesting items, perhaps, were the nine houses of Mrs. Peterson begonias and Eddie Roehrs' new baby, the stork having visited there a week ago.

Another hour was well spent across the way, at the immense nursery and greenhouse establishment of Bobbink & Atkins, now one of the most prosperous enterprises in the country.

Paul Fischer's ferns at Woodbridge, Karl Woerner's mums and Emil Savoy's bougainvilleas at Secaucus ended the long list of calls, Emil's new auto and Mrs. Savoy's assortment of thousand-dollar dogs receiving special mention.

The day closed with a banquet at one of Jersey's best places.

Various Notes.

Do not forget ladies' night, November 14, at the Florists' Club.

Wm. H. Feierabend, of Poughkeepsie, was a visitor in New York October 28. His shipments are handled by George C. Siebrecht.

George J. Polykranas has sold his retail store at 665 Columbus avenue to John Flessas and will now devote his entire time to his wholesale business.

He will have Mrs. Polykranas in charge of the office and their four sons all active in the work. Mr. Polykranas has added a new Studebaker truck to his facilities for his New York trade, using the other for his Brooklyn patrons.

Many New Yorkers attended the Madison show last week and visited the growers there. F. H. Traendly was one of the judges.

Recent visitors included David Rust, of Philadelphia, and Wm. Kleinheinz, of Ogontz, Pa.

The MacNiff bulb and plant auction department is enjoying unusual prosperity. The rooms are crowded Tuesdays and Fridays, with retail florists and suburbanites. The Trepels are among the leading buyers.

Samuel Seligman, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago, was a recent visitor.

J. H. Small & Sons have added to the sales force in their New York store F. L. Deery, formerly with Galvin.

John Scheepers lectured October 31 before the International Garden Club.

N. Lecakes is adding a department for florists' supplies to his greens business.

J. K. Allen reports he is shipping many roses, some of them as far west as to Detroit.

The Kervan Co. states that business never was better at this season.

B. Rosens reports that the business this season in Japanese red frieze seems sure to break all records. His importations are larger than ever.

Mr. Thomas, secretary of D. C. Arnold & Co., has returned from the mountains and is again in charge of the offices.

Geo. C. Siebrecht left October 30 for a business trip in New England.

The two mums shows next week, running almost concurrently, will each have its share of the exhibits of the expert growers of this section.

J. Austin Shaw.

Houston, Tex.—An organization to be known as the Southern Floral Co. has been incorporated here at $100,000. The incorporators are A. E. Kutschbach, John B. Flynn and Walter Retzer.

Dallas, Tex.—Henry F. Greve, of the Dallas Floral Co., will have charge of the show of the Texas State Florists' Association, to be given here November 15 to 17, and feels assured of the success of the affair because of the entries made and the cooperation of the local Woman's Forum.

Dallas, Tex.—The Lang Floral & Nursery Co., Otto Lang, president, now has one of the finest stores in the south, the formal opening taking place in the latter part of October. The new store is on one of the most conspicuous corners in the city. The equipment is up-to-date in every respect, and the decorations are in ivory and light green.

Jackson, Miss.—The J. U. McKay Floral Co. has completed the reconstruction of a house partly destroyed by the June cyclone and another house, 24x135, is ready for glazing.

Columbus, Miss.—E. H. Slaughter, owner of the Columbus Floral Co., has built a large greenhouse in a new location on Military road, between Eleventh and Twelfth streets. The plant will all be new and, aside from the greenhouse, he will have three or four acres to grow roses, gladioli and many kinds of shrubs and evergreens.

Norfolk, Va.—The Board of Control of the City of Norfolk has requested the florists of this place to submit sketches giving their ideas as to the best manner in which to lay out the grounds in Elmwood cemetery. This formerly was a marsh and has been filled in. The board proposes to have the grounds attractively laid out and planted.

FORT WAYNE, IND.

The Market.

The most important feature of the market during the last week was the large supply of nearly all cut flowers, but particularly chrysanthemums and roses. Not since the beginning of the fall season has there been such a quantity of flowers on the market. Chrysanthemums dominate and many of the midseason varieties are coming in. Pompons and single chrysanthemums also are showing up well, and there are some luxurious-looking chrysanthemum plants to be had. Prices are holding up well in spite of the large supply. Rose prices have suffered a slight drop. Ophelia, Sunburst, Hadley, Hoosier Beauty, Russell and Shawyer are the favorite varieties in demand, while Cecile Brunner, George Elger and Sweetheart roses meet with a fine call for corsage work.

Carnations are not overplentiful and prices hold up well on these. Cattleyas are in splendid supply and are to be had in every seasonable variety. The first calla lilies of the season made their appearance last week. Rubrum lilies are increasing in supply and are in good demand. Lily of the valley finds a good market. Violets are more abundant and a few sweet peas are in evidence. Gardenias also are to be noted, as well as snapdragons. Smilax is in short supply, but other greens are fair in this respect.

The demand has centered chiefly on chrysanthemums during the last week, although there was a good call for valley and Ophelia roses for wedding work, and Easter lilies and roses for funerals.

Various Notes.

The first meeting of the Fort Wayne Florists' Club was held at the Doswell Floral Co. store October 23. There was a good attendance and a general discussion was held on trade subjects. An election of officers will take place at the next meeting, which will be held November 6, at the establishment of the Flick Floral Co., on West Berry street. There also will be a program committee appointed and an outline will be made of the work to be done by the club during the present year.

Herman Leitz and W. Herman, of the New Haven Floral Co., New Haven, Ind., were in the city last week to attend the Florists' Club meeting. They report the shipping business unusually brisk.

W. J. & M. S. Vesey report a good sale of shrubs and trees in their landscape department. They are cutting a fine variety in cattleyas and mums. Misses Catherine and Margaret Vesey are spending a week at Madison, Wis., visiting friends.

A. J. Lanternier & Sons are showing some excellent yellow and pink mums in their Calhoun street store. They report a good demand for these, especially the yellow varieties.

Miss Rhoda Doswell reports business brisk, with several large wedding decorations booked for the coming week.

All Saints' day, November 1, was expected to occasion a large demand for flowers for decorations in the various churches.

The Flick Floral Co. had the decorations for the opening of the Snowberger Co. new store. Autumn foliage, with Chrysolora and October Frost chrysanthemums in large baskets, made an effective decoration. Ferns and palms were used as a background.

R. F.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business last week was good. The supply of stock is larger now than any time this fall. Prices remain about the same, which indicates that all stock is moving and little of it is wasted. Chrysanthemums now are arriving in large numbers, mostly home-grown stock of extra good quality. Some large consignments from California, however, still are coming in. Chrysolora, Pacific Supreme and Robinson are the leading varieties and a large number of pompons and singles are to be had. Roses are in sufficient supply to meet the demand. Short roses, however, are scarce. Carnations are more prominent than last week.

Various Notes.

Fred Fromholdt, formerly employed by the W. L. Rock Flower Co., has bought the Larkin Flower Shop. The trade wishes him success.

A. Newell reports that business is increasing steadily, stock is plentiful and a number of orders are booked ahead. He looks forward to a large business this year.

Miss Lou Boggess said funeral work made her busy throughout the week.

Henry Kusik & Co. now are receiving large consignments of wild smilax. Cut flowers are arriving heavily.

T. J. Noll & Co. received a large shipment of magnolia leaves last week. They report a large sale of supplies.

W. J. Barnes is cutting some large show varieties of chrysanthemums. His pot mums are good and selling as fast as they come into bloom.

The Kansas City Tobacco Products Co., a new insecticide concern of this city, reports business good. Mr. Drummond, of this firm, has been in the tobacco business all his life and he expects to do a large business in this line.

W. J. B.

William Rock, of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., last week secured a temporary restraining order to prevent further blasting on Troost avenue, near Sixty-third street, at which point the company operates a range. Mr. Rock contended in court that he has had to keep a glazier busy replacing shattered lights since the blasting began. Mr. Rock said that 1,640 panes of glass had been destroyed and more than 1,000 cracked. Further, the falling glass damaged the stock in the houses. The contractor also was enjoined from operating a rock crusher near the greenhouses, because the dust from the machine passed through the ventilators of the houses and settled on the plants.

AMARYLLIS.

What are the colors of the earliest amaryllis flowers, and at what time should the plants bloom?

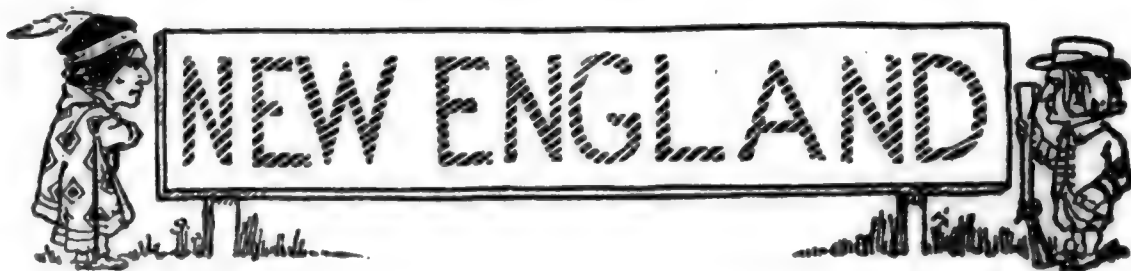

G. M. W.—Mich.

Amaryllises come in a variety of colors, pink, red and crimson shades predominating. They can be flowered from Christmas until May. As a rule they are of the best quality in March. There is no special variety which can be recommended; usually mixed hybrids are sold and grown. Named hybrids are quite expensive. Amaryllis Belladonna is a fall bloomer. C. W.

AMPELOPSIS ENGELMANNII.

Will Ampelopsis Engelmannii cling to wood or stone as does A. Veitchii? Any information in regard to this will be greatly appreciated. W. G.—Ia.

Ampelopsis Engelmannii is a form of A. quinquefolia. It clings closely to rough stone, concrete or wood, is a hardy variety and succeeds in cold latitudes where the Boston ivy, A. Veitchii, succumbs. C. W.

Arlington, Mass.—A. W. Rawson, of Arlington Center, now has 125,000 carnation plants under glass at his greenhouses.

Portland, Me.—George H. Meloon, until recently associated with the J. W. Minott Co., now is in the service of the Barrows Greenhouse Co., at Gorham.

Lexington, Mass.—W. Phelps, formerly with the Chestnut Street Greenhouses, at Marlboro, now occupies Wood's Greenhouses. He reports fine cutting of chrysanthemums.

Franklin, Mass.—W. F. Cobb & Co. call attention to a paragraph in "Pats and Knocks" column of the Portland, Me., Press: "After having tried government seeds in our garden for two years, we have come to the conclusion that we shall not ask Congressman Goodall for any, in return for our support."

West Newbury, Mass.—Saturday, September 23, Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Newell celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage.

Amherst, Mass.—Prof. A. H. Nehrling announces that the annual flower show of the Massachusetts Agricultural College will be held November 11 to 13. John Coombs and family, of Hartford, were recent visitors at the college greenhouses.

Providence, R. I.—The annual autumn exhibition of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society will be held in the ball room of the Narragansett hotel November 14 and 15. Premiums are offered for roses, carnations, violets, mums, valley, orchids, plants and retailers' arrangements, besides amateurs' fruits and vegetables. Copies of the schedule may be had by addressing E. K. Thomas, secretary, Kingston, R. I.

OBITUARY.

Henry Schwarz.

Henry Schwarz, of Norwood, Cincinnati, passed away October 28. Mr. Schwarz was born in Germany, in 1864. After coming to this country in 1882 he worked first at Knightstown, and then at Anderson and Richmond, Ind. In 1890 he removed to Cincinnati, O., where he spent the remainder of his life. He settled at Price Hill and engaged in business there for eleven years. At the end of this period he moved his range to Norwood, where he did business for the last fifteen years.

The deceased was married twice, the first time to Miss Lottie Schweibert and the second time to his first wife's sister, Miss Ophelia Schweibert.

From the time Mr. Schwarz first arrived at Cincinnati he took an active and prominent part in the florists' affairs and at one time was president of the Cincinnati Florists' Society. When anyone, particularly a florist, suffered a misfortune, Mr. Schwarz was the first to come to his assistance. He had many friends, and no matter when or where they met him they always found him in a good humor. In a business way he was successful and this success is attributed to his thorough and conscientious methods. His wife and son, Edward, survive him. C. H. H.

CHICAGO'S SUNDAY SHOW.

The retailers of Chicago are invited by the Chicago Florists' Club to make an exhibit Sunday, November 12, at the Art and Novelty Display at Hotel La Salle. There will be no charge for space, no prizes, no awards, no exhibits for competition. This is to be strictly an art show, to give the retailer an opportunity to display to the public, novelties in flowers and plants, and feature their adaptability for dainty and charming floral arrangements for all social occasions.

The grand ballroom of Hotel La Salle is an admirable place to hold this exhibition. The room is 46x140 feet, decorated in ivory, gold and old rose. The lighting effect is superb. The show management has arranged to locate all retail exhibits in the center of the room, which will afford the exhibitor every advantage to display his art. Let's make this show an overwhelming success. It is the retailers' opportunity to show what is possible with flowers and plants. Only natural flowers and plants are to be used, but all kinds of accessories will be permissible.

Growers of novelty plants and cut flowers, send us your exhibits and we will have artists on hand to arrange them. The Chicago examining committee of the C. S. A. will be on hand to score new chrysanthemums. Growers sending flowers for this purpose should address N. J. Wietor, chairman. Novelties of other flowers and plants should be addressed to C. W. Johnson. Have all shipments arrive Saturday afternoon, November 11, or Sunday morning, November 12, sending all shipments express prepaid to the gentlemen mentioned above, care of the Floral Art and Novelty Display, Hotel La Salle, Chicago. Our representative will be on hand to take charge of all shipments upon arrival.

F. Lautenschlager,
Chairman of Publicity.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Mum's the word," the saying is,
That we so often hear;
But it should be chrysanthemum
About this time of year.

Thus versified Samuel Murray, of Kansas City, Mo. "We already have had some stock to inaugurate the season," said he, "but the best is yet to come."

Fine window displays are being made by the Alpha Floral Co., the W. L. Rock Flower Co., the Kellogg Flower & Plant Co. and Arthur Newell.

W. J. Barnes keeps a supply of high-grade palms for the big decorations. He says Phoenix Roebelenii will stand as much hard usage as the common varieties. I noted plants in tubs in a hotel that were extremely dry, yet the foliage was luxuriantly green.

Robert S. Brown is in his eightieth year, and the larger part of the many years has been spent at Thirteenth street and Wabash avenue, where I found the grand old veteran watering a century plant. "I don't know why I do it," said Mr. Brown, looking at me with that keen eye of his, "dragging this hose over what is taxed as thirty-two city lots, and it is all my own."

The Guthrie-Lorenz Co., Des Moines, report good business through the many conventions held in the city.

"Did you ever see carnations so scarce at this time?" asked J. S. Wilson, of the Wilson Floral Co., Des Moines, Ia. It seems that conditions are the same everywhere. The roses and chrysanthemums are fine and business is excellent.

The Kirkwood Floral Co., also of Des Moines, makes a fine display at the new store, which is one of the best locations in town.

"Omaha is having a goodly share of the general prosperity," observed J. J. Hess, of Hess & Swoboda. "The carnival and funerals have every one busy. We have been sending out some unusually fine pieces of late, in which chrysanthemums from California figured largely and helped out splendidly. Our own stock is now coming in and never was better."

The C. H. Frey Co., of Lincoln, Neb., is having great success with its scarlet carnation, Nebraska. I saw the icebox in the downtown store filled with scarcely anything else, and was told that this variety came into bloom around August 1, ahead of any other variety, and will continue in full crop until after Christmas.

The Homewood Greenhouses, of Atchison, Kan., are supplying finely grown Boston and Whitman ferns to the Atchison Seed & Flower Store, one of the most up-to-date stores, which has its seed department on the right and flower department on the left, which is approached by a pergola on a raised tiled floor. A brick wall three feet high acts as a partition. W. M.

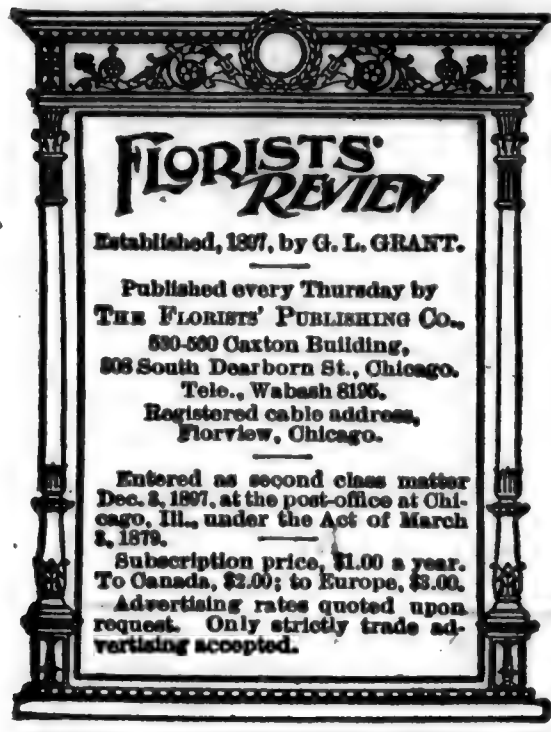

News from Abroad

Hamilton, Bermuda.—The decline of the Harrisii lily bulb industry in the island is shown by the fact that the value of shipments to the United States, invoiced at the consulate here, in 1914 amounted to only $9,079, and in 1915 the value shrunk to only $4,163.

Ghent, Belgium.—The efforts of the Syndicat des Horticultures have resulted in releasing for export most of the azaleas, etc., intended for America, the requirement of the German authorities as to cash payment being abrogated. Labor is scarce and the supply of stock is less than in previous years, but is equal to the requirements of the American trade.

Marseilles, France.—With reference to the large flower-growing industry in this section, U. S. Consul General Gaulin recently reported to Washington: "The scarcity of skilled labor, coupled with a reduced demand, resulting in a large measure from the cessation of trade with belligerent countries, caused a heavy decline in the production of flowers, while prices were generally lower than during the year that preceded the war."

London, England.—In a report to the Agricultural Relief of the Allies Committee, Sir Herbert Matthews, referring to the Somme section recently fought over, says: "The condition of this area is difficult to describe. It has been said that an enemy army may wreck every house and building, burn all the crops, and drive off all the live stock, but that he cannot permanently damage the soil. In this case a large proportion of the surface soil has simply disappeared, partly by the trenching of the Germans, partly by the action of high-explosive shells, and the mining of our own army. It appeared to be a curious mixture of a thin chalky clay, with pure chalk underneath, interspersed with a loam over gravel. It does not seem to me to be commercially feasible to reclaim this area. The cost of leveling it would be considerable, though not excessive per acre over the whole area. But when leveled the top soil will be gone. It will take a generation at least to get sufficient cover on the chalk to carry vegetation; a century to make it of any appreciable value. How large this area may be it yet is impossible to say."

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

No previous presidential election ever had so little effect on the florists' business.

To continue success the florist's good front must always be accompanied by a lot of follow-up work.

For a short, expressive nickname for the members of the F. T. D., let them be known as the "Live Wires."

So GREAT is the general confidence in the good business that lies ahead that the trade is not afraid to take hold of anything that promises to be ready for market in the next nine months.

THE REVIEW has received a handsome copper plate engraved invitation to participate in the State Florists' Association's flower show at Dallas this month. It looked like a bid to a wedding. Those Texans certainly do things up in good shape.

ADVERTISERS are urged to cut out the items that are cleaned up; it is an advantage to everyone to have the advertisement kept up to date; buyer, seller and publisher all are injured by the continued appearance of advertisements of stock which cannot be supplied.

So well do Stuart Low & Co., the well-known British firm, think of a certain American begonia that they are distributing it as "an invaluable continuous winter-flowering plant." But they misspell it "Mrs. J. A. Petersen."

THEY ALL READ THE REVIEW.

When an advertiser makes a proposition of such a nature that only a limited number are interested he should not expect a flood of replies—but where the proposition interests a considerable number the result is different. Like this:

Please kill our ad; we did not know there were as many in the United States as replied to that first insertion.—Hoskins Floral Co., Bismarck, N. D., October 24, 1916.

When you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising you can be pretty sure he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

BERLIN SAYS ALL'S WELL.

W. F. Gude, Washington representative of the S. A. F., has at length received a reply from the State Department, dated October 27, to his letter of September 15 relative to the restrictions at that time said by some to have been placed on the exportation of Belgian plants, especially azaleas. The azaleas already are here. The letter follows:

Referring to your personally expressed desire for information relative to the importation of azaleas and similar goods of Belgian origin, you are informed that the Department has received a report by cablegram dated October 25, 1916, from the American Embassy at Berlin stating, in substance, that the German Foreign Office has received a statement from the Governor General in Belgium that no objection exists to the exportation to the United States of horticultural products. Only a small quantity remains for shipment this year, as, according to a report from economic committee at Ghent, several hundred thousand francs' worth of flowers [plants] were shipped to this country some six weeks ago.

The statement that this year's exportation was not allowed by German authorities is reported to be due to a misunderstanding. This year's exportation was effected through individual applicants and not through the intervention of the Syndicate des Horticulture Belges.

Very truly yours,
Marion Letcher,
Acting Foreign Trade Advisor.

POT FAMINE COMING.

Practically every large manufacturer of flower pots is urging customers to buy now and make sure of a necessary spring supply, predicting that the early part of 1917 will see flower pots scarcer than they ever have been before.

In common with manufacturers in most other lines, the makers of flower pots have been advancing their prices more or less steadily through 1916, the rise now amounting to from twenty-five to thirty-five per cent. This is said to have been necessary in order to keep the potteries in operation. Coal and labor are the principal items which go into the cost of manufacture of flower pots, and each has advanced sharply this year, but all the minor items of business living also have advanced, and the pot business is said today to be not so profitable as it was a couple of years ago before price advances began.

During the summer many of the potteries have been working short-handed, and some of them actually have been closed down, because of the impossibility of finding men to keep them going. The result is that today there are fewer flower pots in the warehouses than at this date in many recent years. Some of the potteries already are unable to supply all sizes for prompt shipment.

As there has been a shortage of flower pots in the early part of each year for several seasons, a considerably flurry is considered certain as soon as the spring demand makes itself felt. Still higher prices are predicted, with much delay in shipments.

FREE FLOWERS A FREE AD.

Did you ever notice how empty the window of the telegraph office is?

Vincent J. Gorly, of Grimm & Gorly, St. Louis, has an idea that seems to hold large possibilities for inexpensive publicity for the telegraph delivery service our trade offers. Mr. Gorly has noted that the windows of telegraph offices seldom have anything in them, and he suggests a vase of flowers, provided by the local florist, who also is to supply a neatly lettered card of suitable size explaining that the florist has correspondents everywhere to whom he can telegraph orders that will get quick attention.

Mr. Gorly suggests that for a certain week, to be agreed upon in advance, every member of the trade who is interested in increasing the out-of-town service feature of the business, maintain such a display in the nearest telegraph office. There is no question that the manager of the telegraph office will like to have the flowers and will display the sign.

THAT DAY IS DONE.

It is feared the day is done when it will be possible for wholesale florists to sell only within the trade. At the moment there is a nation-wide scarcity of good stock, which makes it possible for the wholesale grower of cut flowers or plants to choose his customers; he can discriminate against those who do not pay promptly, against those who make complaints of unwarranted nature, or even against those whose methods of resale he does not consider as desirable to support, but on the whole the production of stock in this country now is so large that when growing conditions are favorable and demand no greater than ordinary, there is a surplus of the less desirable grades, for which the wholesaler is compelled to choose between the dump and a sale outside the trade. There still are growers so fortunate that they have not yet produced more than they could sell to the legitimate trade, but the majority have seen times when it was necessary to go outside or call the stock a total loss. It is a condition that is deplorable, but it is a fact and not a theory that is to be reckoned with.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

City demand last week suffered from one of those periodic slumps which seem to come at certain intervals and for which it is almost impossible to account. Sunday and Monday, especially, were markedly slow. Shipping demand, on the other hand, has been gaining in strength steadily and is now quite brisk. Probably the outstanding feature of the market is the great supply of mums, pompons, and nearly all varieties of roses, which are flooding in, creating a condition almost akin to a glut, although so far at least the stock has been clearing, if at prices averaging considerably lower than heretofore this season. Mums, which up to a week ago were a little backward, have spurted ahead, due probably to the warm weather which obtained during the latter part of last week, and are now well caught up. This greater supply, combined with a slackened demand,

You Will Make a Nice Profit on Our Big Mums and Pompons

THE Mum season is at its height with us—and with our customers. The best mid-season sorts are ready in quantity and prices for first-class stock are distinctly moderate—it is worth the Retailer's best effort to push our stock for the profit he will make and the satisfaction his customers will get. We have all sizes and colors in the big Mums and all types and colors in bunch Mums.

ROSES OF THE BEST

There may be other Roses as fine as ours, somewhere, but we do not know of any large supply that averages such good quality—and you can see for yourself by reading our list that we have all the most popular varieties, the Roses your trade calls for. This week the cut is large and prices are depressed by the competition of Mums, so that we are able to give extra good value.

FINE BEAUTIES

You will have to search far for better Beauties—but why search at all when you can get here all you need? Can furnish any length, but the demand is so good we urge ordering early in the day, as city buyers quickly clean up all our Beauties not needed for shipping orders.

VIOLETS

Now ready to supply good stock of single or double in quantity.

CARNATIONS

You can get of us nice clean stock, stems of fair length.

ORCHIDS

We offer fine Cattleyas in quantity.

VALLEY

You always can get fine Valley here.

EASTER LILIES

While we never are without good Giganteum Lilies, our supply this week is larger than usual. The stock is fine, cut tight for shipping.

has naturally tended toward lower prices. Pompoms are coming in fast but are clearing well.

Roses are of excellent quality and as a rule are clearing well. Beauties are just keeping pace with the demand, while the supply of Hoosier Beauty is not large enough to meet the demand. Mrs. Russell, Champ Weiland, Richmond, Ophelia, Milady, Killarney and Killarney Brilliant are clearing at concessions. Both White Killarney and Double White Killarney, however, are long, without much demand. On the whole, the rose situation may be said to be satisfactory, with prices holding up fairly well for the height of the mum season.

Carnations have improved wonderfully, both as concerns quality and quantity. Low grade stock has practically disappeared from the market, the supply of first-class material being ample to meet the demand. On the whole, carnations are clearing well. Valley remains scarce, while Easter lilies also are few and in little demand. Snapdragon is just holding its own, while sweet peas are still short. Single violets are coming in at a fairly good rate. Although they are rather small, the quality, nevertheless, is good. Eastern violets are not yet so abundant as usual at this date. Cattleyas remain about the same as heretofore, enough to go around at the price.

Greens are coming in well and are clearing evenly. The supply of smilax is now large enough to meet demands. Mexican ivy is also beginning to arrive in good lots.

Mr. Amling's Idea.

E. C. Amling has rather fixed ideas on certain subjects, the prices of flowers and plants, for instance, as he has given them years of study.

"The only reason why certain florists are retailing at the prices they are is because they never ask any more," said Mr. Amling the other day. "If a retailer never asks more than a certain low price, how can he ever get more?

"Let the man who thinks he can get only 50 cents per dozen for carnations try this plan: Have three grades and show them all to each customer—one grade at 35 cents per dozen, another at 50 cents and the third at 75 cents. Be certain each grade is worth what is asked for it, and let each customer take his choice. The number who soon always will take the best grade will surprise the man who thinks 50 cents is the limit in his neighborhood.

"The failure of their home crops, forcing them into the wholesale markets, will be a blessing in disguise to more than one country florist who has been retailing too cheaply the stock he grows, not only retailing at wholesale prices but in some cases retailing at prices below the cost of production.

"The grower who complains of present prices should look around; prices for good stock are on a profitable level; the trouble lies elsewhere. Perhaps the grower is not turning out a grade of goods that will get the money; probably the houses are not producing as much as they should. Take the most successful growers as a standard and, by better growing methods, bring all the others up to a point where they are turning out the same quantity and

Electric Fountains for Progressive Florists

Randall Fountain No. F1B12

Overall diameter, 28 inches; height, 9½ inches. This fountain is furnished with a large and deep liner around water bowl for flowers, as shown. It is broad and low, designed as a large decoration. As a centerpiece for a store or window it is very attractive. Basket is pink and white or any shade desired. Standard mechanical equipment.

FOUNTAIN No. F1B12. Each.....$47.50

The best window display item for any merchant, floral or otherwise, is one which attracts the public.

In the Randall Electric Fountain, of which three types are shown here, the problem of "stopping the public" is solved.

In addition to novelty and beauty, these fountains possess light and motion—a better combination would be hard to find.

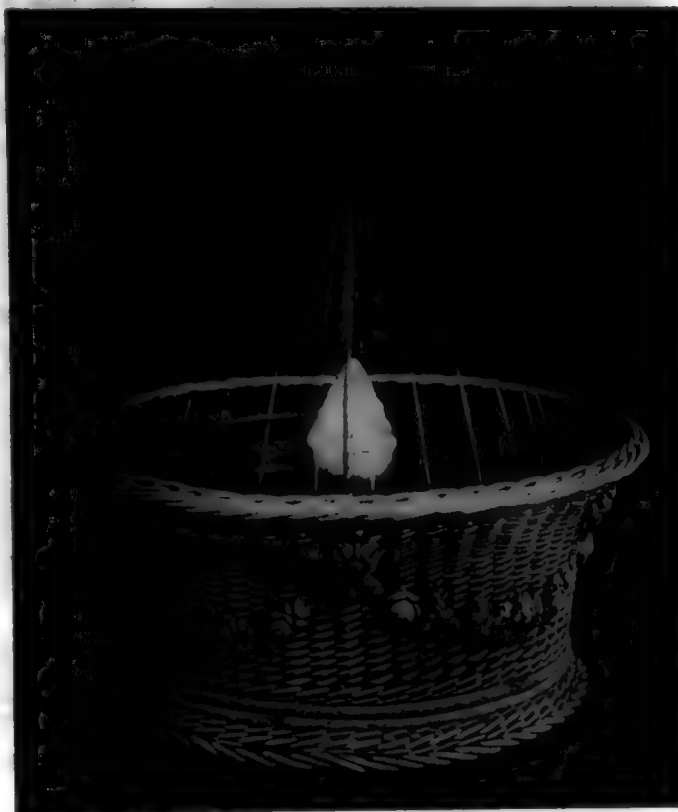

In addition to window display work, the progressive florist will find a host of uses for fountains.

Electric Fountains

Randall Electric Fountains are portable and self-contained. They use the same water over and over, by means of a pump driven by an electric motor. This motor is operated from any electric light socket, on direct or alternating current. No adjustment or assembling required—simply pour in the water, turn the switch and the fountain will run until you stop it.

Florists use fountains for window display, store ornamentation and table decorations. Your customers will buy fountains at a good profit to you.

Randall Fountains are fully covered by patents.

Various Notes.

There is every indication of an unusually attractive show at the Florists' Club's Floral Art and Novelty Display, Hotel La Salle Sunday afternoon and evening, November 12. The retailers appreciate that here will be an opportunity to show their work to the right kind of people, for invitations are being sent to the best spenders in town. The hotel is lending much assistance to the officers of the Florists' Club. Among those who already have arranged for space are the E. Wienhoeber Co., O. J. Friedman, George W. Wienhoeber and Walter Adams, but this is only a beginning.

Gene McGinnis, formerly connected with the flower store of O. J. Friedman in the Congress hotel, last week entered the employ of J. H. McNeilly, 1155 East Sixty-third street.

At C. W. McKellar's, Chief Sculptor Frank Schleiden was busy before Halloween carving funny faces on enormous pumpkins, which subsequently appeared in a number of retailers' windows. This work is so different from most that one can tell it on sight, like the work of other specially gifted artists.

The Garfield Flower Shop, 421 West Sixty-third street, which was recently purchased by A. Iralson and H. Conn, has been completely remodeled. It is now known as the Englewood Flower Shop. Mr. Conn states that during the last two weeks business has improved fully 100 per cent, there being a particularly good demand for blooming plants.

L. Hoeckner has bought a new Buick delivery car for the store at 408 West Division street, which he took over October 23, from Hanna Thielmann. Mr. Hoeckner has been connected with Peter Reinberg for over sixteen years and he does not expect that his new store will necessitate his severing the connection.

a three weeks' eastern trip October 28.

Stock of a new pompon, sport of Acto, is being worked up by Emil Reichling at the greenhouses of Peter Reinberg. This variety, which will be registered shortly, bids fair to a welcome reception on the market, as it appears to combine those qualities which make for a successful pompon. The color is a rich yellow. Mr. Reichling feels confident of success with it.

O. J. Friedman returned October 30 from New York. During Mr. Friedman's absence Victor Bergman found himself exceedingly busy with work for debutante parties and other social functions.

A. T. Pyfer says that the additional space which he recently added to the company's store is standing them in good stead, especially for the mums, which are the bulkiest stock of the year.

When W. J. Smyth's new Pierce-Arrow touring car stands in front of W. J. Smyth's new display windows on Michigan avenue the scene is one of complete harmony.

At a meeting of the Citizens' League, at the Hotel La Salle, October 27, W. N. Rudd, Morgan Park, Ill., president of the Chicago Horticultural Society, attacked in a short, spirited talk, the proposed measure for park consolidation. Mr. Rudd asserted that the bill was "rotten to the core," that it should be fought because it was wrong, for, he stated, it would make the proposed park board "scramble for money" like the state university.

Chicago judges of the C. S. A. met October 28, to pass on new varieties of mums and pompons. The committee consists of N. J. Wiator, chairman; George Asmus and Thomas W. Head and meetings are to be held each Saturday during the season at the store of Wiator Bros. One of the varieties October 28 came from C. C. Pollworth Co., Milwaukee, a yellow that would fill a place as an early Bonnaffon, but the blooms had suffered in transit.

John Mangel is thinking out many novel attractions for the display window of his Palmer House store. His present display features a number of Chinese Mandarin ducks, which are proving highly attractive. A suitable setting for these fowl is created by a stream of water, crossed by a bridge and representing a river flowing between its banks, which winds its way from one side of the window to the other. The background of the window display is composed of roses, mums, orchids, etc. Aside from this, Mr. Mangel also has a pair of golden and silver pheasants in a cage in his conservatory at the rear of the store.

According to Arnold Ringier, of the W. W. Barnard Co., neither bouquet green nor fancy holly will be overabundant this year.

John Zeeh has erected a brick building adjoining his greenhouses at the corner of Madison street and Grove avenue, in Oak Park, which he will occupy as a flower store. It is equipped with mosaic floors, has a large Buchbinder refrigerator and is first-class in every respect. He expects to open it this week.

Poehlmann Bros. Co., at Morton Grove, recently received eight carloads of pecky cypress lumber for bench material. A large importation of French metal wreaths has arrived and advice has been received that the largest of the several orders for green and red frieze from Japan is on the way. Pre-holiday business is now in full swing with the supply department, according to T. E. Waters. A specially prepared ruscus in yellow and red for Thanksgiving is proving a good seller.

An interesting novelty is the stock of Japanese cypresses recently received from Tokyo, Japan, by Percy Jones, Inc. These dwarf evergreens are of slow growth, never attaining a height of more than a few feet, so that a tree 15 years old is but about eighteen inches tall. They are trained upward in a spiral manner, thus presenting a most unique appearance. The method of pricing these trees is also out of the ordinary, as the price is in proportion to the age of the tree and not to its development or shape. Another novelty received from the same source is a lot of round, silk-embroidered, candy boxes. These boxes are about one foot in diameter and contain seven porcelain trays to receive the candy. They sell at the unusual figure of $15 each.

Debutante parties are more than keeping George Wienhoeber busy in his store on Wabash avenue and Washington street. Pompons and baskets are also selling fast. Mr. Wienhoeber says that business has increased markedly since his Washington street entrance was finished.

The Alpha Floral Co., Wabash avenue and Adams street, is selling great numbers of the Good Fairy statues originated by Jesse McCutcheon Raleigh, according to Andrew Cronis. This exceptionally large sale is due in great measure to a most artistically arranged window in which these statues are displayed almost exclusively. So attractive did this window display prove that Mrs. Raleigh noted it in passing and wrote a personal letter of approbation and appreciation to Mr. Cronis, in which she enclosed a picture she had taken of it.

A. Miller, president of the American Bulb Co., has returned from a highly successful trip to Detroit and vicinity. The company now has been in business three months and Secretary Koehler says the progress to date is even greater than had been expected.

There may be better dark pink carnations than Mrs. C. W. Ward, and there may be growers who do it better than Alois Frey, but the stock in the twenty benches in his big new Lord & Burnham house at Crown Point leaves little to be desired.

While experimenting with the preparation of cat-tails for use in Christmas display baskets, D. S. Musser, of Miller & Musser, discovered a means whereby the floss in the flower of the plant is rendered tenacious, so as to enable it to be shaken out in great silky masses, still adhering, however, to the flower.

This makes an attractive novelty. Aside from this, Mr. Musser also prepares cat-tails and various greens in many colors, which make new and novel display effects.

Frank Felke sends word that his friend and neighbor, Paul Wanzig, of Gross Point, suffered a fire loss of $800 in his shed October 30. Mr. Wanzig is a carnation grower.

Bassett & Washburn have received the first carload of materials which are to go into the construction of seven new houses to be built at Gregg, Ill. These houses are to be 28x300 feet and will be used for carnations exclusively. C. L. Washburn says that they intend to plant early and grow all of the stock indoors. The houses are expected to be completed by spring.

The Bohannon Floral Co., 57 East Monroe street, is making orchids and mums the features of a most attractive window display. That L. R. Bohannon is still as busy as ever boosting the F. T. D. is proved by two large placards which find place in the window. The company will formally open the new, large store in the building on the corner of Michigan avenue and Monroe street at the end of the week.

P. L. McKee, of the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Co., reports that the company has contracted for the construction of three new steel frame houses for R. P. Atwell, Fort Dodge, Ia. These houses are to be 35x200 feet, two to be used for carnations and one for roses. Heat will be furnished by a vacuum system. A brick service building 36x75 feet is also to be built. The total cost of the plant will be about $30,000. Work will be commenced November 16.

The Ionia Pottery Co., Ionia, Mich., of which Harvey E. Kidder is manager and George Dysinger traveling representative, has purchased the flower pot business of the Haeger Potteries, of Dundee and Elgin, Ill.

The Haeger concern manufactured a number of other lines, but during the time it was in the pot business a large trade was developed. The sale to the Ionia company was made for the purpose of permitting concentration of energies upon the other lines of manufacture and included machinery, stock and good will. The machinery has been removed to Ionia and installed as an important addition to the facilities here, which have been enlarged from year to year to keep pace with the

The Market.

The increasing supply of chrysanthemums last week showed its effect on other stock. The weather was clear and warm, and stock came in with a rush. The wholesale houses were filled with mums of all varieties and of all grades. Prices dropped to a low figure for the poor grades, and buyers made their own prices. The large, fancy stock, however, held up in price the early part of the week, but this, too, came in for a cut in price as the week came to a close. The demand was large; buyers took advantage of the great quantities arriving. Roses were too plentiful and prices fell to $15 per thousand, which was considered a good price at the end of the week. Beauties alone held up well. Extra fine Killarney, Ward, Ophelia and Russell are coming in. Carnations, too, are arriving in large quantities. Prices on these range from $1 to $3 per hundred. Orchids and valley clean up daily at good prices. Violets are becoming better in quality and bring from 25 cents to 35 cents per hundred. Easter lilies are not overplentiful and the demand for them is large. Asparagus is in large demand; also adiantum and smilax. Fancy ferns sell well at all times.

Various Notes.

The St. Louis Florists' Club will hold its monthly meeting November 9 in Odd Fellows' hall. Secretary Joseph Windler is preparing strong notices to bring out a good attendance. A session of the officers will be held this week, when a program for the meeting will be mapped out.

The show house of Fred C. Weber, facing Olive street, attracted a great deal of attention last week, some extra fancy cut mums and plants being featured. Mr. Weber reports a busy week with social work.

Fred Foster advertised a chrysanthemum show to be held at his store this week. He had an abundance of extra fine, cut mums, roses and carnations on display. Mr. Foster says business was large last week.

The Lady Florists' Home Circle will hold an important meeting November 8 at the home of Mrs. George B. Windler, 5059 Dolore avenue. Plans for the entertaining of the visiting ladies to the spring flower show will be made.

The St. Louis Seed Co. is booking orders for holly for Christmas delivery. Martin Moran says orders for holiday supplies are coming in by every mail. The business in bulbs was the largest this firm has ever had.

Paul Ahner, of Kirkwood, says he will begin cutting some extra quality Bonnaffon mums this week. His cuts of Enchantress and White Enchantress carnations are of good quality.

At John T. Milliken's place, at Crescent, Mo., known as the Mosgiel Gardens, the men have started cutting Beauties. This cut promises to be

PHILADELPHIA.The Market.

There are two sides in the cut flower market, just as there are two sides in the national election. The result of the struggle between these two sides in the cut flower market is seldom in doubt during the first week in November; it certainly is not in doubt this time. Just as the struggle between the Republicans and the Democrats in the national election is determined by those who join one side or the other for some reason, so is the result in the cut flower market determined. Early in November there are large accessions to the side of the sellers and large defections from the side of the buyers. The reason for this is that every florist who boasts a greenhouse becomes a producer now. He is apt to raise chrysanthemums, to sell them to his customers, to his neighbors and sometimes to put them on the wholesale market. The old Scotch saying that "many littles make a mickle" applies here. It may be that no one of these florists who are on the side of the buyers at ordinary times puts a great many flowers on the market, but the aggregate production of these greenhouses is enormous. They take a large number of usually good buyers over to the other side. The result is a vastly overloaded market, in which the sellers have no show whatever. It is a wise grower, of flowers other than chrysanthemums, who limits his production at this season.

This introductory paragraph, with its political comparison, will clearly portray the conditions in the market today. There is no stability to prices. A certain number of flowers are sold at fair figures. The balance are "gotten rid of," as the sellers say, in unsatisfactory transfers. The real truth of the situation is that there are today nearly, if not quite, enough chrysanthemums to meet all demands without the assistance of any other flowers. The business, being distributed among so many varieties of flowers, is carried on at a loss.

Roses, being in heavy crop, have suffered most. Many of the growers have restricted production in order to save their plants. No one would believe this who saw the way the boxes of roses are coming into town. The stories of bargain sales are numerous. Carnations, being in smaller supply and, as one expert put it, in better hands, are not suffering quite so much.

Chrysanthemums, while they have sold a little better than anything else, are hardly bringing prices that can be called satisfactory. Perhaps this is due as much as anything to the high pitch of expectations, due to munition orders and other big business, for prices are fully equal to those of last year, but then last year was below par. The late William K. Harris was fond of saying that early chrysanthemums, meaning by that those that bloom before the big shows of the first week in November, were undesirable and unprofitable. He based this idea on the irregularity of the early demand, saying that when business started in earnest chrysanthemums would pay well. Let us hope it will be so this season.

Phil Makes a Pilgrimage.

History tells us of the faithful Mohammedans who journeyed to Mecca; of the Christians who traveled great distances to Jerusalem; so the scribe of today is emboldened to tell of a real rose pilgrimage. It happened in this wise: My Maryland has been, and is, a grand rose with us. There was a time, not long ago, when My Maryland was not a prime favorite, when we would hold up a bunch of fine Maryland and say, "Here are the own sisters of the American Rose Society's blue ribbon winners," only to be told, "They are nice; give us fifty of your Killarney." That day has passed. My Maryland now is our leading rose. So we felt, for sentimental reasons, that we really ought to pay a visit to John Cook and thank him personally for originating such a wonderful rose. So a letter was written and a cordial reply received—and that is how the trip from Philadelphia to Baltimore came about.

The long-planned excursion came off on a recent Tuesday. It came as near to being a failure as any gloriously successful expedition can possibly come. It happened in this way: The chores finished and a hasty luncheon dispatched, we took a midday train from Broad street station; not one of those slow trains that stop at every wayside station, but a flyer that stops almost nowhere until it reaches Baltimore, an express that would give us ample time to see Mr. Cook and everything he wanted to show us. That was the way it should have worked out, but it didn't. The engine broke down; then something got wrong with the forward coach. We sat in the meadows for ages, while two trains that left much later than we did whizzed by us. Finally we reached Baltimore just a little before the time we had planned leaving there on our return homeward. This was serious. There was so little daylight left that failure seemed certain. Still we pushed on to the store on North Charles street, where, with the assistance of Mr. Cook's daughter, we obtained directions how to proceed and secured a car. The car threatened to break down, but it was only a threat. The distance of perhaps ten miles was covered and we arrived at our destination, a fine country place, with about twenty minutes of daylight remaining.

Mr. Cook came out of the house as we drew up. His greeting was delightfully cordial, making us feel that we were welcome on the instant. As Mr. Cook conducted us to the greenhouses we told him rather lamely, we fear, of our admiration for his rose. Then came the surprise of the afternoon, a surprise and pleasure that made broken down engines and cranky forward coaches of no account whatever. After walking quickly through a couple of houses, Mr. Cook took us into a rose house, stopped about halfway down the front walk and remarked simply, "This is the best seedling I have ever produced," pointing to a group of plants, some of them in full bloom. We were startled. Right in front of us were some of the largest roses we had ever seen, immense flowers borne erect on long, stiff stems that were bountifully clothed with fine foliage. The color was deep, rich pink in the center, shaded to white on the outer expanded petals. It was a cross, Mr. Cook said, between Frau Karl Druschki, sometimes styled the white American Beauty, and Mrs. Charles Russell. He added sententiously, "It takes two big roses to make a big rose." He might truly have further added, "and a skillful hybridizer," but he didn't.

Then we were introduced to Mr. Cook's two sons, and shown an extremely fine lot of seedlings. Crosses between My Maryland and Ophelia abounded. There was evidence of a determined effort to produce a good commercial yellow. Mr. Cook's two leading varieties, My Maryland and Radiance, are grown in quantity. There is also a deep pink sport of My Beside the roses, there are palms and orchids, carnations, chrysanthemums and violets. Despite the fact that some of the houses were hurried through and others skipped entirely, it was so dark when we reached the last house, an ideal north side fern house, that it was hard to see whether the healthy looking inmates were Adiantum hybridum or Asparagus plumosus.

We bade Mr. Cook farewell, with earnest assurance of a most delightful visit and warm appreciation of his kindness.

The Market.

Market conditions last week were not so satisfactory as those of preceding weeks. There is a large quantity of flowers arriving daily and the quality is good with most of the items.
The stock does not move fast, although the demand is steady. Probably on account of the many political meetings, there is little entertaining going on;
the demand for wedding and funeral work has fallen off considerably.

Some fine chrysanthemums are seen, and combinations are especially good. The good varieties, such as Chrysolora, Oconto, Touset, Bonnaillon, Pacific Supreme and Smith's Advance, are seen. Pompons in yellow, white, pink and bronze shades are more plentiful and sell well. Carnations as yet are not numerous, but they are improving as far as length of stem and size of bloom are concerned. Roses are good and sell fairly well. At the week end they were considerably cheaper and many retailers ran specials. The demand for orchids is not large, nor is valley in special demand. Some good bouvardias reach us in pink and white, but they move rather slowly. The supply of violets meets the present demands. A few gladioli reach the market and sell easily. Easter lilies are good and clear more easily than previously. Candytuft is good and sold satisfactorily at the end of the week for cemetery use. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

Visitors last week included George Hampton, of J. G. Neidinger Co., Philadelphia; James Karins, of Henry A. Dreer, Inc., Philadelphia; T. T. Fryer, of the Tajimi Co., New York; John Ward, of Mumford, N. Y.; S. W. Morgan, of Le Roy, N. Y.; S. Enright, of Wertheimer Bros., New York.

Some fine pink, salmon and white single bouvardias are being cut at the greenhouses of Fred Vick.

Halloween windows have been popular this week. The Rochester Floral Co. display was chiefly of foliage and lanterns. H. E. Wilson had a good arrangement of foliage, cornstalks, pumpkins and yellow and white mums,

George Asmus Orders Another Buchbinder Refrigerator

SCHILLER'S MADISON STREET STORE

Chicago, September 20, 1916.

Buchbinder Bros.,
Refrigerator Manf.,
316 Milwaukee Ave.,
Chicago, Ill.,

Gentlemen:-

The display refrigerator you installed for us in our exclusive North side store in 1914 has given such perfect satisfaction that we take great pleasure in giving you an order for another large one for our West Madison street establishment. Your refrigerator has been put to a thorough test in every respect and we find that we have not used as much ice to operate this box as we did for the smaller one and believe it has paid for itself already. It keeps stock fresh longer than any refrigerator we have ever used and the fact that we have given you this second order will prove that we are certainly pleased with your first refrigerator.

Your refrigerator has improved the general appearance of our store to a great extent besides giving us almost triple space which is an item of much importance, especially during the holiday periods when every foot of available floor space is needed.

You may refer any prospective buyers to us and we will be pleased to state the facts just as we have found them and in closing we wish to mention that our dealings with your firm will make this a pleasure indeed.

Respectfully yours,
SCHILLER THE FLORIST.

WHEN making a delivery the first impression is made by the box. Of course the flowers contained in it cannot fail to please, but you did not make the flowers. Your contribution toward the perfection of the whole is the box. The Market.

Chrysanthemums now are taking the lead over all other cut flowers. Many varieties are available, both large and small, and all of them bring good prices. Despite the numerous chrysanthemums, roses and carnations are in good demand and bring topnotch prices for this time of the year. The market for lilies has been a trifle sluggish, but the flowers make 10 and 12 cents each. Weddings and receptions have brought to valley and orchids an excellent demand. Sweet peas are becoming more plentiful and range in prices from $1 to $1.50 per hundred. Single violets arrive to clear at 50 to 60 cents per hundred.

A notable addition to the offerings is yellow daisies. A goodly supply of short snapdragons is on hand and these move at a fair price. A fair showing of pot chrysanthemums is made. Plumosus and Sprengeri have been in better demand and smilax has dropped to 15 cents per string. Fern leaves have been plentiful, but their quality extremely poor.

Various Notes.

The Benson-Oilar Floral Co. held its opening October 27. The store was elaborately decorated for the occasion and the guests were entertained by a string orchestra and presented with souvenirs.

Charles Randall has been displaying a beautiful seedling chrysanthemum of the large type. It is an exquisite shade of mauve-pink, with petals curving into a large flat head. William Hack has an extraordinary silver-pink Touset and William Hammett is possessor of a new burnt orange Touset.

Herman Young, of the Smith &

he believes that Halloween is beginning to be a big day for florists.

The city has been host to 12,000 teachers of the Indiana State Teachers' Association, who met here last week for a three days' session. The local stores and the city market were places of interest for the pedagogues and many purchased plants with which to decorate their schoolrooms. Saturday, October 28, a football game between Indiana and Tufts colleges was scheduled for the conventionists' benefit.
This caused a big day for the trade—red corsage bouquets, red and white roses and carnations, and large white chrysanthemums were in great demand.

diana-Tufts football game. It was necessary to obtain more flowers, as the stock was cleaned up by noon.

Herbert Heihl, of Wertheimer Bros., New York, called at some of the local stores last week.

EFFECTIVE SOW BUG REMEDY.

We have an acre or more of Asparagus plumosus under cultivation, but the stock is suffering severely through the depredations of sow bugs. In many instances the insects have eaten away approximately one-third of the roots of the plants, and although we have combated them in half a dozen different ways the stock still suffers; and the bugs increase like a plague.

Is there any real, up-to-date and satisfactory method known to you whereby this pest can be eliminated?

D. E.—Ont.

The usual methods employed in poisoning sow bugs, by means of mixtures of corn meal or wheat middlings with sugar and Paris green, probably are among the various ways tried by the correspondent in combating these pests, so we only mention the common methods in passing, and suggest a thorough dusting of both plants and soil with the best grade of pyrethrum powder that can be procured. This material is becoming rather scarce and is much higher in price than it was a year ago, owing to the war.

W. H. T.

Sewell, N. J.—After touching on the high cost of everything and the absolute need for strict economy, John L. North concludes: "And I have decided to cut out my after-dinner smoke and spend the price on a two years' subscription to The Review."

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Business last week was satisfactory. Stock has been both plentiful and good and, from the retailers' standpoint, the prices are right. Snapdragon, in pink, white and yellow, now brings from $8 to $12 per hundred and is in fair demand because of the increasing number of dinner decorations. There still are quantities of outdoor chrysanthemums and dahlias. This necessarily has a depressing effect on all other flowers and particularly on roses. The weather continues warm and such frosts as have visited this locality have been so light as to cause little damage.

American Beauty roses are more plentiful and exceptionally fine, bringing, however, only from $1.50 to $3 per dozen. Single violets are coming in more liberally and the demand is good at 50 cents per hundred. There is a marked improvement in the quality of carnations and they are more plentiful. Good carnations clean up quickly at $3 per hundred and, in view of the influx of other stock, there are enough in this grade to supply all demands. Gardenias are coming in reasonably well, but there are not enough of these to go around at $3 per dozen. Orchids are somewhat less plentiful than they have been and the price has stiffened to $6 and $9 per dozen. The market is overstocked with fine, long-stemmed chrysanthemums and these are offered at as low as $4 per hundred and even under these conditions hundreds are going to waste daily.

Various Notes.

Among the visitors of the week was A. N. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn., who came here from Baltimore.

The bowling team of the Florists' Club seems to have taken a slump and the individual averages of the members are not what they should be. In their game with the Park team, the Florists scored 411, 442 and 452, while their opponents scored 500, 471 and 472.

A novel show is being held this week at the store of Fred H. Kramer. A conservatory at the rear of the store has been decorated with chrysanthemums and autumn foliage, and tables in the center and along the sides contain nothing but bulbs. The contents of about 100 cases have been used in the conservatory, the store and the window, where an excellent display, backed by a large, framed picture of an ocean liner, has been made.

Quite a number of park superintendents came to Washington at the conclusion of their recent convention and made a sight-seeing tour. Among them were John F. Walsh, Bronx park, New York; Una E. Keith, Bridgeport, Conn., and Abraham W. Merkel, Zoological park, New York.

The feature of the week was the marriage of Miss Margaret Preston Draper to Prince Andrea Boncompagni. The ballroom of the Draper home was transformed into a private chapel. The color scheme followed the Italian colors of red, white and green, American Beauties and chrysanthemums being principally used. The wedding breakfast was served at thirty-five small tables. The decorations, the finest seen in Washington for some time, were furnished by Gude Bros. Co., which had been preparing for the event for several weeks. The stock was brought in from the greenhouses in the pink of condition and attracted a great deal of attention.

This is the week of the chrysanthemum show annually held by the Department of Agriculture.

Growers are congratulating themselves on being free of the troubles incident to the coal famine which is threatening Washington and which has already made itself felt. All of the florists called up by the Washington correspondent of The Review report having laid in their season's supply in the spring and early summer, having taken heed to the warnings appearing in this paper of probable trouble ahead. However, there are some who would like to have a little larger supply on hand, but before these feel the pinch of a short-

The Market.

The usual slump in prices incidental to the chrysanthemum season occurred a trifle earlier than usual this season. It is something to be expected each year and creates no surprise. While values have dropped considerably, the market is not in the demoralized condition we have seen it in former years and the surplus as yet is not large. Some of the late-flowering mums, as Bonaffon, now are arriving. Bonaffon continues the greatest seller in the entire list. The extreme price for fancies at present is $16 per hundred. Good pompons are seen and these sell well. Roses have temporarily to take a back seat. They are selling more slowly and values have declined in some cases to as low as 50 cents per hundred, but the general line sells at from $1 to $8 per hundred, small quantities only exceeding the higher figure. Carnations average $1 per hundred lower than a week ago. They are quite abundant and the quality is steadily improving. Violets, both double and single, are somewhat druggy; the continued warm weather affects them.

Snapdragons for the season are unusually good. Pink colors are selling best. Lilies are selling well and the demand for valley for weddings is good. A few sweet peas are arriving, but their stems as yet are short. Yellow marguerites are making good prices. Bachelor's buttons do not clean up as well as they did. Cosmos, candytuft and calendulas sell indifferently. Catleyas are abundant and there is a good assortment of other orchids. Asparagus moves somewhat better. In flowering plants chrysanthemums are the leaders, Flower Exchange Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Boston Flower Exchange, Inc., was held at Young's hotel October 28, when there was an attendance of over 125 stockholders, growers and invited guests. The tables were never more beautifully decorated, the most choice new varieties of roses, carnations and snapdragons being included. The banquet served was, if anything, superior to those served in former years, and that is saying a good deal. A short business session followed the banquet, with President W. C. Stickel in the chair.

The reports were all accepted and the board of directors unanimously re-elected. They are A. Christensen, C. A. Paine, L. H. Mann, W. C. Stickel, Geo. Cartwright, S. J. Goddard, A. A. Pembroke, A. S. Parker and H. H. Bartsch. W. C. Stickel made a splendid toast-master for the postprandial exercises. The first speaker was James Methven, president of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, who extended the greetings of that body and asked for the support of all commercial growers. William H. Elliott, president of the Boston Co-operative Market, spoke for that body. He dwelt on the necessity of securing higher prices for flowers to help offset the tremendous increases in labor, coal, paint, glass, iron, paper, twine, boxes and every kind of florists' supplies. William H. Carr was introduced as a recently married salesman and spoke feelingly but hopefully for the newly-weds.

J. K. M. L. Farquhar responded on behalf of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, asking the support of the growers in the exhibitions at Horticultural hall. W. J. Stewart and W. N. Craig responded for the press. The former sang Annie Laurie and was warmly applauded. J. T. Butterworth made his usual humorous speech. He said that Aroostook county, Me., would grow finer narcissus bulbs than Holland, as it had the ideal soil and climate, but that he had as yet been unable to get anyone to take up their culture, although he had proved that the bulbs could be grown there of grand quality. E. S. Morse, one of the auditors for the Flower Exchange, said that ninety-five per cent in dividends had now been paid by the corporation, which was splendidly managed. They had an invested surplus of over $10,000, in addition to $3,393 cash on hand, October 15, 1916. W. J. Thurston spoke interestingly of the increase in business at the new as compared with the old market.

Professional entertainers provided some splendid songs and declamations and an efficient orchestra furnished an abundance of inspiring music. One of the great features of the evening was a straw vote taken for president. Out of the ninety-five ballots cast Wilson secured only fifteen, while Hughes had seventy-seven. The result was received with enthusiastic applause. The singing of the national anthem brought to a close a most delightful evening.

Various Notes.

William H. Elliott now is marketing a fine, bushy lot of pot chrysanthemums. Some of his leaders now are Chalfont in several colors, J. H. White, Mrs. Robinson, Bon Ton and Golden Dawn. He has a superior cut of roses. Specially fine are Hadley, which is of superb quality, Ophelia, Miller and Sunburst. Some fine Kaisersins still are being cut and a large crop of singles.

A wholesalers' protective association is being formed in Boston. This is something that has been sorely needed for many years. A restriction of the now almost unlimited credit system to thirty days, and the charging for telephone calls, flower boxes, etc., are a few of the changes meditated. Such an organization should command the earnest support of every wholesaler and must have it to be the complete success desired.

At Welch's some fine chrysanthemums, roses and carnations are being received. Morning Glow is a leader among carnations, being persistently called for. The shipping trade is good.

A. H. Hews & Co. report that shortage of labor is seriously affecting their output of pots. They have had to turn down numerous orders from a distance and endeavor to satisfy the big demand nearer home.

A. Sorenson, of Marlboro, is one of the first to ship in Bonnaffon mums in quantity. He also has fine blooms of Mrs. H. Robinson and Charles Rager. His Nelrose snapdragons are extra fine.

The annual fall show, which opened at Horticultural hall November 1, seemed likely to be the best Boston has had for some years. October 31 a large number of exhibits had already been staged and the quality was first-class.

The many friends of Thomas Pegler were pleased to see him at the wholesale markets October 28; also, at the Flower Exchange banquet, of which organization he formerly was a director. Mr. Pegler has sold his florists' business at Brunswick, Me., and soon will start as grower for Ernest Saunders, at Lewiston, Me., who has the largest cut flower range in Maine.

At Penn's, wedding and funeral orders continue to keep the staff busy. Henry Penn has all arrangements completed for a flower show to be held in his store November 8 to 10, for cut flowers from commercial growers, for which cash prizes will be offered. There undoubtedly will be a liberal response from the growers, while the public on this busy street are sure to be attracted in thousands. Penn's are surely the people for persistent publicity and it is this that pays.

Paul E. Richwagen, of Needham, is cutting a grand lot of his beautiful pink snapdragon, Virginia, unquestion-ably the finest of its color seen on the Boston market. Mr. Richwagen also has some other excellent colors in snapdragons.

At the store of T. F. Galvin, Inc., on Park street, some attractive groups of pink ericas, orchids and crotons fill one window. A good number of wedding decorations have been done recently and fall trade is good.

The Welch Bros. Co. notes an increase in shipping trade. Its growers keep the company well supplied with excellent flowers.

Wax Bros. filled a good number of wedding orders last week, including the double wedding of the daughters of Judge Robert D. Harris, of Bridgewater, Mass.

J. T. Butterworth has a grand crop of Cattleya labiata. He has some of the beautiful Cattleya Miss Williams, carrying ten flowers per stalk. Other orchids in flower include a quantity of fancy cypripediums, Dendrobium Phalanopsis and odontoglossums.

hall, November 21, a number of other local societies have been invited to be present. Mr. Davey's subject is "Tree, Insect, Bird." The annual nomination of officers will be held the same evening.

Among the flowering plants noted at Carbone's on Boylston street are camellias, ericas, dipladenias, nerines, begonias and chrysanthemums. Business here and at the wholesale warehouse on Congress street is good.

October proved to be a generally clear and warm month, with little rainfall. Since the middle of August we have had hardly any rain in Boston and the ground is distressingly dry.

Florists' Bowling League.

The standing of the Florists' Bowling League up to and including October 26 is as follows:

Team—	Won	Lost
Flower Exchange	7	1
McAlpine & McDonald	6	2
Galvin's	6	2
Waban Conservatories	6	2
Carbone's	4	4
New England Supply Co.	4	4
H. M. Robinson's	3	5
Flower Market	2	6
B. A. Snyder & Co.	2	6
Penn's	0	8

The winning teams October 26 were Flower Exchange, McAlpine & McDonald, Galvin's, Waban Conservatories and New England Florists' Supply Co. John Guerineau had the highest single score, 122, and the highest triple, 308.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y.

At the monthly meeting of the Oyster Bay Horticultural Society, October 25, President Walker appointed Robert Wright, F. A. Gale and Alfred Lahodney to judge the exhibits of the evening. The prizes were awarded as follows: For mums, to Joseph Robinson; for celery, to Frank Petroccia; for cosmos, to Andrew O'Neil; for antirrhinums, to F. Kyle; for seedling mum, to Charles Milburn. F. Petroccia showed a nice dish of his new fall strawberry.

An essay on trees, by Arthur Smith, of Madison, N. J., was accorded a vote of thanks. The schedule for the show November 9 was distributed and a number of special prizes were donated. Three new members were elected.

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, Kirby B. White, Detroit, Mich.;
Secretary-Treasurer, C. H. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

JOHN B. DAVIES, Sturgeon Bay, Wis., stopped in Chicago last week on his way home from Saint Anthony, Idaho.

A CORN show is to be held at Shenandoah, Ia., with A. M. Eldridge, secretary of the Iowa Seed Dealers' Association, as one of the prime movers.

It is reported that the crop of onion sets yielded at the best only one-third of the normal. On the other hand, the quality is said to be the best that has been harvested in years.

A LIBERAL rainfall last week in many sections of the southland materially increased the demand for seasonable seeds, according to W. B. Ewing, of McKay, Reece & Co., Nashville, Tenn.

THE time has come again for the burning of midnight oil and the speedy completion of the catalogue. The cost will be much greater than in other years and the perplexity as to supply and prices at least as great as heretofore.

THE well-known British firm of Watkins & Simpson, London, with whom a large number of readers of The Review have dealings, recently has removed to new and commodious premises built by them at 27, 28 and 29 Drury Lane.

At St. James Episcopal church, Philadelphia, November 1, occurred the wedding of W. Atlee Burpee II and Miss Jeanette D. Lee. After a honeymoon trip Mr. and Mrs. Burpee will be at home at St. James Apartments, Thirteenth and Walnut streets.

DUTCH houses, including at least one that this season made deliveries on its advance orders for French bulbs, are soliciting orders for 1917 crop at an advance of exactly fifty per cent over what they asked one year ago, Paper Whites at 30 francs against 20 francs at this time last year.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made that the partnership existing between Robert H. Black and Clarence Wedge, who have been conducting a business at Albert Lea, Minn., under the title of "Black's Seeds," has been dissolved. Mr. Wedge succeeds the firm and the seeds formerly vouchered for as Black's will be sold under the banner of "Wedge Seeds."

THE premium lists for the Devils Lake, N. D., show and pure seed contest of the North Dakota Improved Seed Growers' Association are ready for distribution, and copies may be had from Secretary H. L. Bolley, botanist of the agricultural college at Devils Lake. Cash premiums for field seeds exceed $460. All contestants must have seeds for sale.

THOMAS SHELTON, who was one of the four original partners in the Southwestern Seed Co., which began business at Fayetteville, Ark., January, 1903, took over the entire business, having purchased all the interests both in the seed store and greenhouses, including the real estate and the dwelling on greenhouse property. The business will be continued under the name of the Southwestern Seed & Floral Co. The greenhouse part of the business will be enlarged and developed with the idea of producing sufficient cut flowers, plants and other stock for the retail store, which supplies the local trade and surrounding territory, and later on some stock will be grown for the trade.

J. C. LEONARD, of the Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, has just returned from Wisconsin, where he spent October harvesting potatoes.

THERE is a good advance demand for canners' varieties of peas for next year's planting, according to Arnold Ringier, of the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago.

ACCORDING to the government's bureau of crop estimates, 130 tomato canneries are idle this year, although for those operating the acreage under tomatoes for canning has increased from 96,338 in 1915 to 129,034.

ALEXANDER HINCHUK & Co., 5 Beekman street, New York, are the American representatives of the Russian house of that name. They are at present engaged in investigating the possibilities of marketing Russian seeds in this country, especially sugar beet, castor, mustard, etc.

THE great scarcity of spinach seed is shown by the fact that whereas this seed ordinarily sells at from 8 to 12 cents per pound, actual sales have been made at 75 cents. Many dealers, however, are refusing to sell at even this high price, but are holding out for the almost prohibitive figure of $1 per pound. This scarcity is due to the fact that most of the supply of spinach seeds in this country is imported from Holland and Germany, from which countries it is now impossible to procure them, Holland having but recently prohibited their export. The stock that is at present in this country is practically all hold-over from last year.

HANDS ACROSS THE SEA

To better handle our increased European business, we have established a branch at Rotterdam—the largest and most important port of the Continent—with a reliable and competent force in charge.

Our favorable location to the fields—particularly Holland bulbs, plants and nursery stock—assures us an advantage to know crop and market conditions, to secure novelties, as also to personally inspect stock of our growers.

Being at the gateway—we can forward our shipments with promptness and care, at least of expense and to best advantage of our customers.

With our enormous Japanese lily business, we are now in a better position to handle the Dutch bulb, plant and nursery business as well, and it will be to the best interest of the trade to place their orders with us—either direct or through our New York office.

THE ORIGINAL DISCLAIMER?

We are much interested in reading the article in The Review of October 19 on the address of A. L. Stone, president of the American Seed Analysts' Association, particularly that paragraph referring to "How Old Is the Disclaimer?" We find we published a disclaimer in our catalogue of 1876 and we have issued same with slight variations every year since then. The original reading was the following:

"Whilst we exercise the greatest care to have all seeds pure and reliable, it is hereby mutually agreed between ourselves and the purchaser of our seeds, that we do not warrant same, and are not in any respect liable or responsible for seeds sold by us, or for any loss or damage arising from any failure thereof in any respect."

J. M. Thorburn & Co.

MCCULLOUGH WINS ON ACME.

It was recorded some time ago that E. W. Conklin & Son, Inc., had brought action against the J. Chas. McCullough Seed Co., of Cincinnati, for infringement of trade-mark and for unfair competition in the use of the word "Acme." The District Court of the United States for the Southern District of Ohio now has passed on the case, finding for the defendant in the following decision:

At the close of the argument, the court expressed the opinion that the defendant's claim of prior use of the word "Acme" and the letters "J. C. McC." in connection therewith upon bags and other receptacles in which timothy seed had been sold by J. Chas. McCullough, whose rights in 1913 were transferred to the defendant, was clearly established. A decree for defendant would have been entered then, but counsel for plaintiff urged earnestly the point that the use by defendant and its predecessor of the word "Acme" and the initials of "J. C. McC." was shown by the testimony to indicate merely grade or quality.

There was much testimony on the part of defendant's witnesses that the word and the initials did indicate the best quality and grade of timothy seed. If the evidence disclosed nothing else than that, the plaintiff would be entitled to a decree. But it discloses a great deal more. The use of the word "Acme" and the initials of "J. C. McC." indicated also source or origin, as well as excellence, and they were known to the trade as indicating both quality and origin. This being so, the plaintiff's case cannot be successfully maintained and the bill will be dismissed at plaintiff's costs.

The respondent used "Acme" and the initials "J. C. McC." for all kinds of grass seeds, while the plaintiff used "Acme" and the initials "E. W. C." only as a trade-mark for timothy.

In view of the conclusion reached on the merits of the case it will not be necessary to decide the question whether or not the allegation in the bill that plaintiff used "Acme" with the initials "E. W. C." for all kinds of grass seeds, since it is untrue, would warrant a dismissal of the bill for that cause.

take care of our growing business when the building is finished. The seed business," continued Mr. Harnden, "is problematic. We have not had a normal growing season for five years, but this does not say that the next one also will be abnormal. We planted forty acres of sweet corn for seed, with no returns. From a similar sowing of field corn we received a little. I made a tour of the bean-growing section of California and was amazed at what I saw. There are tremendous possibilities in that state for providing us with beans of all kinds, especially Limas, such a sort as Kentucky Wonder, and onions, too. Speaking of onions reminds me of our experience this year in sowing seed for an estimated yield of 6,000 bushels of sets—we received 1,600 bushels. Yes, I heard of that basket of onions that created such interest at the vegetable growers' convention at Chicago. We secured that strain, like this: I noted in passing a commission house one day a crate of onions, of a strain I had not yet seen. I immediately purchased it and had the bulbs set out for seed. We placed no great value on the stock, but distributed it. I believe it is the finest onion on the market today. No, we do not control the stock any more. My son, Glen C., is relieving me of much of the heavy end of the business, allowing me to give closer attention to my duties as president of the board of fire and water commissioners," continued Mr. Harnden, with a merry twinkle in his eye as he handed me his card.

T. Lee Adams, of Kansas City, is enlarging the insecticide department of the big seed business through the abandonment of this line by the Missouri Seed Co., which intends to specialize in field seeds.

Hubbard's Seed Store, of Topeka, Kan., reports good early sales of bulbs, most of which arrived in good season. It is noted in passing that hardly any of the shipments is received complete, and many bulbs show the effects of delay in transit.

The Ross Bros. Seed Co., of Wichita, Kan., has been reorganized after the decease of its founder. L. B. McCausland is manager and has put new life into this sterling, long-established house by remodeling and introducing the better methods.

CELERY CULTURE AND STORAGE.

I would like to know the best method of growing celery and how to take care of it during winter. I have 20,000 plants set out in double rows, five feet apart. These were planted about the middle of August and seem to be coming on fairly well. S. H.—Mo.

Keep the celery well cultivated until it is hilled. In your latitude you perhaps begin to hill it up about the middle of October. This can be done partly with the plow, but as you have double rows it will be necessary to use the hands to work some soil in between the plants. It is not a general practice to tie up the heads before earthing up, but if you will give them one tie around each, with raffia or soft twine, it will prevent breaking of the stalks and make the hilling up much easier. The plants should be hilled up so as to cover the plants as nearly as possible before a temperature of 8 to 10 degrees below freezing occurs. With an extremely dry atmosphere and soil, such a freeze may do no harm, but if the ground is wet and the plants are growing vigorously, such a temperature would be likely to severely injure them.

I do not know how low your temperature is in winter, but it should be practical for you to keep a number of trenches outdoors all winter. Allow the soil to freeze three or four inches thick, then cover it with meadow hay or some other mulch. Celery kept outdoors in this way gives us a little more labor, but the flavor is vastly superior to that of stored celery and it can be kept much later.

In lifting celery for winter storage, select dry days and endeavor to get a nice ball with each plant. The idea should be to plant the celery so that it will start out and make some root growth. Plants which fail to do this will usually shrivel or rot.

Celery may be stored in trenches, over which boards are leaned to make a gable roof. Later, as colder weather comes on, some mulch is necessary over these boards. Set the plants close together. If the roots are dry give them some water to settle the soil about them, but do not damp the stalks or foliage. Whether stored in trenches, cellars or special sheds, it is well to leave a little open space after heeling in eight or ten rows. This helps to prevent heating and sweating. Some growers pack sand about the roots, but soil is just as good. Wherever stored, care should be taken to ventilate freely during favorable weather. A low temperature is necessary for the successful keeping of celery. It will not harm the plants if the thermometer goes a little below freezing. If you have any spare coldframes, you could store celery in them successfully, or, if preferred, you could make a frame with plank sides and cover it with an ordinary sash or match board shutters. A special shed or cellar, however, would prove the most satisfactory for you, as it could be entered in all weathers and the necessary ventilation could be given more easily. C. W.

Responsibility the key note to good memory

Mr. Elberfield, proprietor of the Alpha Floral Company, has been driving this one word "RESPONSIBILITY" into his help, believing and knowing that all help to be of service must have a good memory, and the basis of this is to assume the RESPONSIBILITY and to do the things that are given them by the proprietor.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

La Jolla, Cal.—M. C. Elliott, who has been sponsor for the Garden Shop here, has taken over the La Jolla Floral Gardens, the owner of which, W. O. Chamberlin, now resides in Minneapolis, Minn.

Santa Cruz, Cal.—W. W. Ayers has had a highly successful season and is sold out of his specialty, Freesia Purity bulbs. He says he has found The Review the most profitable advertising medium of any he has used.

San Diego, Cal.—The Harris Seed Co. has moved its nursery sales yard from next door to the seed store to the southeast corner of Twelfth street and Broadway, where it has leased a piece of property. The company has erected lath houses and a greenhouse, and carries the largest and most varied stock of fruit trees, ornamental trees and plants south of Los Angeles. O. G. Austin and T. A. Young have charge of the nursery department. Both are nurserymen and first-class landscape artists.

WATSONIAS IN CALIFORNIA.

Is it possible to force watsonias in the latitude of southern California? The plants are in a bed and were ten inches high October 15. Last year they started to bloom March 10, outdoors. Do you think I could have the plants in flower at Christmas if I placed glass over them and gave them good heat?

S. N.—Cal.

It is extremely doubtful if watsonias will develop more rapidly by placing them in heat. Certainly they cannot be forced in time for Christmas. On the coast many bulbous flowers are earlier than in other sections of the country, but the watsonia is one that, according to my experience, does not lend itself readily to forcing.

H. R. Richards.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Dull, foggy weather in the mum season is not conducive to good business or good flowers, and it looks as though the best of the outdoor mums will be about over by the middle of the month. Warm, moist nights spot the blooms, making them unfit to ship, but our wholesalers are well aware of this and ship only perfect flowers. The greenhouse-grown flowers are best and of these there are still a large number coming on of the late varieties.

Roses are more plentiful and better in quality than for some months, and they now ship with perfect safety. Violets are in their prime and will continue so during the season. A few doubles are shown, but the singles are the mainstay, selling and shipping better and holding their fragrance over a longer period. The double blue cornflower is an excellent shipper, lasting well and selling freely. It has none of the flimsy character of the old single forms and is getting to be quite a staple.

Dahlias still arrive in quantity, but there are signs of waning in popularity. Golden West holds its own, its neutral tint of coloring making it exceptionally useful. Orchids are in better demand and the supply is just about equal to it. Valley is scarce. Cecile Brunner roses are more plentiful. In plants cyclamens are about the most popular, though there are a good number of begonias. Ferns are meeting a good demand. Greens of all kinds are plentiful.

Various Notes.

H. A. Turner, while presumably not going into the nursery business, is gradually acquiring a large collection of choice and rare conifers around his place at Montebello. Many of the varieties are unique and he soon will have to thin them out, so rapidly do they make large specimens in this favored clime. The cut of roses now is large, but Mr. Turner says he has no difficulty in disposing of the whole of it.

A look around the Montebello nursery run by Charles Winsel showed everything in fine shape and growing freely. A choice collection of new roses, some excellent conifers and shrubbery, generally in great variety, are grown principally for Mr. Winsel's retail trade at the store and his landscape work. The whole place is in fine condition.

Freeman is showing baskets of good Irish Fireflame roses.

At the Broadway store of S. Murata & Co. there are plentiful signs of activity, large consignments of flowers and supplies leaving there daily. The roses here are in fine shape, now excellent shipping stock. This house makes a specialty of long-distance shipments of violets, controlling the output of several of the largest growers.

The California Cut Flower & Evergreen Co. reports business good at the new location on West Seventh street.

The L. A. Floral Co. is making large shipments of roses daily in all the new and most popular varieties. A look around the store showed fine Ophelia, Francis Scott Key and Prima Donna roses.

Thomas Wright has returned from another trip to Baldwin lake and Bear valley, where he has been looking after his mining interests and, incidentally, bagging the limit of duck from the lake.

The annual chrysanthemum show held under the auspices of the Pasadena Horticultural Society opened October 26 in the new dance halls of the Hotel Maryland, on Colorado street. The rooms are perfect for the purpose and the show was well arranged, so that the beauty of the groups was seen from every angle and the general public had ample room to walk around. The plants were unusually good, but, owing possibly to the weather of late, the cut flowers were not so good as usual. Still, there were some magnificent flowers, and all classes were well represented. Table decorations were a distinct feature, but, taken on the whole, they were not any too good. The trade was represented by Edward Rust, who showed a fine collection of dahlias. The Clemence Nurseries, as usual, had a pretty display, this year consisting of Rex begonias in great variety. The Coolidge Rare Plant Gardens were responsible for a fine collection of tropical fruits. The Mentor Nursery had a pretty group of rare plants. From Los Angeles, Morris & Snow, the Germain Seed & Plant Co. and Paul Howard had exhibits of various kinds.

C. Bates, of Eagle Rock, is in with a fine cut of mums, some especially good Appletons being among them. A good deal of this stock is handled by Fred Sperry, of the L. A. Floral Co.

The Market.

The return of clear, warm weather has had a tendency to prolong the life of outdoor stock. While a good part of the offerings of this nature are trashy and do not move readily, good stock is well taken. Quantities of cosmos and marigolds found an outlet last week. Dahlias are going off crop rapidly. Carnations are improving, but many of them still are below standard. Really good stock commands a fair price, but it is difficult to dispose of the short, inferior carnations at any figure. Pink Sensation shows good quality and is attaining considerable popularity. Gorgeous, a new and brilliant carnation, also is being shown with good success.

Roses are much better and the market gives little ground for complaint. Local trade is nothing extra, hardly so good as last year, in fact, but the shipping business is greatly in excess, both to rural and eastern points. American Beauties are coming in freely, with better foliage and better color, and their sale is increasing as a result. Other varieties of roses also show better quality. There is a large crop of Russell.

Chrysanthemums are the feature of the market, however. All the downtown stores are giving them preference over everything else, and members of the trade say that they never saw so many chrysanthemums being shipped as at present. The Chinese growers are bringing in fair stock, as well as the Japanese. The average quality of the white varieties is particularly good, and some fine specimens of yellow, golden brown, pink and red are to be seen. There is a heavy supply of pompons, but these clean up without difficulty. Some potted pompons are offered in addition to the cut flowers, and they sell equally well. Violets now are coming in satisfactorily and the heavy supplies are readily absorbed, as there is a good demand locally as well as for shipping. Many cyclamen blooms are being used. Lily of the valley is a negligible quantity. A limited quantity of Easter lilies finds a ready outlet.

Charles F. Shellgrain, manager of the J. B. Boland store, at 60 Kearny street, reports business so far this fall satisfactory, comparing favorably with the corresponding period of last year.

The heavy shipments of chrysanthemums being forwarded from this market at present are the subject of considerable comment both in and outside the trade. Wednesday evening, October 25, for instance, the express companies took about a dozen wagons of chrysanthemums from the wholesale establishments at Bush and St. Ann streets. If activity continues at the present rate all through the season, this will be a banner year for the shippers. The shipments are to all parts of the country.

According to J. A. Axell, manager for the E. W. McLellan Co., this is the best October the company ever had. All roses are in good crop and quantities of chrysanthemums and violets are being sent out.

John Morley, of San Diego, Cal., called on friends in the local trade last week. George F. Otto, of the same city, also was a visitor.

M. H. Ebel, who is a frequent visitor, came down from Sacramento a few days ago.

John Riley, a pioneer of San Jose, Cal., and for many years a landscape gardener for the municipality, died October 25, after a long illness. He was 80 years old. Much of San Jose's reputation as a "garden city" is due to Mr. Riley's efforts in laying out public parks and gardens.

Mrs. H. H. Moke was chosen to direct the annual chrysanthemum and dahlia show at Santa Rosa, Cal., which was held November 2 and 3 under the auspices of the Women's Improvement Club.

The first bulletin of the California Dahlia Growers' Association will be out within a few days. It will contain a full report of the show given at the Palace hotel this fall, reports of officers, etc.; also a talk on the registration of dahlias. The plan of the association is to issue a bulletin every month or two and to have it replete with valuable information.

There is a movement on to consolidate the two dahlia associations, which were organized about the same time this summer; one known as the California Dahlia Growers' Association and the other as the California Dahlia Society. Committees are now working toward that end.

Pelicano, Rossi & Co. shipped a large basket of dahlias to a hotel at Los Angeles a few days ago, which was quite an unusual undertaking considering the size, as it took a crate seven feet square to ship it in.

Elaborate preparations are being made at Roseville, Cal., for the annual chrysanthemum show to be given November 11 under the direction of the Women's Improvement Club. Mrs. J. J. Cox is the general chairman.

Miss Rothschild, of the Bellevue flower store, which she operates in partnership with Miss Bertha Cohn, reports a large demand for baby cradles and other fancy baskets, with general business about up to expectations.

Gloom pervaded the workroom of B. M. Joseph's store last week, the cause being the disappearance of Joe Bush, the mascot cat. Joe was an intelligent cat. Each of the force had taught him some trick and he furnished much amusement for the entire staff.

At attempt was made by burglars a few nights ago to affect an entrance to the Miller Seed Co. store at Oakland. Two men were taken in custody and charged with the crime. S. H. G.

Portland has gained the title "Rose City" from the quality and quantity of outdoor roses which thrive in profusion everywhere, and one might be led to infer that here must be an ideal spot to grow indoor stock. Several growers have tried them under glass within the city and close to it, but they have been met with indifferent success. The fact that today there are scarcely any roses grown here would tend to prove that conditions are unfavorable. A change of some sort, either in climate, soil, water or something else, occurs within twenty miles to the west, and two ranges devoted to rose stock are successfully operated in the Tualatin valley—that of Clarke Bros., near Hillsboro, and that of the Martin & Forbes Co., near Forest Grove. The scribe, accompanied by his spouse, one Sunday afternoon visited the range of the Martin & Forbes Co. and was courteously shown about by William Martin, Jr., who was found in charge. This range was built in 1910, near Haynes station, on the Oregon Electric railway, and consists of four houses 35x200 and two houses 42x200, with several smaller houses. All have cement bases and metal frames, and are arranged and designed to admit the greatest possible amount of light.

Five of the houses are of King and three of Moninger design. The others have pipe frames and are of local design. Everything is kept in order and clean, even to the cement floor in the boiler room. The heating system is built for steam. A battery of four pumps, set in a concrete pit, forces the condensed water back into the boiler from a large trap, and furnishes a supply of water from a well into an upright cylindrical pressure tank. The main crop is Ophelia, with quantities of Mrs. Ward, Hoosier Beauty, Richmond, Killarney, Sunburst and others. There also are trial lots of Gorgeous, September Morn, Tipperary and several more. A small house of carnations is grown and another of mums. Mr. Martin explained that the demand for roses was so heavy that two houses holding 2,800 lineal feet of benches had been shifted from carnations to roses this year, and that the company planned to devote the entire range to them. Pipe headers are located at each end of the benches and from them wires are stretched at a height of about four feet over each row. A wire stake fastened to the overhead wire supports each plant. The quality of the output of this range has excited favorable comment from experts, and the company has at no time been able to fill all orders, even though it was daily cutting over 1,600 Ophelia roses during the height of the fall season. Whether it is the soil, the climate, the water, the method of handling, or a combination of all these factors, it is certain that first-class roses can be grown under glass in the Tualatin valley. S. Business with the retailers has been most satisfactory. There has been a good run of average-sized funeral orders, interspersed with some good decorative work, while the regular over-the-counter trade has been and continues fully up to expectations. Numerous society affairs, including important debutante parties, have afforded the florists good opportunities for display of their artistic abilities.

Needless to say, the prosperity among the retailers has pleased the growers

Now is the best time to start to sow the

WINTER ORCHID-FLOWERING SWEET PEAS

to follow the Chrysanthemum crop. No other flower will pay better. You will have fine flowers from January until late in spring. All progressive florists have abandoned growing the late Spencer and are making now four times as much money with this early-flowering type, not only for inside but for outside planting. If sown in October and November they will bloom two to three months earlier; if sown outdoors they will bloom three to four weeks earlier than the late Spencers, producing more and better flowers and keeping the buds during the most rainy weather. We have a limited quantity of the following varieties to offer at reduced prices:

PINK AND WHITE ORCHID, WHITE ORCHID, MRS. A. A. SKACH, ORCHID BEAUTY, rose; LAVENDER ORCHID, lavender pink; MISS FL. FABING, Yarrowa color. This lot will contain about two to five per cent of the late hybrids of the same color and for late planting they are of more value than the re-selected varieties of the same names.

FLORISTS' WINTER ORCHID-FLOWERING MIXTURE.

This mixture consists of all the leading commercial varieties of pink, rose, white and lavender, with a very few red and blue.

Price, $4.00 per pound.

GOLD MEDAL MIXTURE.

This is made up of about fifty distinct varieties, evenly balanced to each color. It contains almost every variety in commerce, including this year's and next year's novelties, all of the Winter Orchid type only. Last year we sold over 90,000 packets to private gardeners and retail florists. In semi-tropical countries they have been blooming all winter. In cooler climate, if sown early in spring they bloom in May, three to four weeks earlier. Florists who keep a seed counter should have this steadily on hand, ready for their customers. Sold only in one size packets. Each packet contains sufficient seed to plant 30 to 40 feet of row.

Prices: 1 pkt., 25c; 100 pkts., $12.00; 1000 pkts., $100.00.

Order now all you need for your winter or outdoor planting, as this limited quantity may not last long.

The weather has been most favorable for the greenhouse-men, with plenty of sunshine and not much temperature below the freezing point. NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

President, John Watson, Newark, N. Y.; Vice-president, Lloyd O. Stark, Louisiana, Mo.; Secretary and General Manager, Curtis Nye Smith, Boston, Mass.; Treasurer, Peter Youngers, Geneva, Neb.

UNDER a law passed by Congress March 4, 1915, Florida is making arrangements for the terminal inspection of all mail shipments of plants and plant products, except vegetable and flower seeds, entering the state. California, Arizona and Montana have already established such mail inspection services under the federal law.

B. E. GAGE, of Peterson Nursery, Chicago, has not given up his hope of a state organization of the nurserymen of Illinois for the purpose of elevating the tone of the nursery trade. Physicians habitually speak well of one another and Mr. Gage believes nurserymen would do the same and make an effort to live up to business ideals if they were brought together oftener.

E. TURBAT & Co., the French nurserymen, say: "For this season it may happen that some of our American confreres may be afraid of ordering goods on account of there being an overcharge on freight tariffs. We beg them to consider that this overcharge will not be withdrawn at once when the war terminates, but will stand long afterwards, for many reasons too numerous and too long to explain here. On the contrary, stocks are still at moderate prices, and it is the year to buy, because on account of shortage of hands for propagation, the scarcity of goods will be more important next year, and prices will still increase. If you do not buy stocks this season you will lose one year and pay higher prices the next one."

GERMINATING BARBERY SEEDS.

I sowed about two pounds of Berberis Thunbergii seeds July 1 of this year and they have failed to germinate. I used a good fibrous loam and one-third sand, well mixed. The seeds were covered about four times their thickness and were kept wet all the time. They were sown in a coldframe. I should like to know wherein I was wrong and what is the proper way to sow these seeds.

R. B.—Ohio.

Seeds of Berberis Thunbergii will not germinate like those of marigolds, stocks or asters. Your seeds probably were collected late last fall and, having been kept dry so long, are not likely to germinate before next spring. If you had sown the seeds late last fall outdoors, soon after they were collected, and had given them a winter mulch to prevent frost from heaving the ground, most of the seeds probably would have germinated last spring. The fresher the seeds of trees and shrubs are when sown, the sooner they will germinate. If you sowed your seeds outdoors, give them a winter mulch of some kind, and as a good freezing assists in germinating many seeds, you should have a good crop of seedlings next spring. Some of rather erratic, coming in small quantities one week and vice versa the next. There is an adequate supply of orchid and valley, except when there are several weddings on one day. Harrisonia orchids have won favor with the public this season. A few dahlias arrive occasionally, but the weather certainly tells on these; the same applies to cosmos. Snapdragons, mignonette, daisies and myosotis are arriving in smaller quantities, and these indeed are welcome with any florist. Narcissi, too, have opened their season. As yet there are no sweet peas to be had. Greens of all kinds continue sufficient for all demands.

Various Notes.

Adolph Farenwald was a recent visitor to Buffalo.

Barney Meyers, of Lancaster, has undertaken the task of growing orchids, and he is having wonderful success. Cattleyas are the principal stock and these are wonderful in size and color.

John Fiebelkorn is no longer associated with Galley Bros., on Genesee street.

W. J. Palmer is at New York this week.

Charles Felton, of the Felton Flower Shop, has been busy with wedding decorations.

William C. E. Ehmann, of Corfu, has purchased a delivery car, with which he brings his cut flowers to the market at a much earlier hour than when the express company delivered them. He also manages to bring in the flowers of the other greenhouses.

R. Greenlaw, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, was in town last week.

Bowling Scores.

Last week's contest at the alleys resulted in a victory for the Cadillacs by a small margin. Following are the scores of the florists.

Ames, Ia.—The department of horticulture of the Iowa State College has announced an autumn flower show for November 10 and 11. It is expected that the show will have a far-reaching effect, since it will be visited not only by the 5,000 students who come from all over the state, but by the florists of the state, as well as by the townspeople. The florists about the state are coöperating with the college. Nineteen competitive classes, which are only open to the commercial florists of Iowa, have been provided.

There is perhaps no more popular Begonia on the market today. Its floriferousness and all-round satisfactory behavior make it a favorite with both grower and customer. We have fine plants in 3-inch pots, ready to shift into 5 or 6-inch azalea pots for flowering, $8.00 per 100.

MERRY CHRISTMAS.

We will be glad to have you visit our place any time, to look over this fine scarlet Carnation of ours. Visitors invariably express themselves as being highly pleased with its appearance, and we feel sure you will like it too. Many orders have already been booked for rooted cuttings and we are booking them right along now. Better hop onto the bandwagon now.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

There is no denying that the chrysanthemum is holding its own as the queen of autumn—everywhere it is the predominating feature. Mums are retailing all the way from 25 cents per dozen for the small ones to $5 and $6 per dozen for the big, fluffy aristocrats. There is a fair abundance of roses, carnations and other stock, but these move comparatively slowly. The Halloween spirit has been growing appreciably during the last few years and this year it is most pronounced. The demand for autumn leaves for private and public decorations has been large.

Greenhousemen hereabouts are confronted by a serious problem in regard to their coal supply. A number of the growers who made contracts in the spring claim that they are unable to secure necessary shipments and can get no positive assurances that a supply will be forthcoming. At best the growers have had to pay from $3 to $5 per ton more for coal than a year ago, but even at this they are short.

Various Notes.

Smith, the Florist, had an attractive Halloween window last week, a combination of autumn leaves, cornstalks and pumpkin lanterns.

Howard Olney, of Simmonsville, is curtailing his benchings and will use only one house this winter.

Samuel Kinder, of Bristol, returned from a three weeks' camping and fishing trip to Prudence island in Narragansett bay last week. During his vacation he had a narrow escape. The small motor boat in which he and others were fishing became disabled and they had to remain out in a heavy gale and pouring rain the entire night.

Mr. McQuard, of Ralph M. Ward & Co., New York, was a recent caller on local tradesmen.

CYCLAMEN:

We have from year to year been growing these popular winter flowering plants in steadily increasing quantities. The demand for them is such that our supply of plants, however large it may be, quickly gets exhausted.

Our methods of cultivation have proved singularly successful. Our plants are healthy, stocky and strong; the results consequently are invariably satisfactory both to our many customers and to us.

As to the selection of colors and strains, we have been more careful than ever to get only the best, as can be seen from the following list of international strains, which can be had either in separate colors or assorted. As the orders come in, we pick out the heaviest, best leaved plants of a splendid stock of about 40,000.

Wonder of Wandsbek, Salmon King,
Glory of Wandsbek, Sunset,
Rose of Wandsbek, Excelsior,
Dark Red, Prince of Wales,
Brilliant Red, Princess May,
Bright Red, White with pink eye.

BRAMPTON, ONT.

The Market.

The season has opened in a decidedly promising fashion, and October trade proved almost too much to be comfortable, considering the vagaries of the labor market. Supplies are slack in coming to hand on account of the congestion on the railroads, and everything the florist needs, from a pin to an anchor, has gone up in price to such an extent that it costs more to be married or buried now than it ever did.

Orchids are in full crop this week and fine shipments are made daily to nearly all the larger cities between here and New York and Chicago. Carnations are better than usual at this time of the year and visitors from across the line say that the plants are better than any they have seen in their own country. Blooms will be scarce for a little while yet.

Mums are not quite up to last year's standard of quality, the exceedingly trying summer being accountable for this, but the roses cropping now at one of the establishments are far superior to any grown during the last five years.

Violets are improving in quality and increasing in quantity, and this week they are selling readily at $1 per hundred. It would seem that prices generally are going to be slightly above the level of former years; two or three of the neighboring growers have begun to find out that there is plenty of money in circulation, and that there need be no glut in stock if a little perspicacity is used occasionally.

Various Notes.

Orlando O'Field, of Grimsby, and his head shipper, A. G. Bloomberg, were visitors during the week; also H. Jennings, of Weston.

Richard Jennings, of Weston, is recovering from a rather severe illness. W. G. P.

DAVENPORT, R. ISLAND, MOLINE.

Business has been good during the last week. Roses, especially Killarney, which were in short supply last week, now are more plentiful, and Beauty, Russell and others sell well. Ophelia is the most popular rose and the local supply is not sufficient to meet requirements. Carnations are plentiful and of good quality, but they are not selling well on account of the large variety of mums offered. Lilies are not too plentiful. Locally grown violets are scarce and California-grown stock is being featured by some of the dealers. W. G.

The Market.

There is an oversupply of stock on the market, and as a result low prices rule. There is business enough to make an ordinary market a good one, but under present conditions the best that can be said about it is that it is fair.

Roses are plentiful and include some excellent offerings of Hoosier Beauty, Ophelia, Killarney, White Killarney and American Beauty. Carnation receipts are sufficient for present needs. Chrysanthemums, including everything from pompons to the largest blooms, are in extremely heavy supply. Other offerings are Easter lilies, callas, orchids, sweet peas and valley. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

C. E. Critchell has been offering an excellent line of chrysanthemums.

W. Frank & Sons, of Portland, Ind., have been sending to L. H. Kyrk Ophelia roses that would do credit to the best of growers. Considering the market conditions, these have met with a fair demand.

Miss Fannie White, of Lexington, Ky., was in this city on a buying expedition last week.

P. J. Olinger has been cutting some excellent Killarney roses.

Sympathy is extended Frederick and William Gear in their bereavement in the death of their father, last week.

Notice of the death of Henry Schwarz, which occurred October 28, will be found in this week's obituary column.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

PIPING MIGHT BE IMPROVED.

As I am a beginner and am building, I shall be greatly obliged for any information you can give me in regard to piping for hot water. I have already piped some of my greenhouses, but if any change is necessary I shall be glad to have it looked after. I have three houses, one of them 10x75 and the other two each 22x82. In one of the large houses there is no side glass; the other has two feet of side glass.

I have a Moninger sectional boiler, series 27, tapped for two 4-inch flows and two 4-inch returns. The boiler is at the east end of the greenhouses. A 6-inch flow pipe runs across the base of the two large houses. This 6-inch line is connected in each of the two houses with four 2-inch flows that run up each aisle, and each one returns with two 2-inch pipes and empties into a 6-inch return at the bottom. In the small house the 4-inch main is connected with two 2-inch flows that feed five 2-inch pipes, and these return with five 2-inch pipes and empty into a 4-inch main return. In this small house last winter the heating was perfect. Do you think that four 2-inch flow pipes in each of the other houses will be enough? Do you think the boiler is big enough? I wish to maintain a night temperature of about 50 degrees.

M. N.—Pa.

It is stated that in each of the large houses there are "four 2-inch flows and each one returns with two 2-inch pipes." If there are two returns for each flow, there would be twelve 2-inch pipes in each house. We would consider this ample radiation for a 22-foot house for which 50 degrees is desired. In fact, if properly arranged, ten pipes would answer. We would prefer, however, to use three 2½-inch flows and seven 2-inch returns, or two 2½-inch flows and eight returns.

As we understand the piping in the other house, there are five 2-inch flows and five returns. This is considerably more than is needed for 50 degrees. We would not think it necessary to use more than three flows and four returns, and, if we were to use the number and size of pipes considered most advisable, only two 2½-inch flows and four 2-inch returns would be put in for a house of this size.

While we would prefer to use 2½-inch flow pipes in houses eighty-two overhead, there would be more or less trouble from air collecting in the overhead portion. It will be better in every way if the flow pipe can run on a gradual rise through the greenhouse.

COMPARATIVE COST OF HEAT.

We have a range of greenhouses that are centrally heated by one battery of steam boilers, using soft coal. One-half of the space is devoted to roses, the other half to carnations. What proportion of the yearly coal bill should be charged to the cost of production of each crop? The roses grown are hybrid teas, such as Shawyer, Crimson Queen, Hoosier Beauty, Mrs. Ward, Ophelia and Killarney. The carnations comprise Enchantress Supreme, Matchless, Eureka, Mrs. C. W. Ward, Alice, Pink Delight, Herald and Benora. Everything is grown in an up-to-date manner, being handled by experienced men, including the night fireman.

G. S. O.—Conn.

Provided the heating period is the same for the two classes of plants, we would consider that three-sevenths of the expense should be charged to the carnations and four-sevenths to the roses. This ratio represents the relative amount of piping which we would use for carnations and roses. While this relates principally to the fuel cost during the night, and the cost of heating the rose houses during the day might be fifty per cent higher than the cost for the carnation houses, we should also consider that with the temperature of the carnation houses approximately 10 degrees lower than in the rose houses, the amount of steam condensed per hundred square feet of radiation will be greater in the former than in the latter. We estimate that this would offset the extra firing required in rose houses during the day.

Therefore we feel safe in suggesting that the relative amount of radiation, or practically three-sevenths and four-sevenths, be used in dividing the cost of heating the two parts of the range.

USINGER'S UTTERANCES.

W. J. Evenden & Sons, of Williamsport, Pa., opened their new store a few weeks ago. It is handsome in appointment and the display of goods is most attractive.

The Williamsport Floral Co., of Williamsport, had a greatly admired window the other week. New draperies helped to set off hampers and baskets of flowers. Bowls also were displayed.

Paul Durr, of Williamsport, had a nice lot of mums coming on and the general stock was in fine condition. Business continues good, but the high cost of doing business is something to worry about.

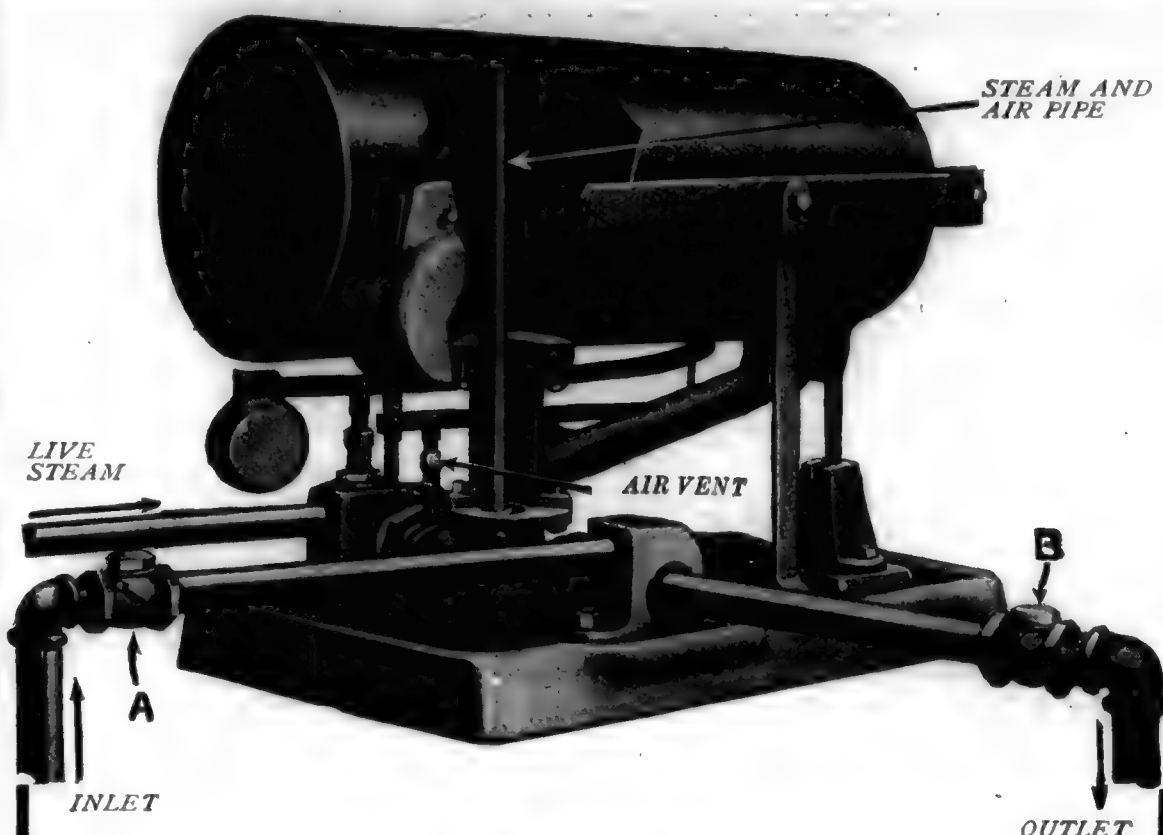

E. W. Carlson, of Lock Haven, Pa., has had a goodly share of wedding work. A fine display of lilies, mums and other flowers was noticed at the store.

Mrs. William Blacker, of Clearfield, Pa., had some fine chrysanthemums scheduled to come on. Carnations were never better and a profitable season in these is anticipated.

The Crissman Greenhouses, of Punxsutawney, Pa., are in their usual good condition, producing seasonable stock of special merit.

The St. Marys Greenhouses, of St. Marys, Pa., are shipping much ground pine. The scarcity of labor this season will boost the cost of this decorative green. Pickers are at a premium.

C. W. Espy & Son, of Brookville, Pa., are anxiously awaiting the completion of their new store, which they hope to

Two Valuable Points

These are the two chief points of the "Detroit" System for handling condensation, which make it stand out from the rest. They should appeal to you, as they do to hundreds of satisfied users of the "Detroit."

"Detroit" Simplicity.—There are no complicated parts to get out of order. Nothing on the inside of tank to rust, corrode or give trouble. All working parts on the outside, and easily accessible. Entirely automatic, operating for years with but little attention.

"Detroit" Efficiency.—Will return condensation to the boilers at a temperature up to 330° Fahr.—or better. The saving this would effect over the pump-return method is apparent. Every 10° raise in feed water temperature means 1% saving in the coal pile.

Compare the simplicity, ease of operation, adaptability and capacity of the "Detroit" with all others—you'll readily see its superiority. Making good everywhere.

Laughing at Winter

Winter's coming!

Won't be long now before you'll be turning on heat in earnest. Many are starting already.

Rust holes may have already developed in pipes that have lain idle all summer. The first real freeze may split a pipe here or there. A joint may start leaking.

Just slap a bit of gasket rubber (we furnish it) over the leak, apply the clamp with an ordinary wrench—and forget it. It'll hold for good.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Wedding work has been the feature of business during the last two or three weeks; there were more weddings than usual during October this year. General business conditions are good and this naturally means better business for florists.

Chrysanthemums now arriving are exceptionally fine in quality and each week sees a larger variety. Chrysolora and Oconto are among the best sellers. Pompons also are coming into the market and many potted ones are being offered. Sweet peas have made their appearance. The flowers are of good quality and well colored, but there is but little demand for them, as they are out of season and buyers demand mums or other fall flowers just now. Carnations also will sell better later on. Roses are plentiful, but the prices keep up well. Most of the varieties sell at from $1 to $2 per dozen. Beauties range in price from $3 to $8 per dozen. Valley now is plentiful.

Various Notes.

Among the members of the grand jury panel just drawn was Richard Youell.

The date of the second flower show to be held under the auspices of the Essex County Florists' Club was set for November 13 to 15. The show will be held in the Palace ballroom. The committee in charge of the arrangements, headed by Henry Hornecker, aims to make the show a larger and better affair than the one held last year. Last year's was a creditable show, but the committee is putting forth a special effort this year.

Fruit, nut and raisin bouquets were a feature of the window display of Fred Wolfinger last week. Lace paper arranged in tall, flange-mouthed vases formed the base for a pyramid of crab-apples, the stems of which pointed outward. Shelled pecan nuts and raisins were stuck in the openings between the apples until the whole represented a pretty bouquet.

If we should build a greenhouse for ourselves we would put the best material we could into it, but it would not be any better than we put into the houses that we build for our customers.

Yes, it would be an easy matter to skimp here and substitute there, and gloss over in another place to save a little and meet the lowest bidder. We do not do business that way. Why should we cheat ourselves in order to cheat a customer?

Figure it out for yourself and then write us your needs.

The Market.

Pittsburgh is having delightful weather and the result is that all the stock in the greenhouses is looking fine. Flowers of all kinds are plentiful and chrysanthemums are flooding the market. The bright weather is bringing the carnations along much faster than heretofore. Beauties and lilies have been given an awful black eye since the mums came. The pompon mums are fine and are quite popular.

The retailers have been fairly busy with the first of the debutante affairs and several weddings, but it has been such fine weather and people are spending so much time outdoors that they do not yet feel the need of flowers in the home. A little more seasonable weather will help a great deal.

The wholesale houses are not cleaning up every day as they had become accustomed to doing; one now always can find a good bunch of stock on hand.

Various Notes.

The Sewickley Florists' Club will hold a chrysanthemum show November 2 to 5. It will be largely a society affair, as the gardeners are from the private places and all grow fine stock.

A visit with Henry Meuschke, of Castle Shannon, the other day was highly enjoyable. Mr. Meuschke is one of the largest growers in this district. He has about 150,000 feet of glass devoted to carnations and roses, a few chrysanthemums and a part of a house of smilax. Everything looked fine notwithstanding that he built a couple of houses this year, when it was impossible to get help to do the absolutely necessary things. Mr. Meuschke started in the growing end of the business a few years ago because another business was ruining his health. He applied the same good sense and energy which had made him a success in his own trade and the result has been success in growing flowers. Clarke.

Spencer, Ind.—A florists' business has been organized here under the name of National Show Gardens and incorporated at $50,000, by E. T. Barnes, H. L. Freking and John H. Smith.

The Ionia Pottery Co.

announces the purchase of the flower pot equipment, good will and business of The Haeger Potteries, of Dundee and Elgin, Ill.

The reasons for the sale are fully set forth in the following letter:

D. C. HAEGER,
Pres. and Gen'l Mgr.

E. H. HAEGER,
Sec'y and Treas.

THE HAEGER POTTERIES
Makers of Faience and Glazed Pottery
DUNDEE, ILL.

October 2, 1916.

To the Florist Trade:

Owing to the large and increasing demand for our glazed pottery, we find ourselves unable to continue the manufacture of flower pots. We therefore wish to announce that the flower pot part of our business, including good will, has been sold to the Ionia Pottery Co., of Ionia, Mich. We make this sale with the assurance that your flower pot needs will be most satisfactorily taken care of, both in the matter of quality and service.

The quality of Ionia pots, and the care in packing and promptness in shipment, are three important features which we highly recommend.

We very much appreciate the past favors of our florist customers, and bespeak for the Ionia Pottery Co. the continuance of your valued orders.

Very truly yours,

THE HAEGER POTTERIES.

Therefore, having purchased the equipment and good will of The Haeger Potteries as above set forth, we take this opportunity to say to their patrons that we have removed the same to our Plant at Ionia, Mich., and consolidated it with our own business. We hope to continue to serve your needs as satisfactorily as you have been treated in the past.

With our immense stocks, and capacity to manufacture (now considerably increased by the addition of this equipment), we can assure you of prompt shipment and the very highest quality of greenhouse pots.

In these days of rising prices, it is wisdom to anticipate your spring needs now, and thus insure yourself against further advances.

Send us your order today. We will ship when you direct.

IONIA POTTERY CO.
Ionia, Michigan

HOUSTON, TEX.

Believing that there is the opportunity to establish a large and profitable business in growing cut flowers and plants to meet the Texas demand, the Southern Floral Co., capital stock $100,000, has been organized by local parties. The company has taken over three local establishments and plans other purchases, as well as large building operations. The members of the trade interested are A. E. Kutschbach, who owns greenhouses on Washington avenue; August Bering, who has a range on the Katy road, and the Gulf Florist, Walter Retzer, proprietor, which does a retail business at 810 Main street. J. B. Flynn is to be secretary of the company.

Twenty-five acres of land has been bought at Sugar Land, where it is proposed to cover six acres with glass and lath houses, the balance of the land being used for nursery purposes. There are a number interested who are not members of the trade, but who have had experience in the development of Texas enterprises. That Texas is said to be sending a million dollar every year outside the state for the purchase of flowers and plants inspires them to action to keep the money in the state.

SOMERVILLE, MASS.

This progressive city has a population of almost 100,000 and is one of the most prosperous cities of its size in New England. The flower industry has thrived and the city now supports several fine florists' stores. The market at Boston is near and flowers can be procured easily and conveniently.

Among the leading stores is that of the Davis Square Florist, located in the Hobbs building, Davis square. This store is under the direction of A. Sloane & Sons, who also conduct a place at the Boston Flower Exchange, Boston. Recent alterations of the interior and display windows have made this store one of the most attractive in this section.

Another store in Davis square is that of George Austin, who formerly was with A. Marshall. This store, in the Teele building, was formerly occupied by Kameyama & Serada, of Cambridge. Mr. Austin reports a satisfactory business, especially in the plant line.

Robert Harris reports business fair at his store in Union square.

Jack Gartland, formerly associated with Robert Harris, now conducts a store at 337 Somerville avenue. He specializes in funeral work and is one of our many hustlers. He is one of the first buyers each morning at the Boston Exchange, often arriving before the salesmen.

Green, the Florist, also in Union square, is one of the older florists of this section.

J. W. Howard conducts a store on Broadway, in the Winter Hill section, with greenhouses at Woburn. A. S.

PLANT TUBS

EVERLASTING VIRGINIA WHITE CEDAR

EVERYBODY agrees that Plant Tubs made of everlasting Virginia White Cedar will best resist rot or decay. The "Keystone" brand of White Cedar Plant Tubs are made of this celebrated wood, and these goods are painted inside and out with best oil paints, a rich green.

They are bound with heavy steel hoops for the large size, and electric-welded wire hoops (galvanized) on the small size. The large sizes are trimmed with handsome drop handles and metal feet, and have perforated, removable bottoms.

These Cedar Tubs are made in all sizes, from 24 1/4 inches top diameter down to 6 inches, amply large for a Bay Tree and small enough for a Hyacinth. Every one guaranteed. Booklet in colors, with prices, furnished upon request.

The Market.

As the mum season progresses, business becomes better, sales more numerous and work more plentiful. Every morning a nice lot of mums arrives, but it is not long before the receipts are well cleaned up. The baby mums, however, are still on the short side. A few mum plants are coming along nicely.

Roses are more abundant and some varieties are inclined to drag. Beauties find a good sale, but the short cuts are in overabundance. Ophelia, Hoosier Beauty, Sunburst and Russell roses find a good sale, but Richmond, Killarney and Mock are slow selling and seem to be the unfavored varieties. A regular supply of valley comes in each day and is quite sufficient for demands.

Various Notes.

A. J. Stahelin has some choice snapdragons that clear as soon as the boxes are opened. One variety in particular is a favorite—a striking fire-flame color. Lilies are accumulating on account of the smaller quantity of funeral work and the liberal supplies of mums.

Among last week's visitors were E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind.; S. D. Greene, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia; A. Miller, of the American Bulb Co., Chicago; E. J. Fancourt, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia. H. E. T.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The Newport Horticultural Society at its meeting last week voted to decline the invitation of the Newport Garden Club to cooperate in holding a flower show next summer. The Garden Club, besides asking the Horticultural Society, also invited the Newport Garden Association to participate, and the Horticultural Society postponed a decision until the Garden Association had taken action. As the latter organization took a negative action, the Horticultural Society decided to do the same. The society awarded a first-class certificate to James Robertson, head gardener at Mrs. T. O. Richardson's estate, for a new giant single dahlia. The dahlia, which is a seedling of 1915, is named Mrs. Otis T. Chapman, in honor of the leading dahlia grower at Westerly, R. I.

The greenhouses at Honeysuckle Lodge, the estate of T. Suffern Tailer, at Ochre Point, have been removed to another section of the grounds.

John Falkenholm, head gardener at the G. M. Hutton estate, Shamrock Cliff, is at the Newport hospital recovering from an operation. W. H. M.

The Market.

Business last week was good. Flowers were in large demand for wedding and funeral orders. Chrysanthemums now are plentiful and of good quality. Roses and carnations are improving. Outdoor flowers are about done for, though there are a few cosmos and dahlias to be had.

Various Notes.

J. C. Elsperrmann is building a new residence at a cost of $3,000. The building soon will be completed and Mr. Elsperrmann says that as soon as the plumbers are gone he will have a house-warming.

Emil Niednagel has returned from his trip east. He stopped at Indianapolis, Philadelphia and New York.

The William Blackman Floral Co. is cutting good mums and the carnations are in good shape for large crops later on. A house of violets looks promising.

Royston & Fenton have a large and fine stock of Brilliancy coleus.

Mrs. Royston, wife of H. J. Royston, died Wednesday, October 25, after a long illness, at the age of 72. The floral tributes were large and numerous. A wreath on an easel, made by Otto Kuebler, sent in the name of the Evansville Florists' Club, was especially attractive. Julius Niednagel and family, the William Blackman Floral Co., the Elsperrmanns, Theodore Kuebler and family and Pauline and Louis Fritsch sent beautiful pieces. The funeral was held October 27, at 1:30 p. m.

All members of the Evansville Florists' Club are expected to attend the next meeting of the organization, which will be held November 9, at the home of Ernest L. Lutz, at Boonville. Members should take the 6 o'clock traction.

Sandusky, O.—W. R. Parker, who until a short time ago conducted a flower store in the West House building, has opened a new establishment at 208 West Market street.

Springfield, Mo.—The Springfield Seed Co. has completed improvements at its establishment at Walnut and Campbell streets, which greatly enhance the display space and selling rooms of the flower department. Charles J. Fritz is manager of the flower department. A short time ago the seed company purchased the retail business of the Summerfield Floral Co.

DELPHINIUM BELLADONNA.

Will you kindly advise us through your paper as to the treatment and time for forcing Delphinium Belladonna, and about the period it requires to get it into flower, etc.? T. N. Y. & C.—Pa.

The roots of Delphinium Belladonna should be left outdoors until they have been exposed to one or two good freezings. If you plan to grow these in boxes containing five or six inches of soil, the plants can be lifted at once and the boxes left outdoors until the middle of November, then set in cold-frames, and placed in heat on or about January 1. A temperature of 50 degrees at night will be found about right. The delphiniums will flower from the beginning to the end of April. If the stock is to be planted in beds or benches, leave them outdoors until just before the ground freezes, then place them in a temperature of 45 degrees at night, which can be increased five degrees early in January. Delphiniums when forced want careful watering in dark weather, or the stems will rot. For this same reason care should be taken not to plant the roots deeply; merely cover the eyes.

is recognized as the one wood for water tanks, troughs, vats and spouts, as well as for all laundry appliances. Its marvelous quality of rot-resistance puts Cypress in a class wholly by itself, especially when the use is a most trying one. To be wet on one side and dry on the other side, and to be alternately sweated and dried up, and hot and cold at the same time—all this just suits Cypress. You know it, we guess.

ALSO, GET A BOOK

There are 42 volumes in the CYPRESS Pocket Library, and each is authoritative. Vol. 4 is the Barn Book; Vol. 20 is the Farm Needs Book; Vol. 28 is the Trellis and Arbor Book, and Vol. 18 is a Bungalow Book—all profusely and handsomely illustrated. And they are very, very Free. If you are "handy with tools," then get Vol. 36, the Carpentry Book. It shows how to make easy a dozen hard jobs of house and barn building. Write for one, or a dozen.

The 3 Breitenstrater Semi-Iron Houses at Dayton, Ohio. Each one is 28 feet 4 inches by 75 feet 9 inches.

Here's a Practical Man If There Ever Was One

TWENTY years or so ago, our friend Mr. Breitenstrater, of Dayton, Ohio, came to town as a carpenter. While carpentering, he kept his eyes open for chances to buy and sell a lot or a house now and again.

What he made he tucked away in his sock.

Pretty soon the sock began to bulge so it looked like a regular Xmas one.

Then he began looking around for a moderate sized piece of land out in the country, where he could do a bit of farming.

On finding it, he promptly bought it, and as promptly paid for it.

After a while he grew tired of having his land yield him a paying crop six months of the year, and lie idle the other six.

So he built one greenhouse 28 ft. 4 ins. by 75 ft. 9 ins.

Made it pay.

When he had enough to pay for another, he bought it and paid for it.

With the two he made more money in proportion than he did with the one. Soon he built a third, and now he says the three pay decidedly better in proportion than the two did.

He says he has proved to his entire satisfaction that large houses cost less to work and heat. He says his next house will be a separate Iron Frame one, 72 ft. wide or so.

Step by step this man has made his way, and paid his way as he made it. Step by step he has proven to himself that our modernly constructed houses of a demonstrated, economical width, are the paying houses to buy.

If such a careful, practical man finds Lord & Burnham houses and Lord & Burnham's way of doing things so satisfactory that he keeps on year after year giving us business, doesn't it look to you as if we were the kind of a greenhouse concern you have been waiting to hitch up with?

Let's talk it over together.

All those wrinkles about Mr. Breitenstrater's eyes are not humorous ones. There are several that point to business shrewdness.

A Straight Talk to Florists

WHEN you send out an order of flowers, what is the final touch? The ribbon? The spray? The dainty box?

These mean a lot. But the final touch is when the customer opens the door and the box is handed in.

Is it on time? Is it clean? Has it come so quickly that the flowers are still fresh?

This is where the VIM comes in. It gives the reliable sort of delivery service that customers appreciate.

It gets the flowers there on time, every time.

For economy, it beats any other kind of delivery service ever tried for loads of 10 to 1000 lbs.

It beats the horse—covers three times the territory.

It beats the converted pleasure car, because it's designed especially for delivery work.

That's what makes it dependable. The engine is built to stand the stops and starts, the jolts and jars, the hills and hurry-up. The frame, axles and gears are heavy enough for a truck of twice its capacity.

We would not be selling so many VIMS for U. S. Mail Wagons, Fire Engines and Taxi-Cabs if it were not as hard as nails. You needn't worry about repair bills or about the cost of gasoline.

Your competitor can't find any method of delivery that will be as efficient or economical as a VIM.

And he can't find a way that will make more of a hit with customers. Beat him to it. Ten to one he's thinking about a VIM too.

DEFERRED PAYMENTS

Ask our dealer about the plan of deferred payments—$1.50 a day is all that is required. The VIM easily pays for itself in increased profits.

MAGNOLIA FACTS

QYes, Mr. Florist, be particular as to what kind of Magnolia Leaves you buy now, under the present conditions.

QDye colors have advanced from 1000% to 2000%; preparing chemicals have exactly doubled in prices since the war began, as have also the paper cartons. In spite of this, we are in position to furnish you with first-class Magnolia Leaves through your wholesaler at a small advance in comparison with the above.

QWe guarantee that the quality of our leaves is as good now as they were before the war, and that they are prepared fully, regardless of the above-stated high prices of the materials.

Your Problem Is: BEWARE OF IMITATIONS!

Buy Our Brand, "SUPERIORA" MAGNOLIA LEAVES

QWe can give you better service in every way, on account of our large output of these goods.

QYou fool yourself if you buy the cheaper grade of leaves, as they will become mildewed and they will dry out shortly after the boxes are opened. Our goods are sold by every leading wholesale florist in the United States and Canada, and they have stood the test for the past six years.

QA magnolia leaf is only worth using if it has been fully preserved, but NOT by a cheap process, which enables others to sell the leaves cheaper by a few cents. You pay these few cents about ten or fifteen times over, when you consider the poor value of these goods.

NEW NEPHROLEPIS FERN

JOHN WANAMAKER

A "sport" from Nephrolepis Scholzeli, with longer, narrower, gracefully drooping fronds. It is not so compact in growth as Scholzeli, and therefore does not decay in the center, and is a durable house fern. It is a rapid grower, making an abundance of fronds, and is quite distinct from any other Nephrolepis.

The following ready for immediate delivery:
4-inch pots, $25.00 per 100; 6-inch pots, 50c and 75c each; 8-inch pots, $1.00 each; specimens in tubs, $2.50 and $3.50 each.

CROTONS

NEW SEEDLING VARIETIES

Our new Seedling Crotons, some of which we disseminated in June, 1911, are varieties that should be in every grower's and private person's collection. They are far superior to many of the older varieties of Crotons and the types range from narrow to very large leaf.

We particularly call your attention to our set of thirteen, named after the "Thirteen Original States," which have won highest honors wherever shown.

4-inch pots, strong plants, $3.00 each; $30.00 doz.; $200.00 100.

6 and 7-inch pots, larger plants, $3.50, $4.00 and $5.00 each.

CROTON

LEAVES AND SPRAYS

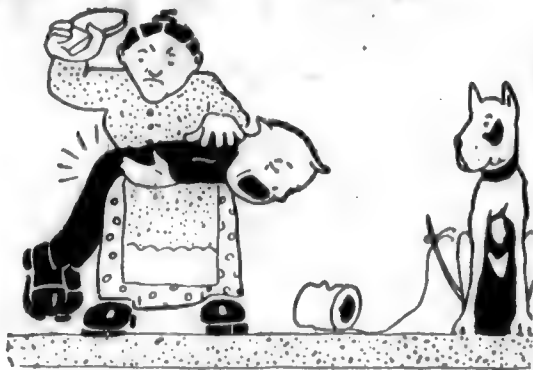

Cut Croton Leaves and Sprays have been supplied by us in the past few years to some of the leading retail florists, who have featured them in mantel, table and funeral work. They are also specially attractive to use with Chrysanthemums.

Cut Crotons will last in a cool place from three to four weeks. We can supply them every day in the year. Very highly colored sprays at 25c, 35c and 50c; cut leaves, $3.00 and $5.00 per 100.

CUT CHRYSANTHEMUMS

We are growing over 50,000 cut blooms of Chrysanthemums in all the best commercial varieties. Ready now and until December 1st. Make arrangements with us to have your "cut Mums" supplied by us. Either daily or weekly shipments. Lowest market prices.

Metropolitan

For COMMERCIAL GREENHOUSES

This Metropolitan semi-iron commercial greenhouse, 18 x 200 feet, was erected for the Springfield Floral Co., of Springfield, N. J.

Note the neat general appearance of this greenhouse, particularly of the walls. This is made possible by the Metropolitan patented cast-iron eave, which, besides being ice-clearing, also has a combination drip conductor feature which carries off all waters of condensation from the inside of the roof. Notice, too, that no wood headers are necessary with this eave.

King Greenhouses

KEEP SUMMER WITH YOU THE WHOLE YEAR ROUND

On account of their sturdy special construction, which permits of great strength without the need of heavy, shadow-casting supports, these houses are so warm and sunny that they are filled with a riot of bloom and fruit when Jack Frost has stripped the garden of its beauty.

The ventilating and heating systems are the result of years of experience in building for professional growers. Things just have to grow in a King.

Write today for Bulletin No. 43. See how beautiful and how productive a greenhouse can be erected for the price you want to pay.

LUTHER BURBANK ENDORSES SYSTEM

Mr. Luther Burbank, of Santa Rosa, Cal., writes us the following interesting letter:

"One of my workmen has (without the aid of a plumber) installed your System in my greenhouse, used for general propagation of plants, and I could not do without it again at any price.

"It saves all the labor of watering, doing the work far better than it could possibly be done otherwise, distributing the water in the most natural and most perfect way; but, best of all, seeds germinate more readily, cuttings root more certainly, and plants grow more healthy than by the old system of sprinkling.

"Your System is especially valuable in our dry climate, as each drop is fully utilized."

PANSIES.

PANSIES IN ALL SIZES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is a thoroughbred strain of Show and Fancy Pansies. The flowers are of the largest size, perfect form, with thick, velvety petals and of the greatest variety of rich and rare colors, the reds, bronzes and new fancy varieties in large numbers. All the colors in the right proportion for the retail trade. It contains every giant variety known. I have made Pansy seed and plant growing a specialty over forty years, and received thousands of testimonials from florists and amateurs in all sections of the country. Samples: "The Pansies last year could not be beat for colors, size and long stems. I grow for cut flowers only (Boston market), and consider your strain way ahead of anything I have tried or seen. Perry Green, Quincy, Mass." "This is the 7th year I have used your Pansies, and each year have found them satisfactory in size of flower and other respects. J. M. McCabe, Washington, D. C." A large stock of fine field-grown plants from seed sown in sandy soil, thinly, broadcast, so they have room to make stocky growth and extra fine roots. Over 75 varieties mixed. Good plants, 10 weeks old, $4.00 per 1000; 500 for $2.25. Large plants, 12 weeks old, $4.50 per 1000; 500 for $2.50. Extra large plants, 14 weeks old, many with buds started, some beginning to bloom, $5.00 per 1000; 500 for $2.75. Cash with order.
L. W. Goodell, Pansy Park, Dwight, Mass.

THE BEST GIANT PANSIES.

Our Pansies are the best the world produces. They combine the choicest large flowering sorts of both European and American growers. It has been our aim to make this the finest strain of this favorite flower in existence. Raised at an altitude of 5,721 ft. above sea level, gives them lots of fibrous roots. They start quickly. They are not soft.

Send your order in at once with the cash for field-grown plants, $3.50 per 1000.

PELARGONIUMS.

PELARGONIUMS.

Remember we are the real distributors of Easter Greeting; the first one to advertise it, now look at 'em. Wide awake florists know a good thing when they see it. Some are a little slow at first, but that isn't to be wondered at when one considers the "new frauds." But listen! Get in the swim for 1917. We have over 25,000 coming for November and December sales and hope to have 50,000 coming a little later, $7.50 per 100. We are making them by special machinery and the war hasn't changed the price. Our guarantee covers everything.

Yes—
it's the McKEE—

Highest type of Vacuum Pump made.

—the one perfect system of vacuum heating. Perfect because it operates with, not against, the laws of nature. You are growing for profit, you have no time to experiment, a breakdown in your heating system would entail a heavy loss. That is why the McKEE vacuum system is yours by natural selection.

Always on the job.

The McKEE vacuum trap is designed to handle rough work. The best heating system yet evolved will develop dirt from the pipe joints. An ordinary trap cannot handle this satisfactorily. The McKEE can—that's what it's built for, and it's the only steam trap designed and built exclusively for greenhouse heating. The McKEE quickly relieves the system of cold air and water when steam is suddenly turned into a lot of cold pipes. Hence there is no danger of twisting pipes or injuring the system. The McKEE can be installed in the coldest weather. No necessity of stopping your plant.

You keen growers will appreciate these advantages—you will not underestimate them! You have achieved your present success by constant alertness—by selecting the best.

BOILERS IN BATTERY

Installed by us for Mr. J. E. Tilt, Chicago, Ill.

There are many advantages in having boilers in battery form.

It is like insurance, because, should anything happen to one of the boilers, the other one will carry you through until repairs can be made.

In mild weather it is only necessary to operate one boiler, and this means a big saving of fuel. Many Moninger boilers are operated in battery. Those shown above have been doing duty for a number of years now, and their owner will be glad to tell you how satisfied he is. We have a large stock of all sizes of boilers on hand and can ship at once.
